You will not be required to leave your present surroundings now. All we ask of those to whom we grant tracts is that they plant, or arrange to have planted, a crop of one of the above-mentioned products within three years, after which we will have it operated (harvested and replanted) for grantees, in consideration of 25 per cent. of the net profits derived from the sale of the crops, thereby allowing such time as they determine just what the yield of their acres amounts to. Consider what this may mean as a source of income, when statistics show that the yield of one acre of celery amounted to $1,200.45, and that one acre of well-cared-for paper shell pecans, in full bearing, should net its owner as high as $500.00 per year. We are of the opinion that after it is proven by actual results obtained in operating the land that they will need no further urging, and waste no time in toasting in this land of plenty. We also require grantees to occupy the land within ten years, or sell it to some one who will occupy it; otherwise it reverts back to the grantor.

The land included in this opening is located directly on and adjoining the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad, about twenty-five miles west of Brunswick, a thriving city of fifteen thousand, having direct steamship service to New York and Boston, and excellent railroad transportation facilities to all points. The average temperature for six months of the year, from April to October, is 77 degrees; the climate is most healthful, delightful, and invigorating, and there is an ample rainfall of 51 inches per year.

OUR AIM IS FOR MUTUALLY BENEFICIAL RESULTS

As we are extremely desirous of having settlers locate on this property, and assist in its development, and thereby greatly increase the value of surrounding land, intervening property which we will hold, and to increase the traffic along the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad, and thus facilitate the service, we feel warranted in granting these tracts to those who register with us. We also have in mind business and residence plots which we will offer for sale after the opening, but which will not be included in it. We have "money-making inducements" considerations in this liberal-minded opening, similar to those of the Northern Pacific and other railroads when they granted their lands, and we expect to benefit thereby, as well as the ones who will receive the tracts.

We have also planned to develop what is designed to be the best equipped, most up-to-date, scientific, commercial farm and orchard in existence. It will consist of six thousand acres, and will be included in this opening. All who register and receive tracts will get the benefit of the experiments and scientific methods in vogue thereon. While we are arranging to prevent over-registration, we will avoid many disappointments, such as occurred in other land openings conducted by the United States Government and railroads, by granting those who register in excess of the number of tracts to be granted, an interest in this commercial farm and orchard enterprise, in the hope that they may locate tracts in one of our town sites.

Examination of the land will cheerfully be permitted, and the opening will be held at Brownstown, Wayne County, Georgia, one of the stations of the A. B. & A. Railroad, which is located on this property, and will occur as soon after the closing of registrations as arrangements can be made.

The presence of those registered will not be necessary at Brownstown on the opening day, unless they wish to attend, for there will be no favoritism shown anyone. It will be conducted by a committee selected for the purpose, and those registered will be notified of what they have been granted, as soon as possible.

With the ever-increasing population of this country there is no corresponding increase in the area of land, and naturally as the population increases and make the land to pursuit of health, happiness and independence, it will continue to be harder to secure.

The prosperous and contented class in Europe to-day are the descendants of those who secured land there when it was plentiful, while the descendants of those who obtained no land are now the peasants and slaves. You must realize that this may be your last chance to secure land in this country without a large outlay of capital, so it should not be necessary to urge you to act at once by forwarding us the application for registration attached to this advertisement.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A SUPERIOR FAMILY

The moment she entered the house Jessie Marshall knew that she had been seen talking to Mrs. Bland across the fence. For her aunt Angeline and her sister, Adele, were all disapproval from the tips of their neatly blacked shoes to the topmost of their heads.

"It seems to me," said Aunt Angeline, looking down her nose, "that you could hang out a shirtwaist, my dear, without being intrigued in to conversation by that woman."

Jessie leaned on a chairback and laughed. "Why, auntie, there was nothing like an intrigue. I good morninged her and she good morninged me. And then I asked her if she wouldn't like a handful of Scotch dainies."

"Jessie," said Aunt Angeline, ignoring this and sniffing coldly, "I have lived a great many years next door to the Blands on one side and to old Mrs. Ballard on the other, and I have never done more than bow to either of them. Neither has Adele."

"So have I, auntie," Jessie replied, gently "but some time since I made up my mind that it was a very unchristianlike thing to do. I like anybody that's clean and decent, and some that aren't, when they're unfortunate. And if I get them to like me I'm proud and glad, there, now."

She walked out of the room for the first time in her life in open rebellion to her aunt's wishes. Adele ran after her and caught her at the head of the stairs.

"You've wounded Aunt Angeline. And all the people in the world aren't worth that," she panted.

"Adele," said Jessie, "come in here." She pulled her older sister into her bedroom. "Sit down in that chair. Now listen to me Adele, you are thirty-one and I am twenty-eight, and we've lived here in Arles since we were born, and shall probably live here till we die, for there are no Prince Charmings coming to snatch us away. If we'd had the least bit of talent or ambition we wouldn't be here to-day, and you know it. But we are here and we've got to stay, and we might as well stay pleasantly. Aunt Angeline has had some illusion about our being superior to the people here about, just because we had a big bug for a grandfather and are related to the New York and Newport Marshalls. But because of them and our dear and gone grandfather we're living here in this big house on bread and cheese and tea, and pretending we're idle because we're rich. I for one am sick of it. I know you are sick of it, too, and I'll bet my best made-over dress that Aunt Angeline's sick of it, too, only she won't give in."

"Why Jessie!" gasped Adele. Her big eyes stared. Her small, weak chin began to quiver.

The sight of her touched Jessie and, kneeling down, she pulled Adele into her arms. "Don't you see, darling?" she whispered.

Adele stiffened unexpectedly. Her chin might quiver, but her pride was as steady as ever. "Yes, I do see," Adele said, passionately, "I see that you're in love with Tommy Bland, and he's nothing but a mechanic, even if he has got genuine Grecian features."

Jessie was pale. "Yes, I do love Tom Bland," she said, "and I'll have him the minute he asks me. But he'll never ask me, Adele, so long as you and Aunt Angeline treat his mother in this way. Tom's got some pride of his own, and it's a better pride than ours, too. Oh, Adele," Jessie pleaded, "won't you be reasonable and sensible and come over to my side, so that I can be happy, even if you don't care for that kind of happiness for yourself?"

Adele rose slowly. "I am going to Aunt Angeline," she said, coldly, and left the room.

Ten minutes later Jessie saw her going towards Bob Ballard's general store. When Adele returned with her parcels Jessie went down and helped her with the lunch.

Aunt Angeline and Adele made a show of conversation during the meal. Neither spoke to Jessie until just as they were leaving the table. Then Aunt Angeline asked: "My dear, what is our modus operandi for the afternoon?"

Jessie looked straight in the old woman's eyes. "I am going over to Mrs. Brady's to take care of little Molly for her so that she can have a good, sound sleep. Molly has been sick three weeks and her mother is worn out."

Aunt Angeline's shoulders moved. "And you, Adele?"

"I shall paint. I think, auntie One more good thorough afternoon's work ought to finish my picture."

"I shall go on with my sewing," said Aunt Angeline. "I found an inspiring idea in a fashion book this morning."

Jessie spent the whole afternoon at Mrs. Brady's. While the tired mother slept she held the little child, who would never be any better in this world, in her strong, young arms, securely and soothingly and sung lullabys softly.

She was tired herself when 6 o'clock came, but Mrs. Brady rose refreshed.

"I feel like a new person. Oh, you'll never know what this has done for me," she cried.

"I'll come to-morrow afternoon," Jessie promised.

She felt strangely downcast now. The long hours of sitting in much the same position with the child in her arms and the contest of the morning had told on her. Her feet dragged a little as she went on toward home. Her way led past Bob Ballard's store, and when she reached it she saw that it was full to the doors. A doctor passed her by quietly, medicine case in hand. She went to the door and spoke to the nearest man. "What's wrong here, Mr. Sells?"

"Why, Bob Ballard got hurt," the man replied. "He climbed up to get something off the top shelf and the step ladder broke and he fell kersmash. His head hit the counter and, and they say his skull is splintered!"

Her first thought was of old Mrs Ballard and how to keep the news from her until she was fully prepared. She ran all the way home. At her own house she saw Adele on the porch and rushed up to her breathlessly. "Oh, Adele," she cried, "you must help me now, for Mrs. Ballard is not strong, and they'll be bringing Bob home in a moment. He has fallen and fractured his skull——"

She got no farther, for Adele had given a wild cry, and was clinging to a porch pillar with her face as white as her waist.

"Bob! Oh, my God!" she said. "And only this noon I wouldn't listen when he tried to tell me that he loved me!"

After all it was Adele who went to Mrs. Ballard's and saw to most of the things that must be done before Bob was brought home. Bob's skull bone was bumped, not fractured, and his collar bone broken. That was all. He was perfectly collected and almost the first thing he said was:

"Don't cry, Adele, darling. I'll get well and marry you yet if you'll have me."

And before them all Adele blubbered that she would.

Tom Bland walked boldly home with Jessie to her own front door. "Maybe we can have a double wedding," he suggested, happily.

Jessie was pinning a Scotch daisy upon his coat. "I dare you to say that to Aunt Angeline," she said mischievously.

"I will," said Tom, earnestly. "I'll go in this minute, and I'll make it all right with her, too. See if I don't."

And he did.

QUICK WAY OF MAKING MAYONNAISE.

Beat the yolk of one egg well with an egg beater, add a dash each of cayenne, paprika and mustard, ½ teaspoon salt and a pinch of sugar. Add the juice of 1 lemon, beating it thoroughly, then add oil. The mixture will take up oil as fast as it is added. No care need be taken to add it drop by drop, and continue beating in the oil until the mixture is of the right consistency. If the eggs and lemon are thoroughly mixed and the oil be cold, but not in the least bit congealed, this dressing will never curdle.

NUEVO LAREDO RUINED.

Huerta's Troops Destroy It To Prevent U. S. Occupation.

LAREDO, Texas, April 25. — The United States consulate, municipal building, shops, market building, roundhouse and station of the national railways of Mexico, custom house, Banco National, Camandin Theatre, barracks of Mexico Federals, Laredo flour mills, electric light plant and a number of other buildings for all parts of Nuevo Laredo reduced to a mass of ruins, tell the destructive work done by the Mexican Federal soldiers upon their departure from Nuevo Laredo yesterday afternoon at two o'clock upon special trains.

The quaint old Mexican city was destroyed rather than let it remain as it was to be possibly occupied by American soldiery if they crossed the river. The best and most costly buildings of the town were reduced to ashes when the torch was applied to them yesterday afternoon. Before setting fire to the adjoining buildings, the United States Consulate, recently vacated by Consul Garrett, was blown to atoms by dynamite.

As the train pulled out with the Mexican soldiers, some of them poured a volley into the American guards on the banks of the American side, and the fire was promptly responded.

Then several Mexicans appeared and opened fire across the river on the same guards and most of the Mexicans were killed, but no American soldiers were injured.

Then two men attempted to blow up the international and railway bridges from the Mexican side and they were shot down by American sharpshooters.

NO NEED FOR CLOTHES.

Venus Is Exempted From General Rule by Judge Hanis.

MONTREAL, April 25. — The city cannot be deprived of statues of nude women, because certain police officials believe them to be offensive. This decision was arrived at by Judge Hanis when he found David Ruhis, art dealer, not guilty of the charge of exhibiting indecent statuary by selling reproductions of Venus and other celebrated works.

The police argued that there was Biblical injunctions against a display of nudity. The defence called William Brymner, president of the Canadian Royal Academy, and Dr. J. D. Logan, art editor of The Herald and Telegraph, to testify to the artistic qualification of the reproductions, but the judge said their evidence was not required, as the fact that the originals were on exhibition in the great galleries of Europe was proof that they were not objectionable.

Saskatchewan's Inquiry.

REGINA, Sask., April 25.—A commission composed of Justices Newlands and Lamont, Attorney-General Turgeon, Hon. Mr. Motherwell and J. A. Maharg, president of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co., will inquire into the laws of the province concerning the sale of farm machinery, with a view to introducing legislation.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder troubles.

NERVOUS DISEASES IN THE SPRING

Cured by Toning the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation, that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause many more troubles than the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often overheated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and other forms of nervous troubles are at their worst, and that then, more than any other time, a blood-making, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves, and thus cure the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact, they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MAY BE EXECUTED.

Americans In Danger of Death at the Hands of Federals.

VERA CRUZ, April 25. — Seven American prisoners of Mexican soldiers, are being held at Cordoba or Orizaba, on the line of the Mexican railway between here and the capital four of whom at least are threatened with execution, according to authentic information received here last night.

Four of the Americans were taken from a train on the Vera Cruz isthmus line at Tierra Blanca and further along at Motzolongo station, three other Americans and an Englishman were seized. Those captured at Tierra Blanca are W. A. Meagan, superintendent of the railroad, Engineer Hilliet and Conductors Riley and Hart. At Motzolongo Edward Wounch, his son Sydney, A. M. Thomas and Mr. Boyd, a Britisher, were arrested by the Federals.

The belief that the Federals intended to execute at least four of the prisoners was gained from the conversation of the soldiers who captured them which was overheard by passengers on the train. The prisoners were taken to Cordoba, and, it is believed, later, were transferred to Orizaba, a point nearer the capital.

Eighteen Americans are still in Tierra Blanca, among them J. O. Cook, chief engineer of the Isthmus Railway; J. C. Schneider, J. D. Langston, C. D. Marrieon and wife and children, and Mr. and Mrs. George McComber.

An indirect report received here yesterday from Mexico City, said that a mob attempted to burn the terminal of the Mexican railway but was prevented by President Huerta's troops.

Conspiracy at Vera Cruz.

VERA CRUZ, April 25. — Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the United States Charge d'Affaires at Mexico, arrived here last night.

He was accompanied by Gen. Carranza and Col. Bonnilf, who were appointed as his escort by President Huerta as a special courtesy to the retiring charge d'affaires.

Shy at Sewage Disposal Plant.

PETERBORO, April 25. — Residents of Otonabee are circulating a petition against the proposition of the City Council to build a sewage disposal plant on the east side of the river here, owing to the obnoxious smells which may follow in its train.

CHARGED WITH PERJURY.

York County Constable Arrested After Civil Action.

TORONTO, April 25.—After the conclusion of the Davis-Wettlaufer breach of promise suit in the County Court last evening, in which Miss Davis got a verdict for $7,000, James McMullen, county constable in York County, was placed under arrest by Detective Montgomery on a charge of perjury. McMullen was taken to No. 1 police station, where he spent an hour in the cells, after which he was released on $2,000 bail, furnished by James McCormick, Grosvenor street. The warrant was sworn out by J. L. Wettlaufer yesterday afternoon, and the charge is in connection with certain letters written to the morality department, which when produced in the recent trial McMullen denied having written.

Volcanoes Threatening.

ROME, April 25. — The volcanoes Vesuvius and Etna are causing much anxiety in the Mediterranean. The rumblings of Vesuvius are now continuous and are accompanied by earth tremors and clatter, emitting cinders, sulphurous matter and an enormous mass of lava. Prof. Malladra, director of the Vesuvius Observatory, says the phenomena are exactly similar to those preceding the great eruption in 1906. Similar phenomena are observed at Mount Etna.

The Real Secret of Rejuvenating the Face

She holds the true secret of facial rejuvenation who has learned how to remove the dead skin particles as fast as they appear. It's a secret anyone may possess. The aged, faded or discolored surface skin may be gradually absorbed, in an entirely safe and rational manner, by the nightly application of ordinary mercolized wax. Within a week or two the underlying skin, youthful and beautiful to behold, has taken the place of the discarded cuticle. So little of the old skin is absorbed each day there's no inconvenience at all, and no one suspects you are putting anything on your face. Use mercolized wax, procurable at any druggists (an ounce is sufficient), in applied like cold cream. In the morning it is cleansed with soap and water. It's the one thing known for freckles, blackheads, pimples, moth patches, liver spots, fine surface wrinkles.

For deep wrinkles, an excellent recipe is: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in this solution produces quick and wonderful results.

Some men, sometimes, can board the flying street car or "monkey with the buzz-saw" in a mill or factory, and get away with it. But that's how accidents happen. —— Some men, sometimes, can shave with an open blade razor and avoid cutting themselves. But thousands agree that the chances are against it.

THE

was the practical forerunner of today's "Safety First" movement. What engineers are doing now to safeguard tools and transportation, King C. Gillette did ten years ago for that much used tool, the razor. And while he made the razor safe, he also made it keener, harder and handier than the old open blade.

That thin, electrically tempered blade, gripped rigid in the adjustable holder, gives the cleanest, smoothest and quickest, as well as the safest shave man has ever enjoyed.

DOES YOUR STOMACH CONTAIN A GLASSFUL OF ACID?

IT IS OUT OF 100 DYSPEPTICS HAVE DANGEROUS ACID IN THEIR STOMACHS, WHICH MUST BE NEUTRALIZED IF GOOD HEALTH IS TO BE MAINTAINED.

If you hold a teaspoonful of hydrochloric acid in your mouth for only a second you would not be surprised at its burning and inflaming all the tissues; yet an eminent specialist states that 95 out of 100 dyspeptics go about with a glassful or more of this powerful acid in their stomachs, and then wonder what causes the burning and aching and why they suffer the discomfort after meals. To get wholesome food into an acid stomach only increases the discomfort, because the acid ferments with the fresh food and turns it sour, making a lot more acid. The acid conditions causes food fermentation, which irritates, distends and inflames the entire stomach lining, and it is not surprising that specialists say acid stomachs are dangerous. This dreadful discomfort and the uncomfortable condition can be corrected either by following a strict diet for, and this is far easier and more quickly effected, by taking a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a quarter glassful of water after meals to neutralize the acidity. The latter course is much more satisfactory because it corrects the acidity and banishes discomfort without any need for diet.

TWENTY REFUGEES MAY HAVE BEEN MASSACRED

Stated That Forty Were Captured by Mexican Federals and Executed by the Troops.

ONE BRITISH SUBJECT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Ill., April 25.—According to a message received here from Secretary of State Bryan, it is probable that twenty refugees, nineteen of them United Statesers and one British subject named Boyd and including three women and two children have been executed near a big plantation of Montoterrongo Company. Bryan's information came from Vera Cruz and is apparently official. It is said that these people were on the way to the coast when their train was stopped by Mexican Federal troops and they were taken prisoners. A despatch says: "It is reliably stated that all the prisoners may have been executed." It is further added that Admiral Badger has this information before him and it is presumed he is taking immediate action to save the lives of these people, if not too late.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 25.—The diplomatic tangle over Mexico has created a situation of unrest here in Washington. The Congressional leaders are vainly importuning the White House for the announcement of a definite policy. No word comes from the President. He and his advisers may have decided on a plan, but all knowledge is withheld from the public. Today there is tenseness in Congress, which may break into a storm of open criticism of the President Wilson and Secretary Bryan at any moment. Among the latest news this morning is the alarming fact that Mexico is looking upon the situation as definite war, although the United States does not admit it or act accordingly. Huerta has ordered that no more United Statesers be permitted to leave Mexico. It is also known that in the interior cities all English speaking people are being held prisoners. Many people here who know the Mexican capital, say a perfect reign of terror will be there in a few days.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKET

The market to-day reflected unsettlement again. The war situation and European rumours are responsible. An attitude of conservatism is advisable for operators who are not close to the market. Reading, Union Pacific and Illinois will find good absorption on rumorious, and scale-down buying is in evidence on the best securities.

The majority of other active issues are likely to meet stock on recoveries. The best advantage will be secured by purchases on breaks and sales on rallies.

EXCEPTIONAL ACTIVITY IN REAL ESTATE

Prospects Good in the Building Line For the Coming Season

MARCH LABOUR REPORT

(Labour Gazette)

Labour conditions during March did not compare favourably with those of the corresponding period of last year, the supply of labour being generally in excess of the demand, particularly in regard to unskilled labour. For this season of the year exceptional activity prevailed in real estate, and prospects are good in the building line for the coming season. In the manufacturing trades there was little change since last month. Most factories are working with reduced staffs, and some on short time. The Brinton Carpet Company, which has been almost shut down all the winter, expects to start up full on the first of April, and the Henry Hope Company, whose manager has arrived in the City this month, is having the machinery installed, and expects to start operations on the first of April. The firm having the contract for paving the principal streets of this City is getting its plant in shape and will start in about two weeks. This will give employment to a good number of men. The directors' report of the Canadian General Electric Company profit-loss account for 1913 shows that the gross profits amounted to $3,039,899.49. Out of the gross profits for the year the sum of $407,286.98 was applied to depreciation, and $282,634.69 for interest, leaving the net profits for the year $1,268,209.08.

Farmers were busy getting ready for their spring work. The lumbermen have finished cutting, and are waiting for the streams to open up and bring down the out of logs. Improvements to local saw mills are being rushed in preparation for the opening of the cutting season. The prospects are for an exceptionally large cut this season.

Land Ninety Thousand Rifles and Five Million Rounds of Ammunition, Completely Outwitting the Police

WIDELY DISTRIBUTED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BELFAST, Ireland, April 25.— Completely outwitting the government and police authorities, the Unionists of Ulster to-day carried out the greatest gun running in the history of Ireland and landed ninety thousand rifles and five million rounds of ammunition and within a few hours had it distributed all over Ulster. With this war material at hand the Ulster leaders say they are now ready to resist to the limit the enforcement of Home Rule in Ulster. These munitions of war came from Hamburg on the steamship Fanny. They were landed at several points on the rugged coast at Lorne, Bangor and Donaghadee. The government authorities were deceived and believed that the gathering of two hundred automobiles and several thousand men was merely a mobilization test, but under cover of darkness the rifles and ammunition was brought ashore, quietly deposited in autos and motor cars and in a few minutes were hustling in fifty directions to all parts of Ulster. When the plot was discovered, government police found that the wires to Dublin were all cut and they were helpless.

SON OF JUDGE WIDDIFIELD WILL JOIN G. N. GORDON

Mr. G. N. Gordon has arranged with Mr. C. E. Widdifield, son of His Honour Judge C. H. Widdifield of Owen Sound to join in the near future in the legal practice which Mr. Gordon has developed during recent years. The work connected with the position of City Solicitor and the demands of Mr. Gordon's regular business have imposed so much upon his time that he was practically compelled to call in assistance.

Where The Credit Is Due To Liberal Temperance Law

The Expositor has already called attention to the effort being made by the Conservative party, in Brant county and elsewhere throughout the province, to give a fictitious value to the amendments which the Whitney government has made to the Liquor License Act andto create the impression that as compared with these changes the legislation of this nature passed by the Liberal party when in power in Ontario was as nothing. The fact is that while the Conservatives came into office the liquor liquor license legislation on the statute books made good-sized volume and embraced such effective measures for the promotion of temperance as the Crooks Act for the restriction of licenses, and the Local Option Act, which gave municipalities the power to get rid of licenses altogether.

By way of illustration let us take some figures to be found in the report on the Liquor License Act for the year 1913, published by the present government. In the year 1874, when the first returns were given, there were in Brant county, outside the city, 95 tavern and 29 shop licenses, while in 1905, when the Liberals went out of office this number had been reduced to 18 tavern and one shop license. While to-day, thanks to local option, there are but four tavern licenses and one shop license. In other words, the number of licenses in Brant county, outside the city, has been reduced from 124 in 1874 to five to-day. Then, if we take the city, there were in 1886, the year first covered by the returns, 27 licenses, whereas in 1905, when the Liberals went out of office, there were but 21. Furthermore, but for the handicap imposed by the Whitney government, in the form of the three-fifths requirement, we would have to-day a "dry" county.

With such a record of facts the apologists for the present government are unwise in challenging a comparison between the achievements of the Liberal and Conservative parties in this province in the matter of temperance reform.—Brantford Expositor.

A Heavy Rain Prevented the Petes From Going Into Action Against the Gerard Team

LINE-UP FOR TO-MORROW

Special Wire to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 25.— It was raining heavily here to-day and the downpour prevented a general bunting and base running practice scheduled for the morning and resulted in this afternoon's game with Gerard having to be cancelled. Instead the Petes will have a drill in the club house. The out look for a game to-morrow is doubtful. If the weather permits the Petes will line up as follows against the Pittsburg Independents: Blount m., Fox r.f., Swartz l.f., Freeman or Flanagan 1b., Byrne 3b., King 2b., Price s.s., Miller c., Ryberg c., Schettler p., Sterling p., Cresswell p.

Youth To Be Tried For The Murder Of Express Agent

CORNING, N.Y., April 25.— David Dunn, the 19-year-old youth who on Feb. 23 murdered Harry Edwards, night cashier of an express company here, is to be placed on trial Monday. A desire to steal $10,000 in currency which had arrived at the express office during the night, and was to have been shipped the following day, furnished the motive for the murder.

Edwards, the murdered clerk, had given Dunn permission to sleep in the express office for the night when the latter told him he could find no place of shelter. Dunn waited until he believed Edwards to be asleep, and then attempted to open the safe. When Edwards suddenly awakened and found Dunn at work on the safe, the robber shot and instantly killed him. After assuring himself that Edwards was dead, Dunn made an attempt to blow the safe. The operator in the telephone exchange heard the report and notified the police. The latter thereupon called up the express office. Dunn coolly answered the telephone, impersonating the dead cashier, and assured the police that there was nothing wrong.

Dunn worked on the safe the greater part of the night, but failed to open it. He was arrested on suspicion the next morning, and, according to the police, made a complete confession of murder. It is believed that his counsel will try to establish a defense of insanity.

POPULARITY OF FORD CAR ILLUSTRATED TO-DAY

Nearly Fifty Fords Lined Hunter St. Curb While Owners Dined in the Oriental—$35 in Prizes.

NUMBER OF SPEECHES

Examiner Special:

The first annual Ford Day was an auspicious one for local Ford owners to-day and about one hundred and twenty-five of them gathered at one-thirty o'clock this afternoon in the Oriental at a luncheon in observance of the day. For some distance in front of the Hunter Street hostelry the trim Ford cars were lined, the fifty or more motors being the largest number ever gathered at one time in this City. Prominent business men of the City constituted the gathering and were very enjoyably entertained at the Oriental this afternoon. Of the two hundred cars in this City a considerable percentage of them are Fords and a good deal of enthusiasm was evinced by the auto owners who sat down to the banquet this afternoon. The occasion was a memorable one and the fact that it is to be an annual one was welcomed by all present this afternoon.

Mr. C. I. Fox, manager of the Canadian factory of the Ford Motor Company, and representatives of that make of car within a radius of forty miles, including the popular local agent, Mr. J. J. Dullus, were present, and the satisfaction of those who have purchased Fords created an extremely cordial atmosphere which predominated throughout the banquet.

TENDERS FOR EXCAVATION OF NEW CHURCH

2,500 Cubic Yards of Earth Will Have to Be Removed to Prepare For Building of Handsome New Edifice

START IN NEAR FUTURE

Tenders have been received by the Building committee of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church for the excavation for the foundations of the new structure at the head of Simcoe Street. It is understood that the tender of Mr. W. H. Lytle, contractor, 484 Gilmour Street, is the lowest, and as he is known to be a competent contractor, it is probable that the work will be awarded to him.

Some idea of the size and character of the new church can be formed from the fact that the excavation means the removal of about 3,500 cubic yards of earth. It is stated that the work will be begun as soon as the buildings that occupy part of the site of the new church are removed. The process of removal is pretty well advanced.

During the summer it may be expected that a splendid new building will rise on a commanding site and be, besides, a splendid piece of worship, a fine public architectural ornament, if the full opportunities of the dominating site are taken advantage of.

BARRIE HAS FOUND OILING ROADS A REAL BENEFIT

Notwithstanding the fact that Barrie has experienced the benefit of street oiling as a dust preventive for a couple of years, there is still considerable opposition to the continuance of the practice. The principle objection to the use of oil is that it tracks on to the walks and into the stores and offices for a day or two after the oil is applied. This difficulty should not be so evident as it has been in past years if a little more judgment was used in selecting the time for applying the oil. Warm days and days on which business is quiet in town (if such days ever occur) should be chosen, and if a thinner grade of oil was used on the main street it would probably result in an improvement in this respect. Watering keeps down the dust so long as the moisture remains, but the constant application of water washes away the valuable binding material, thus destroying the road and making repairs necessary. Oiling road eliminates the dust, hardens and makes the road practically waterproof, retaining the precious binding material on the road, where it belongs, thus extending the life of the road and wiping out largely the cost of repairs. Watering the road means, in any case, that all night long and all day Sunday the disease-laden dust is blown about, causing eye, throat and tubercular troubles, as well as destroying lawns, shrubbery, fruit, furnishings, merchandise, etc. Oiling the roads means that there is no dust to blow at any time. The orginal dust is disinfected by the oil and worked into the road, thus making it wholesome and sanitary to live or travel upon a properly oiled road. Watering the roads means expending large sums of money without receiving permanent benefit. Oiling the road means that it actually costs less than watering, and every gallon of oil used makes the road permanently better. Watering the road attracts flies and mosquitoes. Oiling the road drives away all insects and makes life worth living for man and beast.—Saturday Morning Barrie.

Ten Reasons For Joining The Board Of Trade

1. Because your influence is needed to give the Board more weight.

2. Because your advice is needed. The collective opinion of a large body of men is more likely to be correct than that of a few.

3. Because your subscription is needed. A Board embarrassed by the want of funds can accomplish comparatively little.

4. Because the executive officers and council of twenty-four active men are exhausting themselves in building up and improving this city and should be assisted.

5. Because you are interested in the development of the city.

6. Because every dollar spent by the Board brings in a return to every merchant or property holder in Peterborough.

7. Because a live Board of Trade is the most powerful agent in developing a Municipality.

8. Because it only costs two dollars.

9. Because in most cities it is considered an honour to be allowed to belong to the Board of Trade.

10. Because you are hereby invited to do so.

USELESS VANDALISM.

Is Peterborough to have no protection for its public places and public beauties? Can we not arouse some cooperative interest in seconding the efforts of private citizens individually exercised, and collectively effective in improving the beauty of our streets and public places? People have planted trees and protected them to majestic maturity only to have them cut down like cumberers of the ground, to give room for the moving of a second-hand building.

And the outrage is all the worse in the case of the fine tree cut down on Simcoe street. The City Engineer gives permission — which he should not have done without consulting the Council—for the removal of a fifteen-inch trunk maple tree on Stewart street to permit of the removal of an old building; he refused a permit to move the house along the streets; and the house is now being torn down, for removal, as should have been done at first.

Here is the situation. The City Council, through an official, with a good deal of impudence—for it never has planted a tree—cuts down a lordly street tree to let an old building pass, refuses permission to the building pass, and the building doesn't pass for it is being removed piecemeal. But the tree is gone, the beauty of the street impaired, and the vandalism has not the excuse of necessity, or the serving any public or even private interest.

Can we not coax, beg, pray, beseech the city authorities to take some decent, some civilized interest in the beautification of our streets? The open lawns of private citizens; the boulevards, made and beautified by private taste and private means, are absolutely unprotected. A public-spirited citizen with taste, spends good money and lays down a lawn or boulevard; within twenty-four hours the vandal portion of the public tramp the life out of them, making thoroughfares of them within a few feet of a first-class sidewalk that cost the taxpayer about $3 a square yard, and helps explain a tax-rate of 26 mills.

Why does not the city protect taxpayers and preserve the beauty of our streets in the interests of all who use the streets? It should do so; it can be done; it is done in other places. We boast in Canada of being more law-abiding than our neighbours. Yet in cities in the United States the boulevards are planted with flowers; they bloom unmolested to the delight of the public, because they are protected. We could and should do as much in Peterborough.

Can't something be done to make a change—something to arouse the slumbering and indifferent authorities? The Horticultural Society is doing much to beautify the city; it laudably encourages the citizens to beautify their premises; it should go further and help bring about protection of their efforts. It is time something were done in this direction; we can't get forward much if we build one day and destroy the next—if we plant a street tree and after a growth of forty years let it be cut down by an act of virtually useless vandalism.

ILL-TIMED LEVITY.

The small wits of the Conservative party, are never tired, nor to their shame, never ashamed, of making game of the "Laurier navy," the "tin pot" navy—the Niobe and Rainbow, derelict by the Borden Government at the bidding of the Nationalists. Even to the staid, sober and supposedly dignified, if dilapidated Senate, the leader of the Borden Senate, Senator Loughhead, disgraced his dignity so far as to make an international matter, and Canada's humiliation, a subject of senile jest. A rabid party journal which condemns everything Liberal, however right, and condones everything Conservative, however wrong, says that Canadians who contribute nothing to the defence of the Empire must call upon the British navy to safeguard the interests of Canadians in Mexico. And whose fault is that if not the Borden Government's, whose fault if not Mr. Borden's himself?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier with a mandate from an unanimous Parliament, provided for a Canadian navy; tenders for the construction of four Canadian cruisers were received and before these tenders could be acted upon, the Conservative Opposition forced dissolution; and then followed a general election in which Mr. Borden was successful. It was incumbent upon him to deal with the tenders; but instead of so doing, he pigeon-holed them, bought the support of the Nationalists, formed a party alliance with them, and gave them the three best portfolios in the cabinet, on the condition that he abandon the Canadian navy, for whose principle he and the whole of Parliament irrespective of politics unanimously voted.

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier had remained in power, the tenders for cruisers would have been acted upon; and we could have had at least two cruisers ready for Mexican waters, manned by Canadian sailors and marines. The Laurier Government purchased in Great Britain the Niobe and Rainbow to be used as training ships. They may not have been the best, but they served the purpose of training ships as Nelson's glorious old hulk, the Victory, over a hundred years old, is doing to the present day. If Laurier had been kept in power, Canada would have been able to take her place worthily and "off her own bat" in the defence of the Empire, and of the interests of her citizens in the war zone.

If our Conservative Senators and fire-eating politicians and journals had a sense of shame, they would blush to the roots of their hair to ever mention Canada's navy, the "tin-pot" navy, or the Niobe and Rainbow. With all their jingoism and lip loyalty they sold the Canadian naval idea, Canada's self-respect and self-reliance, for a mess of pottage—to the flag-shooting Nationalists as the price of their support. The Nationalists wanted no navy at all, nor participation by Canada in Imperial defence; and they have had their way. We have nothing, and now in the hour of need Canada, thanks to Mr. Borden and the Nationalists, is humiliated before the world.

CALEDONIANS HELD ENJOYABLE SOCIAL

Good Musical Programme Presented—All the Baskets Sold

The Peterborough Caledonian Club held its first annual basket social on Friday night in the W. O. W. Hall, George Street, Mr. Burns, the president, occupying the chair, when about 100 members and friends participated in the facilities offered by the club as follows:

Miss Pidoux singing appealed to the audience in the usual style of a hearty applause.

Miss Jay, a girl of a school standard, gave a very creditable display of elocution in rendering "My Sister's Young Man" and the "Social Circle" as an encore.

The singing of Mr. William King, who has a fine baritone voice, is worthy of a more prominent position in musical circles, as his "True, True Till Death" showed a great control of cultivation.

Mr. Sinclair gave a musical demonstration on the piano with great credit.

At this point Mr. Lyburn gave an address to the members.

Mr. Hendry entertained the company in his eminent manner of character singing.

The singing of "My Ain Folk" by Mrs. French appealed to the company as well sung.

The masterpiece of the evening was the singing of Mr. Robt. Burns, who sprang a surprise.

The appointment of the auctioneer, Mr. Hendry started the company into great excitement as the various baskets went at a very high figure, and as the sale progressed, the hilarity was at a high pitch. The treat of the night was a surprise basket that called for a high price, which was full of comical sundries. After all partaking of the tid-bits of the refreshment, the rest of the evening was spent in dancing to the excellent strains of Mr. Sinclair's band, when the "sma' oor" made a well spent, pleasant festival come to a close.

P.S.—Please remember Caledonian members, that the meeting is on Wednesday. A full attendance is requested.

ARE WE TO HAVE PURE MAPLE SYRUP?

The following letter appears in today's Globe:

To the Editor of the Globe: Any one who has endeavoured to secure a can of real, unadulterated, nature-flavoured, genuine Maple syrup and been given a gallon of "chemically-flavoured" just as good sweetness will be keenly interested in noting what action the Dominion House shall take in regard to the maple syrup problem.

This is a question that several thousands of producers of the purest liquid are asking themselves at the present time. With many of these people, particularly in Quebec, it is a large source of their living. With them the issue is an acute one. The maple syrup season has just concluded. The run has only been an average one. Are their returns to be further diminished by the inroads of the "maple-flavoured" products of the sugar factories?

The question right at this season is before the minds of several millions of Canadians who appreciate securing a taste of "the pure syrup right from the sugar bush," but when we go to the corner grocery we are suspicious of anything and everything in the form of syrup. We have evidently been stung before No wonder we are suspicious. The can we eventually buy is probably labelled to contain the purest of maple syrup. It is just as likely to possess little more than the name "maple" on the outside of the can. The buying public has been deceived so often in this matter that now we doubt the genuineness of every article with the name maple on it.

This brings home to the House now in session the question, "Does the word 'maple' belong exclusively to the true products of our native Canadian trees or should it be applied indiscriminately to any syrup with the 'maplish flavour,' and thus to the detriment of the maple syrup industry, and the mortal degredation of unscrupulous producers who use in the present conditions of the trade an excellent opportunity to adulterate the genuine product with other syrup or with sugar?

Canadians are deeply interested in the question. On the one side are the several millions of consumers ten to twenty thousand producers, and a few score of dealers. On the other side, we have the monied interests of several syrup-making concerns. What action shall our legislators take? Pressure is strong on either side. Shall our representatives stand by the interests of the Canadian public or shall the "money talk?" Which?

Every rational Canadian must acknowledge that "maple" syrup should apply only to the pure product of the maple tree. The name originated from such a source. It still belongs there. While it must be acknowledged that from an economic standpoint maple-flavoured syrups have a large place with the consuming multitudes, yet the word "maple" should never be used in connection with imitations to the curse of the native industry. A suggestion would be to have the word "maple" allowed only on those vessels containing the pure, unadulterated product, while on every imitation or adulteration or syrup with the "would-be-thought-so" flavour the word "mapleine" should appear to designate the flavour.

WOMEN TEMPERANCE

WORKERS STUDYING LAWS OF ONTARIO

Yesterday afternoon the Women's Christian Temperance Union held their regular monthly meeting in their new room at the Y.M.C.A.

The attendance was not very large and it is felt that more of the Christian women of the city should become interested in this temperance work.

Some of the Ontario laws for the protection of women and children were discussed under the able leadership of Mrs. Whalley. This proved very interesting and instructive, as the laws are sealed boks to most of women.

It was decided to send for a sample of the manual that is used in the Loyal Templars Legion work as the Union think something should be done to interest children between the ages of 6 and 14 in temperance.

Found The Cause The Rest Was Easy

Dodd's Kidney Pills Quickly Cured His Kidney Disease.

How Hudson Marchbank, After Suffering for Five Years, Found Quick Relief and Permanent Cure in the Greatest of Canadian Remedies.

Marchbank, King's County, N. B., April 24—(Special)—After suffering for five years from kidney disease, brought on by a strain, Hudson Marchbank, Esq., the well-known farmer of this place, is again a strong, healthy man, and another grand cure for Dodd's Kidney Pills has been put on record. In an interview Mr. Marchbank says:

"About five years ago I hurt my back from lifting and it developed into kidney disease. My back pained me all the time, and I was very much troubled with headaches. My appetite was fitful: I had a bitter taste in my mouth in the mornings; I perspired freely and my perspiration had a disagreeable odour.

"I used liniments and plasters, but they did not do me any good, and as there were other symptoms that my kidneys were affected, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using two boxes, my back was completely cured, and my kidneys have not troubled me since."

When Mr. Marchbank decided that his kidneys were the cause of his troubles, the rest was easy. Almost any of his neighbours could tell him that Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased kidneys.

Curious Case Of Workmens' Compensation

The Westminster Gazette reports a curious case which has arisen under the British Workmen's Compensation Act. A schoolmaster, whilst performing his duties as such, was assaulted by his scholars of set purpose, and was so severly injured that he died on the same day. Did he meet his death by 'accident,' 'arising out of and in the course of his employment?' If the answer was 'Yes,' his mother was entitled to compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1906. This was the question which the House of Lords has decided. The county court judge said 'Yes,' so has the Irish court of appeals, and so has the House of Lords—but, only by four votes to three. The great conference of opinion arose out of the interpretation of the word 'accident.' The three 'Noes' said there was no accident in the case, seeing that the schoolmaster was murdered. The explanation Lord Loreburn has supplied what The Westminster Gazette thinks the true answer to the enigma:

Suppose a railman laid a log on the rails and wrecked a train, was the guard who had been injured excluded from the act? Was a gamekeeper, who was shot by poachers excluded from the act? There was clearly accident in either case, and of the same kind. In either case he would have thought, if the nature of that person's employment was looked at, it might in some way be the hazards by which was accident in that employment.

"This seems to us conclusive," says the Westminster Gazette, "and we are very glad that the House of Lords, if only by a narrow majority, decided that the schoolmaster's mother was entitled to compensation."

THE PROMINENT POINT OF THE SNIDER SNEAK

TORONTO, April 23.—One fact sticks up above the others in the Snider affair. The Government, after a five hours' debate in which a serious condition of affairs was disclosed, has refused to appoint a committee of investigation. Mr. Bowman pointed out the fact admitted by the Government themselves, that a public official, Provincial License Inspector Snider, was present in Huron, Welland and Peel working against the Canada Temperance Act. A Government official, therefore, was lined up with the organized liquor interests against the forces of the churches, the Dominion Alliance, the Ontario Young Manhood Association and other temperance workers. Bowman's essential question, one which remains unanswered in any satisfactory way and which must remain unanswered until light is let into the subject by a full enquiry, is this—"How did Snider come to be there?"

If Snider was in these counties entirely on his own responsibility, asked Mr. Rowell, why was he not dismissed? What is behind the Government's silence? Does the Government have to placate Snider because he knows too much?

It was pointed out in the House that if this was the first time the Government had blocked an enquiry, the matter might be passed over a little more lightly, but when, since the Proudfoot charges last year, this stifling of investigation has become almost the habitual procedure of the Government, public suspicion is immediately aroused.

A typical question being asked today is whether, in view of the impending general election, it is likely that the Government would go to the country under the cloud of having blocked still another enquiry, unless they knew that a free investigation would have revealed facts still more damaging to themselves.

HURLS HOT CEREAL AT BOLD BURGLAR

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y., April 24.—Miss Mary Desmond, a maid employed by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Speidell in their apartments at 174 Rich avenue, Chester Hill, routed a burglar by emptying a saucepan of boiling hot cereal on his head and jamming the saucepan down over his shoulders.

The thief, who Miss Desmond found in the dining room, screamed with pain and dashed from the house.

He left behind him silverware and jewellery, which he had packed in a bag.

HAVE PRETTY HAIR

Soft, Fluffy, Abundant—Use Parisian Sage. It Stops Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

If your hair is not as soft and beautiful, or as fresh and full as that o some friend, do not despair—do as she does — give it daily attention. Beautiful hair is largely the matter of a little care. If it is too thin, make it grow. If it is too dry and brittle, soften it up—lubricate it. If you have dandruff it is because the scalp is too dry and flakes off. Freshen up the scalp and dandruff will go.

Parisian Sage, sold in fifty cent bottles at drug and toilet counters, is just what you need—it softens the scalp, nourishes the hair roots, immediately removes dandruff, and makes the hair wavy, lustrous and abundant.

Parisian Sage quickly stops itching head; cleanses the hair of dust and excessive oil; takes away the dryness and brittleness, makes it seem twice as abundant, and beautifies it until it is soft and lustrous.

You cannot be disappointed in Parisian Sage. Always sold by Warne Drug Company on money back if not satisfied plan. Look for the trade mark—"The Girl with the Auburn Hair." It's on every package—accept nothing else.

Mothers Should Caution Children.

"Mothers have some responsibility in the matter of street safety, as well as the owner of an automobile," says William H. Stewart, Jr., teacher of motoring. "As the mother trains her little ones to dread the fire engine and keep away from the river and the railroad track, so should she train them to keep out of the way of automobiles, and, above all, to avoid running into the middle of the street without first seeing that the way is clear."

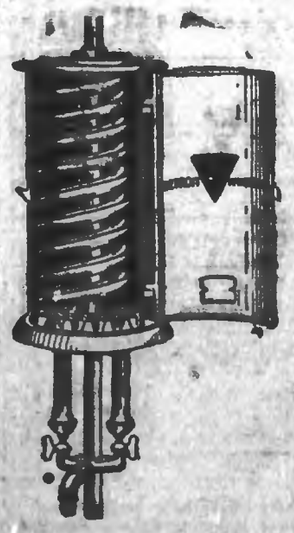
Radway's Ready Relief

Mrs. J. Westervelt of Rotterdam, N. J., writes: "I have a large family of small children, and it has saved me many a doctor's bill. For quinsy sore throat, it is a king, your Red. My little girl has sprained her ankle and in half hour Radway's Ready Relief, my other doctor than Radway's Ready Relief."

CURES SORE THROAT

Apply the Relief to the throat and chest until the surface smarts and reddens. Give Radway's Pills in doses as per directions and prove the benefit. For a mixed cold, take a large dose of Radway's Pills, and a teaspoonful of Relief with a teaspoonful of molasses in a tumbler of hot water. Retire and sweat. A profuse perspiration will break out, and in the morning the cold will be gone. RADWAY & CO., Montreal, Can.

The All-Gas Kitchen



WHEN you come to think of it, about the only reason you keep your coal range in operation, especially in the summer time, is to furnish a hot water supply to the house. The all-gas kitchen is a luxury enjoyed principally in apartment houses. Yet it is just as possible for you to have an all-gas kitchen in your house and still enjoy an unlimited hot water supply.

THE AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER

furnishes hot water at every hot water faucet in the house without the slightest bit of attention. You don't have to light it or put it out. You don't have to go near it from one year's end to the other. All you do when you want hot water is to turn the faucet and it will be hot as long as it runs, even if you should let it run all day.

This sounds wonderful—it is wonderful. If you are from Missouri and want to know how the AUTOMATIC accomplishes this miracle, call at our showrooms and see the AUTOMATIC in actual operation.

BIBLE LECTURE COURSE.

Continues with Discourse on "Victory O'er the Grave."

Much interest is centring in the I. B. S. A. series of public Bible lectures being held here. Like every other movement advancing progressive ideas, the International Bible Students' Association has had to fight its way in the face of considerable opposition, till now it heads the list of Christian activities. Its five hundred lecturers, comprising ministers and laymen from all denominations, are actively engaged in all parts of the globe, and its free literature distributed in America alone during the past year totals approximately one billion tract pages. The movement is meeting with hearty support on every hand, especially from those who believe in united Bible study, unhindered by sectarian differences and tiresome collections. The unsectarian Bible lectures are becoming more and more popular, the largest theatres frequently proving too small to accommodate the crowds that gather. "Victory O'er the Grave" is the third lecture of the series. This lecture will be delivered Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the Royal Theatre, by J. M. Perrin, of Cameron.

tre, by J. H. Perrin, of Cameron.

The speaker is said to be a close Bible student, and it is believed that he will have something to offer well worth hearing. A cordial invitation is extended to all Christian people, and to all others desiring to hear this subject discussed from the Bible standpoint." As usual admission will be free to all, and no collection solicited.

"H" Company's Annual Dance

One Hundred and Fifty Guests Spent Enjoyable Evening at the Armouries Last Night

Seventy-five couples spent a merry evening at the Armouries last night the guests of Capt. McPherson and his stalwarts of "H" Company of the 57th Regiment. The occasion was that of the annual dance of "H" Company and they acquitted themselves exceedingly well as hosts last night. The soldiers of the Company present attended in uniform and the bright military suits, combined with the beautiful costumes of the ladies present, made the scene a brilliant one. The recreation room and band room were very nicely decorated for the occasion.

The music was supplied by Asa Huycke's Orchestra, and was of the choicest order. The newest and most popular dance tunes were rendered splendidly and all were greatly pleased with the music. About midnight refreshments were served.

Trappers Are Already Selling Rat Pelts

Some of the local trappers have disposed of their catch of rat pelts, and since last Saturday the price is said to have dropped from 45c. to 35c. according to those who have been selling. Messrs. Chas. and Fred Shambo secured 61 rats east of the City, one of them being exceptionally large. The pelt was 18 in. long by 38 in., and although larger than most pelts it brought no more than any of the others. The season closes on May 1st, but the trappers have until May 10 to dispose of their catch.

The farmers' market this morning was smaller than usual and prices held steadily. Potatoes sold at $1.30 a bag and the supply was cleaned up in a short time. DEMAND FOR FARM HELP IS NOT AS KEEN AS USUAL

Farmers do not report the scarcity of men this spring that caused so much inconvenience in other years. The demand for labour from the country employers appears to be lighter than usual, although there have been quite a number of farmers looking for men for the land. The main point, however, is that the demand is much heavier than in recent years, a condition explained by the fact that men engaged late are showing more of a tendency to remain more permanently at their work, and there is also the fact that the City had quite a number unemployed who were glad to take a turn in the country.

Mrs. W. A. Greenslade's Recital

Before an audience that literally packed the Conservatory Hall, the pupils, both vocal and instrumental, of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, gave a charming recital last evening. The appreciation of these young artists' work was not lacking in enthusiasm, and was consistent with the very large number of people present. It indeed must have been encouraging to Mrs. Greenslade to note such evident interest in her work, as was manifested last evening, both in the attendance and the enthusiastic reception extended the pupils. The singing as well as the work at the piano was a striking and telling tribute to the ability and painstaking industry of Mrs. Greenslade. Many of the vocalists have been studying but a short while, and their very creditable showing on this occasion is an indication that with faithful persistency, under such a capable teacher as Mrs. Greenslade, they are bound to obtain an enviable place in the field of vocal music.

The programme last evening was an extensive one, providing a real treat for all those fortunate enough to be present. It opened with a well executed pianforte duet by Misses Alberta Rehill and Aileen Braund. These young ladies play with remarkable skill and a brilliant technique that is commendable. Later in the evening these young pianistes did themselves credit in well rendered piano solos.

Miss Bessie Logan, who possesses a rich contralto voice, sang beautifully "The Voice of Home," while Master Sam Whitehouse, boy soprano, was never heard to better advantage than in his rendition last night of "Dost Thou Know That Sweet Land," from the opera Mignon. Master Whitehouse's singing is always a delight, but never did he seem to acquit himself more creditably than at this recital. He has a marvellously sweet and clear soprano, taking the high registers with perfect ease and control. He had to respond to an insistent encore.

The vocal duet, "Excelsior" by Messrs T. Jones and T. Ward, was a splendid effort, these two voices blending in lovely harmony. Mr. Ward is the possessor of a baritone that could not fail to please. His rendition of "The Toreador Song" from Carmen, displayed it in all its richness and strength. He rose to the great possibilities that this song affords, interpreting it with proper understanding. Mr. Jones, whose singing has created a profound impression in this City, sang by special request, in Welsh, his native tongue. He has a tenor voice whose capabilities seem unparallelled. Both in the high and low notes his singing leaves nothing to be desired. In the dramatic climaxes he seems at his best, but at all times he sings with a sympathetic interpretation of the piece in hand. He was also heard in an English selection that won meritorious applause.

Miss Phyllis Dawson has made phenomenal progress in her vocal studies. She has a soprano voice of wonderful volume, and her full, round notes are a pleasure to listen to. She sang the "Swallows" with splendid effect, and had to respond to a spontaneous outburst of applause. Miss K. Masterson, another soprano who is developing into a vocalist of no mean ability under careful tuition, has a wide range, which showed to advantage last night in spite of the fact that she seemed to be suffering from a severe cold. She sang a dual number, "Das Eiste Veilichen' and "She Wandered Down the Mountain Side."

One of the greatest treats of the evening proved to be the singing of Mr. Ed. Bartley. He was the only bass soloist on the programme. He sang "A Dream" for his first number, but undoubtedly his encore gave him a better opportunity to display the true beauty and strength of his voice. "I Am the Bandelero" was rendered in a manner that was altogether pleasing and showed a wonderful richness of tone.

A male quartette composed of Messrs. Bartley, Ward, Jones and Greenslade delighted the large audience with two numbers that won hearty applause.

Mrs. Greenslade acted as accompanist in her usual capable manner.

Which of us would nit pay a visit to the "auld hoose" after a few years' sojourn in this land of opportunities? Then we should do as a certain Peterborough couple — Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie, to boot—have just accomplished. We should just make up our minds on the Monday at 8 a.m., book passage at 10, leave town on Thursday at 12, and sail from Halifax on Saturday afternoon.

The above pair of Scots folks—a happy, guid-hearted and unco' cheery couple—followed the aforementioned time-table this week.

At midnight, on Thursday they took farewell and bon voyage of a few friends at the C.P.R. Station en route for Halifax, where to day they board steamer for Liverpool, thence to their beloved home in Bonnybridge, Stirlingshire, Scotland. They will be absent from the City for three months, whence they will return to our midst.

PRINCESS MARY IS SEVENTEEN TO-DAY

Examiner Special:

LONDON, April 25. — Princess Mary, the only daughter of King George and Queen Mary, celebrated her seventeenth birthday to-day. Many presents were received at Buckingham Palace from all the members of the British Royal family and from relatives on the Continent. In token of the anniversary flags were displayed on all the Government buildings to-day and at noon the customary salutes were fired in St. James' Park and at Windsor.

91-YEAR OLD MAN WHIPS SON-IN-LAW

BOSTON, April 24.—Michael Sullivan, 91 years old, of Beverly, took offence when his son-in-law, Thomas Dosset, 56 years old, criticised the manner in which his wife prepared dinner and administered to the youngster an old-fashioned whipping. The neighbours responded to the cries, and as they came into the house, she said:

"Tom is killing father."

There was another tale to be told in the kitchen, however. Sullivan, who is an athlete of long ago, is still able to give a good account of himself.

The neighbours found Dosset somewhat beaten up and willing to acknowledge Sullivan to be master of the house.

INDELIBLE PENCIL POISONS BOY'S ARM

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Joseph Donnelly, 14, probably will lose his left arm as the result of decorating it with an indelible pencil.

The youngster was banished for a time by his teacher in the Hestonville public school, and to make his schoolmates laugh drew pictures on his arm. Later he endeavoured to wash off the pictures, and the poison and the indelible lead went into the pores, causing blood poisoning.

The boy is at the Homeopathic hospital, where the physicians say they will have to amputate the arm.

JUDAS MACCABAEUS IS NOTED FOR SIMPLICITY AND CLEARNESS OF MUSIC

Mr. W. Pole observes, "The Oratorio still preserves its popularity, being perhaps more in request at the present day than ay other of Handel's, except The Messiah. This fact is not at first easy to explain, for though there is much fine music in Judas, it is on the whole less interesting to the musician than several other oratorios much inferior to it in general estimation. Saying nothing of the greatest of all, Israel in Egypt, there is more predominance of what may be called great writing in Solomon, Samson, Saul, Deborah, Joshua, and perhaps others, than in Judas; and yet many of these are comparatively unknown to the oratorio-loving public. The preference given to the present work is probably due to the remarkable breadth, simplicity, and clearness of its music. It was written avowedly for a popular occasion, and it is obvious, if we examine the style of the most favourite pieces, such as 'Pious orgies,' 'O Father,' 'Arm ye brave,' 'Disdainful of danger,' 'Hail, Judea,' 'Sound an alarm,' 'See the conquering hero come,' 'Sing unto God,' &c., that they are characterised by a simplicity of construction and breadth of effect which must have been purposely designed to render them easily appreciable to unlearned ears. The same characteristic of a broad, simple, telling style is observable also in The Messiah, and contributes no doubt, essentially to its fame; but in that oratorio it has resulted from a very different motive on the part of the composer. In writing The Messiah I believe that Handel exercised no deliberate intention to make the music popular, but simply gave himself up to the inspiration of his genius, prompted by the sublimity of the theme, and unfettered by any attempts at elaborate or learned writing; and hence in 'The Sacred Oratorio' the simplicity of the music is combined with a dignity and grandeur peculiar to itself alone."

THE BIBLE AS "THE CHART OF LIFE"

As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal Life."

This is the first of six tenets of Christian Science. They cover the whole theology of this Science and as a compendium of truth they are remarkable for their clearness, their spiritual light and teaching, and their scientific outline of Christian salvation.

Mrs. Eddy, many times in the course of her writings, acknowledges her profound debt of gratitude for the Bible. She calls it "the chart of life, where the buoys and healing currents of Truth are pointed out." She found in it all she needed in her search for Truth and for her exposition of the Science of Christianity. She read pagan literature and ancient philosophy; she wandered into by-paths of thought that brought her no peace nor rest, and not until she began spiritually to understand and interpret the Bible, did she learn that only the entrance of God's word into human consciousness gives true light and blessing.

It is noteworthy that one of the great factors in the growth of Christian Science is that a large proportion of its students, with their thought and their spiritual insight quickened and purified, have found the Bible "a new book." It was old in the sense that they had read it from childhood; but to understand it, and demonstrate that it contains the truth of God,—that it is the revelation of the ages to mankind,—required a fresh interpretation. The key to this is found in that Science which is the logical, rational and spiritual deduction from the great fundamental promise that God is Absolute good, the creator of only that which is good, and that man is His perfect image and likeness. The Bible can only be a "chart of life" to us if we find there not only the clearest and fullest instructions for avoiding the shoals and quicksands which beset mortal voyagings, but also how to make positive and practical that correct reckoning which is essential in following a true course.

Every man at heart wants to be guided aright. However indifferent he may be now to the divine claims, however distorted his present view of what imparts happiness, he hopes that at some time he will reach heaven. The truth which bespeaks spiritual selfhood, the man of God's creation, cannot be hidden, and is that which leads the consciousness to desire a purer and grander sense of life's mission. Man does not, as Jesus declared, live by bread (the purely material) alone, "but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God"—a divine utterance that can only be understood when the truth is spiritually discerned. The Psalmist declared that God's word "is settled in heaven" — and from that home can apprehend how sweet and pure it is; how it cleanses and uplifts and strengthens; how it gives light and understanding; and what a mighty power it is to every man who is looking for help and guidance. This is the Word of Life, available to all humanity. It is the truth which Jesus said would make us free—a declaration that in Christian Science has been tested and proved in the redemption of unnumbered thousands.

In one aspect especially which the world has ignored the Bible is the Christian Scientist's guide. Not only does it give him a clearer conception of God and His Christ; not only does he understand by it how sin can be forgiven only when it is destroyed by the dispersion of every false belief; not only does he thus learn to apprehend, in some degree at least, the scientific unity between God and man, but he also becomes conscious of the ceaseless operation of that spiritual law by which Jesus performed all his healing works. The method of healing the sick taught by the Master has been omitted from the programme of Christianity for centuries. Christian Science has restored it, and has done so because of what the Bible says: "He sent His word and healed them." From cover to cover the Bible gives instances of spiritual healing. The Word of God has always been the pure truth which wherever welcomed, has overcome error and brought with it a sense of permanent peace and a foretaste of perfect harmony.

All the triumphs of Christian Science — its spiritualism of human thought, its reversion of the false testimony of corporeal sense, its presentation to the world of the undivided garment of the Christ-healing, and its proof that when the sovereignty of God, infinite good, is fully acknowledged, nothing can stay Truth's redemptive work — all are based upon the spiritual discernment of the truth revealed in the Bible. And it should be a matter for deep thankfulness that divine Love never excludes any of God's children from these blessings. If Christian Scientists are a happy people, as is generally acknowledged, it is because they love the Bible and are seeking to apprehend and make their own the holy truth enshrined therein. It is their spiritual meat day and night. It is to them a treasure-house of wisdom and strength. They do not argue about the existence, the being, or the attributes of God; they know God because they find that He is just what the Bible says He is. They are convinced that God is Love; and they seek to conform their lives to the perfect standard which He gave to the world through Christ Jesus, recognizing their true birthright, "born not . . . of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God."—Monitor.

HORSE CLIMBS STAIRS, GAZES OUT OF WINDOW

NEWARK, N.J., April 24. — A horse weighing 1,600 pounds broke away from the boy who was leading him and dashed up the front steps to the second floor of a three-family house at 43 Bridge street. The horse was being taken to a blacksmith's shop when it took fright at an approaching car.

The animal made for the open door and mounted the narrow stairway to the second floor. Mrs. Mary Thompson saw him coming and ran into a hallroom screaming. Calmly the horse went to a window and gazed out contentedly at the crowd below.

It took half a dozen men to get Dobbin down an improvised runway.

Famous British Admiral

Tells What Zam-Buk did For Him.

Many famous persons have testified to the great value of Zam-Buk, and amongst the most recent is Admiral Rodney M. Lloyd. Writing from the Royal Naval Club, Portsmouth, England, Admiral Lloyd says:

"I have found Zam-Buk most reliable for healing cuts and abrasions, while for the relief of skin irritation it is invaluable."

Another famous user of Zam-Buk is Mr. Frank Scudamore, the War Correspondent, who supplied Canadian papers with their dispatches during the Boer War. Mr. Scudamore says: "Some poisonous dye on my underclothing came in contact with a small ulcer on my leg and blood poisoning set in. Inflammation, pain and swelling followed. My medical mans treatment did not seem to do any good, as ulcer after ulcer broke out, until my left leg from knee to foot was one mass of sores. I had seventeen deep ulcers at one time. I could not put my foot to the ground, and was really in a pitiful state. A friend advised Zam-Buk, and I applied this herbal balm. It was really wonderful how it soothed the pain and aching and gave me ease.

"I continued with it, leaving off all other treatment, and at the end of a week's treatment my leg was not like the same. A few boxes of Zam-Buk healed all the sores, and bit by bit new, healthy skin covered the places which had been so deeply pitted and scarred by ulceration and blood poison. The limb is now perfectly healthy."

Zam-Buk is a cure for piles, eczema, cold cracks or chaps, ulcers, ringworm, cuts abscesses, burns, children's rashes, and for all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse imitations.

EARTH AND STONES ARE NOT GARBAGE

A letter has been received from "Citizen" asking for detailed information regarding earth, stones, etc., and garbage in general. For the benefit of "Citizen' 'and others interested in this matter, the Sanitary Inspector has stated on several occasions that the collecting system is for garbage. It is not intended to carry away earth from gardens, stories and such stuff. The word garbage explains itself, and its meaning has been published frequently. For instance, ashes are not included in the idea of garbage, hence the expression garbage and ashes is used by the City officials.

FIVE HORSES WERE BURNED TO DEATH

Special Wire to The Examiner:

GODERICH, Ont., April 25.— Five horses were burned to death, six thousand dollars worth of property destroyed and the town hall and the whole business section of the town was threatened by a fire which broke out at 1.30 o'clock this morning. Fortunately a shower of rain fell and enabled the firemen to get control of the blaze.

Judge Rogers Gives $1 Damages To Hope Township Farmer

PORT HOPE, April 25.—George Caldwell, a Hope Township resident, brought a Division Court suit against the municipality to recover $3.00 for damages to his waggon while crossing a culvert.

From the evidence it was clearly shown that the culvert was defective and the Council had rather neglected road work on this side line. His Honour Judge Rogers gave judgment in favour of Mr. Caldwell for $1.000 without costs, with the exception of two witnesses. The case will cost Mr. Caldwell more than the amount he sued for, and the Township could have settled at the amount claimed by Mr. Caldwell at considerable gain.

Seven-Passenger Full Floating Rear Axle

The Studebaker SIX fairly clamors for comparison, with "Sixes" selling for more money.

It is the uttermost in six-cylinder smoothness and seven-passenger comfort.

The full floating rear axle is a type of the high standard maintained throughout this splendid car.

And the system of starting and lighting conforms to the same exacting quality requirement.

No matter how much more you are willing to pay —money can't buy a better rear axle or a better system of starting and lighting.

Take these two vital features as a starting point and every feature and every function of the car will reveal to you distinctions of value beyond which manufacturing skill cannot go.

We have a folder which you should read, fully describing in simple terms the full floating axle and making plain the superiority of this type over others. Call or write for it.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

GOOD WORK-OUT OF THE INFIELD WAS A FEATURE OF YESTERDAY'S PRACTICE

Regulars Defeated the Yannigans 9 to 3 After a Twelve Innings Battle--New First Baseman Shows Up in Good Form on the Bag and With the Willow.

Special to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 24. — A twelve innings' practice game between the Regulars and Yannigans was the feature of to-day's doings in the training camp of the Petes. The Regulars, with Schettler, Tracey and Belting doing the twirling, took the Yans, with Sterling and Cresswell on the slab, into camp, by 9 runs to 3, after an interesting game.

Manager Blount selected the following team to represent the Regulars—Fox, r.f.; Gaffney, m.; Byrne, 3b.; King, 2b.; Swarts, l.f.; Freeman, 1b.; Price, s.s.; Kelly c.; Ryberg, c.; Schettler, p.; Tracey, p.; Belting, p.

A feature was the fine work of the Regulars' infield. Byrne, Price and King have been doing some spectacular fielding, and are working well together. Daily improvement is being shown under the coaching of Manager Blount, and with the first-base gap plugged up, this year's infield should be stronger than the one which represented Peterborough last year. Buck Freeman, the new first baseman, worked out with Saginaw for some time before coming here and reported in good shape. He played stellar ball on the first corner in to-day's game, fielding his position beautifully, while he had two clean hits to his credit.

That Manager Blount is not taking any chances is shown by the fact that he has another first baseman in camp. Gorman, who formerly played with Lancaster in the Tri-State League was out to-day, but this being his first time in uniform this season he did not get into the game.

Fox, Gaffney and Freeman were the leaders for the Regulars with the willow, each having two hits. Whitey Schrage held down second for the Yans. He had three hits out of four times up and fielded his position nicely. He will make them hustle to keep him off the team. Miller caught for the Yannigans. The battery candidates are all rounding into shape, and both pitching and catching staffs look strong. Manager Blount directed the proceedings from the side-lines detecting weaknesses and coaching the youngsters in different styles of play.

The Petes play an exhibition game with the Girard team on Saturday, and on Sunday they will clash with the Pittsburg Independents.

MARMORA LACROSSE PLAYERS AT WORK

The first lacrosse practice of the season took place at the fair grounds last evening and the boys had a good workout. Under the new rule, by which the number of players in each team will be reduced to ten, instead of twelve as formerly, Marmora should have no difficulty in picking a fast team this year. Several of those at practice last night are complaining of stiffness and soreness, but the best cure for this is another good practice to-night. Most lacrosse players are made, not born, and those who practice most will be able to give the best account of themselves when the season opens.—Marmora Herald.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Forty-foot Addition to Grand Stand.

The directors decided to make a 40 foot addition to the eastern section of the grand stand at Britannia park. This means that the grandstand, when the improvements are competed, will extend from third base to first base, with the bleachers starting at third base and running down the left field line. This will give accommodation for fifteen hundred more, and the indications are that the accommodation is going to prove quite inadequate on holidays and Saturdays.—Spectator.

ERIE WILL MAKE BID FOR PENNANT.

The players from this side of the boundary line are expected to be the biggest drawing card in the Canadian League the coming season. Manager Smith realises that to be such a drawing card however, the only American City in the circuit must be represented by a winning team. And if anybody can produce such a team, Smith is the man. Smith is a very hard worker and a strict disciplinarian. He knows a ball player as well as any man in the business, and that means barring none. Performing at the keystone sack himself, Smith will be the main cog in developing the younger players in the infield and will be in a position to direct the playing.—Erie Despatch.

W. J. NELSON IS NEW PRESIDENT OF THE HOCKEY CLUB

Secretary—H. F. Morgan.

Treasurer—R. M. Glover.

Not One Of Connie Mack's $100,000 Infield Knows Taste Of Liquor

McClure's magazine publishes an article in which Connie Mack, the famous baseball manager, gives voice to a few of his convictions regarding the general bearing of liquor on a man's efficiency, its relation to clean living and clean thinking, and the possible means of grasping with the liquor problem. The conclusion he reaches is synonymous with the principle which employers of men all the world over are beginning to recognise more and more every day as the only logical and practical one they can adopt —that alcohol slows a man down inevitably and that the best method of inculcating temperance is to lay it down as an economic principle affecting employment.

Mack takes the view that the day is practically past when even the men who "only take one now and then" are so much handicapped in the race for life that as aspirants for championships in any vocation they are quite impossible. The reason he assigns to this is that no matter how few drinks a man takes, even if he only takes them by way of being companionable, those drinks will ostracize him from the clean living and quick thinking class and place him in the drinking class.

He describes one instance that is particularly applicable. He employed a young ball player who took a glass of beer occasionally, sometimes a whisky; but always by way of being sociable. Sometimes, he told Mack, he went without it for weeks at a time, and without missing it. Mack put the matter to him this way: "If anyone were to ask me if you were a drinking man I would have to say you were; I couldn't ring in exceptions. Is it worth while for you to place yourself in that class when you can say that you don't miss a drink?" The ballplayer knew what it was to be characterised as a drinking man, and quit drinking.

The ball team that Mack controls has since he assumed the managership of it, won some five pennants and three world's championships. Not a man on his "hundred-thousand-dollar' infield knows the taste of liquor; and during the majority of the preceding years the same thing applied. In 1912 three of his men didn't take the proper care of themselves—let things slide a little, so to speak—with the result that a practically won pennant was lost.

"Total abstinence worked so well last year," Mack concludes, "why change to something different this year? I've proved up, to my own satisfaction, this business of clean living and quick thinking. It's the stuff champions are made of. Five years ago I would take a man who drank provided I thought I could handle him —and gradually break him of the habit. Now I wouldn't bother with him." Which, briefly, means that in order to succeed — and it applies to every walk in life—a man must live a clean live and think clean thoughts; and the use of liquor does not tend to either.—Ottawa Free Press.

COST OF AUTOMOBILES IS REDUCED TO A SCIENCE

Manufacturers Figure Their Expenses to a Fine Point—An Idea of What Experts Do.

Few dealers in automobiles and practically no users ever stop to consider the enormous amount of detail necessary to arrive accurately at the factory cost of a car, according to Edward F. Gerber, President of one of the motor car companies.

"To secure the exact cost of each of the 35,000 parts entering into an automobile requires more detail, more labour, and more vexation of spirit than the average man can readily understand,' said he last week. "Yet for any manufacturing concern to be a success it is absolutely necessary to have some good system of arriving at the cost of its product. Cost records can be kept by many small manufacturing concerns without much trouble and expense, where their products do not differ materially. But with a large motor company the case is different. Its output is large and extensive, every car being made up of innumerable small parts. This makes necessary the installation of a very comprehensive department to correctly determine the cost of every finished car.

"To arrive at the figures, many actual tests must be made, especially in the machine shops and in the painting and trimming departments. Not only the amount of material used in the construction of each part must be figured, but also the labour cost and any waste in materials. While there is no great waste in the larger items entering into a car, yet the percentage runs high in a great many things. For instance, in cutting up hides for upholstering purposes the waste is very large. This is also the case with many of the smaller items, such a tacks, bolts, screws, rivets, paints, etc. An accurate account is kept of each test, so that a fair and safe proportion of waste may be determined and proper allowances made therefor.

"Every month the records of the past month are checked over and variations are noted in the record book, so that figures are always up to date. The work requires men of much experience in cost accounting, and in addition to this they must have a practical knowledge of the automobile business. It would not be possible for any novice to furnish even a close estimate of the shop cost of different parts, for many details have to be taken into consideration which one can master only by years of experience."

BASEBALL

The failure of Larry Lajoie to make even one hit in the first four games of the season caused Cleveland fans to wonder if the great clouter had lost his batting eye.

The early season work of Pitcher Aitchinson, the former Newarker, is making good the prediction of the International Leaguers that he would prove a star with the Brooklyn Superbas.

Bill Sweeney is filling Johnny Evers' old place at the Cubs' second station in fine style. There seems little chance to doubt that Bill will prove a valuable man for Hank O'Day.

The Cleveland Naps have been hit hard through the injuries of several of their stars. With Manager Birmingham and Shortstop Chapman on the hospital list the Naps surely have a hard, up-hill fight.

Tommy Daly, the hard-hitting youngster playing in the left garden for the White Sox, will be shifted to his regular position behind the plate when either Chappell or Fournier is able to return to the outfield.

Few players have anything on Moeller and Foster, the first two men in the Washington batting order when it comes to putting over the hit and run play.

Jack Barry, the Athletics' short-shortstop, is 27 years' old on Sunday, April 26th. Ray Caldwell, one of Frank Chance's pitchers, is 26 years old on Sunday.

It is not to be denied that the Federal League teams have been furnishing classy contests with close scores.

In the opening games no grass was set afire by either the Athletics or Giants. But pennants are not won in April and the two old battlers are still the favourites.

VERDICT OF $7000 FOR MAY DAVIS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., April 25. — May Davis secured verdict for seven thousand dollars against George Wettlaufer.

TWO GOOD NEW BOOKS

"The Altar Stairs," a novel by G. B. Lancaster, and issued in very attractive, cloth-bound shilling form, by Hodder and Stoughton of London, Toronto, and New York, is not a religious novel, in the ordinary sense, as the name would suggest. It, however, is a novel which is novel in scene and setting, and in literary and dramatic treatment, full of human interest and, incidentally, showing the religious influence of a devoted missionary among the French Islands, the black islands, or Melanesia, of the Southern Pacific. It shows the reforming power of love and restraining influence of a pure girl upon an unbelieving man with much natural good overlaid with robust vices. Rod McLean is engaged by a trading company as master of a steamer engaged in running blacks to work in plantations. In so doing he comes into contact and demoralizes the natives and complicates the work of Strickland, an heroic missionary. The play of the story blends with exciting scenes in this traffic, and, incidentally, among the penal settlement, where Rod meets "Little Madmoiselle," a pure girl, whose influence on his life, coupled with love for her and the missionary's influence, completes the reformation of the reckless, rakish Rod McLean, and all ends happily. While there is a good deal of stirring adventure and a good deal of picturesquely strenuous love making, there is the merit of new scenes and vivid pictures of the folk lore of the natives of Melanesia. The story is full of interest, though one would wish that the writer's style were less abundantly loaded with metaphor, though it is striking and strong. "The Altar Stairs," as a story, is very well worth reading, and as a popular publication—as one of the shilling editions of Hodder and Stoughton, is a marvel of fine book-making.

"THE RED VIRGIN."

"The Red Virgin," by G. F. Turner, is the title of a Hodder and Stoughton publication, of more than usual literary merit and of absorbing interest. It is a story with the scene laid in an ideally imaginary German toy kingdom, and deals with the interregnum between the death of the king and the majority of his heir. A democratic nobleman, of high family and character, and an equally high-born and wealthy "villain," who plots for the regency as a step to the Crown itself, involving the suppression of the heir, are prominent and well-drawn dramatis personæ. "Saunders," an Englishman, who, (though a foreigner), by his courage, high character and ability, has gained a high place of influence in the kingdom of Grimland, plays a pivotal role, and Phœbe Perowne a beautiful high-spirited English girl, on tour, are worked into the story in a charming way. But the finest character in the book is "The Red Virgin," a creation—a new creature in fiction. Born and reared in the slums of which poverty, oppression, degradation and misery have made hot beds of anarchy, she grows up pure among the impure. The way in which she tends the poor, succours the suffering and gains a respect and influence over her frowsy anarchistic subjects; the way she falls in love with Saunders, and in the crisis of the plot, saves his life at the cost of her own; the way the high-born democrat and Phœbe Perowne voyage over the unsmooth course of true love to the harbour of hymen, are told with moving skill. While "The Red Virgin" is not at all of the "penny dreadful," it is full of thrills from end to end—without a dull page. It is a rapidly-moving blend of heroism, love and romantic politics, with the shifting interest and dizzying go of a steeple-chase. To read "The Red Virgin" is to be gripped with interest from title page to colophon.

Local Labour Should Get First Chance

To the Editor of The Examiner

Dear Sir,—According to your paper of yesterday, seventeen more men had been added to the staff employed on the street paving work. I certainly have my doubts concerning that statement. I applied for a job before 7 o'clock and was told by one of the men in charge that no more would be added to those already employed for a while. Anyway, I stayed around the job for quite a time and did not see any extra men engaged. Therefore you can guess my surprise when I read my paper to find that seventeen men had secured a job. However, I found out that some were engaged through the Dominion Employment Agency, on Charlotte street, for which they have to pay $1.50. Previous to the opening up of the street work that Agency would secure a position for any person for $1.50. Therefore I must come to the conclusion that the rates of their premises have been raised, or that there must be a rake-off for someone. This morning six men were on the job with that Agent whom he had promised work to. He stated himself that he had been 'phoned last night for six, but only got two started. He cannot dispute this for I have several to verify my statement. Of course I am aware that this kind of business is lawful, but it does not seem quite fair to me.

Now, Mr. Editor, there may be certain clauses in the contract of this work that all persons do not agree with, but I must say this, where local labour can be employed let it be done. Up to the present I fail to see anything doing there that white men cannot do. I am fully aware that some of the work will require experienced men, but when it comes to their part, let them do it. At the present time men of this Town are idle that have to pay to live here, and have to be contented to look on at outsiders taking bread out of their mouths. It is very nice of you to commence articles in your paper "Stand By Our Town." I agree with that all right, providing those that run it stand by the men that make it.

The way things are, I consider more local labour should be employed on the job. The contractors are getting an extra hour's work a day more than they did last year. Certainly they should be satisfied, and while they can employ local men they should do it.

Trusting my letter will receive a space in your valuable paper, I tender my thanks.

Sincerely yours,
R. C. R.
East City.

FISHING OF 25 YEARS AGO

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In an editorial in last night's Examiner on "Fishing," you say "Time was when the Kawartha waters were literally alive with fish". And that was the actual condition of these upper lakes some 25 to 30 years ago.

The fish in all these waters, especially bass and maskinonge, are prolific producers of their species. Yet they are annually becoming less numerous in spite of the efforts that are being made from time to time to increase their number by re-stocking.

In spite of the greatest possible vigilance there will always be a certain amount of "over-fishing" during the fishing season, and illegal fishing out of season, but the depletion of fish, due to these causes, though considerable, is but a trifle compared with the annual wholesale destruction produced by the Dominion Government. Through their management, or mis-management, of the raising and lowering of the waters throughout the whole Kawartha Canal system, and also by the Ontario Government, until very lately, by permitting winter fishing through the ice.

About the months of February and March, when the fish are becoming heavy with spawn, they become sluggish and inactive, and bite at almost anything that looks like food, and thus become an easy prey to those "pot-hunters," who usually know the location of the fish and spawning-beds. Winter fishing has now been made illegal, and the law in this regard should be very rigidly enforced.

Again, as soon as spring begins to open, the lakes fill up, and as a large proportion of the shores of these upper lakes is low and flat, the water goes out much beyond the normal limit and floods those flat shores and out there, into the shallow water the fish (bass, especially,) go to spawn, and long before the spawn or young fish are capable of going back into deep water the stop-logs in the various dams, or some of them, are taken out, and the water lowered. Spring after spring one may see many millions of spawn or young fish lying high and dry on these flat shores. No amount of re-stocking can balance such an annual waste as that. Whatever height the water is allowed to reach during the spawning season, it should be retained at that height until the young fish are capable of going back into deep water. If it be true that the spawn of a large bass or maskinonge will yield from 2,000 to 4,000 young fish, or anything near like it, the fish the catches in spawn are of more value to the nation than the "pot hunter," who sells them down, and it should be stopped, and if the two Governments would work together in the best interests of our interiors fishing and tourist trade, this annual loss of fish could be largely prevented and would be worth many local hatcheries.

Yours respectfully,
A. L. K.

Duke of Connaught Says Boxing Helps One To Control Temper.

MONTREAL, April 27.—A eulogy of the disciplinary effects of boxing was pronounced by the Duke of Connaught after an exhibition of sparring by the Griffintown Boys Club Friday night.

"Boxing," the duke told the boys, "teaches you not to lose your temper. A good smack in the face hurts, and it is well to learn to take one with a grin. It seems a very small thing, but in this world it is a very important thing that you should not take offence at anything."

Friday night the duke also opened an exhibition of Boy Scouts. The occasion was made noteworthy by the fact that Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught made her first public appearance since her serious illness.

ULSTER GUN-RUNNING THROWS FUEL ON THE FIRE

Premier Asquith Holds Hasty Conference and Quick Action is Expected—The Latest Incident.

CABINET IS ROUSED

LONDON, April 27.—The gun-running exploit of the Ulster Volunteers, resulting in receipt of 40,000 rifles, stirred the British Cabinet into sudden activity Saturday. Premier Asquith, who was on the way to his country residence for the week-end, was stopped by telegraph and returned to London immediately. On his arrival he conferred with Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, and other colleagues in the Cabinet. Major-Gen. Sir Cecil McCreddy of the War Office participated in the conference.

It is unlikely that one result will be a statement in Parliament that what has happened is the very thing the Government feared when they took steps to find out the possible action of the officers of the army if detailed to prevent such a rush-in of munitions of war or in preventing the seizure of the Government stores already located in Ulster.

The Times' Belfast correspondent says conviction is growing to-day that the authorities are again contemplating action against Ulster. Belfast is in the same condition of suppressed excitement which prevailed on March 13, when it became known the Government were about to concentrate military and naval forces.

Belfast Unionists say there is considerable activity among the police, and cordon is prevalent, that they and not the troops will be "called upon to initiate the provocative action." Some confirmation of this is afforded by the repeated spying by the police over private houses throughout the whole of Ulster and renewed shadowing of prominent Unionists.

Although the motion has been described to include the word "incompetency," which will give Mr. Asquith an opportunity to bring up the whole of the Irish issues, especially those on the Unionist platform, which concern the Government's attempt to conceal the vital facts, more than ugly questions will be put to Mr. Asquith and Mr. Churchill during the two days' debate next week.

Questions will be asked about the personal assurance which Sir John French appended, exempting Carrugh officers from fighting in Ulster, and about the reasons which led the Government to think that the safeguarding of stores had become necessary. One wants to know what Sir A. Paget did to carry out his instructions to guard the stores in the south of Ireland. Mr. Austen Chamberlain will submit the motion, and will be followed by Mr. Churchill on behalf of the Government. Mr. Bonar Law and Mr. Asquith will conclude the debate on Wednesday night.

The Standard (Unionist) remarks that there will no doubt be a demand from the radical benches that severe steps be taken, but the responsibility, especially in view of the warning of a month ago, is so appalling that it can scarcely be believed that the Ulster situation has reached the point where the Government feels it necessary to take drastic steps to disarm Ulster.

REFUGEES AT GALVESTON.

Fleeing Townspeople Report Terrible Treatment By Rebels.

GALVESTON, April 27. — Driven out of Mexico by armed mobs, insulted, taunted and sometimes shot and otherwise tortured, 2,000 Americans have arrived here within the last 24 hours, all glad to escape with their lives, which they had all but despaired of. One United States battleship, two United States cruisers and three other steamers from Tampico to bring this number of refugees to Galveston. All of the vessels brought word that other thousands were behind them on the gulf and others both are expecting and preparing the same for fully 4,000 by or before the end of the week. Many of those who escaped from the neighboring republic suffered insults and indignities. They say that several were shot at or carried away by an armed mob of Mexicans and some few were shot and tortured. Many women and children are in the party.

All of the refugees are being held for five days in quarantine. In the meantime food and clothing are being sent to them, and a camping ground being prepared. Individual stories of losses of property and hardships are countless. Many of those on board the vessels now anchored in the quarantine roads are without any funds whatever or any method of obtaining money. Many are nearly clothed.

The Tampico situation had continued so serious, according to a wireless message reaching here yesterday, that two torpedo boats Saturday were sent up the Panuco river from Tampico to get Americans. Refugees arriving here from Tampico yesterday said they were saved from rioting Mexicans early Wednesday morning by German sailors.

Consul In Jail Two Days.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—United States Consul-General Philip Hanna, at Monterey, reported to Secretary Bryan last night that he had been humiliated and placed in jail by Mexican Federal officials on April 22, and left behind the bars until released two days later by the Constitutionalists when they captured the city.

Mr. Hanna's message to Secretary Bryan was despatched yesterday from Monterey. The Secretary took it to the White House at once, and it was the subject of a long conference between him and President Wilson. Mr. Hanna reported that he had been courteously treated by the Constitutionalists.

NOT VERY SANGUINE.

British Press Forsees Only Trouble as Result of Mediation.

LONDON, April 27.—The London morning newspapers in their editorial comment on the Mexican situation are not sanguine that the offer of mediation by the Presidents of Brazil, Argentina and Chili will result in a peaceful solution of the trouble, declaring that the United States is bent on the elimination of President Huerta, and that it will be impossible for Huerta to accept such terms.

Fire Loss Is $50,000.

CHESTER, Pa., April 27. — Fire swept the plant of the Federal Steel Co. and Harris-Chalmers Chemical Co. on the Delaware river front here Saturday, causing the destruction of the pattern shop and other property of the steel company and wiping out the entire plant of the chemical company. The combined loss is estimated at $500,000. Six firemen were injured in fighting the flames, two of them seriously.

Victor Herbert Very Ill.

LONDON, April 27.—Victor Herbert, the composer and conductor, underwent an operation Saturday for appendicitis. His condition had become so critical that the doctors decided that an operation was necessary to save his life. They consider in view of the seriousness of the case that the composer's condition is as good as can be expected. Mr. Herbert came to London a week ago.

Peach Crop Reduced.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 27. —Predictions that the peach crop for 1914 had been greatly reduced by the extreme weather of January and February, following an unusually mild December, which brought on the buds is being borne out by the investigations of fruit growers of the Niagara district during the past few days.

May will come in with a low barometer and cloudy, murky conditions, and from the 1st to the 8th, thick cloudiness will prevail over most parts of the country. Wide areas of Mercurial, drizzling rains will work from western to eastern sections of the country, breaking into heavy downpours in many localities. These rains will be attended, and followed after they have passed eastward, by very cool weather, with danger of frost at night if the clouds disappear—a thing improbable to any great degree as long as the Mercury influence is dominant. It is a well established fact, that thick cloudiness, with heavy sleet in cold weather, and long-continued, drizzling rain in warm weather, are products of the Mercury disturbances. Of course these conditions give place to heavy storms and blizzards, during the regular and reactionary storm periods which fall in the Mercury periods.

A Regular Storm Period covers the 5th to the 10th, having its centre on the 7th. On and touching the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th, there will be threatening variations in the readings of the thermometer and barometer, and there will be danger of violent storms in proportion to the extreme indications of these faithful instruments. The Moon is on the celestial equator on the 6th, in perigee on the 8th, and full on the 9th. These facts greatly increase probabilities of very active storms on and about those dates. The Mercury and Jupiter periods will also add to the fierceness of atmospheric and electrical probations at this time. Change to much cooler, followed by frost northward, may reasonably be counted on, in the wake of, and for several nights after the storms. See if a wave of abnormally cold weather does not spread from the northwest, far into the eastern and southeastern sections of the country, from about the 8th to the 11th of May.

A Reactionary Storm Period is central on the 12th, 13th and 14th. There are no other marked causes of disturbance at this period, except, of course, the continued presence of the Jupiter influence, and the fact that all the central parts of our continent are in the focus of solar energy during the months of May and June. Without the assistance of a reliable barometer, and intelligent, careful observation at the time, there is no telling what any of these sudden, active May storms may develop into. One thing is certain, a good barometer and commonsense watching, at the oncoming of any storm will afford timely opportunity to seek a place of safety, provided there be such a place of safety available. Thanks to the progressive intelligence of our people, there are fewer and fewer homes every year unprovided with such a refuge from the tornado monster. Behind the reactionary storms of this period, look for rising barometer, westerly winds and fair, cool weather—too cool for entire safety from frosts in northern parts of the country.

A Regular Storm Period covers the 17th to the 22nd. This is about the time when a series of May thunder and rain storms are common. These storms often come in the form of daily cycles, for several days in succession. Some times a double daily cycle, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon and early evening, will repeat themselves. These storms are attended by very black, thick clouds, spreading eastward from a leaden bank in the west, with vicious lightning, thunder and heavy rain and hail. As long as the wind blows warm and humid from the south and the barometer remains below normal, these daily cycles will continue to return about the same hours of the day; but when the wind changes to strong and cool from the west, and the barometer takes a determined turn upward, you may know that the series of storms is broken and that clear, settling weather will follow. Such a spell is probable on and touching the 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st of May, although there is no combination of causes out of the ordinary at this time. If the Venus equinox were now dominant, we would not hesitate to warn of such results; but Venus is absent until June, at which time we give notice that we shall hear from her. At all events—higher barometer and cooler, fair weather may be expected, progressively from west to east, about the 21st to 23rd.

A Reactionary Storm Period has its centre on the 24th, 25th and 26th. The new Moon being on the 24th, change to very warm, with falling barometer, ending in rain and thunder storms, with some wild dashes and gusts of wind, may be figured on—moving eastward across the country—on and touching Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, the 24th, 25th and 26th. Moon is at an extreme north declination on the 26th, causing atmospheric tides to swing northward, and bringing into higher latitudes some very warm equatorial weather. Such conditions will excite very intense electrical storms. Should the barometer fall to very low readings—a thing to be apprehended—there will be probable danger of tornadic storms. Perhaps not, but—watch! Look for the inevitable rise of the barometer and change to cooler, when the storm area has moved out of the way to the eastward.

A Regular Storm Period is central on the 30th, extending from the 29th three to four days in June. As may be seen by the storm diagram, the Venus disturbance, which is central in June, comes at the close of May and will begin to make itself felt during this period. A very decided fall of the barometer will be noted in western parts by the 29th and 30th, other storm conditions will follow in due order, so that as we pass from May into June, wide and active storm areas will be in transit from west to east across the country. These storms will reach their highest culmination on and touching June 1st and 2nd. We advise all readers of this Magazine, Word and Works, to study our storm diagram and forecasts for June in advance. Without some mitigating or modifying influence, which we cannot now see, June will bring intense and dangerous conditions of storm and weather which ought to be foreknown and guarded against.

The first seismic period for May will cover the 6th to the 12th, being at its centre on the 9th. Quadratures of Uranus on the 2nd, and Jupiter on the 12th will greatly increase the seismic strain at this time. Destructive earthquakes and violent volcanic eruptions in various parts of the earth will be natural and almost certain during this period, continuing at intervals into the June periods. The second seismic period in May will be at its centre on the 24th, extending three to four days before and after that date. Keep a watch on telegraphic reports generally and see if the "seismograph fiends" do not report something doing in the way of earth tremours, within the compass of this period. We figure that these disturbances will be more general and more severe in the northern hemisphere, the Moon's conjunction with the earth and sun being near the Moon's greatest declination north. We would be pleased to have our friends send us clippings of odd earthquake reports.

Victory O'er The Grave

J. M. Perrin in I. B. S. A. Bible Lecture Claims That the Resurrection Day is 1000 Years Long

"Victory O'er the Grave" was the subject of an interesting address delivered at the Royal Theatre Sunday afternoon by J. M. Perrin of Cameron.

The speaker set forth from the Scriptures the claim that the dead are really dead, and that it is a mistake to suppose, contrary to the Bible, that they are more alive than ever—that like a bird liberated from its cage, the soul has taken its flight to the Heavenly realms without waiting for the Resurrection. As proof texts, he referred to Ecclesiastes 9:5-6—"The dead know not anything"; Psalm 146:4 "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish; Job 14:21: "His sons come to honour and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them.' While this is considerably different from what ministers used to preach, the lecturer contended that they are now awakening to the fact that nowhere in the Bible is the thought held out that the dead are alive and in Heaven. To the contrary the Lord, Himself, declares in John 3:13: "No man hath ascended up to Heaven, but He that came down from Heaven, even the Son of Man.' "Any, then," said the speaker, "who prefer to believe that their dead are alive and in Heaven, contradict the Bible; they deny the Lord's own words."

Resurrection Necessary to Life.

The lecturer then pointed out what he believed to be the only hope of life, as laid down in the Scriptures—the resurrection. "There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust.' (Acts 24:15.) "If the dead rise not, then they which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished.' (1 Cor. 15:16-18) — never to live again. They would be as though they had not been. (Obadiah 16.) The grave, according to the speaker, has for centuries been gradually swallowing up mankind; death has been working to the human race to such an extent that the average length of life has been reduced to approximately 35 years. The source of this great River of Death was shown to lie in the fallen Adam, and the victory over the grave to lie in Christ, who took Adam's place, paying the penalty for his sin—death—which is legally to free Adam and his race. In God's appointed time, all will be released from the prison-house of death, and be brought forth to life. "As all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive.'

Thousand-Year Resurrection.

That the Scriptures do not set forth the puerile idea of a twenty-four-hour Resurrection Day, was one of the striking points of the octure. So short a space of time would be quite inadequate for the wonderful work to be accomplished. The speaker declared that according to the Bible, 1000 years are appointed for the individual judging and resurrection of the whole world, and that the Apostle Peter clearly indicates this in 2 Peter 3:7 & 8, where, speaking of the Day of Judgment, he reminds us that it is to be a thousand-year Day. This entire Day will be devoted to the awakening instruction, and gradual resurrection, or restoration of the human race to the full life and perfection once enjoyed by Father Adam before he fell a victim to the process of dying.

The Just and the Unjust.

The speaker endeavoured to explain the heathen question by drawing a distinction between the resurrection of the just and that of the unjust. All who have died approved by God on account of their faith in the ransom which he has provided are said to have been justified by faith. All others, including the millions of heathen who have never heard of Christ, will come up in the resurrection of the unjust. In the first class will come the Church, all the saints who throughout this Gospel Age have fought "the good fight of faith," following in the Master's footsteps. These shall have part in the First Resurrection, the chief resurrection to Divine life. "On such the Second Death hath no power (they shall be made death-proof), but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with Him a thousand years." Those consecrated ones of this Age who fail in a measure, together with those who were justified by faith before Christ inaugurated His Church, will also have part in the Resurrection of the Just, for they also died justified in God's sight on account of their faith; but they will not have part in the First Resurrection.

The resurrection of the unjust was shown to include all others who have not sinned wilfully against full light, including the heathen, both at home and abroad. These have never had the mists sufficiently rolled away to see and appreciate God in the true light, and to understand His wonderful and loving Plan of Salvation, and they will come forth from the grave to learn of their privilege of salvation through Christ. If they gladly accept it and live in harmony with the laws of justice, they shall attain unto eternal life as human beings in the perfected earth. If they reject, they shall be deprived of the wonderful boon of everlasting life, which they do not properly appreciate and would only abuse were they to have it. These, with Satan and his angels, will go into the Second Death, eternal death. Earth and Heaven will thus be purified of all that would offend; for "all the wicked will God destroy.' "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth.'

PROCLAIMS MARTIAL LAW.

Fletcher Takes Step To Recall Vera Cruz Civic Officials.

VERA CRUZ, April 27.—Vera Cruz is to-day under martial law, Rear Admiral Fletcher, commanding the American naval forces on shore, yesterday issued a proclamation to this effect, and the last opportunity Mexicans had for handling their own affairs in Vera Cruz under their own laws disappeared.

Admiral Fletcher and his staff determined that there should be no more quibbling with the Mexican officials regarding forms of Government, and until further notice the residents of this port will live and be judged by military law.

This proclamation makes Rear Admiral Fletcher absolute ruler as before, and it is agreed that he will use his power with stoical regard for all, to the end that order shall be maintained.

It is expected that the martial law proclamation will have another effect —that of opening the way for more of the city and federal employes to return to their posts and co-operate in restoring the local government functions, Mexicans point out that these men will now be in a position to explain to their friends and the existing government at the capital that under martial law they felt obliged to return to their work.

The federal general, Maas, has established his headquarters at Soledad, about sixteen miles from Vera Cruz, and his men are tearing up the railway tracks. The gap between Tejera, the water supply station, which is guarded by the Americans, and Soledad has grown greatly, and it is now no simple task for the refugees, whether foreigners fleeing from Huerta or Mexicans, proceeding from Vera Cruz towards the capital to get themselves and their baggage across the open space.

Taking Pictures For The Movies Hazardous Work

Great Courage Displayed by Men Who Get Films in Awkard Places

RISKS RUN TO GET THEM

Do you ever stop to consider the many difficulties that assail a motion picture photographer? asks the New York Sun. As this is being written a story appears in the news papers telling of a photographer in Montana who braved the murderous cross-fire of some strikers that he might obtain pictures to show the world what a battle between strikers and constable is like.

Strategy.

As may be imagined, there are many methods in vogue among photographers to obtain truthful pictures of animals. It is entirely a case of strategy on the man's part. He must wait in the jungle sometimes for days until his odour becomes familiar to the animal. He builds himself a house, sometimes inside a hollow tree trunk, sometimes in the tree itself, and bides his time.

But this is not enough, for under ordinary circumstances the moment he started to turn the handle of the camera the noise would be such that the beast would either fight or run away, and either would be bad for the man.

So again resorting to strategy, he invents a machine, small and compact, that will exactly imitate the clicking of a camera. This is turned by the action of the wind, and it is not long before the animal becomes accustomed to the noise. Sometimes, though, it is necessary to bribe the animal with a wounded deer or a lame goat.

Pictures of Fish Hardest.

Probably the hardest picture of the kind to obtain is that of a fish under water. Much patience is necessary and much skill. The first step is the manufacturing of a glass caisson, which is semi-submerged and contains the man and his machine. The top is open to the sky and there the operator must receive his meals from an associate. It is compulsory that the man shall stay there for an abrupt movement might scare the subject beyond recovery.

A fish is noted for its curiosity and it is upon this fact that the camera man works. A shot fired in the water will bring fish from all over to the spot to investigate. Likewise with the cage. They want to see what it is, and it is not long before they will be close to it. Then for the pictures.

Daring and Nerve Needed.

He cited one case in particular in which he had lain in wait for a week with his imitation camera going full speed, grabbing a meal when he could, only to have the bird take fright and leave her nest forever, thus wasting all his time. He has, however, been able to catch near pictures of the moor hen, probably the most timid of birds.

Newman has also been very successful in his pictures of large birds, such as the South American condor, the American eagle and the buzzard and vultures of the South. As may be surmised, a different sort of skill is required to get such pictures as these.

The feat requires daring and nerve. The photographer is lowered over the side of a mountain in a boatswain chair and with a camera between his knees gets his pictures. G. Blake Garrison, a photographer of animals, was badly hurt in his initial attempt of this nature in South America. He was attacked by one of the birds while in this precarious position and severly clawed before his partner was able to draw him up. In defending himself he lost his machine, necessitating the retaking of the picture under more auspicious conditions.

Comb Sage Tea In Hair To Darken It

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening grey, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the musay mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

A WIDOW'S RUSE

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

In antebellum days there lived in Georgia on a large plantation, which he owned, one David Dupont. His wife bore him one child, a son, and when the baby was but a year old the father died, leaving his property to his wife in trust for his son. But Dupont's affairs had always been in the hands of one John Coulter, in whose business ability and integrity the planter had every confidence. He therefore left the management of the estate to Coulter as executor.

Mrs. Dupont had always distrusted Coulter, but so great was his influence over her husband that she dared not speak her mind.

One day she set out from the plantation to visit a friend. Her trunks were taken to the station by the negroes, but the widow carried in her hand what in those days was called a bandbox made of pasteboard, intended for the carrying of women's bonnets or men's hats. This box she would trust to no other hands than her own. She told all of the household that her baby was to remain in the hands of Chloe, his mammy, and no one else was to have anything to do with him.

Mrs. Dupont had been away from the plantation but a few days when Chole's husband, Sampson, appeared to inform her that little Archie, her son, was very ill. She hurried home and, going to the sickroom, shut herself up there, giving orders that no one except the doctor, who had been the family physician for years, was to be admitted. The doctor came and went, but when asked how the baby was getting on always hurried away without giving any satisfaction. One day when he came out of the sickroom he said:

"It's all over."

Two days later Simpson carried a little coffin from the house, followed by the widow, the boy's mammy and all the negroes on the plantation. There were wails from the dusky mourners, but none wailed so loud as the dead boy's mammy. The coffin was carried to the family cemetery, where it was placed in a grave that had been prepared for it.

John Coulter during Archie's sickness, death and burial was away on business. When he returned he found his plans seriously interfered with. There was a provision in David Dupont's will that if his son died before his widow the estate should be hers instead of in trust for the boy. The widow at once claimed the property and told Coulter that he must turn it over to her.

The executor was in a hole. He had partly accomplished his plans to get possession of the property and had it not been for the child's death would doubtless soon have got it into a position where he would appear to be the rightful owner. As it was, he could only undo what he had done and turn the estate over to the widow. He was a long while doing it, and she was obliged on several occasions to threaten him with a charge of misappropriation to force him to disgorge. When he had done so she dismissed him, hoping that he would leave the neighborhood. But in the service of the Dupont family he had accumulated some money, with which he bought a small plantation in an adjoining county, where he settled.

Some eight or nine years after Archie Dupont's death the widow brought to the plantation a boy whose age was given as twelve years and adopted him. George Etheridge was the boy's name, and he soon became a favorite with all the household. Chloe and Mrs. Dupont took unusual pains to have transferred to him their love for little Archie. George grew up a fine fellow and, thanks to his mother by adoption, was well educated.

When Etheridge was about to become of age Mrs. Dupont granted him a celebration of the event. The planters from round about were invited to the fete, and, strange to say, John Coulter, who had continued to prosper and had become a prominent citizen, received an invitation. Surprise was manifested at the extent of the preparations, and some persons who remembered the boy's age as given out when he came to the plantation declared that he had come of age a year or two before.

However, there was a fine gathering in honor of the event. On the birthday when the clock struck 12 the guests were gathered on a lawn near the house. Mrs. Dupont was there with George Etheridge, old Chloe and all the household negroes.

"My friends," said the widow, "and Mr. Coulter, this is my son, Archibald Dupont. When he was a year old I gave out that he was dead. This I did in order to get possession of my property, which was passing into the hands of the executor of the estate. I took my baby away in a bandbox. Chloe, as I had arranged with her, sent me word of his illness, and I returned to bury a wax doll. When he grew old enough not to be known for himself I brought him here. These precautions are no longer necessary, for by his father's will his property is to be paid him today.

All were surprised except young Dupont, who had known the facts for several years, and Chloe, who had always known them.

While Mrs. Dupont was speaking her eyes were fixed on John Coulter. Not being a sensitive man, his mind was occupied with the manner in which he had been beaten by a woman.

New Foods.

A chemist in Belgium by taking the albumen from the residue of malt grains and putting it through a process, is said to have produced a pasty food, claimed to taste like meat, but with three times as much nourishment. The cost of the food is said to be small. Physicians in Brussels have experimented on men with it, and with excellent results. The same chemist has also produced another food from clover and other foods, the nutritive character of which has passed official tests.—Grocery.

SOMETHING NEW FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

With the Household Editor

The coming of spring suggests something new for the housekeeper. Through the long winter months the same routine of household duties has been followed, but with the warm days come the symptoms of spring fever and we are anxious to start a general upheaval in connection with our daily duties. For, of course, house cleaning stands out prominently as one of the most important duties of the spring. We read sometimes of homes where such system is practiced that spring cleaning is not necessary, but few of us have reached that point of method and look forward from spring to spring to a disturbance of things in general.

Perhaps this year you are planning to do some fresh papering and painting, ir you may intend getting that new rug for the parlor, or probably some new furniture and new curtains. The spring house cleaning also represents a great ridding up of drawers, boxes and trunks when many articles that are useless are discarded.

How many of Our Folks plan each year to have a spring mental cleaning as well as a spring house cleaning. Many of us sort over old articles in the garret every spring that have long become useless, but we say to ourselves that they may come in handy some day, and back they go again into the trunk or box to take up valuable space. Why not make a resolution this spring to get rid of all useless articles, and thus make the cleaning that much easier another year.

If we were to make a 'mental "clean-up" after the same manner, we would find many old, worn-out ideas that could well be discarded. Many of us cling to the old methods of doing work that our mothers and grandmothers followed, and refuse to try and simplify any of our tasks because "we have always done them that way." If we would study and try out new ways of performing various household duties, these tasks would assume a new aspect and become more interesting and pleasant. We cannot but accept the fact that [illegible] invention has made housekeeping less of a drudgery than in years gone by. Are we going to have a "mental house cleaning" this year, sweeping down the cobwebs from the walls of our brains as well as from the walls of our homes?

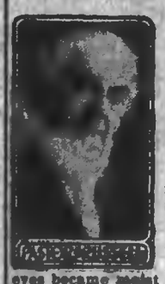
STORY OF THE BIBLE IN MOVING PICTURES

Pastor Russell's Drama in the South.

PASTOR HIMSELF PRESENTS IT

Touching Film of Abraham's Sacrifice Furnished Text For Famous New Yorker's Discourse—Hearts Swelled and Eyes Moistened Under the Message From the Book—What Has Been Regarded as a Cruel Fanaticism Shown to Be a Divinely Beautiful Lesson on Things to Come.



Atlanta, Ga., April 26.—Pastor Russell presented his famous Photo-Drama of Creation to a highly appreciative audience in the Atlanta Theatre today.

The touching film of Abraham's great sacrifice furnished the basis of the Pastor's discourse. Hearts filled and eyes became moist as the instructive message was delivered.

What has been regarded by many as a cruel fanaticism was pointed out by the famous New Yorker as Divinely arranged and as teaching a most beautiful and significant lesson respecting the sacrifice of the anti-typical Isaac—namely, Christ and "the Church, which is His Body."

Pastor Russell's text was, "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed and heirs according to the Promise" (Galatians 3:29).

The Pastor began by demonstrating from Scripture that God calls our present condition a cursed one, that mankind are under the curse of death, and that the only way by which the world can come under God's blessing is by the bringing in of a new condition. And so when God said to Abraham, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed," He meant that this Seed would roll away the curse of death and roll in the blessing of life in the full sense upon humanity.

Then the Pastor pointed out that the Logos left the Heavenly courts and became a human being—taking a lower nature than He had before—and was born of the stock of Abraham, in order to become the promised Seed which was to roll away the curse of death. He next showed why Jesus, according to the flesh, could not be Messiah, the promised Seed. Even in His perfection the Man Jesus could have done nothing more for the world than to guide many into happier conditions. He could not have been the great Deliverer who was to bless all the families of earth—the dead as well as the living.

The Pastor explained how Jesus became the Messiah when He was baptized of John at Jordan. He showed that the water baptism was only the symbol of the real baptism which took place there; and to support his claim he quoted the prophetic statement respecting Jesus, "Lo, I come to do Thy will, O My God"—everything written in the Book. (Hebrews 10:5-9.) This statement means that our Lord, by becoming our Sacrifice, fulfilled the types and shadows of the Law Covenant—various things that were not commandments at all, but that were foreshadowed by the Jewish sacrifices.

For instance, the type showed that before there could be an atonement for sin, the bullock of the sin-offering must first be offered. Our Lord came to be the antitypical Sin-offering, to present His perfect human nature—all that He had—to give Himself in God's service as a sacrifice. The speaker threw a new light on the Apostle's somewhat ambiguous statement, "He taketh away the first, that He may establish the second," declaring that the correct thought is, He removes the type, that He may establish the anti-type.

Our Lord came to set aside the type. This He did when He presented Himself a living Sacrifice at Jordan to do unreservedly the Father's will. This meant, primarily, our Lord's death, for mankind were under the death sentence pronounced upon their Father, Adam. Therefore, it was necessary that their Redeemer should taste death for mankind before He could have wherewith to satisfy the claims of Justice on Adam's behalf and ask for the release of Adam and his race.

Next the Pastor explained that when our Lord cried on the cross, "It is finished!" He merely meant that His own personal work of the sacrifice of Himself was ended. Then came His resurrection and His manifestation to His disciples, that they might know that He had risen from the dead. He appeared and showed Himself under different conditions to prove two things: (1) That He was no longer dead; (2) That He was changed from what He had been before. The speaker dwelt at length upon our Lord's several manifestations after His resurrection. He pointed out that during the forty days before our Lord's ascension He showed Himself only a few minutes at a time, or perhaps an hour in all, and He appeared and disappeared in a way that no one but a spirit being could do. As St. Peter declared, "He was put to death in flesh, but quickened in spirit"—made alive a spirit being.

Our Lord's ascension, the Pastor affirmed, was another step in the Divine Plan for the salvation of the world. It was necessary, as St. Paul declared, that Jesus should appear in the presence of God and make presentation of His blood, the merit of His sacrifice, the value of His sacrificial death, that the Church might be justified through His merit, and that the Father might give the Church the benefit of the cleansing which our Lord had accomplished for that class. Many have not noticed that the Scriptures limit our Lord's work during the Gospel Age to the Church class which is being selected, or elected, from amongst mankind. By faith this class are reconciled to God through the blood of Christ. These have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous, and may draw near to God with good courage, having their hearts sprinkled from any consciousness of evil.

The Pastor then showed that after Jesus had ascended on High He was the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, who is to bless all the families of the earth. Primarily, He became the Seed of Abraham at Jordan, when He received the anointing and to a certain extent began the work of blessing. But when He had risen from the dead and had ascended to the Father He was the Perfected One, the complete Seed, so far as He Himself was concerned.

The speaker went on to demonstrate from Scripture, however, that from the beginning God had purposed, not only that Jesus should be the great Saviour and Blesser of the world, but that He should have a company of associates, who are to be sharers with Him in the great work of human uplift. These are the Gospel Church, and are to be given glory, honor and immortality in the First Resurrection. Thus they also will become members of Abraham's Spiritual Seed and share with Christ in His Millennial Kingdom. The speaker repeatedly quoted from Galatians 3, which he claimed makes the matter very clear.

Primarily, the Seed of Abraham, as God meant it, was the Spiritual Seed—Christ and the Church on the Divine plane. But there is another Seed of Abraham, according to the flesh—the Jews. These also will have a part in the work of blessing. This fact, the Pastor declared, is set forth in Genesis 22:16-18, where God told Abraham that his seed would be as the stars of heaven and as the sand of the seashore.

The Pastor then explained how some from both Jews and Gentiles have constituted this Spiritual Seed of Abraham. He showed that Jesus, the perfect Man, gave Himself a Sacrifice, laying down His earthly rights; and that God begot Him to a higher nature. Being perfect, He needed no one to make good for Him. But with the Church it is different. Every member must come to Him as the Sin-offering, the One who would cover their blemishes and imperfections, and represent them as their Advocate. The early Church were in the main of Jewish origin. These had found that they could not get everlasting life by keeping the Law. Therefore, as St. Paul declared, they must become dead to it and accept Christ as their Sin-offering, and consecrate themselves, that through His merit they might become members of the Anointed.

The Gentiles never were under the Law Covenant, and therefore they came into Christ merely by the sin-offering and consecration of earthly things—presenting themselves living sacrifices, as did the Jews. In return for this complete consecration, those who thus present themselves by faith—whether Jew or Gentile—are begotten of the Holy Spirit to Heavenly hopes, aims and ambitions. Those who continue faithful to their covenant of sacrifice until death will receive a place in that Body of Christ, which is the Church in glory. These walk by faith and not by sight. They develop the spirit of loyalty and obedience—loyalty to God, to righteousness and the brethren, and obedience to God and the Golden Rule. Of this Christ company Jesus was the Head, the Apostles were the first members of the Body, and the faithful in Christ Jesus throughout the Gospel Age are members in particular.

The Pastor next discussed the descendants of Abraham through Isaac—the Jews. Briefly reviewing the history of that remarkable people, the speaker showed how God had blessed them in the past. Their trying experiences in Egypt, their journey through the wilderness en route to Canaan, and the signs and wonders which accompanied them, taught the people valuable lessons and strengthened their faith. For centuries they dwelt in the Promised Land under God's special care, sometimes chastised and sometimes blessed. But they never got the blessing sought under the terms of the Law Covenant—everlasting life. Their experiences, he pointed out, helped to develop in Israel a special class possessing the faith of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the Prophets, and others not so prominent.

As yet, the speaker claimed, this class have received nothing but God's promise that they shall have "a better resurrection." This they will get, he asserted, after the entire Church of Christ shall have been completed; for God has ordained that in all things Christ shall have the pre-eminence. After the Spiritual Seed of Abraham shall have been glorified, then something will begin to be done for the natural seed.

The Pastor then showed that this class of Ancient Worthies will have much advantage over the rest of the world. The Bible teaches that they will come up to human perfection in the resurrection, instead of coming up imperfect human beings, like the remainder of mankind. This constitutes their "better resurrection." The rest of the world will require centuries in which to attain human perfection.

This Ancient Worthy class, the speaker stated, will be associated with the coming Kingdom of God, as our Lord declared, saying, "Ye shall see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the Prophets in the Kingdom of God." (Luke 13:28.) Jesus will be on the Throne and the Church will be with Him; but they will be invisible to men. The world will see these Ancient Worthies who will be perfect men—grand examples of the image of God in the flesh. They will constitute the earthly phase of the Kingdom, in that they will represent the invisible Heavenly Kingdom.

The Pastor then gave an outline of arrangements in the Kingdom of Messiah. The Spiritual Seed of Abraham will be in the glory of the Kingdom—spirit beings, invisible to men. The natural seed of Abraham will be "Princes in all the earth," as Psalm 45 sets forth. When the Kingdom is set up, God's blessings will first go to all "Israelites indeed." The first representatives will be the Ancient Worthies, with whom the speaker thinks all the promised earthly blessings will rest as representatives of Messiah on earth. Only by coming into relationship with this company will any get the full blessing of the Millennial Kingdom.

The Pastor illustrated in the case of the United States. There are certain privileges and blessings to be secured by getting citizenship here; and as a result people flock here from everywhere and become citizens, in order that they may enjoy these blessings and privileges. This, he declared, is exactly the picture given in the Scriptures. In the future all the world will press for citizenship in the nation of Israel. The terms of citizenship there will be full surrender—abandonment of sin, consecration to God, faith and trust in Him, and loyalty and obedience to the great Messianic Kingdom.

The Pastor thinks that the Jews will be the first people to come into the Kingdom, for the reason that the offer to mankind will be more in line with what that people have been expecting for many centuries. The Promise was made to their ancestor Abraham about four thousand years ago that in his Seed all the families of the earth should be blessed. The Jew still has it in mind, the Pastor believes, that somehow Messiah and His Kingdom are coming, and that the blessing of Abraham is yet to come.

The Jew does not know what to make of all that has been going on for the past eighteen hundred years, the speaker declared. He has been greatly puzzled to know why Lazarus should have been taken into Abraham's bosom as Abraham's child, and why he himself should seemingly be rejected, outcast and in trouble; but soon his eyes will be opened. At the proper moment God will pour upon Israel the spirit of prayer and supplication, and they shall look upon Him whom they pierced, as the Prophet Zechariah foretold. (Zechariah 12:10.) Then they will begin to see something of God's great Mystery—that it was necessary that mankind be redeemed before they could be restored. They will begin to get the key to the Divine Plan, which rests upon the Cross of Christ.

The next class to come into line with the Kingdom, the Pastor thinks, will be a class of Christian people that have been considerably misled and confused. As soon as these begin to get their eyes open a little, they will perceive that others have understood the Scriptures better than they have, and then they will begin to study. The Bible intimates that this will be their course—that the foolish virgins will get the oil and will finally come into harmony with God. Gradually the Message will spread until all nations will realize that the Kingdom of God has been established, and that by becoming Israelites they will get the blessings. To support this somewhat remarkable statement, the Pastor quoted several prophecies, among which was Zechariah 14:16-21.

The speaker believes that by the end of the Millennial Age all evildoers will have been destroyed and all the remainder of mankind will have become Abraham's seed—a great number, which no man can estimate. Then will come a trial to determine who are loyal at heart. Having demonstrated that they could be loyal during the favorable conditions of Christ's Messianic Kingdom, when every wrong act was punished and every good deed blessed, mankind will then be tried to see whether they will do right when left to themselves and the Kingdom withdrawn. Satan will be loosed for a little while. Then there will be opportunity for sin to prevail. The race of Adam, then perfect beings, will be tested in order to determine whether they really love God and whether they are loyal to the principle of righteousness. Those who are found to be disloyal to truth and righteousness and God will be destroyed from amongst the people.—Acts 3:23; 2 Peter 2:12.

In concluding his discourse, the Pastor declared that as the test at the end of the Millennial Age will be loyalty, even so this is the test upon Christian people to-day. The Lord desires not those who merely fear to do wrong, but those who love to do right and hate to do wrong. He claimed that there is only a little more time in which Christians will have the opportunity to develop character and to stand the test. All of those found worthy to walk with our Lord will be accepted as worthy of the best beyond the veil, and the door to the High Calling will be shut. Then will come the great tribulation mentioned in Revelation 7, out of which will gradually come the Great Company—all overcomers, indeed, but not "more than conquerors."

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

OVER-ZEALOUS

With the Household Editor

"Hello, Mrs. Smith! A few of the ladies in the neighborhood are coming over to our house next Thursday afternoon. I would like to have you come along and bring your sewing."

"Well, I would like to go, Mrs. Jones, but really, on Thursday afternoons I always do my weekly mending, so couldn't possibly get away"; and Mrs. Smith hung up the telephone receiver with a sigh.

We have all met women of Mrs. Smith's style who mean well and believe they are doing their duty to their families and to themselves by becoming slaves to their household duties. There is such a thing as being over-zealous about our work. And then, too, it is a very easy matter to get into a rut in the way we perform our household duties, neglecting to stop to think if there is not some easier way in which they may be done more quickly and with less expenditure of labor. If by a little planning and forethought we could save a few minutes on every task that we do in a day we would soon find time for the rest and recreation that is every woman's right.

In the farm home especially, where there are never-ending duties to be performed, there is great need for system, for we are all aware that system is a wonderful labor-saver. While it is well and good to read of how others plan their work and then try to follow out their suggestions when doing our work, we really must use our own brains, for what proves to be a labor-saver in one home may not be of much benefit in another.

Some one may argue that they are not slaves to their work, and endeavor to systematize their work as much as possible, and yet every day duties are cropping up that prevent their getting the work done on scheduled time. We realize that this is quite true, but still we must not grow disheartened, for as Elbert Hubbard says, "Calm, patient, persistent pressure wins. It wins! Violence is transient. Hate, wrath, vengeance, are all forms of fear and do not endure. Silent, persistent effort will dissipate them. Be strong!"

ABOUT EGGS

Eggs which have been fertilized constitute the greatest proportion of the inferior stock which, when examined, prove unfit for food. It is not necessary that these shall have remained for a time under a broody hen, a temperature of seventy degrees being in itself sufficient to cause the germ to commence to grow. If the heat is constant the development of the chick will continue, but if it ceases or is intermittent, putrefaction at once sets in and the eggs become bad. On the other hand, infertile eggs which are free from the active germ cell, do not, under ordinary conditions, deteriorate seriously.

Few farmers seem to realise these facts, and consequently very few make any effort to ensure infertility. The impression prevails among many that the presence of the male bird in the flock is essential to the production of a maximum number of eggs. This assumption has been proved, time and time again, to be absolutely without foundation.

Farmers and others selling eggs for market are recommended to kill off or dispose of the male birds after the breeding season. As a result of their remaining with the flock after June 1st, Canadian farmers lose each year at least a million dollars through the presence of partially incubated eggs in the produce that is marketed. The fact that the best trade in many cities in Canada now offers the premium of from one to five cents a dozen, for non-fertilized eggs, suggests an additional financial consideration which but few can afford to overlook.

ROOMS IN THE HOME FOR THE CHILDREN

In a great many homes we find that the boys of the family have no particular room in the house that they can call their own, at least not one in which they care to spend any time except when sleeping. Somehow we seem to get the idea into our heads that anything is good enough for the boys' room, and usually they have the smallest room in the house, and the furniture consists of an old bedstead, a chair or two and perhaps a cracked looking glass.

A writer in Farm and Home recently related an impressive incident that tends to show that boys in general appreciate a place of their own quite as much as girls. He said in part:

"I have a friend who has four children—two boys and two girls. The girls were given rooms of their own as soon as they were large enough to take care of them. The boys had a small bedroom only.

"One evening the boys had some visitors and they had to entertain them in the kitchen. The next morning fault was found with the disordered appearance of the room.

"'If we had a room of our own, such as the girls have, to take our visitors to, we wouldn't litter up the rest of the house,' one of the boys said. 'We like visitors just as well as the girls do, but we haven't any place to take them to, except the barn.'

"The mother to whom this remark was made told me that it set her thinking. She had not thought before, that her boys cared for a room of their own.

"'If you had a room to entertain your visitors in, it would make us no end of work,' she told them. 'Girls take care of their own rooms. Boys don't know how to.'

"'There's a good reason why they don't,' was the response. 'They never have a chance.'

"'Do you think you'd learn to if you had a room of your own?' she asked.

"'Try us and see,' was the answer.

"There was a small building near the dwelling in the lower part of which was stored the carriage and some of the smaller farming implements. Overhead was a room in which the boys had a sort of workshop. Their father had planned, for some time back, to enlarge the storeroom by adding a lean-to to it. But, at the suggestion of the mother, the subject of making a room for the boys came up for consideration. The father consulted them in regard to the matter. Would they like a room over the addition to the carriage house?

"Like it? Why, nothing would please them more, they declared. The addition was built and the boys became owners of a room large enough to entertain half the boys of the neighborhood in it at one time.

"'The boys take entire care of their room,' the mother told me, 'and it's kept as neat and tidy as the girls' rooms are. When I see how much they enjoy it, I can't help having a guilty feeling, because I was so thoughtless about their comfort. I did not understand boys, but took it for granted that they do not care for the things that interest girls, and so long as they had a place to sleep in and plenty to eat they were perfectly satisfied. Now I know boys better, and I see where so many mothers make a sad mistake."

KEPHALDOL

CURES COLDS AND LA GRIPPE IN HALF A DAY.

Thank the famous Herr Doctor Stohr, of Vienna, Austria, for allowing his personal prescription for relieving pain, to be sold in Canada. The Doctor has used "Kephaldol" in thousands of cases, both in private practice and in his hospital clinics. Two or three 'Kephaldol' tablets at bedtime and two the first thing in the morning, will usually make a complete cure, although in very severe cases, it may be necessary to continue the treatment for a short time, taking one "Kephaldol" tablet every three hours. "Kephaldol" has the pleasant property of relieving all the distressing symptoms of a "bad cold"—clearing the head—stopping the throbbing headaches—easing the pain in the back and limbs—and enabling one to eat and sleep in comfort.

Keep 'Kephaldol' in the house, ready to take at the first sign of a cold. If your druggist should not have the 50c tubes of these tablets, write Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street Montreal.

A PAGE OF THE BEST HUMOR OF THE WEEK

Now He Know.

Mr. Wayback: "Be yew the waiter?"

Waiter: "Yes, suh!"

Mr. Wayback: "Dew yer know, I've been a-wonderin' all along why they called these places chop houses. I know'd yew. Will you please bring me an axe? I want tew cut this steak."

Enormous Strides.

Doctor: "What! troubled with sleeplessness? Eat something before going to bed."

Patient: "Why, doctor, you once told me never to eat anything before going to bed."

Doctor (with dignity): "Pooh, pooh! That was last January. Science has made enormous strides since then."

"Oh, ma'am! The master's fallen with the bottles on the cellar stairs and 'urt 'isself!"

"Was he coming up or going down?"

"Goin' down."

"Oh then they were only empties!"

Why It Was Thick.

The pretty pupil teacher was taking the geography lesson, and was finding the density of one or two of the scholars rather more than she could cope with. She was questioning them on the peculiarities of British seaports, and at last she pointed to Liverpool on the map, and asked:—

"Now, boys, why is the river at Liverpool always thick?"

Dead silence. Then suddenly popped into Willie Smith's mind, and his eyes twinkled.

"Please, miss," he said, "because the quality of the Mersey is not strained."

One of Lord Charles Beresford's tenants who conducted a small undertaker's establishment in Waterford, was one day asked how the business was getting along.

"Grand, me lord!" he exclaimed. "I have now the luckiest little hearse you ever saw. Glory be to goodness! It was never a day idle since I got it."

Some few years ago at a political meeting at Halesowen, the principal speaker was the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, and a well known singer was engaged to sing selections to the audience while waiting for the meeting to be opened.

A little nailmaker from Cradley Heath, arriving late, could just get into the building, and had no view of the platform at all. On getting home, asked by his wife what he thought of Joe, he replied:—

"I couldn't hear him speak, but he can't half sing!"

The dealer in antiques was showing an old violin to a probable buyer.

"Yes," he said, "that is of historical interest; that is the identical fiddle Nero played while Rome was burning!"

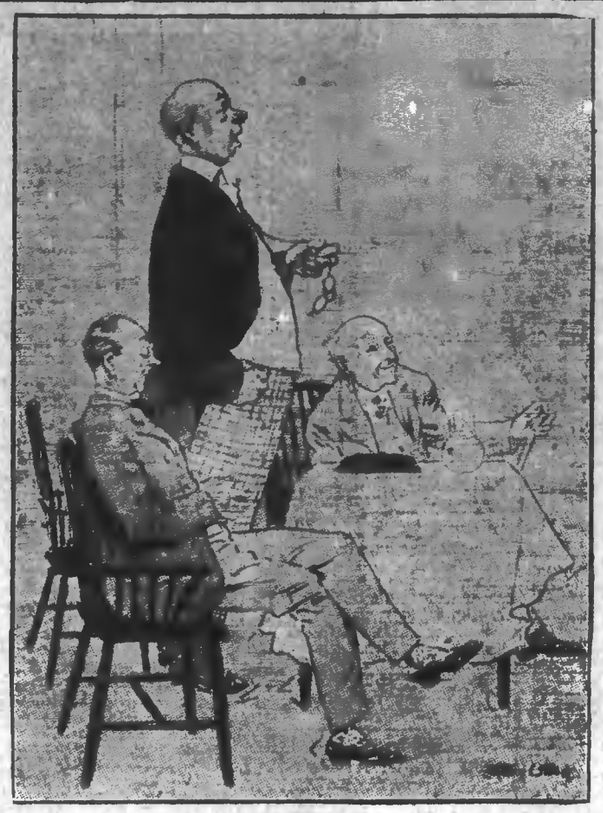
"Oh, that is a myth."

The dealer agreed, saying:

"Yes, it is: and Myth's name was on it, but it has got worn off."

A somewhat laggard and procrastinating student one Sunday evening went to his instructor for aid in one of his studies, asking him if he thought it was wrong to study on Sunday. He was somewhat surprised to receive the reply:—

"If the master was justified in pulling the ass out of the ditch on the Sabbath, was not the ass justified in trying to get himself out?"



COMPLIMENTARY.

The Chairman: We can congratulate ourselves on having satisfactorily filled our late secretary's vacant chair, but at the same time we must express how deeply we shall miss his vacant face.

Trotters.

He came in breathlessly, hurrying like one who bore important news.

"A butcher in the market dropped 60 feet!" he exclaimed.

"Is he dead? How did it happen? Tell us about it!"

"No, he isn't hurt a bit."

"That's remarkable."

"They were pigs' feet."

Cause of Death.

Mr. "Joe" Coyne tells a story about a seedy-looking individual who got into conversation in a railway carriage.

"Ah, sir," he said, sadly. "I've seen changes. I was once a doctor with a large practice, but, owing to one little slip, my patients began to leave me, and now I'm just living from hand to mouth."

"What was the slip?" I asked.

"Well, sir," he replied, "in filling in a death certificate for a patient who had died, I absent-mindedly signed my name in the space headed, 'Cause of death.'"

A traveling salesman died suddenly, and was taken home. His relatives telephoned to the nearest florist some miles away, to make a wreath. The ribbon should be extra wide, with the inscription, "Rest in Peace" on both sides, and if there was room "We shall meet in heaven."

The florist was away, and his new assistant handled the job. It was a startling floral piece when turned up at the funeral. The ribbon was extra wide, and bore the inscription:

"Rest in Peace on Both Sides, and If There Is Room We Shall Meet in Heaven."

The Minister's Daughter.

"I'm glad to find you've turned over a new leaf, Muggles, and don't waste your money at the public-house."

Muggles: "Yes, miss, I have it in by the barrel now, and that do come cheaper."

Tourist: "Well, Pat, I suppose that if you get Home Rule it will be a blessing to you, won't it?"

Pat: "Sure, an' Oi don't know, sorr. May be to the bhoys, but Oi'm gettin' too old to foight now."

Mother was showing off to the Sunday visitors.

"David," she said, "what was the text this morning?"

David (who was in the middle of a North Canadian yarn) looked up to reply:—

"Let me see. Oh, yes, 'Many are cold, but few are frozen.'"

INSULT TO INJURY.

Sandwichman (to Suffragette): There y'are, yer silver one job every week to send them you expects me to marry you.

Jones, who doesn't own a motorcar, and is never likely to, was met at the motor show by a friend who expressed surprise to see him there.

"Well," said Jones, "it's lovely once a year to come and look at a whole mass of cars that you don't have to dodge."

An Unconscious Bidder.

Holding aloft a flashy timepiece, the auctioneer exclaimed grandiloquently:

"We have here a genuine gold-filled, Elgin-movement, full-jeweled, hand-engraved chronometer, made to sell at sixty dollars. To start the bidding, I am going to offer it at the ridiculously low figure of five dollars." After waiting for the full import of his words to be grasped by his hearers, the auctioneer began in a monotone,

"Five—can I get the five—can I get the five"—

A small man near the front of the crowd slightly inclined his head.

"Five—can I get the ten? Five—can I get the ten? Five"—

Again the little man nodded.

"Ten—can I get the fifteen? Ten—can I get the fifteen? Ten"—

To the surprise of everybody, including the auctioneer, the same man signaled again. "Fifteen—can I get the twenty? Fifteen—can I get the twent"—

Noticing that the little man appeared to be [illegible] restless, and fearing to take any more chances of him, the auctioneer suddenly concluded,

"And sold to the little man in the brown suit."

When the watch was passed to him, the man in the brown suit indignantly refused it.

"I didn't bid for it at all," he said, and I am not going to buy it!"

"If you didn't intend to buy it," cried the auctioneer, "why in blazes did you keep nodding your head?"

"I couldn't help it," the man in the brown suit replied. "I've got the hiccoughs!"

A Grudging Admission.

Chin—But you will admit, professor, that the man has genius.

Beard—Genius? Ha! society's unearned increment.

Her Birthstone.

"Did Julius give you a stone-set ring for your birthday?"

"Yes. Isn't it a beauty? Blue white."

"But you were born in March. The diamond is the birth-stone for April."

"That's right; but as long as I know Julius, my birth month is going to be April."

A Journalistic Stunt.

Staff Photographer—I've caught a snapshot of the fleeing gambler!

City Editor—Good! Now take a time exposure of the police in pursuit.

Born in the Sax.

He was the happy father of a very pretty and bright little girl of ten. "Dad," she said to him one evening, when he was reading the paper, "every morning, when I am going to school, the boys catch hold of me and kiss me."

"But, Ethel," he said, "why don't you run away from them?"

"Well, dad, if I did, perhaps they wouldn't chase me."

Overdid It.

"What's the matter?" asked the lawyer's friend. "Been in a railroad accident?"

"No. I had a jury case the other day, and I argued so eloquently for the purpose of making it appear that my client was a fool instead of a knave that I got him acquitted on that plea."

"What has that to do with your appearance?"

"He met me outside after court had adjourned."

Her Guess

"Mary, how did this pretty plate get broken?"

"I don't know, ma'am, unless it took a silly notion to fall off the shelf and smash itself against a corner of the stove."

At a cricket dinner the umpire was suddenly asked, "as a joke," to say grace. With unruffled dignity he rose and said, "Play."

At the end of the [illegible] he was again called upon. This time with a swift upward movement of the right hand, he said, in a decisive voice, "Out!"

Hud he been the captain he might have done more appropriately by declaring the innings closed.

Judge Hannington, when leader of the opposition in the New Brunswick legislature, representing the county of Westmorland, was once delivering a vigorous address in the house against some measure of the government, then led by Mr. Blair.

"Oh, that my constituents in Westmorland could hear me now!" exclaimed the Opposition leader, in violent tones.

Mr. Blair motioned to an attendant.

"Open the windows," he said.

Mr. Plowden, most popular of London magistrates, was once called upon to defend a horse thief, and he made a striking speech for the defence. Unfortunately, the prisoner had pleaded guilty, unknown to Mr. Plowden, so the judge, in summing up, merely remarked:—

"Gentleman, you have heard the prisoner, and you have heard his counsel. It is for you to say which you believe. Only remember—the prisoner was there when the horse was stolen: the learned counsel was not."

Training an Oriental.

A Canadian woman wanted to show her Chinese servant the correct way to announce visitors, and one afternoon went outside her front door, rang the bell, and made the man usher her into the drawing-room.

The following afternoon the bell rang, and not hearing him answer it, she went to the door herself. To her surprise, he was standing waiting outside.

"Why, Sing," she asked, "what are you doing here?"

"You foolee me yesteddy. I foolee you today," was his reply.

The Boy Scout.

Each boy scout now is hunting,
With love for the game immense,
That good, old-fashioned knothole
That grows in the baseball fence.

At the Indoor Fair.

Helper—We're going to have a big crowd here, and it'll be some job to keep 'em moving.

Manager—That'll be easy. Take down the rear exit sign, post up the word "Free," and they'll all bolt for it.

Oh, These Women!

Marie—I wonder how old you are?

Julia—I just told you my age.

Marie—Yes; that's what set me to wondering.

Preoccupation.

"I want just one little kiss!" he said.

"Yes, sir," replied the absent-minded shopgirl. "Will you take it with you or have it sent?"

Veracity.

"Look here, you swindler!" roared the owner of the suburban property to the real estate man, "When you sold me this house, didn't you say that in three months I wouldn't part with it for $10,000?"

"Certainly," said the real estate dealer calmly, "and you haven't, have you?"

One On Teacher.

The teacher was telling the children a long, highly embellished story about Santa Claus, and Willie Jones began giggling with mirth, which finally got beyond his control.

"Willie! What did I whip you for yesterday?" asked the teacher severely.

"Fer lyin'!" promptly answered Willie.

Tricked Him!

Hiram: "Haw! Haw! Haw! I skinned one of them city fellers that put the lightning-rods on my house."

Silas: "Ye did? How did you do it?"

Hiram: "Why, when I made out the check to pay him, I just signed my name without specifying the amount. I'll bet there will be somebody pretty mad when he goes to cash it."

Lucky Choice.

"My husband is a most inveterate reader," exclaimed Mrs. Knox with a slight tone of ennui. "He reads until dawn every morning. Why, last night I found him asleep with his nose in 'V. V.'s Eyes!'"

"Perhaps," commented her husband's bookish friend, "you should be thankful you did not find him with his nose in 'The Inside of the Cup!'"

Old Yarn With a New Twist.

The talk topic at a recent social session switched to the rising generation, when Joseph E. Willard, the new minister to Spain, looked up with an amused smile. He said he was reminded of an incident that happened in a country school.

"Some time ago a small boy played truant, and when he got back on the job next day he handed the following note to the teacher:

"'Dear Teacher: Please excuse James for not being at school yesterday, and don't lick him. The boy he bagged school with licked him, and the man they threw stones at licked him, and the man whose dog they chased licked him, and the driver whose cart they climbed on licked him, and when he came home I licked him. He thinks he will attend reglar in the future. Yours,

'Mary Smith.'

"After that letter the teacher was merciful and Jimmy was permitted to run out and play with no further damage to his hide. In the yard he met a chum.

"'Say, Tommy,' he remarked in a gleeful way, 'ain't I dead lucky?'

"'Why?' was the quick response of Tommy, 'because the teacher didn't lick ye?'

"'No,' smiled Jimmy, 'because I can write just like mother.'"

Going Mother-love One Better.

"Do you think," asked the widower, "you could learn to love my children as you would if they were your own?"

"Oh, yes," replied the anxious maiden, "I think I should care more for them, really, than if they were my own, because I shouldn't have to worry so much about them if they got hurt or were sick."

The Typewriter Clicked On.

"How does the battle go?" asked the Mexican general.

"Fiercely," replied the press-agent. "We have just had three devastating paragraphs, and we're now advancing several columns of fierce description."

Slow.

He's a nice fellow to take a girl flat'ing!"

"Why, what did he do?"

"He flatted."

Mr. Brown had just registered and was about to turn away when the clerk asked:

"Beg pardon, but what is your name?"

"Name!" echoed the indignant guest. "Don't you see my signature there on the register?"

"I do," returned the clerk calmly. "That is what aroused my curiosity."

Stopping the Agony.

An English judge, Sir Henry Hawkins was presiding over a very long and tedious trial, and listening as attentively as he could to a protracted and wearying speech from an eminent counsel learned in the law.

Presently Sir Henry penciled a brief note and sent it to the lawyer in question. Opening it, that gentleman read as follows:

"Patience Competition.

Gold Medal: Sir Henry Hawkins.

Honorable Mention: Job."

Counsel's display of oratory came to an abrupt end.

Quite Reasonable.

"So you don't call on Miss Bute any more. Quarreled?"

"Well, I told her I preferred to have her kiss me before and not after she kissed her pet dog."

"And what did she say?"

"She said I evidently forgot that the dog might have his preference, too."

Oh, That Way!

"It's such a silly superstition to be always picking up pins!"

"You may call it a superstition if you wish, but I know a chap who makes about six dollars a week by doing it."

"How can a fellow gather that many?"

"He works in a bowling alley."

En Passant.

Squallinger and his pretty daughter were on their way to church. It was a lovely Sunday morning, his fashionable garments fitted him to perfection, he had had a prosperous week, he was conscious that he made a fine appearance, and he never had felt more at peace with himself or fuller of the joy of living than on this particular occasion.

Imagine, therefore, the prideful thrill that surged thru him as he passed a corner and heard a soft, feminine voice exclaim:

"Gee! She must have married him for his money!"

Nothing Else Necessary.

Girl—You said! Can it be true that you made a bet at your club that if you proposed to me I would accept you?

Man—Well, I've proposed. Will you?

Girl—How much did you bet?

Making an Estimate.

"Would you like to go to the opera tonight, dearest?"

"What a darling boy you are! Of course I would? What is the bill for tonight?"

"About eleven dollars, I guess."

The Vicar (condoling with the widow): I am very sorry, indeed, Mrs. Stiggle, to hear you have lost your husband. It is a great trouble to you.

Mrs. Stiggle: Well, Sir, I don't know so much. I do know where he is now, and I never did before.

Especially the Chorus Brand.

Flat—It certainly is true that a little gall spoils much honey.

Slat (after a night out)—It's truer still that a little girl spoils much money.

Any Time.

Nell—Eliza went to an astrologer to find out when was the best time to get married.

Stell—What did he tell her?

Nell—He took one look at her and told her to grab her first chance.

The Boy Knew.

"I wish you to understand," he said, addressing his seventeen-year-old son, "that I am still the boss in this house."

"All right, dad," the boy replied; "but you're a coward to make the beast behind mother's back."

Cause for Complaint.

Soubret—I never saw Polly Prancefoot so angry before.

Acrobat—What's the matter with her?

Soubret—She told a reporter not to put a thing in the paper about her divorce, and the foolish fellow took her at her word.

The Lunatic's Delusion.

While a physician was inspecting an insane hospital an inmate approached him and asked, "I beg your pardon, sir, but have you a piece of toast?"

"No," replied the doctor, in surprise; "but I can get you a piece if you want it badly."

"Oh, I wish you would! I'm a poached egg, and I want to sit down."

Cost of Living.

Customer—Why do you leave this long tail on the steak, when I asked for a short-cut porterhouse?

Butcher—We've got to make both ends meet, these days.

Canceled.

He—They say, dear, that people who live together get in time to look exactly alike.

She—Then you may consider my refusal final.

Easily Satisfied.

First girl (at seashore)—I don't care what kind of a husband I get.

Second girl—Gracious!

First girl—So long as he's rich, handsome, kind and generous.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE EXPLANATION

The Marston cottage stood some distance back fro the road on a little knoll. Everything about the house had the immaculate and well kept appearance that one associates with certain people; and its shining front windows, with their snowy muslin draperies, looked serenely out with a fearless gaze, like a soldier on parade, who, knowing full well that he is spick and span in every detail is perfectly confident of passing muster.

If a glance inside were allowed, one would see that the same order and cleanliness prevailed in every room, and was also conspicuous in the two people in the kitchen, both of whom had that tidy, well-set-up appearance which was apparent everywhere.

Mrs. Marston was making apple pies, the quality of which was proved by a rich, flaky one just taken from the oven, most tempting to look upon and emitting a most peculiar aroma.

After carefully closing the oven door she stood and paused for a moment to watch her daughter, who was putting the finishing touches to some chocolate icing on a loaf of cake.

The silence was at length broken with: "Say, Dora, I don't like to hurt your feelings, but I wonder why Charlie didn't call last evening to take you to church as usual. Last time he was here everything was all right, wasn't it?"

Dora bent over her cake before she answered, and only her lively profile was visible, with her crown of rippling brown hair.

Finally, she said, "I'm sure I don't know, mother. Perhaps he wasn't well — and—and—couldn't come."

The sweet voice faltered over the last words, and the soft, brown eyes turned and gazed for a moment out through the window, with a troubled expression in their depths.

"Well, he never did such a thing before, and he's been coming here now, for over a year. But probably he'll explain," she hastened to add, as she caught a glimpse of the girl's sober face.

Several weeks passed, and Charlie had offered no word of explanation, nor had he once called at the house. Mr. Marston was filled with wrath, and had given vent to his feelings more than once. "Do you know, Dora, I think I ought to give him a piece of my mind," he had once exclaimed; but she broke out quickly, "Oh, father, please don't say anything. He has a perfect right to stay away. And why should I care?" lifting her head proudly.

Little did her father, who was looking at her with admiration and secret pride, guess how much she cared. Neither, did anyone know, how a few days before, as she was passing down the main street, she had met Charlie with May, a girl, who, at one time, had been one of her most intimate friends, but the friendship was now a thing of the past, owing to a growing dissimilarity of tastes. May was the dashing, impetuous kind, while Dora was a modest, retiring girl.

One evening Mr. Marston came into the dining room, where his wife and daugher were awaiting him, and burst out with, "Well, have you heard the news? May is married; and to whom do you suppose?"

Dora's heart almost stood still, and she waited, breathless, for his next words.

"She's gone and eloped with that drummer, that dresses so loud; the one that comes down from the city to do business with the paper mills. They met in her father's office, when she used to go down to help him with his bills, and he is wild. Says he had other plans for her, and never liked this fellow. I think he had an eye on Charlie myself.

The tremendous relief these words brought to Dora after her trepidation, left her pale and trembling, and she was glad to sink into her seat at the table unobserved amid the general comments that followed.

Dora had seen Charlie but a few times since the sudden termination of his attentions to her, and these rare encounters were attended by a slight inclination of her head, which he acknowledged coolly. Why should he act as if he didn't even want to be friends, she asked herself, and she would hold her little head the higher, and arm herself with her most indifferent manner for the benefit of her townspeople, who, she knew, had talked and pondered over ever since the rupture between the two popular young people; and though every one considered it would have been an ideal match, still they enjoyed the gossip, created by the sudden turn of affairs. "Now" thought Dora, "they'll have something else to talk about?"

* * * *

Some three months had passed since May's elopement, and people were beginning to look for some new excitement.

Things went on as usual at the Marston place and Dora seemed the same, save, to a close observer perhaps a little more quiet, and with cheeks not quite so pink as formerly. On this particular morning she was seated on the porch, the vines and roses screening her partially from view, and forming a delightfully cool retreat from the warm rays of the sun. A soft little breeze stirred the tendrils of her brown hair as she bent busily over her needlework.

So deeply absorbed was she that she didn't hear the gate open and softly close as a young man came on tiptoe up the path. The first time she was aware of his presence was when his shadow fell across the sunny end of the porch. Startled, she looked quickly up, and was amazed to see Charlie, his face alight with a tender smile. She could say nothing, but waited, in a sort of trance, for him to speak. He had a note in his hand, which he passed silently to her. She reached out her hand for it in a dazed sort of way, and opening it slowly read:

"Charlie,—I want you to know that when I told you that Dora didn't care for your attentions any longer, I made it all up. I wanted you to call on me instead, and when I found that you would never pay me an attention beyond mere courtesy, no matter how much I put myself in your way I could not bear to live in the same town with you and Dora. That is why I went off with the man I married. Dora never cared about anybody but you, and never will.

"Please carry this note to her and let her know the truth. I don't suppose you will ever forgive me.

"MAY."

Charlie watched her as she read with eyes that took in every detail of the sweet face and dainty person, and when at length she looked up and met his enraptured gaze, her own eyes dropped, and she was speechless in her great happiness.

And her mother, coming out a few moments later to speak to her, couldn't believe her eyes; for she saw a young man looking into Dora's face as if he could never look away, and on her finger was a ring which had never been there before, and the hand itself was held fast by another hand which as she gazed with astonishment, she saw belonged to Charlie.

And a big bumble-bee, swinging in a red rose above their heads, was the only one that dared break the silence.

SCREAMED WITH THE TERRIBLE PAIN

"Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Distressing Kidney Trouble.

ST. THOMAS, ONT., April 1st, 1913. "In 1911, I was laid up with Kidney Trouble and not able to get out of my chair. Had tried many kidney remedies without satisfactory results. The pain was excruciating and my screams could be heard on the street. One day a friend from Ottawa came to see me, and when he found me in such poor health, said he would send me a sample of "Fruit-a-tives", which he did and I commenced taking them. The results were so apparent with the first few doses that I continued to take "Fruit-a-tives" and was completely restored to my normal state of health. I would strongly advise anyone suffering with Kidney Trouble to take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure themselves" CHARLES CALVEART.

All correspondents with Egypt in all parts of the world should be warned that it is necessary to put the word "Egypt" on all communications addressed to Alexandria, as a great deal of trouble and annoyance have been caused owing to communications addressed to the Egyptian city being delivered to Scotland, Canada, New South Wales, Cape Colony, Italy, the United States of America and other countries where towns of the same name exist.—Egyptian Gazette, Alexandria.

Troubled With Weak Back and Kidneys For 10 Years.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Take notice to the warning and cure the backache on the first sign, for if you don't do this, serious complications are sure to arise and perhaps develop into Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills will strengthen the weak back, and prevent any form of kidney trouble entering the system.

Mrs. Ed. Boyer, Nokomis, Sask., writes:—"I have been troubled with weak back and kidneys. I had terrible dizzy headaches, and could not sleep at night. In this way I suffered for ten years, until I read about Doan's Kidney Pills. I purchased two boxes, and as they helped me, I sent for two more, they put me on my feet, and I have been able to work ever since."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Montreal Girl Gave Up Knife Only After Hard Struggle.

MONTREAL, April 27.—A fifteen-year-old girl, armed with a long carving knife, made a murderous attack upon her stepmother at her home on Friday night. Her father put up a lively battle and after a terrible rough-and-tumble fight on the kitchen floor, wrestled the knife from her. Then he swore out a warrant for her arrest in the juvenile court.

The girl, who is big for her age and alleged to be a wayward one, was remonstrated with by her stepmother for her street walking tendencies. She flew into a dreadful passion, and, grabbing the knife, made a sudden leap for her. The father jumped and grasped her arm and the two fell to the floor. She put up a furious battle before she was overpowered.

RED HAT FOR BEGIN

Archbishop of Quebec is Among the New Cardinals

CONSISTORY ON MAY 25

ROME, April 27.—Pope Pius yesterday decided to hold a consistory May 25 for the purpose of creating Cardinals. Among those who will be elevated to membership in the Sacred College are: Most Rev. Louis Nazaire Begin, Archbishop of Quebec; Monsignor Giuseppe Manescher, Archbishop of Toledo, Spain; Monsignor Serafini, Assessor of the Congregation of the Holy Office; Monsignor J. Delahaye, Archbishop of Tuam; Monsignor Csernech, Archbishop of Strigonia; Monsignor Sevin, Archbishop of Lyons; Monsignor de Bettinger, Archbishop of Munich; Monsignor de Harmann, Archbishop of Cologne; Monsignor Piffl, Archbishop of Vienna; Monsignor Giustini, Secretary of the Congregation of the Sacraments; Monsignor Lega, Senior Judge of the Rota Tribunal; Monsignor Tecchi, Assessor of the Consistorial Congregation, and Abbot Gasquet, President of the English Benedictines.

The long-expected list of cardinals to be created at the consistory is causing some surprise, as they expected Monsignor Bruchesi, Archbishop of Montreal, to be included, while nobody thought Abbot Gasquet would receive the honor, although all agree he is most worthy. It is stated that the decision to hold the consistory was due chiefly to the insistence of Germany, which would otherwise cause a conclave without a representative of the Sacred College. However, evidently, Cardinals Gibbons, Farley and O'Connell knew the consistory would be at the end of May, as all had decided to be in Rome at that time.

The Most Rev. Louis Nazaire Begin was born at Levis, Que., in 1840. At one time he was principal of Laval Normal School, Quebec. From 1888-91 he was Bishop of Chicoutimi. From 1891 to 1898 he was coadjutor to Cardinal Taschereau, with the title of Archbishop of Cyrene. He was administrator of the archdiocese from 1894 to 1898, and was made Archbishop of Quebec April 12, 1898. He has traveled widely, and is the author of a number of religious and other books and pamphlets.

VILLAGES WIPED OUT.

Fierce Tornado Swept Over South Town In Illinois.

KANKAKEE, Ill., April 27.—One woman was killed, one man was fatally injured and hundreds of head of farm stock were killed when three villages were razed by a tornado that tore through Kankakee, Illinois County, early Saturday, according to meagre reports here yesterday afternoon. When the twister struck Clifton, destroying three business blocks and eight houses, Mrs. Hortense Collins was caught in the debris of her ruined home, suffering fatal injuries.

At Otto, Ray Medrix, an operator, was fatally injured when the tornado demolished a railroad watch tower.

Momence also suffered heavy property damage, but reports from that village are meagre. The path of the tornado was only a hundred feet wide in most places.

CAILLAUX IS RETURNED.

French ex-Minister of Finance Re-elected In General Contests.

PARIS, April 27.—The elections passed off quietly yesterday.

For the 602 seats, 2,902 candidatures were originally declared. Of these 350 were withdrawn in the past few days. Six hundred others may be disregarded as being of a fantastic character, leaving something under 2,000 candidates. Up to midnight only 86 results were known. Of these 40 were indefinite, necessitating a second ballot on May 10.

Joseph Caillaux, who resigned the Ministry of Finance after the killing of Gaston Calmette, editor of The Figaro, by Mme. Caillaux, and who decided to become a candidate for the Chamber at the request of his friends, was re-elected.

Dear Old Soul!

"There are some people who believe that the whole human race will be saved," said an old lady, "but for my part I hope for better things."

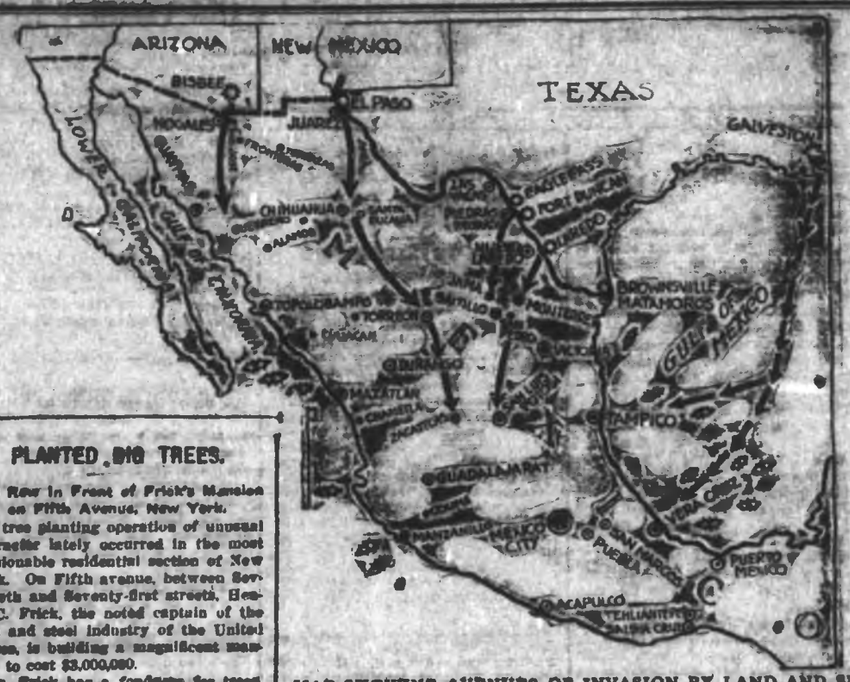
OLD PEOPLE GAIN

Strength by Taking Vinol. Here is Proof.

So many cases like this are constantly coming to our attention that we publish it for the benefit of others:—Mr. John Widmayer of Jackson, Mich., says: "I am nearly 70 years of age, and was in a feeble condition but Vinol has done wonders for me. It is the best medicine to create strength I have ever seen and I have taken a good many of them: Last spring I was run down and worn out but I took Vinol and soon regained my strength. Vinol is certainly an invigorating tonic for old people."

It is the medicinal curative elements of the cod livers without oil aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron which are contained in Vinol that makes it so efficient in such cases.

If you have an aged father, mother or anyone in your family who needs a strength-creating tonic, try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to benefit. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Taylor's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.



MAP SHOWING AVENUES OF INVASION BY LAND AND SEA— The military occupation of Mexico will be a tremendous undertaking. It will call for the full naval power of the United States and half a million men. The arrows show the routes that are open for the invasion, both by land and water, by the United States army and navy.

PLANTED BIG TREES.

A tree planting operation of unusual character lately occurred in the most fashionable residential section of New York. On Fifth avenue, between Seventieth and Seventy-first streets, Henry C. Frick, the noted captain of the iron and steel industry of the United States, is building a magnificent mansion to cost $3,000,000.

Mr. Frick has a fondness for trees and because of its fragrant blossoms and general beauty the horse chestnut (often called the giant's nosegay) is his favorite species. He determined to plant a row of horse chestnuts in front of his new residence. Usually when trees are required in either city or country saplings of the chosen variety are set out, and their growth to imposing size is patiently awaited. But Mr. Frick is a man who does things. So he decided to obtain specimens of the horse chestnut which had had not less than thirty years' development.

Accordingly there are now standing along the curb line of Mr. Frick's property thirteen (of late a lucky number) of the finest horse chestnuts which could be found, each about twenty feet high and twelve to fifteen inches in diameter a few feet above the ground. —Leslie's Weekly.

The Face That Kills.

No doubt the immense increase in the cost of living is responsible for the decline of "the sport of kings," in Great Britain.

Lord Howard de Walden has at last decided to give up racing, and all his horses in training will be offered for sale without reserve at Newmarket next month. He never really cared for the game, and he was the least interested man in the paddock at Ascot the day his great horse Zinfandel won the Gold Cup.

Fencing is about the only amusement Lord Howard de Walden cares for, except writing poetry and financing theatrical ventures. It is whispered that he does not care so much for the latter nowadays.

Other exalted owners who are selling the greater part of their racing studs are the Dukes of Devonshire, Westminster and Portland.

Marines Still Live.

The completed record of work for last year issued by the Royal Humane Society shows that the huge total of 867 cases of gallant action in saving or attempting to save life have been dealt with, and that 934 persons have received recognition in the form of medal, testimonial, or pecuniary award. As a result, 585 persons have been rescued, but in 136 cases help came too late and life was lost; while in nineteen cases would-be rescuers also lost their lives.

He Couldn't Stop.

A tradesman at Elsworth, Cambs, Eng., who had been engaged for some days in stripping paper off walls, found one morning that he had stripped all the paper off the walls of his own bedroom in his sleep.

A Gloomy Village.

In North Devon, England, there is a village called Middleham, where for three months in the year the sun is never seen. The village is so surrounded by high hills that it is night from November until February.

Fall Crops a Failure.

GALT, April 27. — Farmers throughout a wide range of this western country are greatly disappointed in the conditions of the fall wheat and clover crops. Early in the spring when the snow disappeared there was every evidence of promising crops of wheat and hay, and apparently the winter had injured them very little. But the cold, wet, backward spring and the continued frost by night, in which the ground was frequently frozen to a depth of several inches, has caused the destruction of the plants and in many instances fields of wheat have been almost ruined. Much of the wheat and clover will be plowed up and re-seeded with spring crops.

Tolls Fight Again This Week.

WASHINGTON, April 27. — The prediction was made yesterday by friends of the bill to repeal the exemption clause of the Panama Canal Act, that it will reach the floor of the Senate this week. The Senate committee on interoceanic canals, will continue its hearings on the measure until Tuesday or Wednesday, and then a report will be made without delay.

Senator Simmons, champion of the repeal bill on the committee, said last night that, the hearings held made a good impression on the committee. He thinks the prospects for the passage of the bill are improving all the time.

May Reorganize Wabash.

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—Plans for the reorganization of the Wabash Railroad, now in the hands of a receiver, are completed, but will not be made public until May 1.

Harvard's First Building.

No man now living can describe or as eyewitness the erection of Harvard's first building, where the ground floor was devoted to academic uses, religious and literary exercises and the purposes of refectory, kitchen and buttery, while above were students' quarters, mere cells of the rudest sort.

The building was far from weather proof, and more air than light was admitted by the windows, which were only partly glazed, oiled paper serving elsewhere to let in a few of the sun's rays and keep out the "coarsest of the cold," as Artemus Ward said when he hung an old hoopskirt over his chamber window at the country hostelry in midwinter.

Not even the most rudimentary of table equipment was supplied at the college eating room. Each one's knife and fork were carried by each student when he went to dinner, and after he had finished he wiped them on the tablecloth.—Dial.

Wasp Waisted Cretans.

In describing the civil guards at Canea, Mr. Trevor-Battye in "Camping in Crete," alludes to the slender waists of the Cretan men:

One point about the figures of these men, he says, as of all the mountain villagers, is the extreme smallness of their waists, which in some cases are almost wasplike. It is interesting to observe that this has always been a Cretan characteristic, for the figures on the frescoes and vases in the Minoan section of the museum in Candia (e. g., the famous "Cup Bearer") have the same remarkable slenderness of waist.

He is not sure whether this slim waist is natural or whether produced by tight belting.

A Lesson in Morals.

Mother—Now, Willie, you told me a falsehood. Do you know what happens to little boys who tell falsehoods?

Willie (thoughtfully)—No, ma'am.

Mother—Why, a big black man with only one eye in the center of his forehead comes along and flies with him up to the moon and makes him pick sticks for the balance of his life. Now, you will never tell a falsehood again, will you? It is awfully wicked.—Puck.

Reason For His Popularity.

Stranger: The whole town seems to be turning out to this funeral. The deceased must have been very popular. Native—Stranger, he was one man in a million. After he bought his car he gave everybody a ride that he had promised to.—Judge.

Wine Tasters.

When wine tasters are employed in their professional duties they never swallow the wine they taste. They merely hold a sip of the beverage in the mouth for a few moments and breathe through the nostrils.—Exchange.

Tricked Him.

It was pay day at the Consolidated Coal and Lumber works, and a mine worker was returning home with his monthly envelope. He met a bad man with a pistol, who demanded his wages. The worker handed the money over.

"Now," said he, "my wife will think that I've gambled or drunk. Won't you shoot a hole in my coat, so that I can prove that I was attacked and robbed?"

"Why, certainly so," answered the robber.

The worker held out his coattail while the other punctured it with a bullet.

"Another," begged the worker, and the other fired again.

"Another," and there was another hole in the garment, another and still another.

"That's all the cartridges I've got," said the robber.

"All the cartridges you've got?" said the worker, picking up a rock. "Then give back that money. Hand over your pistol and whatever else you happen to have."—Methuen Monthly.

Then She'll Tell You.

"Tell me," said the lovesick youth, "what's the best way to find out what a woman thinks of you."

"Marry her," replied Packham promptly.—Philadelphia Press.

CHATHAM, April 27. — A body, which has since been identified as that of James Oxindine, a local colored man, was found about five miles east of the city yesterday on the Grand Trunk right of way. The body is badly disfigured and dismembered, and identification is made possible only by the clothing and a book found in the pocket.

150 REPORTED DEAD IN U. S. LABOUR TROUBLE

Labour War in Colorado Has Serious Aspects—State Troops Said to Be Partial to the Strikers and Reinforcements Are Asked For.

UNIONS TAXED MEN FOR ARMS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

DENVER, Col., April 27.—There was desultory fighting all day Sunday between strikers and the militia at Ludlow mines. The truce supposed to have been perfected was disregarded by all parties. There is a growing public opinion that the state troops are not capable of properly handling the situation owing to partial friendliness with the strikers and Governor Ammons has had a conference with President Wilson and Secretary of War Garrison relative to the sending of regulars to police the strike zone and restore order.

According to speakers at the "Protest meeting" here yesterday, one hundred and fifty women and children have been killed during the fighting at the mines during the last three weeks. Resolutions were passed denouncing the militia as responsible for this "massacre."

DENVER, Col., April 26.—It was reported here to-night by former Governor J. H. Peabody, who is now in the Fremont county strike zone, that strikers dynamited and fired the property of the Chandler mine, Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, near Canyon City, to-night, occupying that mine camp.

According to the Governor's advices, seven men were killed in the Chandler fight, but there was nothing to indicate how the fatalities were divided between the combatants.

The fighting opened at 1 o'clock, said reports to operators' headquarters, and shortly before 3 the strikers were in possession of the town. Union officials admitted that they had reports of shooting, but stated they had representatives out in an endeavour to reach their men and persuade them to observe the truce.

A crowd of men and women—from 5,000 to 6,000 in number—stood in a pouring rain on the lawn in front of the Capitol building here this afternoon and heard the State Administration denounced for permitting the murders in the southern coal strike district.

At the conclusion of the speech-making the mass meeting adopted resolutions condemning Governor E. M. Ammons as an accessory to the murder of babies, and demanding his impeachment at a special session of the Legislature, which Ammons has agreed to call for May, or, in the event of his failure to call the special session, those at the meeting are pledged to have him recalled.

While this meeting was being held news was coming in from Trinidad telling of the tenseness of the situation there. Under a temporary truce the strikers are entrenched and ready to battle the soldiers at any moment. Meantime the Cigarmakers' Union of Denver voted money to send 500 armed men to Trinidad and Ludlow to-morrow. The 500 men are already armed and will start at daylight.

The Denver Federation of Labour this afternoon adopted a resolution to be presented to the National organization asking that each of the 2,000,000 members be assessed five cents a month so as to provide money and arms for the strikers. This would be $100,000 a month.

PRESIDENT WILSON HAS TROUBLES AT HOME AND ABROAD

Cabinet Ordered Regulars Out to Deal With Colorado Strikers —Mexico Also Attended To

NO INFORMATION GIVEN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 27. — Uncle Sam's troubles, internal and foreign, are giving President Wilson and his colleagues much worry. There was an early conference this morning regarding the situation in Colorado, and it was decided to send troops from the nearest U. S. army post at the earliest moment possible. Following this there was another conference regarding Mexican affairs. News that General Funston had relieved Vera Cruz with his forces cleared the air somewhat of rumours that the transport had been sunk by a Mexican gunboat. Further military operations were decided upon, but no information given out. President Wilson has declined to receive newspaper correspondnt again until further notice. He stated that any information for the press in connect ion with the crisis would be given out as an official statement from the Cabinet.

Oak Orchard Well Known

That the Kawartha Lakes are well known and draw visitors from all parts of the world is evinced by Mr. Perry Alexander's mail of the past day or so.

No less than five foreign countries are represented in applicants for accommodation at Oak Orchard Lodge during the coming summer. Some of the parties being, The Baron Banning of Berlin, Germany; Dr. A. H. Friedenberg, the Alienist of New York City; Maj.-Gen. Holt, London, Eng., retired army officer; O. L. Evans, Jatibonico, Cuba; C. S. M. Agramonte, Vice-Pres. National Railways, Mexico City, Mexico. The last named gentleman reserves accommodations upon his being able to go "fishing instead of fighting" as he expressed it.

WORK ON FARMS GOES BEGGING FOR MEN WHO PREFER IDLENESS

It was stated to The Examiner this morning that farmers wanting men to help with the spring work are unable to lure many of the city's unemployed to the land. About fifteen farmers on Saturday tried to secure men offering wages of $26 a month down to $16, the latter for inexperienced men, but those who might have considered the offers simply declined to leave the city. While there is this demand, it is also a fact that the number of requests from the farmers is not as large this spring as in some previous years.

"Tommy," said the Sunday school teacher, who had been giving a lesson on the Baptismal Covenant, "can you tell me the two things necessary to baptism?"

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 27 — Live stock receipts fair; trade brisk; prices higher; choice butcher cattle, $7 to $8; good medium $7.75 to $8; calves and feeders, steady; hogs, fair at $9; off cars, $9.25; f.o.b., $8.65; sheep and lambs, steady.

"FOR GOD'S SAKE END THIS OUTRAGE"

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 27.—"Women and children have been mowed down by machine guns. For God's sake end this outrage." This was one of the telegrams received by President Wilson from the Colorado strike infected mining districts which resulted in the Government arranging to send Federal troops. Miners and mine owners are charging each other with filling up the ranks of the State militia with irresponsible bloodthirsty gunmen.

SALVATION ARMY GROWS

Will Likely Establish Outposts at Havelock and Lakefield—Assistant Officer Needed

BROWNTON OUTPOST

There is a strong probability that the work of the Salvation Army in the vicinity of Peterborough will be extended and that outposts will be established at Lakefield and Havelock. The visit of Brigadier Rawling and Staff-Captain Walton over the week end is regarded as having some significance in this direction. The outpost in North Monaghan has been entirely arranged for and Adjt. McElhiney is almost ready to announce the first meeting, which will be held in the new L.O.L. Hall near May's school house.

The additional work entailed by this outpost was taken up by the visiting officers and it is expected that an assistant will be appointed to help the local officers. This will be particularly necessary if the new outposts at Havelock and Lakefield are finally decided upon. Adjt. McElhiney stated that the whole matter has been under consideration, but as yet nothing has been decided upon.

Vile Treatment Is Charged

Examiner Special:

CHICAGO, Ill., April 27.—Five hundred witnesses have been summoned to testify at the hearings which were begun to-day by the legislative committee appointed to investigate public and private institutions that care for babies and orphans. According to Thomas Curran, chairman of the committee, atrocities and the vilest forms of treatment have been discovered in some instances and will be revealed by the testimony of the witnesses.

CHARGE DISMISSED

W. L. Sharp was charged before Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning, with allowing the Ideal Billiard and Pool Room, of which he is manager, to remain open after the regulation hour of 11 o'clock. He pleaded not guilty, through his counsel, Mr. D. O'Connell.

Sergeant Brown, for the prosecution, stated that at 11.10 p.m. on the night of April 22, he, in company with Constable Downs, visited the pool room mentioned, and found two young men playing pool. They spoke to Sharp about it and told him it was time the premises were closed. He said that the men had come in to start the game before 11 o'cock and that he could not stop them finishing their game.

P. C. Bowness corroborated the evidence of the Sergeant.

Mr. O'Connell, in summing up his case, said he submitted that no case had been made out, for reasons that were obvious. "We can admit for sake of argument, he continued, that the game had started before 11 o'clock. There must be reasonable construction placed on these by-laws, which are all pars immateria. Take, for instance, that if a man went into a barber shop before 11 o'clock, and at 11 o'clock one-half of his face was shaved and the barber sent him out; that man would look nice on Sunday with one-half of his face shaved and the other half not shaved. But then, Your Worship would not sustain a case like that. That is the construction Your Worship has placed on these by-laws before, if I remember rightly, in the case of a dry goods store. After some argument His Worship concluded that he could not place the responsibility on the Manager of the pool room, according to the by law, and therefore dismissed the case, saying, however, that if the right man had been charged, he would have allowed the evidence that had been given.

MORE GUNS LANDED

Large Consignment Brought Safely to Points Between Bangor and Donaghadee

WOMEN GAVE SIGNALS

Examiner Special:

BELFAST, April 27.—Gun runners were again busy on Sunday night, when a huge consignment of arms was conveyed from points between Bangor and Donaghadee to various destinations. Those landed at Donaghadee were too late for distribution Saturday morning, and are said to have been beached at Candeboye, the residence of the Dowager Marchioness of Dufferin. A hundred motor cars distributed them last night. Bangor volunters patrolling the roads No interference was reported. The steamer Mountjoy and its consorts were not the only boats landing on Friday. A regiment near here brought in six hundred British rifles on a boat of their own, which intended landing on the previous day, but missed tide and they had difficulty in distributing the arms as all the transports were employed in the Bangor affair. The distribution of rifles has been made easy by signal lights on hill tops, women, in many cases, acting as signallers. The messages returned to guns as dogs, and reported the arrival of consignments.

HOPEFUL OF SETTLEMENT

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 27.—Senor Don Algara Terrorez, a former Mexican Charge d'Affaires to Washington, who is in Toronto at present, to-day received semi-official word from Mexico Coty by telegraph that President Huerta has accepted the offer of Argentine, Brasil and Chili, for meditation in the dispute with the United States. "I am hopeful of settlement by this means," said Don Algara. "In fact I am extremely optimistic regarding the outcome. The United States doesn't want war, and Mexico doesn't want war."

In reply to a question he said, as a Mexican, he did not consider the United States' acceptance of meditation proposals as a sign of weakness, but merely as evidence that war was to be avoided if possible. Algara, who is a devout Catholic, said that all denominations should unite in prayers to the Almighty that this war between the United States and Mexico should be avoided.

USE TELEPHONE FOR CHIMNEY FIRES

Chief Howard is indignant over the action of the person who turned in a fire alarm for a chimney fire in the north part of East City on Saturday evening. The whole apparatus was taken on the long trip, the horses were tired out, and a tire ripped off the hose truck, all because the chief's advice to use the telephone in cases of this kind was not carried out. There is no need of calling out the whole brigade for a chimney fire.

MORE TROOPS AT VERA CRUZ

Camped Fusion Lands With Four Regiments of the 5th Brigade—10,000 Men in Case of Necessity

UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Special Cable to The Examiner:

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, April 27—Four regiments of the Fifth Brigade, under command of Brigadier General Frederick Funston was being landed at Vera Cruz early to-day. With the arrival of the troops under General Funston it would be possible to marshal a force of ten thousand men at Vera Cruz in case of an attack. It is believed, however, that the marines and blue jackets may be withdrawn and that land operations will now be left to the Army.

Vera Cruz is now completely under martial law. The natives are rapidly being disarmed. Commander Tweedy of the British warship Essex should arrive in Mexico City to-day with despatches from Admiral Craddock to Sir Lionel Cardon, the British Ambassador.

Vera Cruz, April 27—With all the ceremony usually observed in raising the flag on conquered soil, Brigadier General Funston and Rear Admiral Fletcher drew the Stars and Stripes to the top of the flagstaff at Military Headquarters, here, this afternoon. The Mexicans are still sniping at the United States outposts.

PRESENTATION TO MR. J. J. THOMPSON

On Saturday night Mr. J. J. Thompson, Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A., who is leaving the City soon, was honoured in another presentation. This time it was from the Senior Leaders Corps, who presented Mr. Thompson with a splendid camera.

The presentation was made at the usual Saturday night dinner of the Leaders Corps, and an appropriate address was read. Mr. Thompson was taken completely by surprise, but replied in a brief speech. At the conclusion of the presentation the Leaders gave three hearty cheers for the retiring physical director.

FIGHTING FIRE IN A MINE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

REDCLIFF, Alberta, April 29 — Ninety feet below the surface of the ground on the west slope of the coal mine of the Redcliff Brick & Coal Co. there is a mining crew working night and day in a race to head off a smouldering fire that is eating its way into the mine and threatening its destruction. The surface of the ground where the fire is burning is seamed by deep cracks, as if by an earthquake, and the ground is settling as the coal is consumed. The progress being made by the miners in their race with the advancing fire indicates that they are going to win, but it will be a close race, and will not be decided for some weeks.

LARGE ORDER FOR MOTOR CARS

What is said to be the largest order for automobiles ever given to a Canadian manufacturer, was closed recently by Assistant Sales Manager Armstrong of the Studebaker Corporation of Canada.

The order calls for the delivery in Winnipeg of one carload of Studebaker automobiles every day during the month of May. It is specified that every third car will be one of the new six-cylinder models. The balance of the order will consist of the new five-passenger, four-cylinder cars.

The automobiles in this single order are valued at $120,000. Since this record-breaking order represents only one month's sales, it is estimated that the Studebaker cars distributed by the Brown Company during the season will represent a total value of at least $600,000.

NEW STEPS BY GOV'T MAY END IN A SERIOUS SEQUEL

Premier Asquith Announces That He and His Colleagues Are Preparing to Act in Connection With Gun-running Episode.

CARSON IS SILENT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., April 27.—(Special Cable.)—In the House of Commons this evening Premier Asquith intimated that the Government was arranging to take steps that might entail a serious sequel in connection with the gun-running operations of Ulsterites. "Parliament may rest assured," said the Premier, "that the Government will immediately vindicate the law and protect officers and servants of the King in the exercise of their duties and enjoyment of legal rights." Asquith as Premier and Secretary of War, with the help of his under-secretaries, answered eighty questions thrown at the Government by the Opposition. The replies, as a rule, were bare negatives or affirmatives, and no new information was given. Soon after his speech in the House to-night Asquith left for an audience with King George. Sir Edward Carson was a keen listener to the Premier's remarks, but made no statement. Even when the Nationalists twitted him with leading an open rebellion he kept cool and made no reply.

FRATERNAL BODIES STRONGLY SUPPORT IDEA OF GATHERING

Meeting on Saturday Night Was Largely Attended and General Outline Received Approval

SOME PROPOSALS

The proposal to hold a fraternal day met with hearty support at the meeting in the Sons of England Hall on Saturday night, when representatives from the following societies were present: Knights of Pythias, A.O.F., I.O.F., three lodges of the Canadian Order of Foresters, Woodmen of the World, Sons of England, local Orange Lodges, Caledonians, Moulders' Union and others. Mr. Dawson Kennedy was appointed chairman of the meeting and Mr. Thos. Hendry secretary.

Mr. Hendry as the originator of the suggestion, was called upon to outline the plans which were touched upon in Saturday evening's Examiner. The feeling of the meeting was strongly in favour of holding a meeting in the Armouries, or in Central Park with a general parade. It was not decided whether a general meeting would be held in the park or whether at the conclusion of the parade the various societies would attend several of the churches. This is a point to be decided and will be further discussed at a meeting to be held on Saturday, May 9th in the S.O.E. Hall. Mr. J. B. McWilliams suggested that the fraternal societies might participate in the reception to H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, but the idea of having a fraternal Sunday appeared to meet with general approval, and Sunday, June 21 was decided upon as a suitable day. This may be changed, however, as the plans have not been definitely decided.

Mr. Hendry was instructed to write to all the fraternal societies asking them to send representatives to the meeting on May 9th, and the Ministerial Association will also be written for suggestions and for an opinion.

Saturday night's meeting brought out the fact that the idea is a popular one, and it practically remains only for the working out of the definite plans for the occasion.

FINE WORKOUT FOR THE PETES THIS MORNING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 27 — With ideal weather this morning, the Petes had their best workout of the season, spending a couple of hours in hitting, bunting and infield drill. Manager Blount started a local pitcher on the mound, and after the squad had a good batting practice he sent his pitching staff out in a line on the hill and gave them a fine work out in fielding bunts, and covering the bases. The workout finished up with an infield practice. Curley hitting to the inner guard and coaching them in different styles of play. The infield are all showing class and are working well together.

SEX HYGIENE IN THE SCHOOLS

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As the matter of introducing sex hygiene into our schools is a much debated question will you kindly publish the following editorial remarks from the May number of the Ladies' Home Journal:

"Let us get one fact clearly in our minds, for if we don't there is a grave danger that we will get a very serious and delicate question badly muddled up. And here is the fact: Because we parents in the home have for years failed to be frank with our children in telling them the truth about the origin of life, and have made a grievous mistake in maintaining a policy of silence that we now see has been wrong, is no reason for unloading the burden of enlightening our sons and daughters on this vitally important subject upon school teachers and instructors who were never intended to discharge that duty.

"What we want rather than a course of sex hygiene in the public schools is a little more knowledge and moral stamina on the part of parents. To teach a child the wonderful lesson of life—the most beautiful that can be told a child—is the highest prerogative of the parent, and we must not use the public school as a makeshift nor ask it to teach that which it was never intended to teach, and cannot teach safely or effectively. The school was intended to supplement the home: not to supplant it. There is a parental duty and there is a teacher's part in the training of our young, and woe to our children if we confuse the two and try to shift what is properly the parents' part upon the shoulders of strangers.

"It is a healthy sign that we are turning from the baneful policy of silence on this great question, but we will turn a healthy trend into a distinctly unhealthy, yea dangerous, direction if we now let the pendulum swing too far. We are dealing with a very simple question if we keep it in its proper place, but the moment we transfer this sacred and rare trust to other hands we transform it into a grave and complicated issue, the dire results of which it is not easy to foresee. It is truly a time of sane thinking: of extreme caution, 'lest we forget.'"

Peterboro' Lacrosse Club Grouped With Hastings, Havelock and Campbellford in This District

At the meeting of the Ontario Athletic Lacrosse Association in Toronto on Saturday, Peterborough was grouped with Havelock Hastings and Campbellford. Another neighbouring section comprising Tweed, Marmora, Madoc, Norwood, Sterling. As far as Peterborough is concerned the grouping should mean the local lacrosse enthusiasts see the season that the train connections to the three other towns is quite convenient, Campbellford and Hastings being particularly well provided for in this respect.

With the contest of locations sticks this week the intermediate candidates should be well tested the end of the week. The sticks are promised for Wednesday at the latest.

The Hastings and Campbellford teams will surely provide good lacrosse as the game has flourished in these towns, Hastigs having kept the game going during the lean years. Marmora and Madoc will also be heard from in their section.

Peterborough and Havelock are, as yet, unknown quantities, but the locals should shape up well, and Havelock may be depended upon to come through with a strong line. The ten-man line-up will help the smaller towns by a great extent. Under the new rule the third defence and third home are dropped and the team is reduced from twelve to ten players.

The Requisites Of A Board Of Trade Member

To entitle an applicant to membership the candidate must be:

1. A resident of the City of Peterborough.

2. Alive. No deadheads need apply.

3. A merchant, broker, trader, Mechanic, manufacturer, manager of a bank, or insurance agent, or have been at some time of such an occupation, or if not of such an occupation, must be recommended by the Council of the Board.

4. Interested in the development of the City.

5. Ready to make a little personal sacrifice of time to give to consideration of questions of public interest.

6. Able to condense his thoughts and deliver them in speech limited to two or three minutes. The Board of Trade is a working organization, not a debating society.

7. Prepared to sacrifice personal interest if it conflicts with the common welfare of the whole body of citizens.

8. A good, clean, citizen.

If you can satisfy these requirements send a post card to the Secretary, Mr. A. N. Allison, 180 Charlotte Street, City, at once requesting him to put your name up as an applicant for membership in this useful organization. Do it now.

THE POWER OF PAINT.

You have got your lawns and house surroundings nicely tidied, swept and garnished, but you don't perhaps realise that your house and verandahs look a little shabby, badly in need of paint. This may not be so much realised now when everything in nature is dingy, the gount bare branches of the trees a rusty brown; and even the lawn grey with patches of last year's frost-faded grass, looks dull, and the rusty look of your paint does not show so much. But when the bare brown trees are clothed upon with the vivid green of new leaves, and the green grass on your lawn has conquered the gray, and the tulips are a blaze of glory, and the bright sunshine brings everything to proof— then when the supreme test of condition—contrast—is presented, it will be seen that the house needs painting painfully; that is, if it is to correspond with its setting. We don't fully appreciate the shabbiness of an old garment till we put it on with new fresh garments and step out into the sunshine. A dingy, rusty house with blotchy paint in the midst of fresh green and clean surroundings of tree and shrub and lawn will take away fifty per cent. of the ensemble beauty of the picture of your home; and a coat or two of fresh, clean, rejuvenating paint will make fifty per cent. improvement. Paint is an essential element of the highest art, whether applied to a canvas or a cornice.

"BLUNDER" OR "MISMANAGEMENT."

A citizen appeared before the Board of Works in Toronto complaining of the assessment of the cost of grading a certain street. He charged that there had been "bundering in the department," and was brought promptly to book by an alderman who stipulated for "mismanagement" instead of "blundering." This is a trifling matter, a question of terms. The dictionary defines blundering as a gross and stupid mistake. Whether one calls the results of mismanagement a blunder or a mistake as far as civic doings go, the result is the same—it is something that costs money without adequate return or injustice to individual interests. Whether we call the foundations of the Hunter street bridge across the creek a blunder or mismanagement, the fact remains that we must spend something like a thousand dolalrs, more or less, to repair the results of what might have been avoided by spending about $200 extra to provide foundations that would not trickle away with a little spring freshet. The ratepayers who have to foot the bills can decide whether the dictionary definition of a blunder— "a gross and stupid mistake" applies to mismanagement that costs five times more to repair its results than proper management, proper construction— solid, safe foundation — would have cost in the beginning. Whether the name "blunder," "mistake" or "mismanagement" isapplied to thepolicy and practice, that costs a good deal of money to repair their results, the result is the same, waste of the money of the taxpayers — so much less money for needed improvement. There is only one right way to do anything and that is to do it right. "This way is good enough" or "this will do," especially in building operations, is the cause of more waste of money than tempest, fire or earthquake.

THE PRICE OF POWER.

The Conservatives of Vancouver, B. C., are protesting against Postmaster-General Pelletier's post cards in French. They shouldn't do that. The French language on our bilingual post cards is the price of power. The Conservatives of Vancouver, no doubt, voted with the flag-wavers, but when it came to a "show-down" in the national point game, it was found that the margin of security in office was so small that Mr. Borden would actually have to give Laurier retirement to remain in power, and that would leave too little spoil to the faithful. So the flag waving made common cause with the flag shooters. The great Conservative party formed an alliance with the Nationalists. The fire-eating loyalists who, rallied the "British-born" to the tune of Rule Britannia, meekly took their places at the official crib to feed peacefully alongside the traitorous Nationalists who "had no use for England and the English" Of course the coalition had to be lived up to—the substantial reward the "Nationalists" had in getting the three fattest portfolios was not enough. If the Nationalists had to salute the flag which their compatriots "had to shoot holes through to breathe the air of liberty," there must be some compensation. The Postmaster-General must have a little French on the national post cards. There doesn't seem to be much harm in that, but then, you know, French to certain elements of Mr. Borden's supporters, is as a red rag to a bull—that is, only when party interests are not at stake. The Vancouver, B.C., Conservatives, are guilty of greater disloyalty than disloyalty to the flag—disloyalty to the party. The bilingual postal cards of Mr. Pelletier are the price of power. If the Vancouver gentlemen want to protest in earnest, they might whisper their protest into the ballot box and act upon the logical sequence of such a vote.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL TROUBLE.

The problem of sewage disposal is a simple one as far as the city that produces the sewage is concerned. It is a comparatively easy thing—spending money—to deal with sewage so as to protect and promote the health of the people of a city, but the final disposal, is the trouble—hoc labor, hoc opus est. We cannot create a nuisance for our suburban or country neighbours; we cannot pollute streams, without inflicting injustice upon others and probably objection and legal action. With all our scientific investigation, study and experimentation, we have not yet arrived at a means or system of sewage disposal that is effective and at the same time within the means of small, or even large urban communities. In Toronto Sir William Meredith is threatening to sue the city and restrain it from emptying North Toronto sewage into the Don. While it seems impossible to make the Don any dirtier than it is now, it is pretty certain that converting it into an open sewer, would make it much more dangerous.

We have a sewage disposal problem of our own in Peterborough. It is proposed to convey city sewage from a point near the Street Railway wharf by a conduit under the river, and distribute it among the scenery and atmosphere on the east or Otonabee side of the river. While this mode of disposal is mechanically practicable and easy, its difficulties begin with the objection of people resident on that side of the river and of the people who use the river as a pleasure resort. They will object and object violently, and may take Sir William Meredith's plan of invoking the law. Apart from the city laying itself open to a chance of creating a nuisance there is danger of creating antagonism between the city and the people of the country. There is so great necessity of maintaining friendly relations between city and country; their interests have so much in common that the greatest efforts should be made to maintain mutually happy relations. Our city problems are becoming weighty and there is increasing need of increasing capability and vigilance of our local governing authorities.

Petes Won Easily By 9 Runs To 1 Pitching Squad Did Great Work

Cresswell Struck Out Nine Men in Four Innings--Freeman New First Baseman Led With the Willow, Getting Three Hits Out of Four Times Up--Petes Infield Played Classy Ball.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 28—The Peterborough Canadian Leaguers played their first real game of the season to-day, when they took the Pittsburg team, a strong independent club, composed mostly of College players into camp, by a score of 9 to 1. The game was featured by the good work of the Peterborough twirlers, Sterling, Cresswell and Tracey, who held the visitors to four hits during the engagement. Cresswell was especially brilliant and the lanky Canuck southpaw was warmly applauded by the crowd when he fanned the first five batsmen to face him. The youngster was going in mid-season form and in the four innings he worked had the Pittsburg team eating out of his hand, striking out nine men and allowing one hit and no runs. Bob Sterling pitched the first three innings and although inclined to be wild, was in good form. He allowed one run and three hits during his term on the slab. Ken Tracey pitched the last two innings, giving neither a hit or a run in the closing periods. The visitors scored their only run in the first innings and were never dangerous afterwards. Miller, Kelly and Ryberg each had a turn behind the bat, and they had the visiting base-runners nailed to the sacks, each doing some beautiful pegging. The work of both ends of the battery squad was brilliant and Manager Blount is seeming ly well fortified in this important department.

The Pittsburg twirlers put everything they had on the ball, but the Petes staged several fierce onslaughts that piled up the score. They bunched their hits for four runs in the first innings, came back with two in the seventh, and wound up with three in the eighth

Buck Freeman, the Petes new first baseman, shaped up splendidly, and it looks as if he will fill the gap caused by the failure of Flanagan and O'Hearne to make good. He fielded his position nicely and led the Canucks with the willow, poling out three clean hits in four times at bat. Frank Fox had two safeties and Blount, Byrne, Price and Ryberg had one each.

The Petes' infield did some classy fielding, Byrne, Price and King all showing up well

The score by innings:

Peterborough. . .	4 0 0 0 0 2 3 0 —9

Batteries for Peteborough—Sterling, Cresswell, Tracey, and Miller, Kelly and Ryberg.

BASEBALL

A number of the teams in the Canadian Leagues have changed their nick-names. A revised list may be of interest to the fans. Here it is:

Ottawa—Senators.
Erie—Yankees.
Toronto—Beavers.
Hamilton—Athletics.
St. Thomas—Saints.
Brantford—Brants.
London—Tecumsehs.
Peterborough—Petes.

OTTAWA WON.

ADRIAN, Mich., April 25.— In an exhibition game here this afternoon, the Ottawa Club of the Canadian League handed the local ball tossers a 4-to-2 beating. Bullock's homer over the right field fence in the seventh with the score tied broke the deadlock. Both hurlers did fine work. Shocker, formerly with the S. & S. club of Detroit, held Adrian to five hits and two runs in six rounds. The score:

	R.	H.	E.

Shocker, Kubat and Wegner; Smith, Frishe, Klein and Kildusan; Woods and Bowden.

SAINTS WIN AND LOSE.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 26—Kalamazoo displayed much ability with the bat and played fine ball in the field on Sunday with the result that St. Thomas was defeated 9 to 8. The game was won by Tim Rynearson, the Kalamazoo pitcher, in the seventh, when he put the ball over the fence. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
St. Thomas	1 0 0 3 2 0 0 0 2—8	11	3
Kalamazoo	0 0 3 2 1 1 2 0 x—9	15	2

Hughey, Clement and Inker; Fulton, Rynearson and Edwards. Umpire—Smith.

Won on Saturday.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 26. — Yesterday the Kalamazoo South Michigan team was defeated here by St. Thomas 13 to 8. Burkhart, Kalamazoo's recruit pitcher, was wild, allowing seven walks and hitting three men, although allowing but four hits. In the seventh inning St. Thomas scored six runs when Burkhart filled the bases with three walks. He was relieved by Halstead and four bingles in a row followed, and the Kalamazoo veteran was hit hard the rest of the game. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
St. Tohomas	3 0 3 0 0 0 3 0 4—13	14	2
Kalamazoo	1 0 0 1 0 0 1 1 1— 5	7	4

EASTERN ASSOCIATION READY TO OPEN

Examiner Special:

HARTFORD, Conn., April 27.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the season to-morrow of the Eastern Baseball Association, formerly the Connecticut League. The circuit is the same as last year, with the exception that the Meriden team has been transferred to New Britain. The other cities comprising the circuit are Hartford, New London, Waterbury, Bridgeport, New Haven, Springfield and Pittsfield. Eugene McCann, last year the manager of the Bridgeport team, is now in charge of the New London team, and has been succeeded at Bridgeport by Jack Boultes. Lee Fohl has taken the place of Sam Kennedy as manager of the Waterbury team. The other teams of the association have the same managers as last year.

Welsh And Cross Ready For Bout

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 27.—Fight fans are displaying a lively interest in the meeting of Freddie Welsh, the British Lightweight champion, and Leach Cross, of New York, who are to mix things in a 20-round bout here to-morrow night. Both fighters have been training faithfully for several weeks, and each appears to be in good trim for the contest.

Hockey Club Officers.

In the list of officers given in the Examiner on Saturday evening a mistake was made. The secretary-treasurer of the Club is Mr. H. P. Moryan, and R. M. Glover is delegate to the O.H.A.

KING GEORGE SAW BURNLEY CAPTURE THE SOCCER CLASSIC

Burnley defeated Liverpool by 1 goal to 0 in the English Cup final at the Crystal Palace, London. The King was present at the game for the first time in the history of the cup. Over 100,000 spectators were on hand from all parts of the country, when Referee Bamlett, of Gateshead-on-Tyne called the two captains together.

King's First Game.

This was the first time that a British Soverign had witnessed a cup final, and, according to cables received, the weather was exceptionally favourable for the happy event. The crowds of country cousins, who are generally so abnormally conspicuous in London on Cup Day did not, perhaps, overrule the metropolis to quite the same degree as in previous years. This was due to the fact that both contesting teams came from the same district. Nevertheless, Lancashire without its clogs, invaded London in mighty numbers. The King arrived at the Palace in good time, and both teams lined up in front of the royal stand before the game opened. When the whistle blew there were at least 100,000 spectators present. The Liverpool captain was unable to participate owing to injuries received in a league game, and Ferguson took his place, McKinley going to left half. Sewell was in goal for Burnley in place of Dawson. Play was very fast from the beginning, and Lacey missed a splendid chance of putting Liverpool ahead when an open goal lay before him. He came along finely shortly after, but Sewell was again too quick for him, saving the situation in splendid fashion. These players were unodubtedly the most prominent of their respective teams until half-time was reached, with the score sheet still a blank.

Ten minutes after the interval Freeman scored the one and winning goal for Burnley. Burnley's victory was due to the magnificent spurt they made directly the second half opened. Liverpool played their gamest, but Burnley palpably had more of the play. The victors' goalkeeper was only once called on to clear. The winning goal came by Boyle putting to Nesbitt, who handed to Freeman, the latter adding the finishing touch perfectly easily. Burnley's goal was never seriously threatened throughout the whole of the second half.

His Majesty the King presented the trophy to the winners immediately after the game.

Blackburn Lead League.

Blackburn Rovers could only tie with Manchester United in their last league game of the season at Old Trafford. The Rovers have won the First Division championship by a clear seven points, with Aston Villa as the runners-up. The Villa were badly beaten on their own ground by the Middlesboro aggregation Saturday. Preston North End and Derby County are the two teams to be relegated to the Second Division, and it is curious that both elevens tied in Saturday's games. Preston held the Hyde Rounders to a 2 to 2, while the 'Rams' kept Newcastle down to a 1 to 1 score.

Bradford Top Scorers.

Bradford piled up a 4 to 1 against Blackpool, and Woolwich whitewashed Glossop 2 to 0. This puts two teams tied for second place; and, according to goal average, Bradford have a slight advantage. The "Peacocks" of Leeds got a nice victory over Birmingham at Elland road, but it came too late in the season to help them in the championship race.

Swindon Only Tie.

Swindon Town were held to a goalless tie at Cardiff by the "City." They just win the championship of the Southern League by two points. Their old rivals, the Crystal Palace, are runners-up.

The following are the league standings up to date:

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

CHILLICOTHE, O., April 25.—Chillicothe, champions of the Ohio State League, yesterday fell before the masterly pitching of Hammond and Heck, and the timely hitting of Leary, Mullen and Bierbauer.

Genuine pepper characterized the London side of the game, together with good judgment on the bases. The champs put up a good article of ball, but superior team work and ability told the story.

Goebern started out with a world of speed and curves, but did not last long. Hammond, on the other hand, never seemed to worry. Whitcraft's error, followed by a sacrifice, and a hit scored the only runs for the champions. The same teams play here to-day and to-morrow.

Brantford, April 25—There are five fewer Red Sox to-day than there were yesterday. At noon yesterday five players were released, these being Carr, Springfield; Johnston and Nicol of Terontos all outfielders; Price, catcher; Meriden and Halfbeck, third basemen from Meriden.

Chatham, April 25—Pitcher Deuss, a recruit from Detroit, joined the Ottawa squad yesterday, and was out at practice for the first time in the afternoon. The squad did not practice in the morning on account of the rain, but enjoyed a good workout in the afternoon. The team left at 6.55 this morning for Adrian, where two exhibition games wil be played with the South Michigan team. On Monday and Tuesday the team plays in Toledo. Sixteen men will be taken on the trip. Lage, the regular catcher, who will join the team at Adrian, will be sent on to Chatham, and will not figure in the exhibition coutsts. Wager and Powers wil ldo the receiving.

BRANTFORD, April 25.—Lattimex, second-baseman, was let out this morning, reducing the players to fifteen, with three yet to report — Pitcher Worfel, sick; Pitcher Gehring, suspended, and Johnny Nelson, third-base. It has been decided to call the team the Brants, dropping the name Red Sox in future.

Brantford Courier—Eddie Holly is to be the manager of the Toronto Outcasts, but so far he has not shown up. Guess Knotty Lee will be cavorting around the same as usual, but to make good in Toronto he will have to talk more kindly to the fans than he was in the habit of doing in Hamilton.

MAY LEAD TO PEACE

U. S. and Mexico Accept Offer of Republics to Mediate

PRES. WILSON SENDS REPLY

WASHINGTON, April 27. — Spanish Ambassador Riano announced late last night that he received private advices from Mexico City stating that Gen. Huerta had accepted the offer of Argentina, Brazil and Chile to use their good offices to bring about an amicable settlement of the difficulty between the United States and Mexico.

Wilson Also Accepts.

WASHINGTON, April 27. — President Wilson last night announced he had accepted an offer from Brazil, Argentina and Chile to use their good offices in an attempt to bring about a peaceful and friendly settlement of the difficulty between the United States and Mexico.

The offer was formally submitted by the three South American envoys to Secretary Bryan and laid before the President.

It is held that Mr. Wilson's reply means that he will insist upon the elimination of Huerta from the Mexican Presidency.

The reply of the President, made through the Secretary of State to the diplomatic representatives, was as follows:

"The Government of the United States is deeply confident of the friendliness, the good feeling and the generous concern for the peace and welfare of America manifested in the joint note just received from your Excellency tendering the good offices of your Government to effect, if possible, a settlement of the present difficulty between the Government of the United States and those who now claim to represent our sister Republic of Mexico. Conscious of the purpose with which the proffer is made, the Government does not feel at liberty to decline it. Its own chief interest is in the peace of America, the cordial intercourse of her republics and our people, and the happiness and prosperity which can spring only out of frank, mutual understandings and the friendship which is created by common purpose. The generous offer of your Government is, therefore, accepted.

"This Government hopes most earnestly that you may find those who speak for the several elements of the Mexican people willing and ready to discuss terms of satisfactory and therefore permanent settlement. If you should find them willing this Government will be glad to take up with you for discussion in the frankest and most conciliatory spirit any proposals that may be authoritatively formulated, and will hope that they may prove feasible and prophetic of a new day of mutual co-operation and confidence in America.

"This Government feels bound in candor to say that, its diplomatic relations with Mexico being for the present severed, it is not possible for it to make sure of an uninterrupted opportunity to carry out the plan of intermediation which you propose. It is, of course, possible that some act of aggression on the part of those who control the military forces of Mexico might oblige the United States to act to the upsetting of the hopes of immediate peace, but this does not justify us in hesitating to accept your generous suggestion. We shall hope for the best results within a brief time, enough to relieve our anxiety lest most ill-considered hostile demonstrations should interrupt negotiation and disappoint our hopes of peace."

The text of the offer made by the three countries was:

"Mr. Secretary of State:

"With the purpose of subserving the interests of peace and civilization in our continent and with the earnest desire to prevent any further bloodshed to the prejudice of the cordiality and union which have always surrounded the relations of the Governments and the people of America, we, the plenipotentiaries of Brazil, Argentina and Chile, duly authorized hereto, have the honor to tender to your Excellency's Government our good offices for the peaceful and friendly settlement of the conflict between the United States and Mexico.

"This offer puts in due form the suggestions which we have had occasion to offer heretofore on this subject to the Secretary, to whom we renew the assurances of our highest and most distinguished consideration.

"(Signed)

Reports Capture of Briton.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Secretary Bryan said yesterday that he had notified British Ambassador Spring-Rice of the reported arrest of a British subject at Orizaba. He was one of twenty foreign railroad employes, nineteen of them Americans, who were reported arrested there. Mr. Bryan denied the report that these prisoners had been executed, and stated that the Brazilian consulate would be appealed to for their release.

How To Paint For Less Money

A paint is not cheap simply because the price is low. The cheapest paint for you to use is the paint that takes the least amount for the job. Clever Recital By Young Pupil

Miss Isabel Baird Delighted Audience on Saturday Evening—A Brilliant Pianiste

A large number of the friends of Miss Isabel Baird attended a piano recital given by her in the Conservatory Music Hall, on Saturday evening. Miss Baird, who is only twelve years of age, is a remarkably clever pianiste, as was evidenced by the skillful rendition of several exceedingly difficult selections on this occasion. This talented girl is a pupil of Miss Pearl McKee, whose careful instruction, combined with faithful industry on the part of the pupil, has developed a brilliant pianiste in little Miss Baird. Miss Baird played with a brilliant technique and a perfect understanding of the piece in hand.

Miss Baird was assisted on the programme by the Children's Quintette and Master Otto Gilddon, who played a clarionette solo.

The programme was as follows:

(a) Carnival Dance. . Francis Gilder
(b) Berceuse. . . . . Edward Come
Isabel Baird.

Clarinette Solo "Long, Long Ago" . . . . . Ritter
Otto Gliddon

(a) Caprice . . . . . Paul de Loets
(b) La Sirena . . . . . Francis Thome
(c) Love Song . . . . . Ethelbert Nevin
Isabel Baird.

Selected—Agnes Logan, Alexis Spellman, Baden Green, Otto and Paul Gliddon.

Parisiennes Found Queen's Dresses Were Quite Chic

PARIS, April 26.—The British Royal visit will certainly rank as the most successful of its kind on record. If it did not convert the entente cordiale into an alliance it strengthened the good feeling between the two nations. Both King George and Queen Mary were unknown quantities, but they easily "made good." The impression made by the Queen on the crowd was more favourabe than that of the King. While he was voted "tres bien," she was declared to be "tres gentille."

The important question of dress contributed considerably to this verdict. Paris had an impression that the Queen dressed in dowdy fashion and the people were therefore surprised to find far more "chic" in her appearance than in that of Mme. Poincare, and the question was asked whether the President's wife, who is noted for her smart dressing, had not purposey kept her own dresses to the plainest kind out of politeness to her visitor.

A London detective, who accompanied King George and Queen Mary and who was with the late King Edward when he visited Paris in 1903, said that he had been greatly struck by the difference in warmth of the two receptions, and how greatly this week's crowds exceeded those during the visit of iKng Edward when the preliminary work of establishing the entente cordiale was done. One reason for this is that the Parisian crowd is beginning to learn to cheer. Its education in this respect is still rudimentary, cheering being quite a new importation to Paris.

One of the prettiest effects witnessed by your correspondent was while the procession was going through the Rue de la Paix on Wednesday. The working girls of two great dressmakers situated on opposite sides of the street threw rose petals from the topmost windows, filling the air with a fluttering pink shower.

INTERESTING WEDDING

Daughter of the Late Walter Paterson Married in Milwaukee, Wis.

A Milwaukee paper gives the following interesting account of the marriage of Miss Mary E. Paterson, formerly of Peterborough, daughter of the late Walter Paterson, which took place in Milwaukee City on Saturday, April 18th:

"Saturday night at 6 o'clock the marriage of Miss Mary E. Paterson, daughter of Mrs. Walter Paterson, to William I. Lane, took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Williamson, 3006 State street, the Rev. James Oastler, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian Church officiating. The rooms were decorated with palms, roses and snap-dragons. The bride was attired in a gown of ivory crepe de chine, trimmed with chantilly lace, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. She wore a diamond and sapphire pendant, the gift of the bridegroom. The bride's only attendant, Miss Katherine Elliott, wore a gown of old gold satin with tunis of flowered chiffon and carried a bouquet of ward roses and sweet peas. Arthur Froehlich was best man for Mr. Lane. Following the ceremony there was a reception and supper for fifty guests. After a wedding trip to Washington, New York and other cities, Mr. and Mrs. Lane will be at home at 270 Thirty-fifth street after June 12.

The "Examiner" takes pleasure in joining with the many friends of the bride in Peterborough in wishing for the newly married couple many days of happiness and usefulness.

Governments Should Devote Time To Making Laws That Will Make Presence Of Sin Evident

Rev. Dr. Carmen, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church Spoke in the Charlotte St. Church Yesterday.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS

Yesterday the congregations at both the morning and evening services of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church had the privilege of hearing the Rev. Dr. Carmen, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada. At both services there were large congregations.

In the evening the Rev. Dr. Carmen took for his text the 21st verse of the 5th Chapter of Romans which reads: "Moreover the law entered, that the offence might abound. But where sin abounded grace did much more abound."

The tremendous movements of God in nature work in quietness. Look at the grasses of the field—thousands of tons of water were pumped up into them every day and yet there was no noise. The mighty forces of Jehovah were great in silence. It was greatly so too in the moral world. Before there was a law sin was not imputed. But more wonderful than the fall of Rome under the stroke of the Goth and the Vandal was the change from the Jewish economy to the Christian.

It was said by some one that God never changed and His laws are unchangeable. I say it is not so. The old ecclesiastical laws of the Jews have utterly ceased to be, and the civilization of Greece and Rome have completely broken down, but not before they had paved the way for the Christian civilization. There was disregard of God's laws in those nations or they would never have gone down the slope. They were indifferent to the will of Jehovah or the forces of the Almighty would never have been turned loose upon them.

The whole ancient world fell to the worship of idols. If we took to worshipping gods in Peterborough we would find that men would make them, factories would make them and capital would make them. If it had not been for the revelation in the life and death of Jesus Christ we would to-day be idol worshippers. There was a time in the world when the world was buried in spiritual death. You say God is unchangeable. I say that He changes to meet the needs and conditions of the times.

The law was holy and it was the departures from it, the sin and disregard of it that leads into the way of the world, and lust of the flesh.

"You men," said the speaker, "are responsible to this country for a clean country, and responsible to this land for a good land to bring up your children in. I would give nothing for a government that is not using its influence to clean up the country. When you vote it is not a question of voting for the veteran of the guard, Premier Whitney, or for Secretary Hannah, but whether or not you are voting for men who will make laws that will provide for the bringing up of better and purer and wiser and stronger Canadians. If it wasn't for their miserable party politics much more would have been done along temperance lines. But let them jog on in their old red cart and sometime, someday, they will get to some place."

GOD NEVER INTENDED THAT MAN SHOULD BE SATISFIED WITH THIS WORLD'S GOODS

A large congrgation was present at the Sunday morning service at the Park Street Baptist Church when the Pastor, Rev. F. A. Conners spoke on "Prayer and Its Answer." The message was full of inspiration and helpfulness to the Christian. At the close, forty-one received the right hand of fellowship and four others by letter. In the evening the Church was filled to hear the Pastor's sermon on "The Rich Fool.' Rev. Mr. Connors took as his text the story of the rich man as told in St. Luke 12, 16 to 21. There are many rich and poor fools. A man is not necessarily a fool because he is rich, nor wise because he is poor. The folly exemplified in the rich man of the Gospel was his greed for gain. "The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully; and he thought within himself saying: What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits? And he said: This will I do: I will pull down my barns and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and all my goods.'

This is but one example of many referred to in the Scripture and we only need to look around to find many duplicates in our day. This man had an abundance but was not satisfied.

No man is ever satisfied with this worlds goods and God never intended that he should be. Take heed and beware of covetousness, for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of his world's goods which he possesseth." This certain rich man may have been the exception in St. Luke's day, but he certainly is the rule to-day. He reasoned with himself when he should have reasoned with God. "Come now, let us reason together, saith the Lord,' etc. He was under a delusion of the devil. He felt his own sufficiency rather than his insufficiency.

Rev. Mr. Connors then quoted the following verses of his own writing:

Delusions are the devil's dope
With which to whitewash and soft soap,
That he may lead men in the way
Of death and hell, from day to day.

His every genius he displays,
Directed in a thousand ways,
To kill the troubled conscience still,
And lead them captive at his will.

In his decision this rich man betrays his real character. God's verdict was: "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee.' He tried to make his soul happy with this world's goods. Many are still trying to satisfy their soul on the husks of the world. The birds seek their native air, the fish live in the water, the body of man needs temporal food, but the soul of man is a spirit immortal and must feast on the word of God or starve and die.

This man presumptuously calculated on time. "Soul, thou hast many goods laid up for many years." In this he knows that he presumed in vain.

live a long time. The uncertainty of life is very evident. This he ought to say: "The Lord wills that we shall live to do this or that.' "Boast not thyself of to-morrow,' "Thou knowest not what a day or an hour may bring forth.' His end was sudden and unexpected. He had prepared for this world, but not for the next. "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden. Now is the accepted time and to day is the day of salvation."

At the close of the service six members were baptized.

The exhibition is said to be the largest and most complete of its kind ever held anywhere in the world. Every process of the industry is shown from the transformation of the raw material into threads and yarns to the weaving of the finest materials in cottons, wools and silks. Among the marvellous exhibits are machines that tie knots and looms with a thousand threads running through them that come to a deal stop the moment that a single thread breaks. During the week the show will be visited by the entire membership of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association and the National Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

Intimated That Chief Chilton Should Resign

Police matters in Lindsay have almost reached the climax stage, and further eruptions are expected.

At the meeting of the Police Committee on Thursday night last, as stated in The Warder, Mayor Beal and Ald. Clark were appointed to interview Chief Chilton in regard to police affairs. They did so on Friday afternoon, and after half an hour or so of discussion it is understood that His Worship intimated that if he (the Mayor) happened to be in the Chief's position he would resign.

Chief Chilton asked the gentlemen to bring forward some one particular charge why he should tender his resignation, and refused to resign until the Police Committee did so. He further requested Chairman Clark to furnish him with the name of the gentleman who has made certain statements in order that he (the Chief) might be able to properly defend himself and prove himself innocent.—Lindsay Warder.

THE REIMBURSING OF BANK LOSERS IS STRONGLY OPPOSED

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, April 27.—There is a good deal of opposition on both sides of the House to the proposed Government measure to reimburse the depositors of the Farmers Bank. There is a feeling that it is a dangerous precedent to make good losses of a private concern through mismanagement. The matter will be threshed out in a caucus by the Conservatives to-morrow when it will be decided what action the party as a whole should take on the matter. It is by no means certain that the entire party will back up the bill. There will also be considerable debate in the caucus on the terms of the proposed Canadian Northern assistance bill.

When the Commons gets down to the militia estimates this week the Liberals have planned to make a determined resistance to the passage. In the opinion of many members, particularly from Western and rural constituencies, Hon. Sam Hughes demands for militia expenditures this year, must be curbed.

SECOND TRIAL ON CHARGE OF ARSON

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 27.—The case of Dr. J. Frank Norris, former pastor of the First Baptist Church in this city and who is under indictment on a charge of arson in connection with the burning of the church parsonage two years ago, came up in court to-day for trial. Sime time ago Dr. Norris was tried and acquitted on a charge of having set fire to the church. The trial was of a highly sensational character and attracted much attention. The indictment for burning the parsonage is the last of the series of cases against the former minister.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

Enthusiasm Keynote Of First Annual Ford Day

125 Ford Owners Meet With Agents of This District in Big Banquet on Saturday.

ALD. DUFFUS PRESIDED

The two lines of Ford automobiles that were to be seen on Hunter Street Saturday afternoon from 1.30 to four o'clock were just an indication of what was progressing in the spacious dining room of the Oriental Hotel. For during that time one of the most enthusiastic banquets that have been held under any auspices, and for any purpose in this City for several years was proceeding, in observance of the first Annual Ford Day in Peterborough. There were present a very representative number of Peterborough business men, as well as Ford representatives for the district, and Mr. F. I. Fox, manager of the Toronto branch of the Ford Automobile Company.

The repast that was set before the guests was a splendid one and was evidently enjoyed by the guests, the majority of whom went straight from their places of business to the hotel.

Chairman Speaks.

Ald. J. J. Duffus, the local representative and agent of the Ford Company, presided and discharged his duties in a genial and admirable manner. For the last three years, said Mr. Duffus, he had been so busy looking after the interests of the Ford car in this City that he had had no chance to speak to the Ford owners nor they to him. It was to give that chance that this banquet was held. He extended his sincere appreciation of the business those present had given him. His success in the selling of the Ford was due, he felt, largely to the excellence of the product. He hoped that he would build up a service that would merit the confidence that had been placed in him to such an extent.

"Every Knock a Boost."

Mr. Fox was the next speaker. He said that when he first came to Peterborough he made his way to the Duffus garage and applied for a position as a mechanic. Mr. Duffus asked him how expert he was and he replied, "Well you can crank any auto in the place and I can tell you the make with my eyes blindfolded." The proprietor of the garage took him at his word and blindfolded him. The first car was cranked. "That was a Reo," he said, and it turned out to be right. The next one that was cranked he guessed to be a Packard, and was right in that too. Then somebody shook the furnace and had rumblings down below and after mature judgment Mr. Fox said, "Sounds like a Ford." The story occasioned a long laugh and Mr. Fox explained that if there were any automobile jokes to be told, he would tell them on the Ford car. For every knock was a boost.

Continuing the speaker said that by having about two hundred Ford owners in this district it was possible for Mr. Duffus to carry a stock of every part of the car. It was agreed by every agent that he would carry $400 worth of parts in stock, but Mr. Duffus had $1400 worth of parts in his garage. Opposition companies stated that the success of the Ford was due to its low cost alone, but it was his claim that its success was due first to the quality of the car, and secondly to the price. The actual steel used in the Ford car cost ten per cent. more than the steel used in any other make of car. Mr. Duffus said the speaker, had been the most enthusiastic and best agent in this district. It was felt by some that the Ford of to-day was not as good as the Ford of a couple of years ago, or of last year's make because the price had been lowered. At a matter of fact the actual value of this year's cars was $100 in excess of the value of last year's product. By working the $15,000,000 worth of machinery three shifts a day, and using up machines that might have lasted three years at 8 hours a day, in one year the Ford Company saved the interest on all these machines for two years. This makes the low price possible.

Mayor Buller.

His Worship Mayor Buller said that he missed the presence of the lady auto owners. He thought that they should be represented at the gathering as there were quite a few of them driving cars in this City. Most of the cars that travelled the streets of Peterborough were Fords, and were owned not only by those who did not care to pay a larger sum of money for an auto, but by many who could easily afford much more expensive machines. He said that soon there would be a "nice little recreation space" for motorists in the centre of the City. In driving on the pavements, particularly at the intersection of streets, he called upon those present to use judgment in driving their cars, so as to prevent accidents. He hoped that some day fortune would provide him with a car.

Dr. Halliday.

Dr. Halliday was introduced as the buyer of the first Ford car in Peterborough. He was glad to meet with so many Ford owners and find out that so many intelligent minds moved along the same groove as his own. The Ford was a useful, practical business car, as well as a pleasant auto. The first Model "T" Ford he bought was six years ago. It was running as well as ever to-day, and the present owner intended to have a new body put on it this season. The great pleasure and service he had had from his cars were due, he concluded, in a great measure to Mr. Duffus unfailing service.

Mr. W. G. Morrow.

Mr. W. G. Morrow, who has owned five Fords, was the next speaker. He expressed his thanks to Mr. Duffus for the invitation to be present and congratulated the chairman on the large gathering. He had had mishaps with his car, but had always been given efficient service by Mr. Duffus and his staff. He thought that the success of the Ford car in Peterborough was due in a large measure to Mr. Duffus' uniform service and courtesy.

Mr. A. E. Rodgers.

Mr. Rodgers was introduced as the man who was to be seen so often entertaining several ladies in his roadster. In opening he stated that when he responded to Mr. Duffus' kind invitation to be present he had thought it meant merely being tendered a dinner at his expense and had not known that he would be called upon to "respond to a toast to the ladies." The old adage that "Nobody loves a fat man" was quoted to show that the charge against him could not be true. He said, however, that the Ford was an auto that could be run easily and with safety by a lady; his experience had been that if the Fordowners read and followed the advice on "Care and Lubrication," Mr. Duffus would not make enough out of service and repairs to provide many spreads like this.

Rural Autoists.

Ex-Warden Kelly of Bridgenorth, and Dr. Munro of Warsaw, spoke of the great advantage they had found in the ownership of a Ford car. They also complimented Mr. Duffus on the excellency of his service. Dr. Munro, who was the last man before the banquet to fill out an order for a car, said that if everything he had heard was true he did not anticipate much trouble in using his car.

Dr. E. V. Frederick.

Dr. Frederick said that several years ago he decided that it would be a good thing in his practice to own a car. He went to Toronto to pick one out and was shown different styles of cars. Among them was a Cadillac at $1,000 and a Reo, but he ended up in taking a Ford. He was never sorry that he had bought the car. He travelled between 15,000 and 18,000 miles with his Ford and it gave him splendid service.

Mr. V. Eastwood.

The last speaker, Mr. V. Eastwood, told how he was instrumental in arranging to have Mr. J. J. Duffus handle the Ford car in this City. Mr. Fox came to him and asked him who he would consider a good man to represent the Ford Company here. He recommended the firm of Drummond and Duffus. As a result Mr. Duffus was handling the Ford to-day in Peterborough.

After the banquet the Fords paraded the central streets of the City. Many people watched with interest the procession of autos, of which there were about fifty. Owing to the dullness of the day no photograph of the cars was taken.

WEDDING BELLS

HUNT—SAWYER.

LAKEFIELD, April 25.—A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday morning at seven o'clock at St. John's Church, by the rector, Rev. Mr. Ben Olier, when Miss Mabel P. Sawyer, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Sawyer, of this place, was united in marriage to Mr. Milton Hunt, of Havelock. The bride and groom were unattended, and only the immediate relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hunt left on the 7:40 train for a short honeymoon in Toronto and Western points.

BARRETTE—TROMBLAY.

A pretty wedding was celebrated in the Church of the Sacred Heart this morning in the presence of quite a number of friends, when Miss Mary Louise Tromblay was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Joseph Barrette, both of this City. After the ceremony the happy couple left for Ottawa, Detroit and other points on a wedding trip and on their return will reside in Peterborough. The bride was the recipient of many

ODDFELLOWS ATTENDED THE SALVATION ARMY TEMPLE

Large Turnout Heard Adjt. McElhiney Last Evening

Yesterday evening the largest turnout of the local Lodge of Oddfellows that have ever attended a church service here attended the Salvation Army Temple where Adjutant McElhiney delivered a splendid sermon. The Oddfellows met at their hall on George street shortly before seven o'clock, and headed by the Salvation Army Band marched to the Temple. There were three hundred Oddfellows present at the service, and it was the impression after their return to the hall that the sermon, which had been preached by Adjutant McElhiney, was one of the finest ever heard by the local lodge. Adjutant McElhiney spoke on the three principles of the Order, "Friendship, Love and Truth," taking particularly as his text that familiar parable of the Good Samaritan. His message made a great impression and the Temple was crowded for the occasion, hundreds being turned away.

Colonel Miller was Marshall for the parade, and everything went satisfactorily. The band lead the procession to and from the Temple, and the ceremony of counter-marching was watched with interest by a large crowd as the Oddfellows returned to the hall. After their return speeches were given by Colonel Miller, W. A. Logan, A. McFarlane, Dr. Morrow, Mayor Buller, and Alderman Johnston. District Deputy Wm. Savigny presided.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Adjutant McElhiney, the Salvation Army Band, and the officials of the Army, for the excellent service, which had been thoroughly enjoyed by every one of the Oddfellows.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS ATTENDED IN A BODY

The Knights of Columbus attended the 6 o'clock mass at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday morning, and received Holy Communion in a body. There was a large representation of members. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien celebrated the low mass and preached the sermon, also speaking at the other two masses of the morning. His Lordship incidentally complimented the Society upon the large number who were present.

STILL IN DOUBT.

Why don't you marry, old chap?

Do you think a man could procure all the necessities of life on $1,800 a year?

Of course; but not the luxuries.

Well, I haven't decided yet whether a wife is a necessity or a luxury.

Slayer Of Policeman Is On Trial

Examiner Special:

NEWARK, N.J., April 27—The case of Salvatore Leponio, charged with the murder of Policeman John J. McGovern, came up in court to-day for its second trial. The killing of the police officer occurred October 13, 1913. Leponio was convicted, but he appealed. The conviction was reversed on the ground that in intercepted letter to the attorney which gave the details of the crime, was a privileged communication and should not have been admitted as evidence.

South End Church Grounds Will Be Used As Big Playgrounds

While the question of public playgrounds is being discussed it is of interest to note that the spacious grounds of the Sacred Heart Church will be used by the younger members of the parish during the coming summer. Last year the grounds were used extensively, and this summer they will be used, probably, more generally. The tennis club has organized already, and, if necessary, an addition will be made to the two double courts that have attracted the young people in the past. The reawakening of interest in lacrosse should bring out more of the boys than ever, and already quite a number of them have a fair knowledge of the game. Baseball may also be played and it is felt that good use will be made of the grounds. While the modern idea of fully equipped playgrounds may not be carried out, the young people have a splendid big field for their games until other provisions are available.

LACQUERET DEMONSTRATION

The interesting practical demonstration of "Lacqueret," the new home decorating paint and household lacquer, which took place in the Kirgan Hardware Company's Store, George Street, on Saturday, was witnessed by crowds of people. Miss Laurie Keating, the expert demonstrator, was kept busy all day, explaining the various uses to which this handy article can be put to, such as refurbishing furniture, linoleum, oil cloth, etc. The interest was heightened by the dextrous manner in which the demonstrations were carried on, and the clear explanations given to all enquirers. Pretty white and pink carnations were given away to the ladies.

ST. JOHN'S ANGLICAN CHURCH WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

The ladies forming the above Association will give a social entertainment in the school house of St. John's Church on Friday evening next at 8 o'clock, to which members of the congregation and especially those connected with any of the church organizations are cordially invited.

WHOSE OX IS GORED MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Mr. W. S. Lilly has an article in the Nineteenth Century which he calls "a candid colloquy on the Irish difficulty," but is really a song by three fine old crusted Tories to the tune of "The former times were better than these." They quote Carlyle on the iniquity and folly of counting heads as a method of government. The masses of the people are "awakened swineries." Gluttony in the privileged few was quite a pleasing topic for old writers, who discoursed of barons of beef, flagons of Rhenish, boars' heads, and venison pasties in an appetising way. But when it was said that plan people ought to have three square meals a day, up rose the cry of "gross materialism, swill, swine, utilitarianism," etc. Pensions for dukes were unrebuked by soulful writers, but pensions for old workmen and workwomen and poor widows are pauperising. Taxes on food and other necessaries of life, benefitting a few privileged persons, are consistent with high ideals; but the moment it is proposed to remove taxes and restrictions on trade, the cry is raised that you are pandering to gross materialism.

Carlyle wrote in an age of transition, when Great Britain had become a manufacturing country, and when the evils of the new industrial system forced themselves upon all thoughtful men. There was some justification for his furious attacks, which were necessary to arouse the wealthier classes out out of their smug self-satisfaction. But to quote him against modern democracy and its new ideals is to create confusion. If Mr. Lilly's three old Tories despise the verdict of the majority, what do they think of the modern Tory proposal to have home rule decided by a general election or a referendum?—Toronto Star.

C. P. R. Opened Strong But Wobbled To 186½ Another Low Mark

Once again C.P.R. was a feature on the market. After opening at 192, suggesting a better opinion from Europe and suggesting a change from the weak position of the past seven days the price broke, going as far as 186½ and closing at 187¾. The low figure was a new low mark for the year, and in the cluttering to this position it created, something of a panicy feeling for the time being and temporarily killed all hope of those who had looked for a better basis this week. The feeling prevails, in spite of recent events, that C.P.R. cannot go much lower.

C.F.I. dropped from 27¼ to 25, several of the quotations declining by margins of almost a point. No explanation was forwarded as to the cause, but it may be that the labour trouble in Colorado is one of the principal weak elements.

Mexican Oil had a great day. It opened at 64 and the next quotation showed 68. Then began a descent that went all the way to 51½. From 68 to 51 is something of a wide movement.

American smelters was also weak, declining from 81 1-2 to 69. Among the rails and exclusives of C.P.R. Southern Pacific showed considerable weakness. Union fell off 1-4 of a point during the day. The whole market was uncertain and the actions of traders reflected the general unsettled doubtful estimate of the market.

The Sacred Heart T.A.S. are holding an At Home on Wednesday Evening, April 29th, commencing at 8.30 sharp. To be held in St. Alphonsus Lyceum. A pleasant time is assured. 2d-98

Bride Drags Hubby To Police Station

NEW YORK, April 23.—When Eugene Appel, a taxicab chauffeur, 27 years old, sought a reconciliation at Broadway and 97th Street with his 19-year-old bride, she took him by the scruff of the neck and ran him around to the West 100th Street police station. Eugene is broad-shouldered and six feet in height. But Mrs. Anna Appel is five feet nine inches tall.

She had been living with her mother, Mrs. Kate Keenan, since she left her husband. While on the way to a theatre with her mother Appel rushed up and grasped his wife by the arm.

"Come with me. Don't refuse. If you do, I'll just pick you up and make you come," said he.

"Ou'll"—she got him by the collar and yanked him half off his feet—"do"—she shook him hard—"nothing"—she slapped his face—"of the kind. I'm tired of you bothering me. Come along."

At the steps of the station her big husband put up a last stand. Mrs. Appel screamed and Policeman Walsh ran out.

To Magistrate Krotel in the night court Mrs. Appel said:

"I do not intend to live with this man. Right after we were married, six months ago, he began paying attentions to other women. He's always taking them out joy riding, kissing them good-night, and all that sort of thing."

"Why don't you let her alone, Appel?" asked his honour.

"I can't. I love her—I love her!"

"You'll have to stay in the workhouse if you don't let her alone. You can go now, but if I hear of you bothering her again you'll go to jail."

"Oh, your honour, I thank you," said the tall, black-haired, blue-eyed, handsome bride.

Tests Car Enamel By His Reflection

Although he is not in the least vain concerning his personal appearance, there is a veteran foreman in one of the big motor companies' Detroit staff who admits looking at the reflection of his own face several hundred times each day. Tom Humphries is his name, and he houses operations in the enameling department of the corporation's plant. Under his direction a big force of men is continually at work dipping in great tanks of black enamel the fenders, hods, and other pressed steel parts of cars. The parts come completed and polished from another part of the plant, where they have been pressed to shape from the cold sheet steel. It's up to Humphreys and his men to give them the lustre.

Enameling is accomplished by three baths, each of which is followed by a baking process, which makes the enamel virtually a part of the surface. After each dipping, hoods and fenders are carefully hung in racks until the surplus enamel has run off into troughs, to be cleaned and used over again. The racks and their load are then run into the ovens. Humphreys keeps a roving eye on the early operations, but never fails to give his close personal attention to the fenders as they come from the final baking. He tests them by the sogginess and brilliance with which they reflect his own honest features.

"I know about how I ought to look, Humphreys maintains. "I'm not stuck on myself and I make due allowances. It isn't my own beauty that interests me, anyhow. But those hoods and fenders have got to tell me every time just how bad I need a shave, or they don't get by."

When passed by this unique test, a big truck takes each batch of hoods and fenders to another plant, where they meet the complete chassis. The attachment of these parts is the final operation which a car undergoes prior to the final test which precedes its trip to the shipping platforms.

ODDS AND ENDS.

You will find corn will pop nicer and more evenly if after you put it in the popper it is slightly sprinkled with water. The steam has something to do with the quick work, which you will appreciate after a trial.

Place a pitcher of cold water on the table and it will absorb the noxious gases. Few realize how important this means of purification really is. In the course of a short time the air of the room is perfectly pure, but the water will be unfit for use.

Have the walls painted light blue, the ceiling and woodwork in white enamel. A white enamel iron bed, two white chairs, and a dresser of same will furnish the room sufficiently. Rag rugs of white and blue are both pretty and durable. Curtain the windows with white dotted Swiss, and likewise of the same material make a dresser cover and a bedspread with a ruffle both over slips of blue cheesecloths. It will add to the "roomy" look to have two or three pillows of white Swiss over blue.

GOOD ROADS MUST COME

(Farmer's Advocate.)

Rural and urban Ontario waited almost impatiently for the report of the Commission which was detailed to investigate road conditions in this country as well as in many States in the Union with a view of working out a plan whereby Ontario highways might be greatly improved thus facilitating travel, and especially that part of it which deals with the marketing of farm produce. As stated in an article in last week's issue, the recommendations of the Commission in brief were brought before the Ontario Legislature recently. It looks like a big undertaking to plan the expenditure of $30,000,000 on the roads of this Province, but when this is spread over a period of fifteen years, and when we consider that Ontario has a total of 54,000 miles of roads of which only 2,748 miles are improved stone roads, and 18,150 miles improved gravel roads, it would seem that $30,000,000 was none too much. This only means $2,000,000 annually, and when it is considered that a large portion of this must be applied to maintenance the amount does not seem an exhorbitant sum. One commendable feature in the report was that it was recommended to provide maintenance for every mile of permanent road work done, the funds for this to be obtained from current revenues. In the past too little attention has been given to the maintenance end of the work, people seeming to think that all that was necessary was to build the road, and then leave it to be gradually destroyed by the various agencies of weather and traffic, while they grumbled because it did not longer resist these agencies.

It was also good advice on the part of the Commission to commit the actual control and management of roads, so far as possible to local bodies, but in the working out of the plan it is necessary that these local bodies get competent men to see that the roads are properly built and properly cared for after being constructed, and some difficulty may be experienced in developing and working out a permanent system.

Allotment of the necessary expenditure seems to be quite fair. The Province is to duplicate the $12,000,000 which the counties will be called upon to put up during the fifteen years in which the plan is being worked out, and the cities must do their share, being $6,000,000. Special attention is to be given to the improvement of township roads, and this is one of the biggest considerations in the work. We do not believe in spending all the money on one or two roads in a section, and leaving all other roads in such a condition that at certain seasons of the year they are in an almost impassable state.

Automobile owners are to pay a share towards the revenue, as stated in our last week's article, and this will produce about $400,000 annually. This is a big item, and taxing automobiles according to horse-power has been advocated through these columns time and again. It is right and just, a necessary and advisable move, and the Commission are to be congratulated upon so ably handling the matter.

The developing of a special highways department under a Minister of the Crown should put the work on a permanent basis. The roads of the Province have been carefully classified, as indicated in last week's issue, and as previously stated the bringing of 42,500 miles up to a fair standing, and fitting 7,500 miles of country roads to bear the severe demands made upon them is no small task. Special attention is to be given to main township roads, and it is proposed that the aid should not be given to townships until the county has assumed the system of market roads, the reason given being that alternate plans might seriously interfere with the installation of a proper system of country roads.

The report showed that the capital investment in agriculture in Ontario alone was, at the time of the last census, $1,263,000,000, whereas the capital invested in manufactures and industries of the Dominion was $1,247,900,000, or $35,548,000 less. Think what a good system of roads means to an industry with such gigantic proportions as the agricultural industry of this country. Think also of the magnitude of the undertaking of bringing all the roads in the country up to a high standard. Good roads are of immense economic importance to the farmers of Ontario.

It is interesting to note also in this connection the radius of the area from which the various cities of any size in the Province draw the main portion of their food supply. Toronto being the largest city draws from a radius of 25 miles. Ottawa 15, Hamilton 11, London 8, Brantford 5½, Kingston a little over 7½, and so on down to a little less than four for such cities as Woodstock and Chatham. This would seem to indicate that the best market roads must run for this distance in all directions from the cities named.

The Commission went into the matter very fully and their investigation has been complete and the report is a lengthy one, containing the most valuable available information. The people of Ontario have been agitating for some time for better roads, and they expect action. It will not do to delay this very much longer. Of course, as the report points out nothing very definite can be done before the season of 1915, but the Legislature must get to work, and whether they stick closely to the details in the report or not something must be done. It is not enough to investigate and report. The people want and need better roads. The report from the best findings tells how to get them. It should not be placed back on the shelf, but kept right to the fore until the scheme is in actual operation, the good roads are made, and a thorough system inaugurated to maintain them in the very best conditon. We feel sure that a start has been made in the right direction, and that the legislators believe the matter of sufficient importance to warrant their pushing it to a successful conclusion. The investigation has been thorough, let the action be just as thorough. It means many millions to the Province. The outlay is small compared to the value of good roads.

EGG SHAMPOO.

Beat the yolks of two eggs in two cupfuls of warm rain or distilled water; add a teaspoonful of borax and apply to the hair with warm water. Rinse three or four times.

A box containing brushes of different sizes is useful in the kitchen. There should be brushes for cleaning vegetables, for buttering loaves of bread as they come from the oven, to use in greasing pans, griddles, etc.; for washing dishes, soft brushes for cleaning cut glass and many other things. For one who prefers a dainty kitchen without much labour a generous use of white oilcloth, on tables, shelves, drain boards, as splashers on the backs of tables, covering for cookbooks, etc., will be found a very useful aid.

Take two wooden shoe boxes, 16 by 45 inches. Get a third box 17 by 9 inches, and nail between the two other upright boxes. PLANS ARE SECRET

Asquith Has Not Divulged His Ulster Programme

SOLDIER IS NOW GOVERNOR

LONDON, April 28.—The nature of the steps which Premier Asquith announced in Parliament the Government intended to take in Ulster is not yet known, except that Major-Gen. C. F. N. Macready of the adjutant-general's staff of the War Department, has taken over the command of the police forces in the Belfast district.

No troops have yet been moved north from Dublin although it is understood that certain regiments have been warned to hold themselves in readiness. Five warships arrived off Lame, 17 miles from Belfast, Sunday, and last night played searchlights on the town.

The second Cabinet meeting within 24 hours will take place this morning. The Government have already begun to set the force of law at work and the police in outlying Ulster districts are already reinforced and instructed to search all automobiles and arrest the occupants if any are carrying arms. The budget statement has been postponed till Monday.

The following amendment to yesterday's vote of censure on the Government has been tabulated by several Liberal members, "In view of the serious nature of the preparations made by the Privy Councillors, members of Parliament and others in Ulster, supported by leaders of the Unionist party, to resist the administration of law, resulting in unprovoked outrages on persons and property, including obstruction of the highways, interruption of telephone and telegraphic services, holding up the police, cutting horse officers, and quiet gentlemen, in the execution of their duty, this House undertakes to support the Government in whatever measures are necessary to vindicate the authority of law, to protect the officers and servants of the King in the execution of their duty and secure to his Majesty's subjects the enjoyment of their legal rights."

Yesterday's actual and reliable information from Belfast is that three battalions of infantry are expected to-day. Gen. Macready, the new military governor, has arrived, and will issue an important proclamation, the nature of which is not yet known. It is expected that all arms landed have now been stored. The work was finished at three o'clock yesterday morning, a further supply having been brought in Sunday night.

Hamilton Fyfe, wiring to The Mail from Belfast, concludes: "Of course, everyone is saying, 'What will the Government do?' and in the flat moments which follow the unusual exhilaration a few are asking themselves whether, after all, Ulster's strength did not lie in sitting still. But that is only the mood of a few. The general feeling is one of exultation.

"A leading member of the Unionist organization expressed himself thus, when someone suggested that English opinion might be inclined to jibe at Ulstermen openly breaking the law. 'What do we care for English opinion?' We wanted rifles and we had to get them. It was just as well to give the Government a hint what they may expect if they pass the Home Rule bill as it stands'."

Government Forces Redistribution Bill Through House

TORONTO SYSTEM STANDS

TORONTO, April 28.—The provincial redistribution bill slowly forged its way through the Legislature yesterday and last night, and when the House rose the clauses had been passed without change.

During the afternoon a long debate hinged upon the justice of the double dating system which prevails in Toronto and which is renewed in the present bill. Mr. Rowell insisted that the Government had no justification for not constituting ten separate districts with single seats. The basis of population was largely ignored in the bill. "Why should the northwest district, for instance, have 38,490 electors and the northeast 65,000 electors?" he asked. The aim of the Government was obviously to gerrymander the Toronto Liberals. At the last election approximately 50 per cent. in the country had voted Liberal, and this percentage of members should obtain in the House.

Hon. Thomas Crawford defended the Toronto arrangement, as did Geo. Gooderham and W. D. McPherson. Wm. Proudfoot, Allan Studholme, W. E. Sinclair, T. Marshall and Dr. McQueen denounced it as a return to the system of double voting.

William McDonald (Lib., C. Bruce) made a vigorous protest against his constituency being wiped off the map. He quoted statistics from all Ontario to show that the population discrepancy in his riding was outdone by that of many others which were not being changed. In Lambton, for instance, why had not the Provincial Secretary changed the boundaries where there was a difference of over 10,000?

Mr. Hanna stated that they might easily have switched 600 Conservative votes over into the next riding and left 500 majority for himself. Did they wish him to do it?

Liberal Whip Bowman followed by moving that the boundaries be left unchanged, but the motion was lost.

When the reorganization of Essex was under discussion, Mr. Rowell charged that the district had been gerrymandered. "This talk of equalization is the shrewdest camps," he declared. "Everyone knows that the Government is only trying to make safe the seat of the member of North Essex (Dr. Reaume)."

Hon. Dr. Reaume replied that there was no political advantage, one way or other, in the change, and W. N. Anderson, Conservative member for the South riding of Essex, declared that the change was the inevitable creation of a city riding consequent upon the growth of Windsor and its environs.

Mr. Rowell also protested changes in the boundaries of the Grays, but the protest was of no avail.

It is now probable that no change will be made in connection with Monck.

The public will be protected in the future from unfair duplication of telephone lines, and to prevent companies from extending their lines in a way which is not conducive to the best service of the people permission of construction must be obtained from the Ontario Railway Board. This is the substance of an amendment to the telephone bill added by Hon. I. B. Lucas yesterday. At the same time provision is made to protect girl operators from being forced to work overtime to the detriment of their health.

The board will henceforth be the authority in all 'phone matters. The board instead of the Lieutenant-Governor in council will approve company sales, and will also ratify toll schedules.

Loyalists Obtain Seized Estate.

LONDON, April 28.—Islet of Tarsaney, belonging to the Earl of Dunmore, has been seized by landless cottars who are holding it and overawing the earl's agents. The island is difficult of access. Heavy punishment was meted out to the cottars of Lamis Island who made a similar seizure there.

Death From Heart Failure.

GUELPH, April 28.—Death due to heart failure was the verdict of the coroner's jury at the death of Miss Minnie Chrysler of Petrolea, the Macdonald Institute student, whose body was found in a boarding-house on Saturday afternoon.

Huerta's Acceptance Brings Hope into War Outlook

PREPARATIONS GOING ON

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The tenseness of the Mexican situation was distinctly relieved yesterday as the representatives of Argentina, Brazil and Chile, supported by pressure from all Latin-America and from the foremost powers of Europe, concentrated their efforts toward a peaceful adjustment of the crisis.

The success of the first steps toward mediation—the prompt acceptance by the United States and the announcement of the Spanish Ambassador that Huerta had accepted the tender of good offices—produced a feeling of distinct hope, which was reflected not only in Administration quarters, but in Congress as well, where "war talk" gave way to a spirit of conciliation.

Throughout the day the three South American envoys, who have undertaken the task of mediation, held frequent conferences to arrange the preliminaries of procedure. Pending receipt of the formal acceptance by Huerta no proposal will be submitted to either the United States or the Huerta Government. Also it has been made plain that no conditions from either party as to the terms that will be accepted has as yet been formally placed before the intermediaries.

The President and Secretary Bryan were assured through two separate Diplomatic sources that Gen. Huerta was ready to accept the tender of good offices and was now drafting a formal acceptance. Pressure from Germany, Great Britain and France advising Huerta to accept the first steps toward mediation, and the approving attitude of Latin-American countries to the settlement of the controversy by Pan-American diplomacy, emphasized the world-wide influences which are working to bring about peace and avert a conflict of death and bloodshed.

Meanwhile the Navy and War Departments are continuing their efforts to care for refugees and perfecting the machinery of the army and navy for any unexpected turn in events.

Secretary Daniels announced that he had telegraphed the full text of the mediation offer and its acceptance by the United States to both Rear-Admirals Badger and Howard, with instructions to have the commanders of all ships on the east and west coasts spread the news throughout Mexico. By this Mr. Daniels hopes the feeling toward Americans may be alleviated and refugees enabled to depart without molestation.

Advices received through the British Embassy told of the completion of arrangements for the safe departure of Americans from Mexico City, while the French Ambassador gave the State Department a message he had received from the French Legation stating that while there had been some anti-American manifestations in the Mexican capital, order now prevailed.

Secretary Bryan said he was able, after receiving information through embassies and legations, to say that no Americans had been killed or injured since the crisis of the last two weeks began, and that, though many had been detained at Aguascalientes, Cordoba and Orizaba, efforts were now being made to obtain their release.

Order prevails in Vera Cruz. Brig.-Gen. Funston and the army are expected to be in command of the situation to-day.

HOPE IS ABANDONED.

Loss of Lives In Sealing Tragedies Is Placed at 250.

OTTAWA, April 28.—Word was received here yesterday from W. B. Nicholson, Canadian trade commissioner at Newfoundland, that the total loss of life in the recent Newfoundland sealing disaster will run to 250. In view of the extent of the calamity the Government has under consideration an increase of the grant made to the Newfoundland Government for the survivors. Mr. Nicholson reports that there is no doubt now that the Southern Cross, which had 175 men on board, has gone down with all on board. A letter is expected daily giving full details of the loss of the Southern Cross. The first ship lost was the Newfoundland. Sixty-nine bodies from this ship were brought in by the Bellaventure, and eight men were missing, who it was supposed had walked off the ice. The mourning when these 69 men were brought in was almost indescribable. Members from Cape Breton say that it is rumored amongst the fishermen of that coast that there is still a third ship lost, but there is no confirmation.

REV. J. H. HECTOR DIES.

"Black Knight," Temperance Orator, Passes Away in York, Pa.

TORONTO, April 28.—News of the death of Rev. J. H. Hector, universally known as the Black Knight, at his home, York, Pa., has reached the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance. He was very well known in Toronto, as in many other cities, as an influential temperance speaker.

He was the son of negro slaves, and although he had little education, was a gifted speaker. After fighting as a volunteer in the Civil War in the U. S., and being employed as a railway engineer, he became a minister of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.

IT NEEDS RE-PROBING.

New Irregularities Are Discovered in the Marine Department.

QUEBEC, April 28.—Once again Quebec is the scene of a graft scandal. This time it is the Marine Department, which was thought to have been investigated to the bottom in 1903, that is to be the subject of investigation. The padding of pay lists for eight years with names of those who were not working for the Department at the time they figured on the rolls, and also with the names of persons who had no existence whatsoever, constitutes the irregularities now alleged.

Mr. Demers, of Ottawa, the purchasing agent of the Department, has arrived at Quebec and it is expected that a commissioner will be appointed to-day to conduct an investigation.

It is said the irregularities, which cover a period dating from 1906 up to within a few months ago, were brought to light through the fact that one of the men in the Department turned informer. His charges were so serious that the Department sent down a detective to enquire into their veracity with the above result.

Mr. Doutre gave out a statement last night in which he said that a commission would in all likelihood be appointed to-day, and that the Government was determined to take most prompt and drastic action to stamp out all wrongdoing as an effective deterrent for the future. He said that, contrary to the general impression, no one had been dismissed or even suspended. He further stated that there was not the least indication that there had been the slightest irregularity with regard to the purchase of supplies, the sole issue being the padding of payrolls, while the sums obtained from these alleged irregularities had been apparently devoted to expenditures on work or material supplied for the Department.

STRIKE RIOTS WORSE.

Governor of Colorado Admits Helplessness In the Crisis.

DENVER, Colo., April 28. — The strike situation yesterday passed all previous bounds. Actual rebellion spread, not only through all of the southern strike zone, but in the northern coal fields, where a quiet strike has been in progress for three years. The strikers late yesterday demanded that every gun in the possession of the mine guards be withdrawn from the field immediately.

In the opinion of those on both sides who are in close touch with the situation, only the possibility that President Wilson might decide to send Federal troops out to take charge of the situation will prevent more serious complications than have existed.

Governor Ammons admitted late yesterday that he is powerless to suppress the warfare. This admission followed a day of wild rumors, some groundless, other authentic, in regard to happenings at Chandler, Ludlow and Trinidad in the southern coal fields and at Louisville in the northern part of the state.

The state capitol from 8 o'clock yesterday morning until late in the day was thronged with men and women, some of them representatives of the coal companies, but a great majority of persons who went there to plead with the governor to use his utmost power to halt the bloodshed and pillage—for it is now amounting to actual pillage—in the strike-ridden counties of the state.

No Troops To Colorado Yet.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—After a long conference last night at the White House, between President Wilson, Secretary Garrison and Senator Thomas, Secretary Garrison announced that no orders sending federal troops into Colorado were issued last night. He said the situation would be discussed again to-day.

My Affair With a Grand Duchess

By F. A. MITCHEL

I was born in the department of Tula, in Russia, and from a very early age showed a remarkable faculty for acquiring knowledge. At twelve years of age I spoke four languages. At the university I captured most of the prizes and when I finished my course at the age of twenty was retained as a professor.

One day I was called into the private room of the head of the university, who told me that the czar had sent for me to become a tutor for the imperial children and that I was to report at the palace at once.

On arriving I was received by the czarina, who said to me:

"I am too much interested in the welfare of my children to permit any one but myself to give you your instructions. The principal thing I wish to say to you is a warning. You will be thrown in with the imperial family on a familiar footing. You will meet a number of young girls of royal blood. If you are known to speak of love to any one of them you will be severely punished."

I knew very well what that punishment would be. I would be sent to Siberia to work in the mines. In Russia there is no law governing such cases, the emperor being an autocrat, with power over life and death.

I entered upon my duties with no great fear in this respect, for, having been devoted to study, the softer sex had not interested me. I should not have been so confident had I known that one not given to appreciate girls in general is the most liable to succumb when thrown in with one especial girl. I was thrown in with several princesses between fourteen and twenty. I suppose they knew as well as I the danger of falling into an affair with a commoner. At any rate, they all behaved themselves with circumspection, save one girl of seventeen, between whom and me the spark of love flashed at our first meeting.

The Grand Duchess Olga was a daughter of a brother of the czar, consequently his niece. She came frequently to the palace and sometimes remained there for days at a time. After my coming these visits occurred oftener and lasted longer. For some time there was nothing spoken between us that might not have been listened to by any one, but even during this time the Grand Duchess Olga and I knew that we loved each other.

One day she asked me to construe for her an ode of Horace. Standing side by side, holding the same book, I felt her hand touch mine. So much vitality was there in this touch of love that all the ice in Siberia could not freeze it. I was unable to withdraw my hand, and so was the grand duchess.

That was the beginning. Not a word was spoken. There was not even then a glance between us. As for me, I dared not look at her. We were not alone and could be observed by others, but no one could see that touch beneath the cover of the open book or know of the strong current that passed between us. As soon as I had stammered through the reading of the passage and I had no further excuse to remain in that position I turned the book over to her.

It was only when I went to bed that night that I realized the frightful abyss on which I stood. What should I do? I could not fly from my charmer. To leave the czar's service without being dismissed would be revolt. To remain would be to leave a hopeless love for the mines. I slept little that night, but when morning came made resolutions for the future which I considered a solution of the problem. But it was not three days before one of the little princes, aged eight, meeting the Grand Duchess Olga and myself in the same room together, for sport locked us in.

This came upon me too suddenly for resolution.

"One kiss," I said—"the first and the last."

I put my arms about her, drew her to me and kissed her, she looking on the floor, frightened, but not resisting. Then I darted to the door and rapped loudly. An attendant unlocked it, and it so happened that when we left the room the czarina passed by. She looked searchingly at us. The grand duchess complained of the little prince, who had locked us in, and his mother reproved him. Then, with a few kind words to the grand duchess and myself that assured us we were not in the least to blame, her majesty passed on.

That night I was awakened from slumber by a shake and, looking up, saw an official standing over me.

"Get up," he said.

I arose and dressed myself, asking no questions. I was quite sure my kiss had been seen and I was to be sent to Siberia. But, no. I was taken to a railway station, given a ticket to the border, a passport and 5,000 rubles.

"Leave on the first train," said my conductor, "and never show yourself in Russia again."

I have never learned how much of what passed between me and the Grand Duchess Olga had become known. My final opinion was this: The czarina when we came out of the room in which we had been locked only for a moment read in our faces that there was more between us than our stations warranted. She resolved to break it up, but was too kind hearted to make a more serious matter of it than banishment for me.

THREE FAMOUS SCIENTISTS

Dr. Andrew Wilson, Dr. Gordon Stables and Dr. Leoellles Scott, the famous English analyst, have all personally tried Zam-Buk and expressed themselves convinced of its great healing value.

Mrs. St. Denis, of Thompson St., Weston, Winnipeg, suffered long with eczema; and finally her doctor said only Zam-Buk could cure her—another fine tribute of a scientific man to this great herbal healer.

Mrs. St. Denis says: "The eczema broke out on my nose and one side of my face. I could get no sleep because of the irritation and pain, and my face was in such a shocking condition that for two months I did not go out of the house. I applied remedies and my doctor treated me, but without effect, until one day he said that the only thing which would be likely to cure me was Zam-Buk. I procured a supply and to cut a long story short, in a few weeks Zam-Buk cured me completely, leaving no scars."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cuts, scalds, burns, eczema, scalp sores, ulceration, inflammation, piles, etc.; also as an embrocation for rheumatism, sprains and sciatica. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

ZAM-BUK

The Chief Obstacle.

The French are not inclined to take things too seriously. Thus, while they love and respect the venerable French academy, they never refrain from making it the subject of a little good natured wit. Even the members themselves, as this entry in Victor Hugo's notebook will show, indulge themselves in occasional sallies against the famous institution.

On Dec. 17, 1846, Victor Hugo, himself one of the forty "immortal" members of the academy, wrote in his notebook "Today, Thursday, in the academy. I spoke there with Dupin the elder about Balzac and of his chances of election to the academy. 'Thunder!' Dupin interrupted me. 'So you really believe that, without any more to do, Balzac will be chosen the first time he comes up for election.

"'You quote examples where that has occurred, but those prove nothing. Think of it! Balzac, at the first presentation of his name! You have thought the matter over carefully? Good! But you have forgotten one reason why it is quite impossible that Balzac should be elected to the academy—he deserves it!'"

"To Keep Young."

Youth is what we all love to have and to hold, and since Ponce de Leon's time many a way of conserving it has been prescribed—dosage, drinking sour milk, systems of exercise, bathing, rubbing. Any one of these things may help the individual, but not every individual. And let us not forget that youth is in great measure a gift of the spirit. Children are young because for them life abounds. They find springs of energy within and stores of refreshment without. Wonder, curiosity, the enjoyment of ten thousand trifles, a short memory for punishment and pain—all these things make for youth. Quarrels, resentfulness, suspicion, worry, grouchiness—these bring harder lines around the mouth, hardened arteries, old age. Nothing is too small to delight a child, given the right conditions; nothing too big to darken for very long the spangled sky. That is the secret of youth. Draw the curtain, Master Manager! On with the human comedy.—Collier's Weekly.

Japanese Flower Etiquette.

To order a dozen or two of roses or carnations indiscriminately over the telephone, to be delivered in a pasteboard box by a florist's boy, as a gift to a friend would mean a lack of refinement to a Japanese, writes Grace H. Bagley in Suburban Life. In fact, ignorance of flower lore might result in disastrous blunder. If, for example, you sent a purple wistaria, however exquisite in itself, to a bride she would hardly forgive you, since purple is a color of a bad omen, never to be used on felicitous occasions. On the other hand, you would convey a delicate compliment by sending chrysanthemums, because, on account of their long period of blooming, they signify long life. A peony sent to a friend is a flattering recognition of his distinction, as it is suitable only for those of high rank.

A Queer Question.

"I have come to consult you," she said to the prominent lawyer.

"What is the trouble?"

"I have received three proposals of marriage, and I do not know which to accept."

"Which man has the most money?"

"Do you imagine," she asked, "that if I knew I would consult you or any other lawyer?"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

There could be lots of worse things than green wigs. Suppose, for instance, that men who wear whiskers should dye them blue!

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE BOOMERANG

Jefferson Dean was fond of practical jokes. Naturally the 1st of April was his especial holiday.

The germ of his joke had to do with his love of pretty Alice Chase, and its development was meant to result in the utter rooting of his hated rival, Sam Freeman, a grave eyed young lawyer.

"What's new with you?" inquired his crony, Bob Waters, as they walked home together one night.

Jefferson Dean winked a handsome black eye and whistled airly.

"You know Sam Freeman?"

"Sure."

"Noticed anything peculiar about him lately?"

Mr. Waters thought laboriously and shook his head.

"He's in love."

"Whew, that's so! I forgot Alice Chase, but I thought you were, ahem No. 1 there."

Mr. Dean threw out his chest and spoke confidently: "I am No. 1 there, and that's where the joke comes in. Sam's all gone on Alice and she's—er—well, spoken for by me. It's all over but the asking. Yes sir, there isn't another girl like her! Sam doesn't get much encouragement. He's a diffident beggar, and if he should get a little note from Alice saying that she had received his proposal of marriage and her answer was 'Yes,' why, he'd go wild between joy and surprise."

"Hum! Where does the joke come in?" inquired Bob soberly.

"Why, don't you see, it's on him when he calls on Alice and finds that he's been fooled?"

"Yes, but Miss Chase—would she lend herself to anything like that?" asked Bob doubtfully.

Jefferson Dean laughed loudly.

"She won't know anything about it until poor Sam springs their engagement upon her. It will be rather a joke on her, too. Of course, I shall write the note," he added.

But Bob Waters did not hide his disapproval of the cruel joke. "I say, Jeff, it's tough on Freeman, you know," he protested as they parted. "He's a mighty fine fellow, and he's hard hit in that direction. As you're the lucky one, you ought to spare him."

But Jefferson Dean was in high good humour with himself. He clapped his friend on the shoulder and laughed loudly.

Sam Freeman found the dainty bit of note among his letters one morning. He pored over the few words with white, stunned face and bright eyes.

What did it mean?

Alice Chase was saying that she loved him and would marry him, and she hoped he would come to-night when father would be home, and his proposal was so unexpected, but she was so happy.

He was of a dozen minds whether to send her flowers or not, but his longing to do so prevailed, and he sent a huge box of American Beauties.

That evening Jefferson Dean reached the Chase mansion at an early hour.

But there was little time for reflection. The successful working out of his joke absorbed his attention, for presently Sam Freeman was announced.

"Now for the fun," chuckled Jeff inwardly, as he shook hands with his rival and noted that young man's tense, eager face, as he bent over Alice's hand.

The fun came thick and fast, but somehow it was not amusing to Jefferson Dean.

While that young man's attention was diverted by Alice's mother the girl had a few words alone with Freeman at the other end of the room.

When Mrs. Chase had gone Alice turned and came down the room with Freeman, and Sam was holding her hand with an air of proprietorship.

"Jefferson," said Alice sweetly, "congratulate us. We are engaged to be married."

"Married!" echoed Jefferson with a hollow laugh. "Is it a joke?"

"No, indeed!" protested the happy pair in unison. "It's true." And they turned and looked into each other's eyes and entirely forgot poor Jefferson Dean, who gladly slipped out of the house.

He met Bob Waters and that young man hooked a hand in the arm of the disconsolate one and led him to the club. Perhaps Bob was conscience stricken, for he had conversed with Alice Chase over the telephone that morning, and he had told her a few things concerning the joke of Jefferson Dean, and Alice had declared it was the most sensible thing Jeff Dean had ever done in his life."

After a long and moody silence Jefferson Dean said:

"I say, Bob, what's that thing these South Sea Islanders use — you throw it and it comes back and hit you on the head—what?"

"A boomerang?" asked Bob in a steady voice.

"A boomerang? Ah, yes, thanks!" murmured Jefferson Dean, and he returned to the obsequies he was holding over his defunct sense of humour

THOSE FASHIONS.

"Ah, fly with me and be my love!
No more I'll scorn your dress
So straight and narrow, if not prim,
But all its loveliness
I'll sing with ardor from my heart,
An amending grace above;
Also your feather duster plume
If you will be my love."

"Yes, dear one, I will fly with you
And will not ridicule
The freakish garb with bat-like wings
Which makes you look the fool
Except to eyes of love like mine.
I find it picturesque,
And I will marry you, my love,
E'en in this new weird dress."

She put her little hand in his.
The task he did not shirk
Of boosting her into the car.
Although it was hard work.
And so they rolled away in bliss.
Full happy for a span,
Well mated—she, the hobble girl;
He, the kimono man.

Put 3 tablespoons of rice into a double boiler with 1 cup cold water. Boil 1-2 hour, then put in 3 cups of milk and boil until soft. Stir with a silver fork so as not to break the rice. When done take off, beat the yolk of 1 egg and stir into the rice. The heat of the rice will cook the egg enough. Then turn into the dish you are going to serve it in, and take 2 tablespoons of sugar, 1-2 teaspoon of nutmeg or cassia and mix together. Sprinkle over the top of the pudding, then put a small piece of butter on here and there. The hot pudding will melt the butter, forming a brown frosting over the top.

HOW THIN PEOPLE CAN PUT ON FLESH

A New Discovery

Thin men and women—that big, hearty filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and fussy sawdust diets. Omit the flesh cream rub-ons. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of them a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, "easy there" fat should be the net result. Sargol charges your weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of six of the best flesh-producing elements known to chemistry. They come 60 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all druggists sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Hands That Make Beauty.

The father of Saint Gaudens, the sculptor, was a bootmaker and put the same enthusiasm into making a good boot that his son put into modeling statues. Millions are spent on paintings and sculptures, but just as many millions are spent on other productions of the human hand and brain. They may not be classed as works of art, yet are they the beautiful handicraft of men and women. The products of the cabinet makers of the eighteenth century, the weaving of the Hindu men and women since the days of the Arabian Nights, the lace and tapestries worked by peasant girls, nuns or queens, the creations of the potter, the brassmonger, the ironmonger, the silversmith, the goldsmith, the printer and the bookbinder were wrought by joyful workers, and millionaires compete with kings to possess them.—Boston Globe.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Bishop Farthing of Montreal yesterday opened Woodstock's new Nurses' Home in the presence of a large and well-pleased audience.

Wabash passenger train No. 3, and a Grand Trunk freight, met in head-on collision at Newbury, Ont., yesterday morning. Nobody was hurt.

In a fit of despondency, Mrs. Mary Gardiner, aged 31, 212 First avenue, Toronto, drank carbolic acid. She had been in ill-health for the past four months.

Early yesterday morning a large residence in Regent street, Welland, occupied by Daniel Hobden as a dwelling and boarding-house, was swept by fire.

A man broke into the Waterloo Gold and Country Club at two o'clock yesterday morning, but was overpowered by the steward before he could secure any booty.

The death occurred suddenly in London, Eng., of Sir George Doughty, M.P., a famous Grimsby fish trader who had many interests in Canada and especially in British Columbia.

A cold wave struck the Western Provinces Sunday night, Humboldt, Sask., recording 17 degrees of frost, and at most points in the three provinces the temperature went below the freezing point.

Frank Dale, a Galt workman, had a narrow escape yesterday when a rifle bullet fired by somebody unknown shattered a pane and imbedded itself in the wall within a few inches of where he stood.

Navigation at Cornwall.

CORNWALL, April 28. — The large freight steamer Derbyshire opened navigation yesterday by being locked through the Cornwall Canal. She was en route from Toronto to Montreal and was closely followed by the steamer Algonquin from Port Colborne to Montreal.

Jacinal Flies of India.

There are certain East Indian flies several varieties of them apparently of similar type to our own house favorite, Musca domestica, that have developed a rather ingenious, if somewhat disreputable, way of making a living. This is the story told by Captains Patton and Craig in the Indian Journal of Medical Research. The proboscis of these flies is soft and not suitable for piercing the skin of man of the larger animals. So they hang around some one of the several types of biting flies, and when the latter pierces the skin of a victim they crowd him away and use the incision for feeding themselves. If the biter happens to be too large or fierce then to be driven from his prey, the fly jackals wait until he is finished and then take his place. In view of these observations it seems quite possible that the so called nonbiting flies may play a hitherto unsuspected role in the transmission of disease.

Immigration Increase Small.

The total immigration to Canada during the 11 months, April to February, of the current year, was 362,936, made up of 136,699 British, 97,006 American, and 128,926 from all other countries. During the corresponding 11 months of last fiscal year the total number was 357,331, composed of 133,711 British, 134,398 American, and 99,222 from all other countries. The increase is two per cent.

Canada Slips Behind.

Canadian marine engine manufacturers are losing ground in New Zealand. The Canadian trade commissioner states that the reason is the high price, the ancient standard and the inapt construction. Great Britain sells the most internal combustion marine engines in New Zealand, being nearly seven to one American engine. The total importation was 5,421 engines at $897,553, of which 733 were United States engines at $109,795 and 48 Canadian engines at $6,165. Canadian manufacturers, says the report to the Trade and Commerce Department, have an advantage over American manufacturers, yet their engines are more expensive. British-made engines are landed in New Zealand as cheaply as Canadian engines, and in some cases are very little dearer than those from the United States.

Largest Concrete Pole In World.

The largest concrete pole installation at present in the world is that of 35,000 concrete poles set up in connection with the municipal street lighting and general light and power distribution of the Hydro-Electric system in Toronto, says The Electrical World.

Although re-inforced concrete poles have been the subject of experiment from time to time for a great many years, it is comparatively recently that they have been employed or even seriously considered. The high and constantly increasing cost of wooden poles, their comparatively short life, with consequent prospective renewal at greater expense, is making Toronto experiment a matter of interest the world over.

Ringing the Bells.

The late Sir John A. Macdonald was ever known for his ready wit and gift of repartee.

On one election campaign he was staying over night with a family by the name of "Bell" where there was a bevy of bright, charming young daughters. The father proudly introduced his girls to Sir John, who laughingly rejoined that he would like the pleasure of being present when they were "Ringing the Bells."

An Easy Solution.

"How does the breakfast suit you, John?" inquired the young bride anxiously.

"It's just right, dearest," said her husband. "It may be plebeian, but I'm awfully fond of calves' liver for breakfast."

"So am I, dear," said the wife. "Oh, John, don't you think it would pay us to keep a calf? Then we could have liver every morning for breakfast."—Ladies' Home Journal.

TO PROTECT BRITONS.

British Fleet May Be Increased In Mexican Waters.

LONDON, April 28.—The British Government has had under consideration the possible necessity of strengthening the British fleet in Mexican waters, in order to insure the protection of British subjects and property. Nothing has been yet definitely decided and in view of the latest news from Mexico it is hoped by officials that it will be unnecessary to send more war vessels there.

According to information received by the Government the danger which threatened British subjects in Mexico has largely passed, but any recurrence of that danger will probably be met by the despatch of a sufficient naval force to protect British subjects and their property.

U. S. Population Is 98,000,000.

WASHINGTON, April 28. — Continental United States now has a population of more than 98,000,000 while the country with its possessions is peopled with more than 109,000,000 persons, the census bureau announced yesterday. Census experts have calculated that the population of continental United States on July 1, 1914, will be 98,781,324, against 91,972,266 on April 15, 1910, when the last census was taken. For the United States and its possessions they estimate that population this July will be 109,021,992, compared with 101,748,269 in 1910.

THE PRESIDENTS GAME.

Re-Premier's Party Slightly Favored By the French Elections.

PARIS, April 28. — Although 251 Deputies were definitely chosen in yesterday's general election for the French Chamber of Deputies, the country will have to await the result of the 251 second ballots on May 10 before it can tell whether the present Government will obtain a majority.

The known results do not indicate any remarkable change in the composition of the parties, but from the votes cast it would appear that the combination of groups led by former Premier Aristide Briand and Louis Barthou, known as the federation of Democrats of the left, was more favored by the voters than the groups forming the present Government's majority.

This may undergo a change at the second ballot, and it may be necessary to take a test vote in the Chamber itself before it can be known with certainty whether the Government will stand or not, as the 502 Deputies are divided into thirteen groups.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active, and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, April 27.—Beneficial rains throughout most of the winter and spring crop belts had more influence in making the wheat market bearish today than the abnormal outlook for peace. The close, which was comparatively steady, showed ⅛c to ⅝c net decline. Other leading staples, as well as wheat, all finished at a loss—oats ⅛c to ⅝c, corn ⅛c to ⅜c, and provisions 5c to 10c.

Every Person Welcomes The Approach of Spring

But every person does not care for that dull, tired, listless, all-down-and-out, don't-care-to-do-any-work feeling that overcomes one at this time of the year.

This feeling is caused by the eating of rich and heavy foods during the winter months, which, along, with the indoor life, causes an accumulation of undigested and refuse matter in the system.

What is really needed at this time of the year is

A GOOD SPRING MEDICINE

One that will clean out all these impurities

One that will cleanse the blood and get it into shape to withstand the heat of the summer months.

FOR THIS PURPOSE THERE IS NOTHING TO EQUAL

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

This grand old remedy has been on the market for nearly forty years and is, without a doubt, the Best Spring Medicine

FOUR PLAYGROUNDS AND SWIMMING PLACES COMING

Special Committee is Working on Plans to Give Public Amusement for the Young Folks and for Adults—School Grounds Will Likely Be Used.

SOME OF THE DISCUSSION

The special committee to deal with the playgrounds proposal held a meeting last night and appointed sub-committees to locate four playgrounds and three swimming places with the reports to be returned as soon as possible.

Alderman Johnston occupied the chair, those present being Alderman Stratton, Alderman Duffus, Dr. Morrison, Mr. Jas. Connal, and Mr. B. F. Ackerman.

Alderman Stratton stated that he had gone into the question of locations for swimming places and was of the opinion that the necessary accommodation could be secured without which expense at Inverlea Park and Jackson Park. Another place might be selected at the east end of Lake street, or at some other point around Crescent street.

Alderman Johnston said he had thought of the two parks.

Dr. Morrison stated that there was a natural swimming place at Burnham's Point, and it might be possible to arrange for it. The proximity of the lumber mill and yards was regarded as an obstacle by other members.

The discussion touched upon the elementary details only. It was felt that the old swimming place at Jackson's Park should be cleaned and well-equipped at very little expense. There is a dressing room already erected, and the question remains as to the supply of water being sufficient.

The consideration of supervisors will have to be decided at another meeting. Alderman Stratton suggested that some of the teachers might take up the work, as it would give them additional experience in the handling of boys. In any case this detail would have to be worked out.

Hours for Girls.

In order to give girls an opportunity of learning to swim and of enjoying bathing special hours may be set apart exclusively for them.

Alderman Stratton moved, seconded by Alderman Duffus, that Alderman Johnston and Alderman Stratton investigate the swimming facilities with the purpose of locating three swimming places and report back as soon as possible.

Public Playgrounds.

In regard to securing playgrounds, Alderman Stratton suggested that if arrangements could be made with the Board of Education the grounds of some of the schools might be secured and the expense of purchasing locations would be avoided. Mr. Ackerman had intimated that such an arrangement might be made and it would be necessary to approach the Board of Education to take up the details.

No Place for Older Boys.

Dr. Morrison stated that the school grounds were used by boys after four o'clock and on Saturday afternoons. In this respect they were fairly well provided for, but there was no accommodation for the boys of 15 to 18 or 19, who work in the shops and stores. The King Edward school grounds in the south end might be used, but the school boys' games could not be interfered with. However, they are used for regular games only during the school term, and they might be generally utilized during the holiday period.

Other School Grounds.

The grounds of the East and West Ward schools are large enough for numerous games, and Dr. Morrison stated that if the city would turn the grader on to them they could be put in good condition with but little trouble.

The committee will consider this point in future plans.

The playground of the old Collegiate may be easily whipped into shape also.

Exhibition Grounds.

Alderman Johnston said that the Exhibition grounds might be utilized. There is plenty of room there. The King Edward Park could also be opened, and three or four acres secured for games.

A Big Mistake.

Alderman Duffus stated that the citizens made a big mistake a few years ago when they defeated the by-law to bet apart certain grounds for park and public purposes. The property around Rink avenue could have been purchased for a song. But the Council was turned down flat.

It was also stated that the city missed a good chance when they passed up the property around Englehurn avenue.

No Appropriations.

Alderman Johnston stated to Alderman Stratton that no appropriations had been made for the work of the special committee, but he felt that whatever was decided upon would meet with the approval of the Council. It was shown that there is likely to be very little expense.

On motion of Alderman Stratton, seconded by Alderman Duffus, a committee composed of Mayor Buller, Alderman Duffus, Dr. Morrison and Mr. Connal, was appointed to examine locations for four public playgrounds, with the report to be handed in with that of the other committee.

Question of Supervisors.

In regard to securing supervisors, Mr. Connal stated that the Y.M.C.A. would do all it could to assist the city. Last year the "Y" pool was opened to all the boys of the city for a week, and as a result under supervision, forty non-members learned to swim. Mr. Carson, the new physical director, who comes from Winnipeg, has had extensive experience in the playground movement. He will not arrive in Peterborough until the middle of June. Mr. Connal said the Y.M.C.A. would assist in every way possible, and if possible would help in the matter of securing supervisors.

PULMOTOR ENDORSED

Proposed Action of City Council in This Connection Commended by Medical Society.

PASS RESOLUTION

Chief Howard received instructions from Ald. G. Walter Green to confer with the medical practitioners of the City relative to the purchase of a pulmotor for life saving to be used in connection with the Fire Department. The Chief arranged a meeting with the Medical Society in the Public Library on Friday April 24th, where the matter was discussed between the medical gentlemen and the Fire Chief. After the latter had thoroughly explained the position of the civic authorities, a resolution was unanimously carried heartily endorsing the proposed action of the City in purchasing a lifesaving pulmotor to be used in connection with the Fire Department. Secretary Dr. J. B. Mann, on instructions from the Medical Board, sent Chief Howard a letter embodying the resolution and assuring him of the co-operation of the medical men in its use.

The pulmotor is an apparatus which has been used successfully in other cities to restore life and resuscitate the apparently drowned or those to all appearances suffocated from gas, smoke or any other cause.

FIVE CARS LOADED WITH GRAIN JUMPED TRACK NEAR MADOC

Five cars of grain on an eastbound freight train left the track near Madoc this morning about nine o'clock. The cars were travelling at a good speed when the accident occurred, but no one was hurt. The cars were badly broken and the Lindsay and Belleville auxiliaries were rushed to the scene to clear the track before this evening. As the morning Belleville train had passed the scene of the accident before it occurred it was not delayed at all. The local from Madoc, however, had to tranship its passengers to-day at the point where the cars are off the track. It is expected that the track will be cleared before the Belleville train leaves the City to-night.

BIG ADDITION TO YEOTES' POOL ROOM

Mr. Louis Yeotes is preparing to erect a 45x26 addition to his pool room premises and to make them the best rooms outside of Montreal and Toronto. All the old tables will be disposed of and will be replaced by new ones. In addition there will be the extra tables which the added space provides for. The floor will be covered with cork matting, the ceiling finished with ornate metallic sheets and with the new tables will be new cues and balls. Mr. Yeotes is planning to make his pool room one of the best in the country.

Federal Member Suggests an Airship Line as a Solution for the Transportation Problem.

SAYS IT'S NOT A JOKE

OTTAWA, April 28.—Mr. J. H. Burnham of Peterborough added a touch of variety to the discussion at the evening sitting of the House when he advocated the establishment of an airship transportation line instead of canals. "Canals," he said, "are like burrowing in the earth; they have passed their usefulness." He knew of a company formed which would transport by means of dirigible balloons all the foodstuffs between Winnipeg and Quebec at a much lower rate than would otherwise be possible, "for the one two-hundredth of the sum required to build the Georgian Bay Canal," he declared, "we are prepared to establish a line of transportation that would carry enormous cargoes both ways at a low rate. There is no joke about it when they say that 25 years from now every enterprising man will have an airship of his own. We are desirous of having the Government consider this project."

TROOPS EXPECTED

Special to The Examiner:

DENVER, Col., April 28.—Federal troops are expected here to-night to take control of the situation at the mines, where fighting was still in progress between the miners and the guards, this morning. It is reported that fifty women and children are barricaded in the buildings in the zone of fire and that several have been hit by stray shots this morning.

Revised reports of the dead to date in this awful industrial warfare indicate that three hundrd, including a number of women and children.

GEN. GUSTAVO MAAS

Who commanded the Federal troops at Vera Cruz and fled before the American invasion, is now believed to be amassing troops outside the city for an attack. Several desultory attacks have been made by him upon the city since the United States occupied it.

HALF HOLIDAY FOR OPENING

Of Baseball Season—Mayor Buller is in Favour of the Idea and Will Lend His Support to Anything This is Done in This Direction

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

Mayor Buller has expressed his approval of the suggestion to declare a half holiday for the opening of Canadian League baseball in Peterborough on Thursday, May 14. There is every reason to expect that there will be a large crowd for the opening day without locking up business for the afternoon, but with the usual parade, the opening ceremonies and the first inspection of the new manager and players, there will be a widespread desire for an afternoon holiday at Riverside Park. His Worship takes a lively interest in all athletics and is of the opinion that the ball team is a good advertisement for the City and it deserves encouragement. Personally, therefore, he is in favour of declaring a half holiday, and if the rest of the Council is of the same opinion, it is likely that a half holiday will be officially declared.

Thief Caught Red-Handed

Special Wire to The Examiner:

PARIS, Ont., April 28.—After drilling a hole two feet square through an eighteen inch stone wall to affect an entrance into the cellar of a liquor store, Albert C. Brown, aged 60, was caught red handed by Chief Felker, last night. Since Thursday last the police have been on the watch and Brown was landed with a basket full of square face gin on his arm. He was committed for trial.

G.N.R. GRANT DISCUSSED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, April 28.—The Government forces met in full caucus this morning to consider proposals for granting further aid to the G. N. R. Shortly after the caucus commenced R. B. Bennett, M. P. for Calgary, stonand W. F. Nickle, M. P. for Kingston, came out and left. Both had listened to the proposals which were submitted by the Prime Minister, and at the conclusion of his announcement took their leave. Neither wished it to be understood that their leaving was actuated by feeling of direct opposition to the proposals. They simply desired to retain an open mind on the question, and to discuss the proposals when they came before Parliament from an unprejudiced standpoint. It is stated that there was not an entire unanimity of opinion among the other members. Though nothing official has been given out to-day it is generally believed that the Canadian Northern bond guarantee is for forty-five million dollars. By way of security the Government is to get control of forty per cent. of the common stock of the main system, while fifteen per cent. will be held in trust to be handed over to the Government in the event of a default of the details of the agreement. The Grand Trunk Pacific, it is said, will receive a bond guarantee of twenty-five million. After the caucus Premier Borden said: "The caucus was called for the purpose of discussing the Canadian Northern proposals. The discussion was interesting and satisfactory proposals will be submitted to Parliament at an early date."

It is learned that two other members declared themselves as against the C. N. R. proposal this morning. They were Barney Hepburn of Prince Edward and J. H. Burnham of West Peterborough.

MARLBORO KNOW THE KNEW DANCES

Over fifty couples enjoyed the Marlboro Club dance at the Conservatory last night. The music by Mr. Jack Strathdee of Toronto was thoroughly enjoyed, the new dances being the feature of the evening. The tango and its variations demonstrated that there are many of the City's younger set who are well acquainted with the new dances.

JUDGMENT AWARDED TO T. BRIGHTMAN FOR $2,334

Also Interest on This Sum From May 30, 1911—Interesting Situation Arising Out of a Friend's Loan to a Friend.

DEFENDANT'S CLAIM.

The non-jury sittings of the High Court were opened at the Court House this morning, with Sir John Boyd on the Bench. The members of the local Bar presented were Messrs. F. D. Kerr, V. J. McElderry, S. T. Medd and G. N. Gordon.

The first case, Brightman vs. Quigley, was awarded in favour of the plaintiff, Thomas Brightman, of Peterborough, who received his claim for $2,334. He was also awarded interest on that amount from May 30, 1911. Mr. Medd appeared for Brightman and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the defendant.

The defendant, M. J. Quigley was a bank clerk in Hastings, and is now engaged in a Vancouver bank. His evidence was taken on commission in Vancouver, and its 55 pages were presented this morning.

John Welsh secured a loan of $2,334, from Mr. Brightman on or about Sept. 27, 1907. Welsh was proprietor of a large tanning concern in Hastings and was an intimate friend of Mr. Brightman. Welsh was an executor of the Quigley estate and had informed Mr. Brightman that Quigley would shortly be entitled to that amount of money out of the estate of the defendant's deceased father. Quigley received the money which Brightman had loaned Welsh and afterwards received his share of the estate. The plaintiff claimed that Quigley had received the money twice, and Chancellor Boyd upheld his claim this morning. The court found that Quigley had received his share of the estate from the Union Bank, Hastings, and ordered that Mr. Brightman should be repaid his loan to Welsh with interest. It was shown in court that Mr. Brightman had entered the loan in his books in Welsh's name. Quigley claimed that he had not received the loan from Brightman.

When Mr. Medd was summing up the case, Chancellor Boyd stepped him and stated that he thought he understood just what had taken place, and that although it appeared that Brightman, as Quigley said, had loaned the money to Welsh, yet there was no doubt that the fact was that Quigley got Brightman's money.

SITUATION DISCUSSED

United States Cabinet Decides to Go to Every Honourable Length to Preserve Peace

ELIMINATE HUERTA

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28.—The cabinet for several hours this morning discussed the latest phases of the Mexican situation, and it was decided to go to every honourable length to preserve peace. The President is convinced that war with Mexico would not be popular in the United States. After the first flush of excitement following Tampico and Vera Cruz affairs, the United States people generally have sobered down to the fact that war must be averted, if possible. While some jingoists and some newspapers are still clamouring for a "general clean up," others are doing some "tall thinking" about the final consequences. It is realized however, that the campaign began by the despatch of Badger and his squadron to Mexican waters cannot be abandoned without some showing to indicate that all the fuss made was justified. One thing is understood to be decided on by the cabinet this morning was that Huerta must be eliminated in any place of mediation suggested.

NO RECENT FIGHTING.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, April 28.—Although the airship scouts report a force of two thousand Mexicans under General Maas, a few miles from the outposts of the United States troops, there has been no fighting for twelve hours and it is thought that the Mexicans are holding back till the announcement of the results of mediation. General Funston formally took over the command here from Admiral Fletcher at noon. The blue jackets were taken back to their ships. The natives are and the residents have paid their respects to the Stars and Stripes and are quite amenable to the discipline of the United States.

ACCUSES GOVERNMENT

Chief Liberal Whip Charges That There Was an Alliance Between Government and Liquor Interest in Scott Act Fight

CHIEF BLOW AT HANNA

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Ont., April 28.—Direct charges of the alliance of the Ontario Government with the liquor interests in an effort to defeat the Temperance Act in the Counties of Peel, Haldimand and Welland during the campaign in January last, are being made by C. M. Bowman, the Liberal whip, on the floor of the Legislature to-day, the chief blow being aimed at the Provincial Secretary, Hon. W. J. Hanna. The charge is the outcome of the Snider incident, and the demand of the North Bruce Liberals that for a commission to go into the whole affair. Briefly Mr. Bowman in his charge states that he believes he will be able to establish the fact that W. K. Snider, Provincial License Inspector, was sent into those three ridings by Hon. Mr. Hanna for the express purpose of defeating the temperance interests. Further Liberal charges that this was done by the Government in return for the assurance of the liquor interests that the Government would have their support at the next general elections.

Final Practice.

The final practice for chorus and orchestra in "Judas Maccabaeus" (to be presented to-morrow night) will be held in the Collegiate Hall to-night at 8 p.m. Please be prompt. The Secretary will be on hand at 7.45 to receive tickets and cash which must be handed in to-night. The Conservatory Orchestra will rehearse with the chorus of St. George's Choral Society.

Validity Of A Deed Was In Question

Interesting Case Before Mr. Justice Boyd.

In High Court this afternoon the first action to come before Sir John Boyd was that of Elliot vs. Elliot. In this action the father and plaintiff, George Elliot, is attempting to have set aside as invalid a certain deed by which he gave over his farm to his son (the defendant) William Melville Elliot. The argument of the plaintiff was that the father, a very old man, was in poor health and under the domination of the family when he signed the said deed and, moreover, did not know when he signed it that he was turning over property to the son.

The circumstances that gave rise to the action are briefly that the father continued to live with the son after the latter had taken possession of the farm; a quarrel arose and the father was forced to leave his son's place, receiving according to the agreement, $200 a year until his death. In the event of his residing with his son the agreement provided that he should be provided with the necessities of life. The plaintiff's claim was that for reasons stated above the deed was invalid.

The defence claimed to be in a position to prove that the father knew the full purport of the deed when he signed it. At present the father is living with another member of the family.

Mr. F. D. Kerr acted for the plaintiff and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the defence.

CARD OF THANKS.

Before leaving the City where I have spent some days on account of the illness and death of my father, the late George E. Roseborough, I desire to express by gratitude through your columns to those who have been so kind to us during these trying days. The Board, the Superintendent and nurses of Nicholls Hospital, the fraternal society to which he belonged, the Men's Association of Murray Street Church, besides hundreds of citizens and others have shown their sympathy in a most helpful way, and I feel that it should have at least this acknowledgment.

CANADA FOR CANADIANS.

Canada is unrepresented by a naval watch dog in Mexican waters simply because Premier Borden, at the command of the Nationalists of Quebec, killed the idea of a Canadian navy and refused to set upon the tenders sent in, according to the will of Parliament, for Canadian cruisers. Mr. Churchil,l First Lord of the Admiralty, said that Canada could not build ships. That is the opinion of a man who knows little about us, and is of that class of British statesmen that superciliously regard the Dominions as mere "colonies," and still in the pap stage of national life. We are not surprised at Churchill but we should expect something better from Borden, a born Canadian. He is the leader of a party whose policy is to make in Canada everything that Canada needs that can be made in Canada. He is at once unpatriotic and pessimistic. Can't build ships in Canada? On the fourteenth of April the largest freight steamer in the world was launched at Port Arthur. It was built by Canadian workmen, using, so far as possible, Canadian material. It has for months given employment to 400 Canadian workingmen directly; and, indirectly, to many hundreds more in the production of the 5000 tons of steel and of other material that entered into the construction of such a ship. Canada is capable of building any kind of ship that floats and if, at the beginning, we could not build Dreadnoughts, we could soon equip ourselves for doing it. Time was when Canada could not make a reaper or a sewing machine, or a steam engine, and couldn't be doing so now if we had not made a beginning. The "Canada can't" political party that believes in spending Canadian money among outside workmen to build Canadian ships, fails to interpret the true sentiment of self respecting Canadians as to the capabilities and possibilities of Canada. No one with intelligence enough to have the right to a ballot can, or does, doubt that Canada can build her own ships, whether of commerce or war. If we had followed the will of parliament, and had established ship-building yards, we could have by this time been building not only our cruisers, but would be able to undertake the building of all our ships. Not a Canadian keel should plough our waters, or any other waters, that has been built outside of Canada. Mr. Borden and his party, including the Nationalists, assumed a tremendous responsibility in killing the enterprise of ship-building in Canada, and in showing the world such a craven example of lack of confidence, of unfaith in ourselves. If all our rulers had had that spirit Canada would never have undertaken the building of our splendid system of canals, the greatest works in the world for a people of our population. The Canadian Pacific Railway, the Transcontinental Railway would not have been built, or would, according to the Borden naval idea, have been built by British contractors and British workmen. If that same spirit had prevailed in the past Canada would not be the great dominion she is to-day, but a crown colony, ruled from Downing street. No honest, no self-respecting Canadian who will take the pains to wash the party dust out of his eyes, will refuse to admit that the Liberal naval policy—a Canadian navy, built in Canada, by Canadian workmen, and of Canadian material — is the true, honourable and manly, national naval policy.

THE TWO PARTIES.

"Since 1878 the duty on agricultural implements has been reduced from 35 per cent. to 12½ per cent. Of that reduction Conservative Governments have made 20 per cent. and the Liberals only 2½ per cent. Thus the Conservatives have done eight times more for the farmers than the Liberals. Farmers of Canada think this over."—Shelburne Free Press.

The Free Press will probably receive a sharp reprimand from its party headquarters for advising the farmers to think. That is the one thing they are not wanted to do, and all kinds of party slogans are invented to disturb them if they try it. To keep them from thinking all kinds of flag waving and drum beating are resorted to at election times, much as the old-time bee-keeper hammered tin pans trying to hive his swarming bees.

The readers of the Free Press will observe that it thinks the taking off of the duty on agricultural implements is a good service to the farmers. The Conservatives put on a 35 per cent. duty in the first place, and have made reductions since that have brought it down to 15 per cent. The Liberals in the same period have put on no duty, but have made one reduction, which, along with those made by the imposers of this form of taxation, brings the duty to 12½ per cent.

And the latest reduction made by the present Conservative Government is made in the face of a demand by the Liberal party for the total abolition of the duties.

With the protected manufacturers of agricultural implements deserting the Liberal party and denouncing it, the actual position of the rival parties is laid open before the country. —Toronto Star.

THAT INDEFINITE FIVE MILLIONS

When the Ontario Government asked the Legislature to hand over five million dollars for the vague purpose of Northern Ontario development there was a strong protest from the Liberal members and the Liberal press. This protest was distorted by Government supporters so as to make it appear as opposition to Northern Ontario development. The protest was really in favour of Northern Ontario, as disclosures in the Public Accounts have shown. The objectionable and indefensible feature of the bill was the taking of money without declaring any definite purpose to which it was to be devoted. It was a departure from the long established, safe and essential practice that the Ministry should not handle public money except by definite vote of the House. The publicity of that requirement has always afforded a necessary safeguard against wastefulness or less pardonable depletions of the public treasury. But the subservient majority have the Government authority to borrow five millions without any restraint except that it was for Northern Ontario development.

It has now been disclosed that four and a quarter millions have been borrowed for Northern Ontario development, and that only $1,300,000 have been spent within the wide scope allowed by the complacent vote of the House. Of the money which the Legislature allowed the Government to borrow on the credit of the province for Northern Ontario development about $2,900,000 have been improperly diverted to other uses. And the Liberals who demanded the safeguard of definite votes for specific purposes were falsely represented as antagonistic toward Northern Ontario. Evidently the wide power of the blanket vote was not wide enough for the handlers of public money. This disclosure should promote a demand not only in Northern Ontario but throughout the province that the Government no longer make use of its docile majority to secure the handling of public money free from the safeguard and restraint of definite votes by the House. There has been a demonstration of the danger of such misuse of power. The need of an emphatic expression of public disapproval is obvious.—The Globe.

THE COMING PREMIER OF ONTARIO

The outstanding feature of the Legislative term, which is likely to end in a premature dissolution and general election, is the establishing of Mr. Rowell's place among the foremost political leaders of Canada. Though always interested in public affairs and always on the side of progress, his career as Provincial leader has been comparatively short, but has been sufficient to prove his capacity in all the requisites of statesmanship. It is well that every new leader should be regarded with keen and critical interest, for there can be no more momentous question than the selection of the man into whose hands the management of public affairs must be entrusted. Mr. Rowell has now proved his ability in every respect, rising to every occasion, meeting every demand, and intelligently facing every emergency. After this test of experience the people of Ontario can have no hesitation in placing their public affairs in his hands, in succession to the Premiership can occasion no misgiving, but must be welcomed as the beginning of a better era in Provincial politics.

Personal qualities are of primary importance in a First Minister of the Crown. Mr. Rowell brings to the public service an unblemished reputation. He is honest, sincere, and zealous in the cause of human betterment. His recognised ability and industry had already won for him a distinguished place in the legal profession. The versatility and resource essential in the management of men as well as in the devising of measures he possesses in a remarkable degree. Courteous, considerate, affable, and of engaging personality, he makes fast friends on every hand, and this without sacrificing or deviating from any of the canons of his political faith. Effective and masterful on the platform, he is none the less capable in the arduous work of practical legislation. Obviously the ablest man in the Legislature, with youth, on his side and vigour unimpaired, the Province has in him a gratifying assurance of years of efficient service in the supervision and dictation of public affairs.

In spite of the handicap of a numerically weak though enthusiastic support he has made his imprint on Provincial legislation during his lead ership of the Opposition. In this he has shown an understanding sympathy with the needs of the industrial worker, a knowledge of the essentials in improving and encouraging every department of agriculture, a comprehensive outlook in regard to manufacturing interests, and a safe, clear understanding of financial and commercial needs. In educational and professional affairs he has always assumed a progressive and discerning attitude. His course has given abundant proof that all the varied interests of the Province will not only be safe in his hands, but assured of active aid and capable supervision.—The Globe.

Thin Blood is Poison To The Nerve Centres

Headaches, Irritability, Sleeplessness, Discouragement Result---Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the Great Restorative

A nervous temperament may be inherited, but nervous troubles only come when the nerve centres fail to derive proper nourishment from the blood.

Under ordinary circumstances the loss caused by wear and tear on the nervous system is restored by the nutrition contained in the blood.

When the blood gets thin and watery the nerves are starved and poisoned, and troubles of a serious nature appear.

Brain fag, headaches, sleeplessness, irritability, low spirits, and discouragement are among the symptoms of a starved nervous system.

There is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a means of forming new, rich blood.

Through the blood stream nutrition is carried direct to the nerve centres, and it converted into nervous energy.

Every beat of the heart, every breath of the lungs, and all the functions of digestive and other vital organs are dependent for life and energy on the nervous system.

Consequently the whole system is benefitted when health and vigour are restored to the nerve centres.

The nerves of the stomach resume their functions and digestion is improved. The appetite sharpens, the liver, kidneys, and bowels gain strength, and the blood derives further nourishment from the food taken into the body.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is reconstructive and upbuilding in its influence, and therefore of lasting benefit. Fifty cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

LIST OF CANADIAN CITIES HAVING A CLEARING HOUSE

Some time ago it was announced in The Examiner that the banks of Peterborough were arranging to establish a clearing house in the City. The Monetary Times of Toronto refers to the undertaking as follows:

The following is a list of the banks which have branches at Peterborough, and of the names of the managers in charge:

Canadian Bank of Commerce, Mr. W. H. Dunsford; Dominion Bank, Mr. John Crane; Bank of Montreal, Mr. R. W. Travers; Bank of Nova Scotia, Mr. A. F. Tomlins; Bank of Ottawa, Mr. O. C. Wainwright; Royal Bank of Canada, Mr. V. Eastwood; Bank of Toronto, Mr. P. Campbell; Union Bank of Canada, Mr. C. H. Pennyfather; and a south end branch of the Union Bank, in charge of Mr. D. C. MacRostie.

All these banks will be members of the clearing house, of which the following officers have been elected: Chairman, Mr. P. Campbell, manager of the Bank of Toronto; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Crane, manager of the Dominion Bank; secretary, Mr. D. D. Brown, accountant in the Bank of Toronto.

From a town of 10,000 some ten or twelve years ago, Peterborough has grown into a city of at least 22,000 population. That includes the population residing immediately outside the boundary lines. Besides the banks, there are also two loan companies in existence. A rich farming country surrounds the city and the farmers are considered well-to-do. As a centre for manufacturers to locate, Peterborough is excellent. The cost of power at the present and in the future will always be reasonable.

Cheap Power Assured.

Inside the city limits, there is being developed some 6,000 horse-power, and along the Trent waters between, say Fenelon Falls and Trenton there is yet undeveloped at least 50,000 horse-power. The Electric Power Company of Toronto, the holding company of numerous smaller companies along the Trent, controls practically all this power. Peterborough, however, voted in favour of the Hydro-Electric recently, and cheap power is assured for the future, although a great many are not in favour of the Hydro-Electric unless the Commission take over and handle all the power in the district.

Is a Bright City.

At present, manufacturers are a little quiet as they are elsewhere, but the general business depression is not being felt in Peterborough to the same extent as it is in numerous other places. The city has an active council. The last few years the lighting system has been greatly improved. Several of the streets are paved and the general appearance of the place is that of a city of 40,000 instead of 22,000.

The total assessment of Peterborough is $11,372,394. The value of dutiable goods imported by the city in 1913 was $468,197.

Three bank clearing houses were established in 1910, one each at Brandon, Lethbridge and Saskatoon. Three, viz., Moose Jaw, Brantford and Fort William, were established in 1911, and two, New Westminster and Medicine Hat, were opened in 1913. Peterborough's will be the first new clearing house to be opened in 1914. There are now twenty-three clearing houses in Canada, twelve of which are in Western Canada and eleven in the east.

Where Others Are Located.

The following is a list of the clearing houses:

SIXES AND SEVENS RUDDERLESS, AND ADRIFT

Special to The Examiner:

HAMILTON, Ont., April 28.—A frank as well as interesting news despatch appears in the Hamilton Spectator (one of the most dyed-in-the-wool Conservative papers in Ontario) in regard to the General Elections and a lack of harmony in the Ontario Cabinet. The despatch which headed "From Our Own Correspondent," is as follows:

The Conservative caucus held yesterday afternoon is said to have been anything but a unit in favouring an early appeal to the electorate. The government, it is said, took strong ground in favour of a general election, preferably in June, but the private members do not like the idea of meeting election expenses again so soon. There is a possibility now that the election will be held over until next year or until the fall.

The anxiety of the government is of course quite obvious. Conditions in the cabinet are far from harmonious. The ministers are a long way from deciding on the future leadership, and a general election and three years more of power would give them a chance to make a change and save time to adjust differences before another campaign.

In all their figuring the ministers have practically left Sir James Whitney out of consideration. While the Prime Minister shows improvement in health, it is nowhere seriously suggested that he will again be able to take up the arduous duties of the work. The fact that Sir James is better does not remove the difficulties from the present situation. If a general election is brought on right away Sir James would still be nominal head of the government. His name would be the rallying cry. But a year from now it would not be so simple, for the cabinet recognize that the general public will look for definite leadership before a year is out. Sir James cannot well stay out of the House two sessions without giving up his place.

SEEK DAMAGES FROM DIRECTORS

Examiner Special:

HARTFORD, Conn., April 28.—The directors of the Windsor Locks Savings Bank, which failed in 1912 with large liabilities, are the defendants in a damage suit which came up for trial in the Superior Court to-day. The suit was brought by the State Bank Commissioners to recover $300,000 damages and is based on the alleged liability of the directors for the defalcation of the late A. W. Converse, who was treasurer of the bank.

Couldn't Have Shrieked Louder

GENEVA, April 28.— Three young lady employees of the Empire Gas and Electric Company were rescued from an alligator yesterday afternoon at the office on Castle Street.

The alligator's sudden appearance at the feet of the trio caused them to shriek in alarm and seek refuge on top of the desks. Male employees came to their rescue and then returned the alligator quadruped to a place where he could do no harm to the nerves of the young lady bookkeeper.

Last week one of the employees of the company received a seven-year-old alligator from a Florida friend. The alligator is two feet long and has a mouth that has caused much terror among timid persons who watch his antics in a show window of the company, where he has been on exhibition. Yesterday the alligator got out of his enclosure in the window, and went on an exploring tour.

The first intimation anyone had that the alligator was loose was when Miss Sarah Pierce, a bookkeeper, screamed and leaped with remarkable agility to the top of the desk. Two other young women sighted the alligator immediately and duplicated Miss Pierce's record high jump.

The male employees, with the aid of a rope and sticks, finally got the alligator back where he belonged.

Live perch are being fed to the quadruped. The fish are dumped into the alligator's artificial pond in the window, and whenever the alligator is hungry he opens his wide jaws. A

SOME THINGS AND OTHERS

Is any attempt being made to put a windbreak and a few shrubs about the schoolhouse?

Golden Bantam sweet corn is one of the best early kinds. Planted every ten days or so until July 1, it will furnish green corn throughout the season.

Good seed and good, vigorous, healthy plants are essential for success in vegetable gardening. They are obtained by careful management.

Grow your own asparagus plants if they cannot be purchased readily. The seed is as easily sown as that of onions or radishes. Buy only the best seed.

Do not buy many novelties and do not expect too much from those you do buy. Some are worth while, but many turn out to be old friends renamed.

If you grow vegetables for a local market, plant only those of best quality, even though the yield is not quite as great as that of an inferior kind. Quality will pay in the end.

Soil has much to do with quality. Study your soil and use those varieties that do best on it. This is something that the individual must work out for himself.

A good useful flower garden should be a part of every vegetable garden. Cut flowers should be seen in the home as frequently as good pictures.

THE SINGY? FARMER

If there is any one epithet more than another that has been applied to the farmer, it is "stingy." Practically every one with whom the farmer spends money will agree that farmers are stingy. The country merchant will tell you that the farmer is "a regular tight wad," but I have noticed that when the farmer goes into the village to spend his money with that merchant, that he also goes to the hotel and pays for his dinner. If that merchant were to happen along about dinner-time at the home of his farmer patron, he would receive a hearty invitation to sit down with the family and he would be given the best that the home affords.

I believe the question simply simmers down to this—that all of us, in city and country alike, are most liberal with that of which we have the most. More money passes through the hands of the average town dweller than through the hands of the average farmer, and consequently they appear to be more liberal with their cash. In a country where the table is so largely supplied from the farm, we find the farmers just as liberal with their hospitality as the city man is apt to be lacking in that respect. I don't believe that farmers are stingy when we take a broad view. There are some, however, who are stingy, no matter how we may look at it. —Farm and Dairy.

A STRIKING EVIDENCE OF CHORAL ACTIVITY

Production of Judas Maccabaeus To-morrow Night 'a Notable Event in Local Musical Circles

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

The performance of "Judas Maccabaeus" to-morrow night is striking evidence of choral vitality in this City. The task of singing the heavy chorus work is much harder than in either the "Messiah" or "Elijah," and the mere fact of placing it before the public is highly commendable. Handel's music still attracts and pleases. I. Cuthbert Hadden in his book, "Master Musicians," says that when Handel played "See the Conquering Hero Comes," to a friend, he asked for an opinion, and was told that it was not nearly so good as some of his other numbers. "No," replied Handel, "but it will live long after many of the others are forgotten," which has been verified. Beethoven said of him, "Handel is the unapproachable master of all masters. Haydns' verdict was that "Handel is master of us all." References in musical papers show that this work has been put on twice in the last thirty years, in Toronto.

If Peterborough can produce high class oratorio yearly, a record will be established that cannot be equalled in any city of its size in the Dominion.

ADJOURNED VESTRY MEETINGS

The adjourned vestry meeting of St. Luke's Church was held last evening when a large number of the congregation was present. In addition to the usual business transacted, a congregational re-union was also held and a short musical programme rendered. The rector, Rev. F. J. Sawers, occupied the chair and the meeting opened with prayer, after which the vestry clerk, Mr. R. B. Rogers, read the minutes of the last meeting. Mr. A. G. Carruthers, on behalf of the auditors, stated that they had found the financial report as presented by Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., late people's warden, to be a true statement of the finances.

Then followed the reports of the various organizations, read by the secretaries as follows: Woman's Auxiliary by Mrs. John Butcher, Ladies' Aid by Mrs. J. W. Hickey, Girls' Auxiliary by Miss Clara Adams; financial statement of Girls' Auxiliary by Miss K. Leary; Mission Band by Miss Lillian Rogers; Chancel Guild by Miss K. Leary; Men's Club by the Rector; Parish Magazine by Mr. P. A. Crane; Sunday school by Mr. Merton Adams; Primary Department of Sunday school by Miss Clara Adams; the font roll by the Rector on behalf of Mrs. Sawers; the choir by the Rector, on behalf of Mrs. Greenslade, and the Rector's Bible class by Miss Ella Curtis.

The Rector gave his own report, which was full of interest. He referred to the splendid financial standing of the Church as a result of the hearty support given it by the members. Last October there was an indebtedness of between $900 and $1,000 against the Church. At the present time it was in the neighborhood of two hundred dollars, a remarkable decrease for such a short while. A number of permanent improvements had been made both in the Church and the Rectory. Mr. Sawers also referred enthusiastically to the spiritual growth in the Church, for which there was reason for much thankfulness. He thanked the members of St. Luke's for the splendid support given him.

Votes of thanks were tendered the choir for their splendid services during the past year, the Sunday school teachers and officers, Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P. for his work in connection with the envelope system, the Rector's Bible class, the Ladies' Aid, and to Messrs. R. H. Turner, Merton Adams and P. A. Crane, for their work in connection with the Parish Magazine.

Following the business of the evening a short musical programme was given, including pianoforte solos by Misses Wilhelmine Gaskins and K. Leary, and a vocal solo by Mr. Maurice Park. Mr. Park sang in splendid voice, "Mother Machree," and so insistent was the applause, Mr. Park had to respond to an encore, singing "Believe Me of All Those Endearing Young Charms." Miss Leary acted as accompanist in her usual capable manner.

At the conclusion refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

At the adjourned vestry meeting of the St. George's Church last night, the financial statement for the past year was presented and was exceedingly satisfactory. Last Easter the new church was $114 behind in its current account and owed $470 on the church. At that time it was resolved that every member should rally to relieve the church of debt and as a result of their efforts the report last night showed that the church was entirely free from debt with a balance in the bank. The new church therefore commences the new year under much more encouraging circumstances than last year.

At last night's meeting plans to extend the church were considered, but decision in regard to this was postponed until a future meeting. The matter of providing men of the choir with surplices was discussed and it was agreed to purchase them as soon as possible.

At the adjourned meeting of the All Saints' Church Vestry Board last night, the auditors' report was presented and a few other matters of business were attended to. The rector, the Rev. R. B. Grobb, presided.

DR. TORRINGTON WILL BE HERE

The veteran conductor and pioneer of choral music in Canada, Dr. Torrington, is coming to Peterborough to-morrow to hear the St. George's Choral Society present Handel's great work, "Judas Maccabaeus." It is twenty-eight years ago since Dr. Torrington conducted the same work, and the score he then used he has kindly lent to Mr. R. J. Devey for to-morrow's event. He will be asked to conduct the final number, "Hallelujah."

REQUESTED TO PERMIT REMOVAL OF 8 TREES

City Engineer Parsons states that he has been asked by citizens for permission to cut down eight trees in different parts of the City. Many of the trees were planted too close to each other, and the removal of a few of them would be a benefit to the other trees. There are also some that are decaying. Mr. Parsons stated that he had not yet made a decision upon the trees in question.

Lindsay Firm Will Supply the Fittings For New City Office

A meeting of the Water Commissioners was held on Monday afternoon with Mr. T. F. Matthews presiding and Mr. R. Hicks and Mr. W. H. Moore present.

The following tenders were received for the fittings for the new Utilities Commission office in the City Buildings on Simcoe Street.

Office Specialty Co. $925.00
Lindsay Library and Office Fitting Co. 930.00
Peterborough Furniture Co. .. 950.00

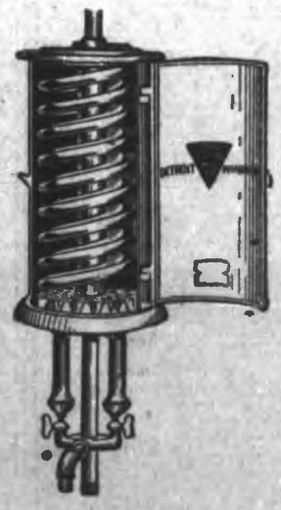
The All-Gas Kitchen



WHEN you come to think of it, about the only reason you keep your coal range in operation, especially in the summer time, is to furnish a hot water supply to the house. The all-gas kitchen is a luxury enjoyed principally in apartment houses. Yet it is just as possible for you to have an all-gas kitchen in your house and still enjoy an unlimited hot water supply.

THE AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER

furnishes hot water at every hot water faucet in the house without the slightest bit of attention. You don't have to light it or put it out. You don't have to go near it from one year's end to the other. All you do when you want hot water is to turn the faucet and it will be hot as long as it runs, even if you should let it run all day.

This sounds wonderful---it is wonderful. If you are from Missouri and want to know how the AUTOMATIC accomplishes this miracle, call at our salesrooms and see the AUTOMATIC in actual operation.

League Social Was A Success

250 Were Guests at the George St Church Last Night

A very successful Measuring Social was held by the Epworth League of the George Street Methodist Church last night in the Sunday school room of the Church. There were two hundred and fifty present and the receipts, which went to the Missionary Department of the League, were extremely gratifying.

The Rev. R. G. Peever during the evening gave a splendid address on Canada, and the musical programme was contributed to by the Misses McKee, who rendered a beautiful instrumental duet, and Mr. E. Hackett who gave a violin solo. Both of these musical numbers were greatly enjoyed. The remainder of the evening was spent in social pursuits, and refreshments were served towards the close of the entertainment.

The affair was known as a measuring social because the price of admission depended on the height of the person being admitted. All had to subject to being measured to satisfy the League authorities that they were not evading the proper charge.

SOCIAL EVENING TO THE GROCERS

The officers of the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association have arranged for a business and social evening at Coleman Bros'. Savoy Palm Room to-morrow, Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

Every grocer in the city is invited to be present, as well as some prominent grocers from outside points, and a pleasant and profitable time is expected.

The grocers form the largest section of the Local Branch and have during the past year accomplished a considerable amount of good, and a more friendly feeling exists between all classes of trade.

Fish Inspector Watt Has Two Assistants For Fishing Season

It is understood that Mr. John Watt has secured two assistants to help in the patrolling of the local waters during the fishing season, and particularly during the closed period. Mr. Jas. Windsor and Mr. Wm. Guerin are mentioned as the two officials who will assist the Inspector in the hunt for illicit fishers. The sucker season has already opened, and the 'lunge are beginning to spawn. Several reports have been received that the 'lunge have been noticed, and that the Inspectors have been working into the wee hours of the morning but no captures have been reported yet.

What Might Be Done in the Way of Distinctive and Appropriate Decoration--We May Equal, If Not Excel, Decorations of Fifty Years Ago.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Presently the call will go out that we do some forms of decoration in honour of the visit of the Duke of Connaught, the Governor-General of Canada, and the Princess Patricia. We have done some things in the past that have been creditable. Have we public spirit to do better. The impressions of a place, on such an occasion are wholly those that come from at best a hasty look. There can be no time for the royal visitors and staff to make even a general inspection.

After an interval of fifty-four years since the last royal visitor came to Peterborough we should do ourselves proud. What is done should be well done, even if there be not much of it. This with reference to public decoration. Private display will be made at the will of each citizen and may be relied on to be pretty general and in many cases elaborate and good. But our public duty should attend beyond the putting up of a few lines of streamers and flags. That is very well for a society reception but we want something distinctive.

The conspicuous features of the display at the reception to the late King, at the time the Prince of Wales were the fine arches erected. So far as I have been able to learn, in no town the size of Peterborough, and in few of the cities visited, was anything similar attempted. Four arches were put up. One in East Ward at the top of the hill, going up from thebridge. One about opposite St. John's Church, another at the crossing of Brock and George Streets. These were erected under the direction of the committee. That at St. John's Church was of the style of the Tudor times—two massive towers, crowned with battlements and pierced with narrow openings. The whole covered with evergreens nailed on the sheeting. The effect, when blazoned with many flags and banners was very fine. One gained some idea of what it meant to hang the banners on the outer walls. The arch in Ashburnham was of Roman style. Plain, massive, with the broad circular opening distinctive of this style of architecture a conspicuous feature. Trimmed in evergreens and decorated. Gothic styles; hexagon towers, pointed Gothic style. Hexagontowers, pointed arches, latticed windows, the whole thing realistic and striking.

Conspicuous by its simplicity, massive construction, and typical of the times and industries was the fourth arch, put up by the lumbermen. These men were giants, so to speak, in those days. The arch was piled, it was not built, at the corner of Charlotte Street and George Street. The lumber was furnished by Messrs. Snyder and Dickson, the stamp by lumbermen generally. The piling done by the artists from the mill yards, who could lay the boards to a hair. Mr. F. Shaw had charge of the piling and the whole thing was completed in fourteen hours. It was a triple arch, the lumber being piled so as to show three openings, the widest in the centre, and the curves resulting from skillful placing of the boards drew most complimentary remarks. On top of it were placed a couple of deer, on each side of these a bark canoe, and as the procession approached, twenty-five lumbermen, in red flannel shirts, with cant hooks and peevies were ranged on the sides of the piles. In addition to evergreens the decorations included many mottoes, such as "The Source of Our Wealth," and "Ships, Colonies and Commerce. There was neither nail or saw used in its construction, and after the celebration the material was drawn to the station and shipped as usual.

Can we not have a couple of arches, just to show the newer generation how their fathers did things. No doubt the lumber could be had for the trouble of hauling, and we have skillful pilers among us as yet. As for evergreens, the woods are full of them. Why not? We will move in the matter. Will the new Board of Trade, of young men, set about it? Let us have a few distinctive features that may be remembered because they are too good to forget, instead of a lot of smaller decorations, showy but lacking civic character.

Lindsay Dealer Found Guilty of Selling Fermented Cider

Lindsay Warder—On Friday Samuel Fusco, fruit dealer, appeared before Police Magistrate Jackson charged with selling fermented cider. He was represented by Mr. L. V. O'Connor. License Inspector Thornbury laid the information and had samples of the cider sent to the License Dept., Toronto, for analysis, where it was found to be of sufficient strength to cause intoxication. Mr. Fusco assured the Court that he bought the beverage from a Hamilton firm as sweet cider and had no idea whatever that it was of the quality the License Dept. declared it to be. Had he been cognizant of that fact he would never have sold it.

The Magistrate pointed out that the law had been broken and no other course was left open to him, but to impose a fine of $100. Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K.C., conducted the case in the interests of the License Dept.

It is understood that an effort will be made to have the Hamilton firm pay the fine imposed.

Music & Drama

MUTT AND JEFF IN PANAMA

The higest crowd of the season, an audience that packed every corner of the Grand Opera House last night, saw "Mutt and Jeff in Panama." The popularity of Bud Fisher's quaint creations was shown by the fact that many people were turned away. A feast of fun and music, pretty girls, brilliant costumes and effective scenery, the production was a hit from start to finish. The advantures of Mutt and Jeff kept the audience convulsed whenever the pair was on the stage. Jerry Sullivan, who has been seen here twice previously in the role of Jeff, was back once again and in his new series of mishaps is funnier than ever, while Earl Redding got all kinds of fun out of the part of Mutt. The musical numbers were tuneful and well rendered. Miss Flora Russell, a decidedly dainty little Miss danced and sang charmingly. Jethro Warner sang several numbers in magnificent voice. "If I Had a Girl Like You," "You'll Come Back to Me," and "Moon Beams" were among the most popular of the songs.

NOTICE.

In answer to Mr. Coombs' notice in Saturday night's paper, I, Harriett Coombs, wish to say that I never owed a dollar the four years I have been in Peterborough, although I had to keep Mr. Coombes and myself on five dollars a week, and a few potatoes, for nine months, and out of that I had to spend $1.25 a week on ointments for my two bad legs, and 25c. a week for insurance. So if I had wanted to run him into debt I should have had good reason to. It is nearly two months since I left his bed and board, and I wish to say that I am quite independent of him, as I am living with my two daughters, the fatherless girls that he wanted me to turn out out on the streets. Mothers who read this, what would you have done? I don't wish for any more of Mr. Coombes' insults about getting him into debt, as I never order a loaf of bread unless I have the money to pay for it, and if he is not careful I shall have him up for defamation of character, as he has no reason whatever for putting that in the paper only to insult me.

DEPUTATION WILL STOP OFF HERE

Lindsay Citizens Will Wait Upon Dominion Government to Urge Local Work

Lindsay Post: Indications point to the fact that a splendid deputation of citizens will accompany the town council to Ottawa on Wednesday evening when the heads of different Departments of the Government will be interviewed with a view to obtaining much needed works in Lindsay.

Those behind the proposition would like to see a deputation of forty or fifty on hand Wednesday evening at the C.P.R. station. The Port McNicoll train will be held until 6.30 o'clock, it is understood, and this will give those taking in the trip a few hours in Peterborough as the coaches attached here will be attached to the midnight leaving the Electric City. A sleeper will be attached here and if this accommodation is not sufficient another will be attached to the midnight.

Those who cannot possibly arrange matters so that they can catch the 6.30 o'clock train, may take the 9.30 G.T.R. train for Peterborough and have several hours in that City before the departure of the C.P.R. midnight train.

Let there be a big turn-out of citizens in order to impress upon the Cabinet Ministers the justice and reasonableness of the requests presented.

TURNBULL'S

Will Become Mistress Of Millions This Week

Interesting Story of the Girl Who is to Become the Bride of Vincent Astor, With a Fortune of One Hundred Millions.

WEDDING ON THURSDAY

BRIG.-GENERAL FUNSTON
Commander of the United States forces in Mexico now in occupation of Vera Cruz.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Upon a tall, fair-haired girl of twenty years, raised in the country and loving it, knowing little of society but destined to know much more, the eyes of the fashionable world are centred just now. She is Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, who this week is to become the bride of Vincent Astor, the head of the Astor family in America and the master of a fortune of nearly $100,000,000.

The bride-to-be of Mr. Astor presents a new perfection in type of the American society girl, having enjoyed the advantages of having been born and brought up on a country estate, as do the girls of the best English families. From childhood Miss Huntington has led an out-of-door life. At sixteen she was sent to a private school at Dobb's Ferry, not a great way from her home on the Hudson. After the first winter at school came instructive tours of Europe with her parents, two winter seasons in this city, where the family lived at the Ritz-Carleton Hotel, and sojourns at the country homes of friends and relatives during the summer, spring or autumn.

Miss Huntington came from a sturdy and athletic stock, and showed it as soon as she was able to run about. Her father, who was graduated from Yale in 1891, was tennis champion of his university, and before she was ten years old Miss Huntington began to take an interest in the tennis courts. She also, like most other girls brought up at country homes, became proficient in swimming while scarcely more than a child, and before she went away to the finishing school she was able to sail a sloop and to operate any motor craft, whether slow or swift. Since then she has on several occasions held the steering wheel of one or the other of Mr. Astor's swift hydroplanes, tearing up or down the Hudson river to the delight of those on trains or along the shore who may have been spectators. In learning to drive her own automobile she was aided by Mr. Astor, who has a thorough knowledge of motor mechanism in all its branches.

The marriage next Thursday will unite two of New York's oldest and best known families. Miss Huntington's maternal grandfather was William B. Dinsmore, who died in 1888 in his seventy-eighth year, leaving a large fortune to his children. His estate at Staatsburg extended over two thousand of the picturesque rolling acres between Staatsburg and Rhine beck. Eventually about five hundred acres of the estate came to Mrs. Huntington, and it is the Staatsburg of that property, overlooking the Hudson, Hopeland House, a large three-storey structure of red brick and standstone of Elizabethan design, was erected a few years ago.

Vincent Astor represents the fifth generation from John Jacob Astor, the founder of the great Astor fortune. He was a student in Harvard University—where his father had been educated—when Colonel Astor met his heroic and tragic death in the sinking of the Titanic in the spring of 1912. On November 15 of that year he celebrated his twenty-first birthday and came into complete possession of the Astor estate. He did not return to Harvard to complete his course, but decided to devote himself to the management of his properties. Since then, except for short periods when he has found recreation on board his steam yachts and power boats, or at the family country places, he has spent several hours each day in the offices of the Astor estate in West Twenty-sixth street.

Vincent Astor and his father were devoted, "more like chums than father and son," to use the words of a warm friend of each. It was logical, therefore, that he should follow in the footsteps of Colonel Astor in taking an active interest in civic matters and public movements. He was appointed to numerous public committees by the late Mayor Gaynor and has made it a rule to attend such committee meetings, especially when details of important public celebrations or charitable movements have been involved.

Mr. Astor was born in the old homestead at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, five months before his grandfather died and his father became head of the house. He was so frail a baby that only unremitting care kept him alive. His health improved as he grew to manhood, though even in recent years he has had several severe spells of illness and has never enjoyed what might be called rugged health. He normally looks more boyish than he is. He has his father's height but not his weight by forty pounds. He has not his breadth of shoulders by several inches, and the father's strong will and determination shows only in the son's chin.

UNION ASSOCIATION OPENS ITS SEASON

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 28.—The Union Baseball Association started its fourth season to-day, with all clubs playing at Ogden. Helena at Boise, and Butte in this city. Boise and Murray are new-comers in the association this year, taking the places formerly held by Great Falls and Missoula. The schedule this year has been split into two seasons, the first ending July 5, and the second on September 13. A total of 120 games will be played.

The lawn should be gone over and patched where needed either by adding manure to worn places and sowing grass seed or by adding rich soil and sowing seed on it.

CASE WAS DISMISSED

Charge of Disorderly Conduct Thrown Out by Magistrate

A local young man was charged in Police Court this morning with conducting himself in a disorderly manner on Sunday last, in East City. He pleaded "not guilty" through his counsel, Mr. D. O'Connel.

P. C. Reid was the first witness called for the prosecution. He stated that on Sunday last, at 6:40 p.m., he was coming west along Hunter street east, in company with Constable Paterson, when they heard a noise ahead of them. They got to the corner of Driscoll Terrace and Hunter streets, when they found defendant, and a gang of other young men, in a lot, at the corner of the streets mentioned. He ordered them all to go away, and make less noise, and all but the prisoner and another lad went.

He then advised prisoner to go also, and it is alleged that in reply, accused used indecent language. He was again warned to leave the lot, and replied that he would not, as it was his own property. The constable then got over the fence, and as accused later intimated, used a little gentle persuasion. After all had landed safely over the fence, it is alleged that prisoner said, that the two officers were like the rest of the Police force, no good.

Cross-examined by Mr. O'Connell. When you had ordered him out of the field, and he refused to go, what did you do?

I went over the fence, got hold of him, and assisted him over the fence.

Paterson was on the other side of the fence, I suppose?

Yes.

Waiting for him?

Yes.

And got him?

Yes.

The evidence of P. C. Reid was corroborated by P. C. Paterson, and concluded the case for the prosecution.

For the defence, accused was first called.

He denied most emphatically the allegations of the officers, although he admitted telling them that they were all no good, and using indecent language once.

Mr. O'Connell—I don't know what the officers want to do, stopping a game of innocent baseball on Sundays.

Chief Thompson—We are not in Quebec now.

Mr. O'Connell—I don't think it is right that the Chief should make any reflections in a public court against Quebec, which is a respected Province of the Dominion of Canada. Why, people here play golf every Sunday.

Chief Thompson—Golf is a game that is quiet, and golfers make their own laws.

Mr. O'Connell—It seems to me that there is a law here, for the rich, and one for the poor. Why those people are allowed to play golf on Sunday with impunity.

Several more witnesses were called for the defence, and contradicted the statements made by the officers. All stated that they were standing on the corner of the streets mentioned, and when they saw the officers coming, they went into the field, as they thought they would get moved.

One witness was asked by the Chief, if they had been talking about the case, to which a reply in the negative was given.

It is unfair, said Mr. O'Connell, of the Chief making an unjust suggestion against a respectable lad, and suggest that they were conspiring to commit perjury.

J. Huard, who lived on the estate of the accused, said that he had never been disturbed on a Sunday by the lads making a noise. His little boy, two years old, was playing with the rest.

They will be arresting him next, for disorderly conduct on Sundays, said counsel for accused.

Other witnesses for defendant would have been called had not Mr. Dumble stated that enough had been called. In dismissing the charge, he said that he thought the arrest was made, because the officers thought that the law was being broken.

The judgment in the cases of Parsonsons and Parkinson, was again reserved until the afternoon.

A man named Ashman was allowed to go after being charged with using bad language, after he had promised to refrain the guile from his lips, when he entered civilized communities.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, Parsonsons, Parkinson, and Donoghue, were each fined $50 without costs, with being found in a common gaming house contrary to the code.

It is understood the fines were paid under protest.

FRATERNAL DAY IS CRITICISED

Editor of The Examiner:

The proposal to hold fraternal day by the fraternal societies may be looked upon with favour by some at first sight. It appears to me, however, that the element of cohesion would be lacking to make it a success. Secret societies at best are wrong in principle inasmuch as whatever is good in them, is confined to their own few members, and not extended to the universal brotherhood of mankind. Let that be as it may, the objects of the different societies are at variance with one another and not along the same line of fellowship, and therefore with nothing in common among them.

To say that such bodies could fraternize is putting a wrong construction upon the word. One would suppose that we had enough holidays already without adding one more to the number with the possibility of more to follow. In Lower Canada their frequency deranges business. If royalty visits Peterborough, etiquette demands that they should be bored as little as possible, and if in addition, they are to be subjected to a review of all our societies on parade, as suggested, then indeed will their royal highnesses be bored to distraction. However impossible the project may be, I would rejoice at the sight of Protestant and Roman Catholic societies marching hand in hand in a common cause with brotherly love. By such a union of hearts, Canada with its wonderful resources can be made a valuable heritage, but if disunion is to prevail then indeed is our nationhood at stake. United we stand, divided we fall.

Sons of the orange and the green,
Too long, alas! You've striven,
Forget the horrors of the past,
Forgive and be forgiven.

Yours, etc.,
Canadian.

IMPROVEMENTS IN EAST CITY

There is a little bridge on the sidewalk on the west side of Mark Street, beneath which a diminutive stream wends its murky way. This bridge is now being removed—and not before it was necessary either, judging from the rotten state of the timber taken out.

The bridge in question will be replaced by a circular cement culvert and the sidewalk will be filled in and cemented. This will constitute an improvement here and the old familiar tumble down little wooden bridge will be relegated to the limbo of the past.

There are two similar foot bridges on the north and south sides of Hunter Street east; and it is to be hoped that they will receive the same treatment.

BRITISH VERSUS FOREIGN LABOUR

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—There are a large number of men in Peterborough, British born, among others who, owing to the general depression of trade were, more or less, out of work this past winter.

Many of these men, rather than apply to the City for charitable help, pinched or half-starved themselves and their families, hoping that when work on our streets was started there would be a chance for them to earn some money. But in this they seem to be largely disappointed, the choice for labour on the street work seeming to fall on the Italian, who will do a class of work Canadians prefer not to do and who, presumably get less money than the others would accept. These men live on very little. No matter what the contractors may say to the contrary—they declare that the Italians employed by them are only a few, who they take around with them—I am credibly informed that the proportion of foreigners is about four to one.

Many of the men who have failed to get work declare that as they are, either directly or indirectly, taxpayers and help in their small way to keep the City going, that if there be a slackness of work next winter, they will "go on" the City for charitable help, since the City's money goes into the hands of these Italians who spend but little in the place. The bulk of their wages goes over to their own land, a very small proportion is spent here, the balance being used as a nest egg to take them back to their own sunny climes.

Apologizing for intruding at such length on your valuable space, I am,

Yours truly,
An Englishman.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE COSTS NO MORE THAN "SOMETHING JUST AS GOOD"

Why Take Chances?

For a woman to adorn her head with false braids, puffs and rats, or a man to wear a toupee, is like buying an old-brand hair preparation instead of Newbro's Herpicide. The "false hair" and the "old brand" are both substitutes for the real thing. The original is always conceded to be better than any imitation or substitute. "Something just as good" is a heresy of the rankest kind.

Newbro's Herpicide is the remedy and does as promised. Years of success and thousands of satisfied users have made it standard. Herpicide destroys dandruff, keeps the scalp clean and stops falling hair. Its proper use before baldness appears makes false hair and wigs unnecessary.

Newbro's Herpicide is 50c. and $1.00 size is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Application may be obtained at good barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

Send 10c. in postage for sample and book on "The Care of the Hair," to The Herpicide Co., Dept. E., Detroit, Mich.

Fine Pitching Of Schettler And Tracey Results In Win For Yans Over Regulars

Fourteen Innings Game Ended in Defeat of the Regs Who Had Belting, Terrill and Sterling Pitching for Them --Keen Fight for Places Still Going On.

Special to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 27.—With Louis Schettler and Ken Tracey twirling in mid-season form, and the veteran Miller behind the bat, the Youngsters walloped the Regulars by runs to 5 this afternoon in a fourteen innings game. Both pitchers took advantage of the warm weather to put more on the ball than they have previously shown, and they cut loose with a repertoire of hooks that had the Regulars breaking their backs. Belting, Terrill and Sterling did the heaving for the Regulars with Ryberg as the receiving end of the battery. The teams lined up as follows:

It was a rattling good practice, and following the drill in the morning, made the day one of the most useful the Petes have experienced since coming here.

Manager Blount watched the game from the side lines, his place in centre field for the Regulars being taken by Gaffney, the young infielder from Cleveland. Gaffney is very fast and looks like a fair hitter. He will put up a good battle for a regular berth. The Youngster comes from a baseball family, and his father was a big league star. Schrage, who has been playing second base for the Yans has been hitting the ball hard and often, and will give the Regulars a real battle to keep him off the team. Rochford, who played short for the Yans to-day, is a Youngstown boy, and the only one of the local recruits left. He is only a kid, is lightning fast, and has a good arm, but lacks experience and hitting ability.

There are still some sore wings in the squad. Belting's arm has been giving him trouble all spring, but is fast coming around, and he will be hooking them in a few days. Terrill has also had a sore salary whip for some time.

With the opening of the season a little over a week away, Manager Blount finds himself with a squad in pretty fair position, and still scrapping for places on the line up.

In batting strength he seems to be well provided. With Schettler, Tracey, Cresswell, Sterling and Belting all going good the little manager has no cause to worry over his pitchers. He knows what Schettler can do, and the others have all shown him something in the workouts. It is likely that the five will be carried. The only anxiety over the catchers is to make the best selections. Miller, Ryberg and Kelly are all travelling nicely.

For the first base job there are four candidates just now. O'Hearn, Flanagan, Gorman and Freeman. The latter, a big Saginaw boy, would appear to have the edge at present. For the other infield berths, Byrne at third, Price at short, and King at second, have been kept regularly in these positions, but the way Schrage is stepping into the ball and handling himself generally, doesn't leave any of the trio with a feeling that his job is cinched. In the outfield, Blount will cover centre, and with Frank Fox showing speed and hitting ability, there is little doubt that right field will fall to the lot of the Buffalo boy. This leaves the outfield scrap up to Gaffney and Swarts for left field, unless Blount should try to make outfielders out of his surplus catching or infield material.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

TOLEDO DEFEATED OTTAWA.

DETROIT, April 27.—With young Butle flinging in rare style the Toledo Southern Michigan Club defeated the Ottawa team of the Canadian League by 3 to 1 this afternoon at Swayne field. Butle was opposed to Peterson and Kubat and had the edge all the way. The local twirler held the Canadians to three hits and fanned seven. The score:

Ottawa	010000000	1	3
Toledo	10020000*	3	5

Peterson, Kubat and Wagner; Butle and Hart.

Hamilton Spectator — President Garthwaite, of the Hamilton Ball club, received word at noon to-day from Harry Corns, the popular outfielder, to the effect that he had decided that he would not report to the Hamilton club this year. Corns intimated that he wanted more money in spite of the fact that he received a substantial increase this spring, when his contract was sent to him. He also said that the season was too short and that he could do better at his home in Boone, Iowa. The result is that the directors of the local club have decided to place him on the suspended list, although confident that he will come around before the season opens.

BRANTFORD, April 27.—It is rumoured that the Rube is lickering for three experienced fielders from St. Louis. The Rube is not at all satisfied with his present infield and he realizes that he must give the fans a good fast team in this city this year. If money can accomplish it, the Red Sox will have a faster team than has ever represented this city, but at the same time Deneau intends to stop within the salary limit.

CHILLICOTHE, O., April 26.—On a muddy field Chillicothe defeated London to-day 5 to 3. Beebe pitched for the visitors and did better work than the score shows. With one man out in the second inning Snyder threw high to Bierbauer on a double play, which resulted in three runs for the home club. London played a hard, uphill battle and tied the score in the sixth. The game was featureless owing to the condition of the grounds. The London club leaves to-night for Washington Court House, where they play four games next week. Word was received from Linneborn that he would report on Tuesday.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia American League baseball team, announced to-day the release of Jas. McAvoy, a catcher, to the Baltimore Internationals.

McAvoy played with the Berlin team of the Canadian League last summer and joined the Athletics at the close of the season.

(Toronto Globe)

To-day Knotty Lee's Beavers get into real action when they tackle the local Kew Beach nine in an exhibition game at the Island. This game, the first the local Canadian League squad have engaged in this spring, will give the management a chance to look over the ability of their aspirants.

Knotty Lee has gathered what appears to be a well-balanced outfit. He is not satisfied yet, however, and deals are now in progress for several new players. The entire squad has not reported as yet, but the remainder are expected in this morning. Pitchers, Kirley and Schwab and First Baseman Schneider are those expected to make an appearance to-day.

Following is the complete roster of the Beavers, all of whom will be seen in action at the Island Stadium this afternoon: Catchers, Burns and Trout; pitchers, Schaeffer, Hitchcock Auld, Schuck, Hubbard, Kirley and Schwab; first base, Schneider; second base, Wildman; shortstop, Orth; third base, Isaacs; outfield, Burrell, Killain, Schults and O'Hara.

The Kew Beach nine will be selected from the following: Chandler, Hickey, Williams, Burridge, Taylor, McGraw, Cain, Smart, Ross and Weaver and several others. The game will commence at three o'clock, with Frank Hallihan as umpire.

OTTAWA, April 27.—Manager Frank Shaughnessy, in a letter to the club headquarters from the training camp at Chatham, made known Saturday the personnel of the squad he would retain for this season in the Canadian Ball League. He has released Pitcher Kohl, of Cleveland; Pitcher Jones, of Woodstock; Pitcher Newman, of Toronto, and Outfielder Rose, of Montreal.

Lage and Wager, the latter having been secured from Fort Wayne, will be retained for catching, while Rogers, Hall, Shocker, Kane and Kubat will form the pitching staff. Rogers will share the fielding work with Powers and Shaughnessy, while not in the box, while the infield will consist of Dolan, first; Smykal, second; Spicer, short; and Bullock, third. Tesch will be farmed out to one of the Michigan clubs, while Fried will be kept for utility work in the infield.

The Ottawas had so many players available that they sent Fried his release after signing him up, but he refused to accept it, and reported at Chatham at his own expense. He worked hard in the practices, and will be retained. The Ottawas may yet get Pitcher Bramble from Fort Wayne, but Shocker and Hall look so good that Shaughnessy is not worrying. The Senators play at Toledo to-day and to-morrow. They return to Chatham Wednesday, and will remain there until they open the Canadian League season against the St. Thomas team, on Thursday, May 7. The local season will be started with the Torontos as visitors on Thursday, May 14. His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught will attend, if in the Capital for the occasion.

THE CANADIAN LEAGUE SECURES CLASS B RATING

TORONTO, April 27.—President J. P. Fitzgerald, of the Canadian League, has succeeded after a prolonged fight, in getting class "B" standing for the Canadian League. The announcement came this morning from Secretary Farrell, of the National Association. This decision is of most vital importance to the Canadian League. Aside from the fact that it gives the league a much better standing in the baseball world, it means the raising of the salary limit for players and also that major league clubs drafting players from the Canadian League must now pay $1200 instead of $750, the price of the draft from a class "C" league. The rating is only granted for the year 1914, but there is little doubt that the rating will be made permanent after the annual meeting of the National Baseball Association in Omaha next November. The class "B" rating was refused by Secretary Farrell, on the ground that the last federal census did not warrant granting the Canadian League this status. Technically he was right, the census is the official record of population, but since the last census there has been more than sufficient increase in population to justify the change. President Fitzgerald appealed to the National Commission and made out such a strong case that the commission referred the matter back again to Mr. Farrell with a recommendation that the class "B" rating be granted for 1914. The announcement of the favourable decision was received this morning. President Barrow, of the International league, and President McCaffery, of the Toronto club, lent strong assistance in securing the elevation.

The above announcement, sent out from Canadian League headquarters at Toronto, will prove one of the most welcome pieces of news handed out since the Canadian League was organized. When the Canadian league dropped Guelph and Berlin and embraced Erie and Toronto, it was decided to apply for class B rating, making the league one of the most formidable organizations in the minors. Little trouble was anticipated in securing the required rating with the result that the club owners were dumbfounded when the application was turned down on the grounds that the population of Toronto could not be included in the population figures given for the league and also that the combined population of the other seven cities, taken at the last Dominion census in 1911, did not give the league the required population. It was pointed out by the league officials, however, that the various cities in the league had grown very materially in the last couple of years and that according to the present population figures the league had more than the required population. It was also pointed out that under the rules of the National Association the Canadian League would not be able to secure Class B rating until the year 1921 unless the National Association undertook to recognize the population figures as given by the assessment departments in each city. A second application to the National Association, was turned down and then the League through President Fitzgerald, carried the matter to the National Commission, with the result announced above.

President Fitzgerald's announcement comes in the nature of a splendid victory for him after a long, hard fight with the odds all against him. Few of the experts were willing to concede the league a chance to get the required rating after Secretary Farrell's recent decision, but a little common sense and a plain statement of conditions backed up by splendid help from President Barrow, of the International League, turned the trick. President Fitzgerald is to be congratulated.

The death occurred very suddenly yesterday of Mrs. John Bickell of this City, who resided at the corner of Benson and Wolsley Streets. The late Mrs. Bickell was taken ill only a few days previous to her death and her illness was not thought to be a serious one. Moved Vote Of Censure On Government

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., April 25.—In the British House of Commons to-day Austen Chamberlain bitterly assailed the Government and moved a vote of censure for the Home Rule policy. "The Government's policy is criminal," he declared. "The Minister's statements simply conceal their plans." The Government was admittedly deeply concerned over developments to-day. Reports from Londonderry stated that a huge cargo of arms had been landed early this morning at Donegal despite the vigilance of the police. This indicated that the Nationalist volunteers are also getting well armed. In the Commons this afternoon Asquith said the report would be investigated. While Asquith was being plied with questions by the Unionists relative to the movements of troops, Will Crooks, labour member, said: "Is it wise to reveal the movements of the troops to His Majesty's enemies." This caused an imense uproar and it was a long time before order was restored. Finally the debate on Austen Chamberlain's censure motion was proceeded with.

LONDON, Eng., April 25.—The second cabinet meeting within twenty-four hours for the discussion of the Ulster situation took place this morning, although the Government have already begun to set additional forces of law at work. The police in outlying Ulster districts have already been reinforced and instructed to search all automobiles and to arrest the occupants if any are found carrying arms.

Lloyd George's budget statement has been postponed till Monday.

$775 For The Loss Of His Right Eye

Chancellor Boyd awarded damages amounting to $775 to Samuel Althouse for the loss of an eye while employed by the Ontario Rock Company at their quarries in Belmont Township. Painiff on Sept. 9th, met with a serious accident by which he suffered the loss of his right eye. The action was brought under common law, as well as under the Workman's Compensation Act.

F. D. Kerr represented Althouse, and Beatty, Blackstock and Co. for the defendants.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKET

(Special to A. H. Stratton & Co.)

NEW YORK, April 25.—(Closing letter.)—There were several spurts of bullish activity during late afternoon, but stocks were supplied on advances in sufficient quantity to check enthusiasm, as it was conceded that the market should not advance too far lest it should prove vulnerable to attack on the steel quarterly figures. Steel common was rather sluggish and sentiment was not very bullish in any quarter.

Lichenstein, the Chicago operator, was said to have covered a large line of stock during the day, his covering being one of the causes of the rally in Can. Pac.

Rubber was relatively stronger than Goodrich, selling to 56, where it showed a gain of 2 1-4, while the latter gained only a point by selling up to 98 3-4.

The stocks were helped by expectations of a big demand for automobiles, and Studebaker advanced 1 7-8 on anticipations regarding the automobile indications.

Can. Pac. was well bought on the rise by Montreal.

Reading was well taken by the room traders.

Crop outlook in the wheat belt exceptionally favourable.

The advance in Leigh to-day showed the existence of large short interests and it argued that if the railroads obtained rate increase the dividend on that stock might not be reduced.

The announcement that arguments in rate case would close Friday encouraged the hope of a decision within the next two or three weeks.

Sales—413,368.

Steel report—Earnings of the United States steel, $17,944,381. Regular dividend declared on the common and preferred.

Charged With Fraudulently Getting Goods

A local woman was charged before Magistrate Dumble this afternoon with obtaining goods at Reid's clothing store for the value of $37, under false pretences. She pleaded not guilty and elected summary trial.

Crown Attorney Wearing conducted the prosecution. Accused was not defended.

Gillespie Stewart stated that the accused purchased these goods from the store on March 23rd and 24th, respectively. They comprised a $19 hat, a suit, a waist, a pair of gloves and a belt, in all amounting to $36.40. Of this amount $4.40 was paid. The day before Easter accused phoned to the store and asked that she could have the goods out of the store, and send the bill to her father in Buckhorn.

Subsequently the bill was sent to the man mentioned, for $33, on the following Saturday, and on Monday, witness telephoned to the man, father presumptive of the accused, and mentioned that he had forgotten to enclose the account for the hat, which was an additional $17, making a total of $50.

The Buckhorn man said that he did not know who it was that billed him. It could not have been his daughter, he said, as she was at home.

Witness then heard that the defendant was leaving town and got busy, whence the prosecution.

Miss May Wilson, saleslady in Reid's store, corroborated the evidence of the former witness.

Magistrate Dumble held that the case was proved but allowed the woman to go on suspended sentence.

The defendant had settled the bill as soon as the case was brought on.

Special to The Examiner:

DENVER, Colo., April 25.—Governor Ammons to-day declared all the Northern Colorado coal fields in a state of martial law and has issued a call for volunteers for the state militia. It is stated that five strikers and three mine guards were killed this morning in fighting around Walsenburg. There has been some hitch in the despatching of Federal troops to strike the zone and Ammons decided to enlist every possible man for service in the state militia. There have been numerous desertions in the militia already under arms, the men declining to serve against the striking miners. The whole country is in a reign of terror.

INQUIRY IS DENIED

Mr. Hanna Replies Angrily to Mr. Bowman's Charges

"PERSONAL PERSECUTION"

TORONTO, April 29.—The dying days of the session of the Legislature were marked yesterday by an acrimonious debate arising out of Charles M. Bowman's formal charges against Provincial Secretary Hanna and the demand for a royal commission to investigate the conditions surrounding Inspector Snider's visit to Welland during the Scott Act elections.

At a late hour last night the debate concluded, and on a division the motion for an inquiry was defeated.

The charge which Mr. Bowman preferred against Hon. Mr. Hanna was, in brief, that he and the organized liquor interests through their representatives had agreed that the Government or one of its officials should take steps to procure the defeat of the Scott Act in Peel, Welland, and Huron Counties, and that the visit of License Inspector Snider to Welland just prior to the election was in fulfilment of that compact.

In conclusion it was charged that the Minister had "illegally, wrongly and corruptly intervened, interfered with and influenced voters."

Mr. Bowman declared that the liquor interests had decided that the Scott Act, which was likely to became popular in the province, should be defeated, and accordingly raised $60,000 to defeat it. They supported Government candidates in bye-elections and promised support in the general election. It was agreed with the Government that the act should be defeated jointly, and the statement as to weaknesses prepared by the Government was issued with that intention. It was prepared in a conference of liquor interests with license authorities.

In beginning his brief reply, Hon. Mr. Hanna said that this "last act in a splendid drama," although called a discharge of duty by the Opposition, was not so in the minds of the people who had observed affairs of the last eight months, both in and out of the House. Some would term it the "worst example of personal persecution that they had known in the annals of the province." He would speak however to the House and to the province with confidence and show that as far as the charge concerned him the conditions in the province and the constituencies gave them a complete lie.

On the 22nd day of this month the member for North Bruce, under the guidance of his leader, had made a statement and motion, dealing with the same episode. Not a new tittle had been added here, nor a circumstance that was not challenged then. When the matter was disposed of some gentlemen were ashamed of their course and two or three were members of the Opposition.

"While my name did not appear in that statement, it was to me, and at me," declared Mr. Hanna. "I made a complete statement, absolutely true from start to finish, and meant to be full and fair and frank. That statement was accepted by this House, this province, and the press outside of those too tightly bound to ties of party."

"This," he declared, "is the best living example of peanut politics that the province has yet given."

"I am going to say this, that from one end of the province to the other, and without qualification or reservation, and I care not what test may be applied, what I said was absolutely true. (Applause.) Every charge of alliance between the Government and the liquor interests was untrue, and every one imputing wrong doing on his part was untrue. No matter the language used, it was untrue."

Mr. Hanna then reviewed the attacks on his Department and the charges of an alliance with the liquor interests.

"There is no such bargain and never was such bargain, and as to $60,000, I know absolutely nothing, but when they speak with such certainty they will doubtless be accepted as authorities."

Mr. Rowell contended that the Provincial Secretary had failed to meet the motion. His hon. friend had referred to the conditions existing in Huron and Peel, and had suggested that this answered the charges.

The public wanted to know if when Mr. Snider went into the ridings; when he represented that he came from the Department of the Provincial Secretary, when he went there with all the weight and prestige of the Government and sought to influence temperance Conservatives to defeat the Scott Act—did he go there of his own mind or at the request of the chief of the Department of the Provincial Secretary? Upon that question they had had no light, and the only way they could get that light was by the granting of the motion.

Mr. Rowell then quoted a letter which he had received from a prominent Conservative, at one time a Liberal, Mr. Charles Steel, reeve of Port Colborne. In his letter Mr. Steel called for the dismissal of an official who sought to interfere in a local election, and offered to testify at an enquiry.

Aged Emperor's Health Satisfactory.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A Vienna cable says: Dr. Joseph Kerzl, Emperor Francis Joseph's physician in waiting, has written to a friend in Budapest scouting the alarmist reports for the Emperor's health. He concluded: "So far as any human being can foretell, the danger is past. There is nothing radically wrong with the Emperor."

BROKE OUT ON HEAD, NECK AND SHOULDERS

In Little Blotches. Scratching Caused It to Spread. Hands Had to Be Tied. Cried Day and Night. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Bathurst, N. B. — "The trouble started when my baby was four months old. Her head, neck and shoulders were a mass of sores. They broke out at first in little blotches; only watery, which the child scratched and caused to spread and form a mass of sores. Her hands had to be tied to keep her from scratching the sores. The eczema caused her to itch and burn and to be cross and peevish. She was disfigured for the time she had it. She cried day and night from the irritation. Neighbors said she would never be cured.

"She was given some medicine to take inwardly but without success. Then a friend told me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I did. I washed the child with Cuticura Soap, dried well, then applied the Cuticura Ointment every day and in a week's time the burning sensation left, the child scratched no more, and when she was eleven months old she was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. John J. McCann, Nov. 27, 1913.

Although the Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most successful in the treatment of affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands, they are also most valuable for everyday use in the toilet, bath and nursery, because they promote and maintain the health of the skin and hair from infancy to age. First Steps Taken to Secure Peace in Mexico

WAR PLANS GO FORWARD

WASHINGTON, April 29. — The Mexican crisis is now centreing on the issue between those who are seeking, through the good offices and intermediation of Latin-America, to find some middle ground for pacific adjustment, and those who regard a resort to arms as an inevitable consequence of what has occurred.

Throughout the day two distinct branches of activity were manifest here—that of the envoys of Argentina, Brazil and Chile, in formulating a plan of adjustment to be submitted to the United States and the Huerta regime, and that of the military and naval forces of the United States, which continue to go forward steadily in preparation for any eventuality which may develop. The arrival of Gen. Funston and a brigade of 5,000 troops at Vera Cruz, was one of the notable military developments of the day.

Chief interest was directed to the sessions of the South American envoys, lasting through the day and late into the evening. The meetings are held at the Argentina legation, where, seated about a long mahogany table, the three envoys deliberated much as an international court would weigh a case of supreme importance pending its decision.

At the White House President Wilson and his Cabinet advisers held a lengthy meeting, devoted chiefly, however, to the Colorado situation, although the Mexican crisis continued in the foreground. To a large extent, however, it was felt that the Mexican situation was now before those who had undertaken to exercise their good offices, and care was taken not to embarrass the efforts of the envoys by any announcements of conditions of settlement which the United States would insist upon. A spirit of optimism over the progress of the negotiations was distinctly apparent in executive quarters.

TROOPS GO TO SCENE.

U. S. Federal Forces Will Restore Order In Colorado.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—On the urgent request of Governor Elias M. Ammons of Colorado, President Wilson yesterday ordered Federal troops sent to the scene of strike disorder, and issued a proclamation directing all persons "engaged in or connection with said domestic violence" to retire peaceably to their homes on or before April 30. Secretary of War Garrison at once directed the 2nd Squadron, 5th Cavalry, at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, under command of Major Lucius R. Holbrook, to go to Trinidad, Colo., and troops E. and H, 12th Cavalry, at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyom., under Major Nathaniel F. McClure to Canyon City, Colo. These troops, which will go out without their horses, will arrive probably some time to-day.

The President made it plain in his proclamation, and in a long telegram to Governor Ammons, that the Federal Government was taking no sides in the dispute. The proclamation enjoins "good citizens of the United States against aiding, countenancing, sheltering or taking part in such unlawful proceedings."

BYE-ELECTIONS LOOM UP.

Liberal and Unionist Seats Opened Up by Deaths.

LONDON, April 29. — The death yesterday of W. E. Harvey, the miners' representative from Northeast Derbyshire, creates a vacancy in the Parliamentary representation of Northeast Derbyshire. The late member's majority was 1,759 over Dr. Court, local Unionist, who has several times contested the seat. The bye-election will be rather piquant. Harvey joined the labor party, but supported Barnet Kenyon, in the neighboring Ilkeston division, who is now classed as a Liberal.

Both sides in Grimsby are unprepared for an election through the death of Sir George Doughty. Sir Berkeley Sheffield is spoken of as the Unionist candidate. The Grimsby contest is certain to be a momentous one. The Radicals already are prophesying the winning of the seat, seeing that Doughty had a peculiar hold on the constituency's favor which another Unionist is unlikely to maintain.

OFFER TO CARSON.

Churchill Invites Him to Submit a Federal Scheme.

LONDON, April 29. — Much interest has been created by a new offer to Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, made by Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the course of a speech in the House of Commons last night. The Minister invited Sir Edward Carson to make an attempt to compromise the Home Rule question on the federal basis.

Mr. Churchill is reported to have spoken entirely for himself and without the authority of the Cabinet. Many of the Liberals are indignant at him for taking the course he did, contending that it will only be interpreted as a sign of weakness on the part of the Government. John Redmond, in an interview, said he did not understand there was anything new in Mr. Churchill's offer, but that if anything came of it he was ready to exert himself to placate the Ulstermen and reach an honorable settlement of the question.

The view of the Unionist leaders here is that Mr. Churchill's offer must have been debated in a Cabinet Council held earlier in the day. They believe it entirely changes the situation and improves the prospect of an agreement being reached. Andrew Bonar Law, the Opposition leader in the House of Commons, is said to be ready to renew negotiations with Premier Asquith if the Government will take the initiative.

Dissension in Government Caucus Over C. N. R. Aid

RESOLUTION IS DRAFTED

OTTAWA, April 29. — The much discussed Canadian Northern aid proposals which have been the subject of negotiations for some months have been placed before Parliament in the form of a notice of resolution in the votes and proceedings to-day. Premier Borden will move that the Government be authorized to guarantee the bonds of the C. N. R. upon certain terms contained in the resolution.

The contract of the Government with the C. N. R. was submitted to the Conservative caucus and ratified by all but two members—R. B. Bennett (Calgary) and W. F. Nickle (Kingston).

The resolution will probably come up on Thursday. It is in brief:

(1) Provision is made for guaranteeing the bonds to the amount of $45,000,000 which, with the other assets now available, is considered sufficient for the completion of the company's lines as a transcontinental system, which will comprise nearly 10,000 miles of railway.

(2) The company's stock issue at the present time amounts to $145,000,000, of which about $138,000,000 is held by Mackenzie and Mann, Limited, and $7,000,000 by the Government. The total capitalization of $145,000,000 is reduced to $100,000,000, of which the Government receives $33,000,000 in addition to the $7,000,000 already held, or $40,000,000 in all. On the other hand the stock holding of Mackenzie and Mann, Limited, namely $70,000,000 of C. N. R. stock and $68,000,000 in the subsidiary companies, or $138,000,0000 in all, has been reduced to $60,000,000, that is to say a total reduction of $78,000,000.

(3) Mackenzie and Mann, Limited, have absolutely released all claims against the C. N. R. and its various subsidiary companies for any services which they have performed during the past eighteen years, or since the inception of the enterprise.

(4) The Government receives security by way of mortgage on the C. N. R. lines in three prairie provinces, comprising about 5,000 miles. This is the most remunerative portion of the company's system.

(5) In case any portion of the 45 millions to be raised by the Government's guarantee should be applied in completing or improving any of the company's subsidiary lines, such company must also execute a mortgage for the protection of the Government for the amount so expended upon such company's property.

(6) The reduction of the stock issue from one hundred and forty-five millions to one hundred millions, has been accomplished by having all the stocks of the various subsidiary railway companies, of the terminal companies, telegraph, express and elevator companies as well as the steamship company, transferred to the C. N. R. so that the Government holding forty millions out of one hundred millions of C. N. R. stock, has a corresponding interest in all these companies. The interests of Mackenzie and Mann, Limited, which owns the townsites, which holds very valuable real estate in the three prairie provinces, has also been pledged to the Government as security.

(7) In order to ensure that the forty-five million dollars to be raised by the Government's guarantee shall be applied to the completion of this transcontinental system, and to no other purpose, the Government has made provision for the most thorough and strict stipulations in the trust deed, so not one dollar of the moneys so raised can be appropriated or diverted to any other purpose.

(8) As the company, outside of the amounts owed to contractors which are very large at the present time, owes about fourteen million dollars of temporary loans, raised by the pledging of securities which have not been sold and which hitherto have not been saleable at reasonable figure, and as the company has also a floating indebtedness of between ten and eleven millions of dollars, the Government have stipulated that Mackenzie and Mann, Limited, shall give absolutely satisfactory security that both the temporary loan and the floating indebtedness shall be paid off by them without recourse in any way to the moneys which are to be raised by the guaranteed securities for the completion of the road.

(9) Provision is made that all traffic arising on the C. N. R. system shall be transported over Canadian lines, and if for export shall be conveyed to Canadian ports. In this respect the Government has exacted a strict covenant which admits of no evasion.

(10) Provision has also been made for interchange of traffic between the C. N. R. system and the I. C. R.

(11) The provision is made for inspection by the Government officials of books, reports and other records of the C. N. R. and its subsidiaries at any time.

(12) Provision is also made for the appointment by the Government of a director upon the board of the C. N. R. and each of its subsidiary companies.

(13) It is provided that all the lines comprising the C. N. R. system shall be subject to the legislative jurisdiction of the Parliament.

(14) In the event of any default by C. N. R. or any of its subsidiary companies in meeting the interest or principal due upon any securities issued by such companies, the Government may dismiss the directors of all such companies and appoint others who will have power to transfer the road to any company formed for the purpose, and thus obviate long foreclosure proceedings.

(15) The Government agrees that, for three years after the opening of the through line, the Government, if requested by the company, will pay the interest on the forty-five millions guaranteed, but the interest so paid must be repaid with interest from time to time.

Can't "Hoot" In Poetry.

The science student was giving a criticism lesson in English literature. The class was reading Gray's "Elegy." A verse was read aloud, and the student made desultory remarks and asked vague questions, growing every moment more bewildered. The phrase was read, "The mournful owl does to the moon complain," "Now, what does that mean?" asked the harassed student. No replies "Hoots, of course," he said, "only they couldn't say 'hoots' in poetry, so they had to put it in a roundabout way."

Driving Men From the Table.

Baptista Porta gives six processes for driving hearty eaters from the tables of great men. The most effective was to give them an hour before eating a glass of wine medicated with bella donna, so that attempts to masticate would occasion spasms of the jaw. The most disgusting was to set before the gluttons viands sprinkled with dried horses' blood and pieces of catgut. He says, "If you cut harp strings small and sprinkle them on hot flesh the heat will twist them, and they will move like worms."

Check those Colds in the Head with FOSSAL BALM

As you know, "catching a cold" simply means allowing the germs of a cold to catch you.

Usually these germs, which abound wherever people congregate, gain their first foothold in the mucous membrane lining the nasal passages. Here they multiply if unchecked, and quickly set up an inflammation. Then follows that smarting, burning, stuffed up, "headachy" feeling—that cold in the head that is so depressing and so likely to develop into something more serious.

Fossal Balm goes right to the spot, kills the germs and checks the cold. Fossal Balm is an antiseptic, healing ointment, put up in a collapsible tube with a long, nozzle-shaped opening. This little nozzle, inserted in the nostril, carries the Fossal Balm well up into the passage, where it quickly spreads over the inflamed membrane, destroys the germs that are causing the trouble, soothes the irritation, clears the passages, and gives grateful and lasting relief.

Get a 50c tube of Fossal Balm from your Druggist or write for it direct to us. National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal.

DISHES OF THE PAST

ANCIENT COOKS MAKE OUR CHEFS LOOK SMALL.

The Wonderful Feast of Lucullus at Which Six Maidens, Dressed as Nymphs, Floated In Boats on a Lake of Wine Is Still Unparalleled In Our Age of Vaunted Magnificence.

In this era of the high cost of living it is interesting to turn backward the pages of history and see what some of the world-peoples of the past placed on their tables.

We know that bread was the earliest cooked food. Sometimes it was made of flour produced by crushing acorns, but more often it was merely the crude mixture of Egypt called "kuscoussoo," and consisted of flour and water cooked together in a basket over boiling water.

The fact that though the children of Israel had been mere slaves in Pharaoh's land they were always pining for the fleshpots of Egypt speaks pretty well for the Egyptian food. The cabbage was one of the favorite foods and was so highly esteemed that it became an object of worship.

The cookery of ancient Greece was very simple, although at one time the Athenians knew 72 ways of making bread. The Athenians were criticised by their Roman neighbors for their frugal fare, and to "live like an Athenian" was a term of reproach, a contemptuous way of telling a person he was stingy. In Sparta abstemiousness was carried still further, and a traveler who had tasted the "black broth of Sparta" said he could understand why the Spartans were so fearless of death, since any one in his senses would rather die than continue to live on such execrable food.

The Greeks, nevertheless, raised cooking to a fine art. In a fragment of an old Greek comedy a cook is introduced who boasts of cooking a fish so deliciously that it returned admiring glances from the frying pan. At any rate, at the time that Greece was conquered by Rome the Grecian cooks were considered among the most valuable plunder carried back to the Eternal City.

Though the Romans captured the Grecian cooks the simple cookery of that country was poorly suited to the taste of the conquerors. The time when "a consul could dine on a roasted turnip" soon passed, and the extravagance and gluttony of ancient Rome have never been equaled in the world's history. Some of the Romans were as cruel as they were gluttonous. To give fowls a more excellent flavor Pollio had them fattened on the flesh of his slaves.

Lucullus once gave a dinner under a wonderful circular tent constructed for the occasion. A lake of wine occupied the centre and six maidens, dressed as nymphs, floated on the lake in gilded boats, serving the wine from golden ladles. Eighteen hundred kinds of meat, fish, and vegetables were served at this banquet, which lasted 40 hours. A small dinner which this famous epicure served for Caesar, Pompey, and himself cost $5,000; but even this extravagance was surpassed by Vitellius, whose daily marketing averaged $15,000. At one of his banquets 2,000 of the rarest fish and 7,000 of the most curious birds were placed before his guests. In four months he spent over $20,000,000 for his table.

The more costly the dish the more did it appeal to the high liver of ancient Rome. Tongues of nightingales, brains of peacock, roe of the rarest fish, and brains of humming birds were used at their feasts. Dormice, cuttlefish, and hedgehogs were considered delicacies, especially when served with a sauce made from honey, rue, pepper, assafoetida, and an oil made of decomposed fish.

A mixture of courtly ceremony and barbaric manners marked the table customs of the middle ages. Forks were not used till the 17th century. They were brought to England from Italy and were not popular for some time. Englishmen spurned the use of the fork as being unmanly, and spoons and knives were considered equally unnecessary, for soup could be swallowed from the bowl, and the thumb was a perfectly good tool to use in buttering one's bread.

The common people ate their food from wooden trenches or boards, but the baron and his guests used trenchers made of pewter or precious metal. Earthenware plates were not in common use till the 17th century. After the feast an alms dish was brought and the chaplain received the broken bits of bread and meat for the poor under the direction of the almoner.

There was great extravagance. At a feast given by Edward IV. in 1476, 62 cooks were employed, and among the things which went to make this "royal feed" were beeves cooked whole, mutton, antelope, venison and 24 kinds of birds, including both tame and wild ones. Among the birds mentioned were larks, pigeons, pheasants, and peacocks.

In Chaucer's time there was especial extravagance at court. Richard, who was called "the best and royalest viander of all Christian Kings," occupied the throne, and as 10,000 persons were daily fed from his kitchen it required the killing of 500 sheep, 28 oxen, and fish, game and poultry in prodigious numbers for each meal.

When Puritanism came in the swans, boars' heads and peacocks vanished, as did the rich pastries.

In the feudal times nine-tenths of the meat was chopped and pounded with a pestle and mortar before serving, and in this way it could be eaten with very little need of knife or fork. A dish used during the reign of Richard II. was called "Cokagrys." The recipe for preparing it was elaborate. A rooster was stuffed with pig's liver minced and seasoned with pepper, cloves and cinnamon. Then a pig was skinned and stuffed in the same manner. The two were then fastened together and parboiled and then roasted, being basted meantime with egg seasoned with saffron.

Moving Picture Films.

The average life of a film is eight months. If the stock (celluloid) on which it is printed is poor or an incompetent operator mishandles it during projection it may be utterly worthless after four months owing to scratches and bad joins. With careful attention it may be in constant use for twelve months.—London Globe.

Good Eye Water.

The best eye water known to oculists for the treatment of sore eyes or lids is made by mixing ten grains of boracic acid and five grains of tannic acid with one dram of camphor water and enough ordinary water to make a total of one ounce. The ingredients are cheap, purchased from the apothecary, and you can prepare them yourself if you care to.

A CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

Tortured Four Years Until He Took "Fruit-a-tives"

RIDGETOWN, ONT., May 21st. 1913.
"Your "Fruit-a-tives" cured me of Rheumatism. It was the only medicine that made any impression on me. I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism. I was laid up for four winters with Sciatica and Muscular Rheumatism, and was a cripple completely, not being able to do anything. I doctored with four different physicians, but they did not help me. Other advertised remedies were equally unsatisfactory, and I have taken several.

Some neighbor of mine told me that "Fruit-a-tives" helped him, and I took them faithfully every day and the result was marvellous. For over two years now, I have been free from any Rheumatic pains whatever, and give "Fruit-a-tives" the full credit for making a remarkable cure".

If you are subject to Rheumatic Attacks, Sciatica, Lumbago or Neuralgia, take "Fruit-a-tives" right now and start the permanent cure which "Fruit-a-tives" will complete if taken faithfully. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. THE CUP THAT CHEERS.

Tea Has Its Perils No Less Certain Than Those of Alcohol.

The gentle cup of tea, the cup that cheers but not inebriates, comes in for castigation on the charge that it, too, intoxicates. The mildly exhilarating effects of tea drinking may account for the growing popularity of tea rooms, where men as well as women find relief from care and a relaxation of nerve. In some sections John Barleycorn is feeling the inroads of the tea habit.

But tea has its perils no less great than alcohol, for, unlike alcohol, it has no feeding properties whatever, but acts purely as a stimulant, its effect in this respect being due to the alkaloid called theine which it contains.

You, who have sounded all the moods of fragant, soothing, tea, may declare that it satisfies hunger just as the scientific sharps have declared regarding alcohol taken in modern quantities; but as a matter of fact there is no nutriment in it whatever.

Theine, when taken by itself, stimulates the circulation of the brain, but not appreciably that of the heart, and thereby lessens the sense of hunger. It is said that this stimulation is not followed by a corresponding period of depression.

One of the marked characters of tea is the tannin contained in it. Indian tea has about twice as much as the Chinese growth. It has a marked effect on the digestion, even in the presence of other fluids. In all cases it retards the digestive process to an extent that would astonish those who have not inquired into the matter; and it has been recommended that a pinch of bi-carbonate of soda should be added to the brew of persons with weak digestion so as to make the infusion alkaline.

The tea habit can be carried to the same disastrous extent almost as is possible with alcohol. As a matter of fact, in Russia, where tea drinking is a fixed national custom, there have been cases of intoxication from this source of such frequency as to divest the cases of any novelty.

If one finds the bi-carbonate of soda distasteful another way of obviating the pernicious effects of tea is to take it not with, but several hours after, meals, when the digestion is fairly complete; and, in this particular, the English habit of "5 o'clock tea" is to be commended.

STRAY TOPICS FROM LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 25.—In the whole list of men and women who grace the American stage there are no two who enjoy more popularity among playgoers than John Drew and his charming niece, Ethel Barrymore. Consequently their joint tour this spring is looked forward to with delightful anticipation, in the past twenty years Miss Barrymore and Mr. Drew have never failed to see each other act in the plays performed by each other. But as actor and actress footlights have always intervened between them when they have been present in the same theatre. Now Mr. Crohman has arranged for them to appear together in Sardou's "A Scrap of Paper," beginning their season at the Empire Theatre in this city on May 11.

Old-time playgoers in the metropolis have learned with regret of the death of McKee Rankin in San Francisco. Many years ago Mr. Rankin and his wife, who died several years ago, were prime favourites in this city. They were truly actors of the old school. Their greatest successes were in plays having to do with a romantic and picturesque side of life on the western frontier, such as "The Danites" and "The Golden Giant." The Rankins appeared in the initial production of "The Two Orphans" in this city. At the height of his success Mr. Rankin built the Third Avenue Theatre, which had among its opening attractions such famous players as Joseph Jefferson, Clara Morris, Richard Mansfield and J. K. Emmet. In later years the bulk of Mr. Rankin's fortune was swept away in unsuccessful ventures. The Rankins were the parents of three girls, all of whom married well-known actors—Gladys, the eldest, becoming the wife of Sydney Drew; Phyllis, the wife of Harry Davenport, and Doris, the youngest, marrying Lionel Barrymore.

A novel and remarkable feat of removal involving the transportation of two completely equipped canning factories from Brooklyn to the bleak shores of distant Kamschatka, a peninsula of the Siberian coast, is being carried out by a New York company, in an expedition which is now under way and scheduled to arrive at its destination early next month. The acknowledged supremacy of the United States in the salmon industry has long been a source of envy to the Russians and Japanese, but hitherto they have been content with their primitive and inefficient methods of packing the fish that have left them behind in the world's markets. Some time ago two delegations from the Orient visited the Pacific coast of the United States with a view of finding some method of cheapening the cost of preparing salmon for the consumer, hastening the packing during the season, and doing away with the salting of fish which was required in packing them in barrels, and which made them far less palatable. As a result of the visit the Brooklyn firm received an order for two complete canning factories.

The first national exhibition in this country of the wood-working industry of America will be held in the Grand Central Palace next month, under the name of the Forest Products Exposition. In addition to the general display of the forest products of the country special exhibitions will show the various manufacturing processes and the machinery used in the affiliated trades. One of the most important exhibits will be that of the United States Forest Service. The Government display will include fire towers, equipment stations, models, wood utilization and distillation, paper pulp plants, and conservation methods. Lumbermen's associations and other organizations in Louisiana, New York, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, Minnesota, Illinois, Pennsylvania and several other States are co-operating in the enterprise.

Brokers who seek other ways of making a living in hard times are not the only young men in New York whom the dancing craze has put on their feet, literally and figuratively. Students at some of the colleges and universities have found in the feminine desire to dance a more or less profitable mean of earning money. Most women want to dance nowadays, and out of this has grown the demand for the paid escort, who recently has become a noticeable feature of social life. At a dance which takes place at the end of the week in an uptown hotel the dancing men present are mainly the husbands or relatives of the members of the club. But these could not be dragged away from business for the mid-week dance, and as the women were determined to have partners they cast about for them. One suggested that college students might fill the bill. The experiment was tried and was found successful and not expensive. It is said these partners receive $1 or $2 each at the end of the dance.

The annual parade of New York's "finest," otherwise the police parade, is always well worth seeing. This year the parade is to have several added attractions. In true circus style the street parade will be followed by the big show which will have nearly all the attractions usually seen under the big white tents with the exception of the menagerie. The show will take place on the broad plaza in front of the Public Library. Here the city officials and thousands of citizens will gather to see athletes in wrestling matches and other forms of gymnastic exercises. The wrestlers and tumblers will be probationary men of the police department. They will show what they have learned in the School of Recruits. In addition to the physical tests the programme will include exhibitions of ladder scaling, of the humane method of handling prisoners, and of line formations.

Was Confined To His Bed For Four Months With Rheumatism.

Mr. W. H. Riley, Ruddell, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure that I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with rheumatism. I was so bad with this terrible disease, I was unable to get up from my bed for four months, and nothing seemed to relieve me until a friend recommended Doan's Pills. I had my doubts about them, but was so desperate I would try anything suggested to me. After taking half a box I was able to get up, and after taking two boxes could get around quite well. After taking six boxes I was completely cured, and able to work for the first time in five months, and have not had a touch of rheumatism since. Anyone who saw me then would not know me now, as I am strong and active since taking your valuable medicine."

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, and thus clean out the kidneys, and dispel the rheumatism from the system.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Sage Tea Darkens Hair To Any Shade

Don't Stay Grey! Here's an Old time Receipe That Anybody Can Apply

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, grey hair to its natural colour dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant. For sale by Warne Drug Co.

HER SHOPPING BAG.

Around the house she's neat as wax and everything in its place;
Each chair is standing where it should; of dirt there never is a trace.
Her clothes are neatly hung away instead of being strewn around—
She says if things are rightly placed they're always easy to be found.
She's orderly in everything, and of it is inclined to brag;
But gee, you ought to see the junk
she carries in her shopping bag!

She says she cannot understand why people are so awful slack
In slinging everything around, and why such tidiness they lack.
She knows where every dish should go, and where the towels ought to hang,
And if there's anything misplaced, it gives her nerves an awful pang.
Her brooms are found in just one spot,
so is her mope and dusting rag,
But gee, you ought to see the truck
she carries in her shopping bag!

She's always plumb distracted if she sees a picture hung askew,
And if her spools of thread get mixed it makes her mad and nervous, too.
By day or night she'll place her hand on any article she needs—
To have things in the proper place has always been one of her creeds.
If someone sets a chair awry, then how she'll jaw and scold and nag,
But gee, you ought to see the stuff
she carries in her shopping bag!

Her sewing basket's neat as wax—there's not an article misplaced;
If she should find things jumbled up,
she'd surely think she'd been disgraced.
She never leaves a garment hung upon the back of any chair;
She always hangs it on its hook, then when she wants it it is there.
She's tidy in a thousand ways, and of it is inclined to brag,
But gee, you ought to see the junk
she carries in her shopping bag!

To Wash Irish Crochet.

Before putting in water, lay flat on ironing board and draw the exact outline of piece to be washed. Then wash the lace as you would a handkerchief. Starch in a very thin boiled starch, then pin to the pattern you have on the board, stretching as you would a lace curtain. Cuffs that are fastened together stretch over a bottle with a cloth around it. Bags stretch over a roller towel folded to the right size. Every little knot stands out more prettily than when new if kept till thoroughly dry before removing.

VALUE OF RHEUMA FROM THE COURT

Judge Barhorst Was Relieved of Rheumatism After Doctors Failed

If you have tried many other remedies and doctors' treatments for Rheumatism and found they failed, do not be skeptical about trying RHEUMA. Read the testimony of Judge John Barhorst of Fort Loraine, O.:

"After treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previously, I was a cripple, walking with crutches."

Such testimony should be convincing, 50 cents of Warne Drug Co., guaranteed.

THE MILITANT SUFFRAGETTE.

Whenever I read of the militant suffragette
I think what a shame women should forget
That they are women, they should know
How to use their brains in a way to show
That they can prove in every way
How to hold their own in questions of the day.
That they have brond intelligence to use
By not trying to WIN their rights by abuse.

In England they fight in a vulgar way
Like a lot of roughnecks when they feel gay,
Burning and destroying valuable property.
Acting against the law and the powers that be,
Throwing down the barrier of sacred womanhood,
Thrown into jail which does more harm than good,
Raising old Nick upon the streets most every day.
These kind of women HAVE no rights no way.

The English authorities dont know what to do,
They certainly are in an awful stew
Between the militants and dear old Ireland
They have to go some each and every man.
They ought to send the militants who get gay.
To our fair Canada to stay a few days.
They would be wiser when they got back there.
Our intelligent women won't stand for nonsense here.

We ought to be proud of women here,
They are fighting for their rights square and fair.
With them it's business and they are bound to win,
They go after it right and with a vim.
They use their brains, but never to abuse,
It is diplomacy and tact that they always use.
I believe the day is not very far away
When our women will vote on election day.

NEWS OF THE WEEK FROM LONDON, BERLIN, PARIS AND PEKIN

LONDON SEES BRILLIANT SEASON WITH OPENING OF THE ROYAL OPERA

This Event Is the Signal for the Starting of a Round of Important Events—One of the Most Remarkable on Record Was the Underground Party Last Week at Welbeck Abbey.

AMERICANS GATHERING FOR THEIR "INVASION"

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 25.

THE season, which is likely to be brilliant, made an early commencement with the opening of the Royal Opera House on Monday—an event which is the signal for a round of important fixtures. The King and Queen were absent in Paris, but they have subscribed for the season, and the royal box frequently will be lent to members of the royal family when the King and Queen are not present. The King prefers his usual corner in the royal omnibus box on the pit tier.

There is some talk of a gala performance for the King and Queen of Denmark.

The court will be in residence at Buckingham Palace in May, and great state ceremonies are to mark the presence of the King and Queen of Denmark.

The Royal Academy opens at the beginning of May and is an event influencing the movements of many county families who time their arrival in town for the private view. In fact, the season opens on Monday with the prospects offering every element of success if the political horizon clears and no untoward happening intervenes.

Never before has the month of May bid fair to be of such exceptional brilliance. With a ball given by Lord Curzon on May 4 at his fine house in Carlton House Terrace for Lady Irene Curzon's début, when the King and Queen will attend and dance, the season will be fittingly inaugurated. Lady Irene inherits the good looks of her late mother, who was the famous Miss Leiter.

The Duchess of Devonshire also announces a royal ball at Devonshire House on May 14, when the King and Queen will attend.

Duke's Underground Ball.

The most interesting event of the week was at Welbeck Abbey, world famous for its vast underground apartments, which will be the scene of a memorable ball in celebration of the coming of age of Lord Titchfield, eldest son of the Duke and Duchess of Portland. The Duke of Portland already has made public gifts, including recreation grounds in Nottinghamshire, to the amount of $150,000 to commemorate the coming of age and his [illegible] wedding. There were 1,400 guests, including Prince Alexander of Teck, who is stopping with Lord and Lady Galway at Serlby Hall; the Duke and Duchess of Rutland, Lady Diana Manners, Lady Salisbury, Lord Cranbourne, Lady Mary Cecil, Lord and Lady Henry Cavendish-Bentinck, Lord and Lady Desborough, Lady Monica Grenfell, Marquis de Soveral, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mildmay and Comtesse de Baillet Latour. Many from the neighboring barracks and camps of the Sherwood Rangers, the South Notts Hussars and the Derbyshire Yeomanry made bright military display of variegated uniforms in the dancing in the wonderful underground picture gallery, which is described as the largest and most magnificent private room in England.

All the subterranean marvels of Welbeck Abbey were due to the eccentric fifth Duke of Portland, who was consumed with a passion for privacy. From his succession to the estate to his death, in 1879, he spent $35,000,000 in creating new wonders at Welbeck.

The guests arrived at the main entrance of the abbey and were conducted through the underground corridors to the picture gallery, which was specially decorated in pink. The prevailing tone of the chairs, divans and settees was pink and gold, harmonizing with beautiful flowers from the Welbeck conservatories, including pink carnations, pink roses, pink tulips, pink azaleas and ping rhododendrons.

Great palms hid the orchestra, and all the underground passages were draped in green baize and tapestry. Underground apartments which ordinarily are storerooms were converted into comfortable smoking rooms and richly decorated in rose. A corridor one hundred and fifty yards long was arranged as an out sitting room under the supervision of the Duchess. Here, too, pink prevailed, with exotic plants lining the corridor.

Supper was served in three underground rooms and plate and other gifts to the Duke of Portland and Lord Titchfield were used at the supper.

Salmon Fishing on the Tay.

The Duke and Duchess of Bedford and Lord Tavistock continue to enjoy wonderful sport in the River Tay. They captured thirty-six salmon in three days, the best catch being that of Lord Tavistock, who had eleven in one day, totalling 162 pounds, two of them weighing twenty-eight pounds. The Duchess landed seven and the Duke five in one day.

The manager of the Adams Express Company, which is closely in touch with Atlantic passenger traffic, said it was impossible at present to say confidently that Americans will be more numerous this year than usual.

"Bookings from America are large but nothing wonderful," he said.

On the other hand, Cook's reports from the American branches already indicate that there will be a considerable increase over last year's traffic.

Opinion is largely divided on whether Americans will make a longer stop in London than they used to. Those who are travelling independently often put in two or three weeks, but they are a law to themselves.

Conducted parties, which travel according to a schedule, which may include half a dozen places in England and twice as many on the Orient, are still compelled to hustle, as they rarely pass more than forty-eight hours in the British capital.

A BRITISH STATESMAN FOR AMERICA

THE STATUE OF CHATHAM TO BE PLACED IN WASHINGTON

This statue of the great statesman who opposed the War of Independence and did his best to stop hostilities was commissioned by American women resident in London to celebrate the approaching peace centenary between the United States and Great Britain. It has been offered to the Congress at Washington for erection there.

"White Wolf's" Brigand Band Sacks, Burns and Murders and Laughs at the Troops

China Is Terror Stricken by the Ravages of the Most Desperate Outlaw That Has Looted Communities Since Days of the Taipings—Peking Powerless to Stop Outrages.

LEADER A BRUTAL KING WHOSE WORD IS LAW

(Special Dispatch.)

PEKING, April 25.

DEAD men, women and children, a wide swath of smouldering embers, a string of ruined cities bathed with the tears of thousands, are being left in the wake of the fast moving brigands commanded by the now notorious "White Wolf," a more brutal, bloodthirsty band than any that has menaced China since the days of the terrible Taipings.

"White Wolf" is no stranger to the Chinese, though he has not risen to wide-world notoriety till recent months. He has long been a terror in the region of North Hupeh and South Shanshi, mostly confining his attentions to robbery under arms and the holding up of Chinese villages remote from railway communications and garrisons of troops, not murdering for pleasure, but killing when necessary, to obtain the wherewithal for his band to live and enjoy life.

Troops that have been sent against him have failed entirely in their campaigns, the mountain paths, the difficult passes and the local knowledge of the bandits always combining to bring about their discomfiture. The peasants and the townspeople in the region ultimately abandoned attempts to capture the band and compromised with it by agreeing to pay regular sums for immunity from ravages.

"White Wolf" was the king whose word was law. Peking had no terrors for him and meant nothing to the unhappy farmers, who found it much more profitable to pay "White Wolf" to leave them alone than to pay the government to protect them. Government influence and authority thus lapsed and the brigands were eventually left to act upon their own sweet wills in a large area, the government being content to permit them to conduct themselves as they would so long as they did not overdo the thing by coming too far east into regions where their deeds would find chroniclers in the press and thus bring discredit upon the government.

His Savage March.

He burned village, town and farmstead, massacred inhabitants without let or hindrance, and when the newspapers began to report the terrible outrages then the government awoke to a sense of its responsibilities. An army of from 30,000 to 40,000 troops was sent out fully equipped for war. They are alleged to have hemmed "White Wolf" and his followers in the Anhui mountains; florid reports of desperate battles poured into Peking; telegrams chronicled the daily slaughters of hundreds of brigands, and eventually the generals in command announced that the end was about to arrive—"White Wolf" and his bandits were tightly held and the gallant troops were about to descend upon them and wipe them from the face of the earth. A battle was fought; despatches arrived in Peking declaring the break-up of the desperadoes, and the country was told to be at peace—the soldiers had triumphed!

One day later telegrams arrived from a different section of the country announcing the sacking and burning of another city. "White Wolf," far from being cornered, was more alive than ever. He turned westward again, recrossed the railway and proceeded back to his fastnesses. Peasants were pressed into the service of his men to carry the loot they had collected. If they faltered they were shot dead in their tracks.

What happened in one or two centres will suffice to show the methods of these savage men. At the walled city of Kuangchow they were expected for many days, and the brave among the 100,000 inhabitants mounted the walls armed with knives and cudgels to keep a look out for an advancing horde. The inhabitants paid little attention to the people who entered the gates, but had they done so it is probable they would have discovered spies of the "Wolf."

Loot and Murder.

Hundreds poured into the city disguised as farmers, and many mounted the walls to help the citizens discover the first coming of the brigands. A signal from the distance showed them that the leader and his followers were arriving, and in compliance with an arranged signal the brigands within commenced firing on the populace when the brigands without opened their attack. The gates of the city were thus kept open and resistance was useless, the bravest of the citizens having been killed before they knew where they were.

As "White Wolf" approached the gates the cry went up:—"Old White Wolf is in. He is going to kill the rich and save the poor. All keep indoors and you will be safe." The wealthy donned ragged clothes and sped to the houses of the poor; women and girls, terror stricken, crept beneath beds, hid under straw and farm produce or ran to commit suicide in wells or water holes.

In the wild terror of the firing in the city and the screaming of the fleeing people the bandits arrived from without, firing on all who ran, killing all who carried even a stick or who wore fur or silk clothes or who locked their doors or who looked like soldiers. More than ten thousand were killed within a few hours; all shops were looted of everything valuable, houses were ransacked and the valuables were placed upon the backs of their owners, who were compelled with a rifle to carry them. Women and girls of all ages were attacked or killed for resisting.

A boy bandit of fourteen killed many persons in the streets. One citizen who had been defending the wall was returning home, his long knife in his hand. "Drop that knife," called the boy. The man refused, and a second later he was dead. The boy killed right and left. One man was fired at and fell wounded. His groans were silenced with bricks, but he still lives. The Mayor of the city hid beneath straw under which a youth already was hiding. Brigands shot into the straw, killed the youth, but missed the father of the city. He crawled out, donned poor rags and stood as a gatekeeper, thus escaping to write a poem of warning on the event.

Missionary Victims.

At the city of Luchchow the brigands repeated what they had done in dozens of other cities, but in addition killed and molested foreign missionaries. They attacked the city after midnight, burned houses on the outside of the walls, and either an escape the garrison or had a previous arrangement with it, that the gates were opened for them. Colonel Chin, in charge of the troops, shut, cutting off his top hoots to the stride and calling to the people that each man must care for himself. The missions were besieged with the terrorised populace, the screaming and noise of the firing and murdering and burning being heartrending. At the mission hospital the brigands fired on the entrance, against Mr. Froyland, Mr Holland and Miss Istad, and demanded rifles and ammunition. On being told that the foreigners had no weapons the brigands demanded watches and silver, and possessions of this kind were freely handed over. Mr. Sama came from the house hoping to get the bandits to release the other three missionaries, but he was shot down for his pains, and his associates were prevented from assisting him. Taken into the street the three missionaries were met by large numbers of brigands, who cried out "Foreign devils! Foreign devils!" and pointed rifles at them threateningly, but they were allowed to pass, still being held prisoners by other bandits. Later Mr. Holland was requested to doctor a wounded brigand and became separated from Dr. Froyland and Miss Istad. He was kept at the brigand headquarters, where loot was being carried all through the night, the brigands as they came in recounting with glee the horrible orgies in which they had partaken. Without any notice the brigands left Mr. Holland next morning and he returned to the hospital. Dr. Froyland and Miss Istad had also been requested to look after wounded brigands at another place, and Dr. Froyland was busy with such work when he was accosted by a brigand who asked who he was. In reply to the statement that he was a physician the brigand retorted, "You a physician!" and shot him dead.

Mr. Sama, though lying in bed wounded, was threatened by several brigands, as also was Mrs. Sama. Other missionaries had narrow escapes, but all eventually got away, having lost all their valuables and drifted down the river to safety with the blazing city behind them.

ODDS AND ENDS GATHERED BY OUR SPECIAL EUROPEAN CORRESPONDENTS

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 25.

PROFESSOR BERGONIE, of Bordeaux, according to the Lancet, has invented an electric bed in which the passage of the current through the body of the subject sets up organic combustions similar to those brought on by muscular exercise and leads to reduction of obesity. Professor d'Arsonval has recently communicated to the Académie des Sciences the results of Mr. Bergonié's studies by means thereof on the energy of the organism.

In this way he has been able to note the periods when the energy required for digestion is at its greatest. He has discovered that the least suitable hours for meals are between noon and one P. M., and between seven and eight P. M.—that is to say, precisely those hours which Europe modern usage has set aside for meals.

According to Mr. Bergonié the ideal would be as follows:—The principal meal of the day should be taken at half-past seven A. M., or as soon after as possible, so as to obtain all the necessary energy for the day's work and to restore the liver, emptied by the night's abstinence. A second meal of 200 to 400 calories, for which a luncheon of milk, sugar and cake would suffice, should be taken about four P. M. Finally, a third light repast of 700 to 800 calories at half-past eight or nine P. M would complete the alimentary régime.

Mr. Bergonié adds that in a family which has accepted his views this régime has been followed for six years and has furnished excellent results as regards the general health of all the members.

WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

(Special Dispatch.)

PARIS, April 25.

MME. VICTOR HENRI, a woman bacteriologist, has made one of the most important discoveries in that branch of research for many years.

She has succeeded, by subjecting bacteria to the action of ultra-violet rays, in creating a new species, causing a new disease, from a species already known. The experiment was made with the anthrax bacillus, which was transformed from a rod shape into a spherical one, and was injected into guinea pigs. The new bacillus caused a slowly developing disease, differing in every respect from anthrax.

Mme. Henri deduces from her discovery that the law of evolution applies to bacteria as to other living organisms, and she thinks that the multitudes of existing species may have come from a few primitive forms which, under the action of light, underwent numerous transformations and engendered a multitude of varieties responsible for diseases known to science.

Particulars of the discovery have been communicated to the Académies' audiences by Dr. Roux, the director of the Pasteur Institute.

The members of the academy are unanimous regarding the great importance of the discovery, not only from a practical standpoint, as showing the way to efficacious treatment of a malignant disease, but also as opening up an entirely new field for investigation in the history and evolution of the many species of bacteria and the diseases due to them.

CHEER UP IF YOU ARE BALD READ THIS

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 25.

DR. [illegible]HILTZ, of Mayence, predicts an epidemic of female baldness.

If women persist in wearing the present type of headgear they may look forward to possessing heads almost entirely devoid of hair.

The outlook is a depressing one for every one except those engaged in the manufacture of wigs. Women, however, may console themselves with the thought that, serious though the outlook may be, it is by no means hopeless. Mr. David Nicol, the well known hair specialist in the Haymarket, states that although baldness among women is on the increase, the careful woman may reasonably expect to keep her locks for many years.

Hats which cover the head and prevent ventilation, the nervous strain experienced by women who earn their own living, the use of badly made hair frames which exclude air, and the use of cheap Oriental hair are all cited as reasons which cause baldness.

A Paris doctor states that men are frequently more bald than women because they they wear hard, heavy hats, cut their hair too short in summer and winter and eat more than women. But even if the worst happens there is hope for the bald. A doctor of Budapest claims to have discovered a method of planting hair in the scalp. The operator uses a number of quill tube hooks in the eyelets of which a double hair is inserted. A special needle pushes these into the scalp and the hair is left under the skin, fastened by the outstanding end of the hook. Three to four hundred hairs can be "planted" at a sitting, and forty-five to forty sittings are required for a completely new head of hair. As no information is available as to the feelings of the "patient" when he comes to consciousness.

WOMEN DOCTORS MUST NOT MARRY

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 25.

THE London County Council has decided that women doctors must retire from its service if they marry. The question arose on the appointment of three women doctors to the public health service. The Council in such appointments insists that women shall resign on marriage, and a similar condition was included in the case of the three new appointments.

Mr. E. Smith said that the best women workers were married. The census returns showed that there were large numbers of married women teachers and nurses who were rendering signal public service and against whom no fault could be found. It was wrong and improper for the London County Council to attempt to impose a restrictive condition.

Mr. Gordon pointed out that the Council insisted charwomen should resign on being married, and the same policy should apply to women doctors. The encouragement of the wife working system resulted in lowering wages.

Mr. Easton expressed the clear opinion that when a women married her place was at home, and she should stay there to look after her family.

Miss Adler and Miss Wallas, both progressive members, supported the amendment. Miss Wallas urged that the Council needed women of experience, and Miss Adler said it would not only be wise to have married women doctors but also married nurses. Women could organize nowadays, as there was no great fear that wages would be reduced.

Lady St. Helier, the only woman member of the municipal reform party, took a view directly opposite to that of her two progressive colleagues. The council allowed women teachers to marry, but she declared she was convinced that no woman could do her duty to her home and family if she had to work at it.

The voting was 59 for the amendment and 52 against. Hence the women doctors will have to leave the service of the Council if they get married.

Soap as Test of Clean Nations Not Recognized by the Critics

Mr. George Bernard Shaw Attacks Traditional Standard and Makes Characters in His Novels Call the English a Dirty People in Their Habits.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 25.

A RECENT return on soap consumption among the nations invites the question, Is two pounds of soap sufficient to keep a man clean for a year? This is the amount a unit consumed in Russia.

The list of soap using countries is headed by the United Kingdom, with twenty-one pounds an individual; the United States comes next; Russia is last.

Even if the soap bill is a true test of a people's personal cleanliness it is an invidious task to tabulate the dirtiness of nations.

Mr. George Bernard Shaw makes Louis say in "Man and Superman," "Every Jew considers in his heart that English people are dirty in their habits."

It is a familiar fact that in the English lower middle classes, and on occasion among the lower classes, soap is regarded as a sort of charm. It is used on the face very much in the same way as the holystone on a ship's deck. A red and polished face is a proof that it has been well and truly laved. There need not be much cleanliness about this method, and perhaps the large consumption of soap in England may be due to a wasteful use of it.

In "Arms and the Man" Mme. Petkoff complains of her "usual sore throats." Major Petkoff replies:—

"That comes from washing your neck every day. All this washing can't be good for the health; it's not natural. There was an Englishman at Philippopolis who used to wet himself all over with cold water every morning. Disgusting! It all comes from the English; their climate makes them so dirty that they have to be perpetually washing themselves.

"Look at my father! He never had a bath in his life, and he lived to be ninety-eight, the healthiest man in Bulgaria. I don't mind a good wash once a week to keep up my position, but once a day is carrying the thing to a ridiculous extreme."

Cold and warm climates seem to have little to do with the matter. The Arab's morning ablutions are a religious ceremony, and hygienically thorough.

G. B. S. once more speaks of English "shirts daubed with starch as a symbol of cleanliness." "We shake our heads at the dirt of the Middle Ages, in cities made grimy with soot and foul and disgusting with shameless tobacco smoking."

LONDON IS CARING FOR ITS WAYWARD CHILDREN

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 25.

A MOST dashing experiment in the manufacture of small saints out of young sinners has just begun to succeed in a surprising degree. The place of the experiment is a Dorset farm given by Lord Sandwich—who has recent fame as a faith healer—to his nephew, Mr. George Montagu.

Small criminals, both boys and girls, are sent to this farm, where they are taught to govern themselves in their own Parliament and their own law courts. Some most sternly just judges have been discovered. The effect of self government has proved an almost instantaneous cure in some recent instances. For example, an ill dressed and dirty boy was forcibly clothed at the expense of the community, and the scheme proved so successful that he worked like a Trojan till he had paid back to the Poor Law guardians the cost of his outfit.

Again, it was decided by the manager that the boarding expenses were too high. A council of boys and girls at once sat on the subject. They decided to buy margarine in place of butter, and by cutting down here and there they soon reduced expenses to the proper margin, to their own great delight and the benefit of the community.

The first year of this "Little Republic" concludes in June, and the success has been so striking—in the opinion of the police court missioners and others—that a great effort is to be made to extend the Republic.

THE NEW GERMAN ARMY REGULATIONS

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, April 25.

THE semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung states:—The newly prepared instructions regarding the use of weapons by the military and their co-operation in the suppression of internal disturbances will shortly be communicated to the troops. These instructions, drawn up by the Prussian Ministry of War, have received the assent of the Federal States concerned and of the Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

According to the new instructions, the military are given a sufficiently free hand for the carrying out of their tasks and the maintenance of their prestige. On the other hand, the possibility of a conflict between the civil and military authorities on the occasion of intervention by the latter is obviated.

The first section of the new order deals with the use of weapons on the individual initiative of military persons. This section contains fresh provisions pronouncing the right and obligation of military persons to use their weapons in so far as may be requisite for the removal of any obstacle placed in the way of their official activity or in order to ward off day attacks on military persons or military property. Cases of the use of weapons are included in this section, and one provision recognises the right of a soldier to use his weapons to repel attacks on the honor of himself or others.

The second section deals with the employment of the military for the suppression of internal disorders and the execution of the law. It is laid down that when the military are called in as auxiliaries by the civil authorities the direction of the measures to be taken rests alone upon the military commander until such time as order has been restored. The third section regulates the independent introduction of the military in the case of war or martial law and in cases of State emergency.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Tactful Maid

Mrs. Williams glanced up from the letter she was reading, uttering a sigh of dismay.

"What is the trouble, dear? Anything wrong at home?" asked her mother.

"I just knew something would happen," replied Mrs. Williams.

"Are the children ill?"

"No, they're well from all reports. Nothing is wrong except the fact that George has planned an awful surprise for me. Out of the goodness of his heart he had the house redecorated during my visit here." said Mrs. Williams' mother. Most husbands are not so considerate. Why, your father wouldn't have known whether the wall paper in the parlour was green or blue; he never took any notice of such things except, of course, to pay the bills."

"I just dread to enter my own "home," wailed he younger woman. "George has about as much knowledge of interior decoration as an infant—even less, because sometimes I suspect that he is colour blind."

Mrs. Norris pondered over the situation for a moment. Then, resuming her crocheting, she advised her daughter not to show her distress at first, but to admire the whole decorative scheme and then by degrees to change it.

"Oh, I'll be the personification of tact. "At any rate, the paper in my bedroom couldn't be any worse. It was on the wall when we moved in, and often I've said to George, "Isn't that wall covering artistic?" just to see if I could talk myself into enduring the sight of it. But no, I hated it more very minute."

Three days later Williams met his wife at the depot, giving her a hearty welcome. "You'll never believe that I, a manufacturer of sausage casings, could have such novel ideas," he exclaimed with pride. "I told the decorator not to interfere, as I knew your likes and dislikes. The dining-room, perhaps, did not come out so well and we may have to do that over. It seems the pattern was meant for the bathroom."

Mrs. Williams gave a silent prayer of thanks.

"Are those new shades?" she asked.

"Yes, indeed," said her husband. "I selected lavnder because I remembered that lavender was your favourit colour. Everyone stops to look at those shades."

"I don't wonder at it," murmured Mrs. Williams.

Betty and Bobby greeted their mother effusively and in her happiness at seeing the children she failed to notice the colour scheme of the entrance. But when she reached the parlour she asked as calmly as possible: "George, where did that paper come from? I never saw any like it."

"Oh, I ordered it from New York," said George. "Doesn't that green background with those splashes of yellow and those bluebirds and red flowers harmonise well with your mulberry furniture?"

"Oh, mother, come and see your room," whispered Bobby. "It's a surprise."

Mrs. Williams hastened from the parlour as quickly as she could. A surprise the bedroom certainly was, for staring at her were life-size portrajts of her grandparents, parents, a spinster aunt and a third cousin. There was now no need to worry about moving the paper, because the pictures covered every available bit of space.

"Father knew you'd be overjoyed," exclaimed Bobby.

"Yes, my dear," interrupted Williams. "I bogged those pictures from the different members of your family. They were very decent about giving them. Aren't those gold frames handsome?"

"You didn't change the paper," was all Mrs. Williams could say.

"Yes, it is all fresh and clean, and of the same pattern as before, because I remembered how 'artistic' you said it was."

"Let's see the children' a playroom," volunteered Mrs. Williams, thinking that she might as well complete the ordeal.

"George, what does this mean?" she asked, placing her hands over her eyes. "Am I crazy, or are you crazy?"

"We're both normal, but I read in one of your magazines that a child should be allowed to assert his own individuality, so I let the youngsters choose their own paper."

"But there are two different designs, one above and one below."

"Bobby wanted animals and Betty insisted on trees, so I compromised by allowing each one half of the room. I'm some diplomat, eh?"

Mrs. Williams sank into the nearest chair and nodded.

"Isn't daddy smart?" said little Betty as she settled herself in her mother's lap. "He told Mrs. Smith that h's going to write a book about decorating."

Her mother hugged Betty tight and whispered: "If father writes a book entitled 'How Not to Decorate a House,' he will make a fortune, I'm sure."

"Oh, mother, don't go away to grandpa's again. We missed you so," continued Betty.

"I'll never budge again without my family, and certainly not without your father. He takes too much trouble in planning surprises for me."

"Don't mention it." said Williams. "I knew you'd appreciate my efforts."

British Baptist Fund.

LONDON, April 29.—The Baptists of Great Britain Monday night celebrated by a great mass meeting in Albert Hall the completion of the fund of $750,000 to provide more adequate stipends for the ministers of the church. At present 140 ministers receive less than $375 yearly, while 700 are paid less than $750.

There is some heart-burning amongst the more strict members of the denomination, because it is claimed that participation in the benefits of the fund means control of the individual minister by the board of trustees.

EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice.

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is almost criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patented medicines or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutralizer of acid. Decidedly the best neutralizer is ordinary bisurated magnesia. It is inexpensive and you can get it at any drug store. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate."

SENECAL NOMINATED.

Prescott Liberals Choose Candidate for Legislature.

VANKLEEK HILL, Ont., April 29.—F. A. Senecal, secretary of the Prescott County Liberal Association, was yesterday chosen as Liberal candidate for the Legislature in succession to Gustave Evanturel, who recently resigned his seat in the House as the result of charges preferred by G. Howard Ferguson, M.P.P. for Grenville. The officers of the association yesterday refused to allow Mr. Evanturel's name to go on the ballot for nomination as candidate, and this precipitated a warm row, Evanturel's adherents refusing for a time to allow Mr. Senecal to address the convention. Two other names were put in nomination, but they withdrew in favor of Mr. Senecal.

Gustave Evanturel, in a fighting speech, declared he would contest the riding as an independent candidate.

Thirty-eight polling subdivisions in the riding, out of 40, were represented at the convention, 150 delegates being in attendance.

Students at Alma Ladies' College Showed Pluck In Emergency.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 29. — A young student at Alma Ladies' College here was awakened by a noise about two o'clock yesterday morning, and quietly investigating discovered a man in the corridor. The other girls were aroused, and while some stood guard at the windows and exits from the corridor, others flew to arouse the principal, his son, and the janitor. These three arrived and took the man, who was still surrounded by the determined girls, into custody. He pretended to be intoxicated or dopey. He had climbed a fire escape to the second storey.

KEPHALDOL

CURES PAIN, BUT DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART.

First of all it may be well to mention that "Kephaldol" is the prescription of one of the world's greatest nerve specialists — the famous Herr Doctor Stohr of Vienna, Austria.

He has used "Kephaldol" in his private practice and hospital clinics, in thousands of cases of Headaches, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuritis, La Grippe and other forms of Nerve Exhaustion.

The mere fact that Dr. Stohr originated "Kephaldol" is the only recommendation needed by most physicians and surgeons to commend the formula to their attention.

"Kephaldol" is the only pain-relieving remedy used by Dr. Stohr, because it is the only one that does not affect the heart or other organs and may be taken with perfect safety until a complete cure results.

"Kephaldol" Tablets may be obtained at most drug stores in 50c tubes, or they will be sent on receipt of price by Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

MINERS ENTOMBED.

All Hope Abandoned of Rescuing 202 Men In Colliery Workings.

ECCLES, W.Va., April 29. — All hope for the rescue alive of 202 miners entombed by an explosion yesterday in mines Nos. 5 and 6, of the New River Collieries Co., here, was abandoned late last night. Rescuers were unable to force their way into the burning shafts. Fifty-nine men, all burned severely, were rescued alive from No. 6 mine and are receiving medical treatment in improvised hospitals. Four bodies were recovered from the same shaft.

The disaster, the second largest in the mining history of West Virginia, was caused by a gas explosion in the 600-foot level of mine No. 5. It was followed five minutes later by a second explosion, which completely wrecked the mine and partially demolished mine No. 6, a connecting operation.

One hundred and ninety men were at work in mine No. 5 and not one of them reached the surface. The mine immediately caught fire and attempts at rescue work were futile. Late last night all hope of getting the miners out of mine No. 5 was given up and rescue parties, driven back by the intense heat and deadly gases, were forced to halt their effort to reach the entombed men.

The four dead and 59 injured men were taken from mine No. 6 through one of the four shafts of the mines not injured by the explosions. Thirteen men are still in No. 6.

C. P. R. STEAMER ASHORE.

Montfort Runs Aground on Island of Orleans.

QUEBEC, April 29.—The C. P. R. steamer Montfort, bound from Antwerp to Montreal, with 160 passengers and a general cargo, went aground while approaching the harbor of Quebec at 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning during a fog. She went aground on the beach just below the Island of Orleans.

The tide had been running down over two hours when the accident occurred. Experts said there was no danger for the vessel, except injury by her own weight, as she was lying on a sandy bottom.

How Pythons Settle Quarrels.

It was in October, 1894, that the big python at the zoo fell into the deplorable error of swallowing his companion, a snake only a few inches shorter than himself. A similar disaster is reported from Bombay, where for some years two large Indian pythons had occupied a cage in the museum of the Bombay Natural History society. There was some misunderstanding between them over a partridge, for they were found so tightly entangled in each other's coils that the utmost endeavors of peacemaking keepers failed to effect a separation, and they were left to settle the matter according to their own lights. Next day there was only one very stout python visible. These large reptiles evidently know but one way of settling a quarrel.—London Sketch.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF AN ABSCESS BY Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mr. A. W. Dryden, Amherst, N.S., writes:—"I am going to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for us. My son "Vance," when only nine months old, got an abscess on his cheek bone. I took him to a doctor in St. John, N.B., and he lanced it, and told me it would get well in a few days, and wanted me to keep it squeezed out. It did not seem to get any better, so my wife took him back. The Doctor told her to take him home and it would soon get better. It would gather and break, and it went on that way until he was over four years old.

"He lost four pieces of bone out of where it was lanced, and two pieces came from his mouth; he has lost all of his cheek bone, and his eye was drawn down. I took him to doctors in St. John, Moncton, and Amherst, and all wanted me to let him go under an operation. He was so small I told them that if he was going to die he might as well die as he was as to go there and be all cut to pieces, so I declined to have the operation done. I told them I was going to try Burdock Blood Bitters, as I had heard my mother talk so much about it. I got a bottle, and when it was about half gone noticed it was doing good, and before many days the sore stopped running, and healed up, and the abscess has never broken out again. This happened nearly six years ago, so you can see I have great faith in Burdock Blood Bitters, and I can say with all my heart that it is the best blood medicine in the world."

INQUIRY BEGINS AT ONCE.

Hon. Mr. Hazen Says Marine Scandal Will Be Probed.

OTTAWA, April 29.—In the House yesterday Hon. J. D. Hazen outlined the position in Quebec, where graft charges in the Marine Department are being investigated. Mr. Doutre, the purchasing agent of the Department and an official of the Justice Department have been sent down to investigate.

In reply to Sir Wilfrid's question Mr. Hazen explained that the pay sheet had been padded in 1908-1909. The timekeeper, the accountant of the Department and the paymaster had all passed the accounts, and they were paid to persons who were not really employed.

This was admitted by the accountant and another official. The investigation would commence immediately, and four officials were now suspended.

OTTAWA, April 29. — In the House yesterday afternoon the Prime Minister alluded again to the Newfoundland sealing disaster and stated that, as it was worse than at first was thought the Government proposed to increase its grant to the relief fund from $10,000 to $25,000.

POOR BLOOD

Cause of Disease, Druggist Tells of Best Remedy for It.

Pure healthy blood is a most essential factor to good health.

Poor thin, devitalized blood may be caused by a weakness of the digestive organs, an accumulation of waste matter in the system, an inactive liver or lack of exercise.

Whatever the cause, the best remedy we know is our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. It will purify and enrich the blood, tone up the digestive organs, give you a hearty appetite and create strength.

A case has just come to our attention from Gulfport, Miss. Mrs. Armelise Saucier says: "For months I was in a run-down condition and my blood was very poor. I had taken several medicines prescribed by physicians, but they semed to do me no good. Vinol was recommended and the first bottle I noticed an improvement. I continued its use and now fee as strong and well as ever."

If you have the slightest indication of poor blood take Vinol. If it fails to help you we will give back your money.

"Doing Europe" In Olden Days.

Clare Howard in "The English Travelers of the Renaissance" tells us that the serious aim of the traveler in and before Elizabethan days was to become a "compleat person." This could be achieved only by coming into contact with the learning and life of the continent, particularly Italy—the flower of the renaissance—and as the seventeenth century advanced of France, which then became the arbiter of manners. The discomforts, dangers and risks of travel in those days were colossal. The dirty, insanitary inns were death traps, and "many an eager tourist lay down with smallpox before he had seen anything worth mentioning."

The term "grand tour," Miss Heward tells us, was used for the first time by Richard Lassels in 1670 in an English book for travelers entitled "The Grand Tour of France and the Give of Italy." She traces the causes involved in the decadence of the grand tour, to which the decline of the courtier and the foundation of chairs of modern history and modern languages at Oxford and Cambridge contributed.

Washing Day in Sicily.

The Sicilians have the reputation of not washing themselves overfrequently, but if they are remiss in this respect they more than make up for it by washing their garments—washing, in fact, being a perennial occupation among the women. The songs of the women folk as they scrub the clothes of their husbands and children outside the doors of their homes, if living in a city, or in some brook or running stream if living in the country, are a noticeable feature of lower class Sicilian life. The long spikes on the prickly pear leaves and also plants make splendid natural pegs on which to dry the clothes, and in all the rural districts you will see them thus utilized, but if they do not happen to be sufficiently handy the clothes are often stretched out upon the mountainside to dry. The occupation and recreation of most of the poorer women may be summed up in three words—washing and gossip.—Wide World Magazine.

Parnell Nearly Lost.

Mr. J. Howard Parnell, the Dublin City Marshal, is writing his reminiscences of his famous brother, Charles Stewart Parnell.

How a mother's forgetfulness nearly lost Ireland the man who made Home Rule a burning question is told in the following anecdote: "Our mother," writes Mr. Parnell, "was nursing him when a visitor was suddenly announced. She hastily stowed away the future Irish leader in a drawer, which she closed without thinking, and hurried to the drawing-room.

"When the visitor left she found that she had clean forgotten what she had done with Charley, and a frantic search was made until muffled howls from the drawer where he was imprisoned resulted in his release."

COMPENSATION PASSES.

Workmen's Measure Is Now Ready For Final Signature.

TORONTO, April 29—A loud burst of applause echoed about the legislative chamber yesterday afternoon, when the workmen's compensation bill wound up its career on the order paper and stood merely waiting the gubernatorial sanction to become law.

Liberal amendments to include a first aid provision, to limit the term of commissioners to ten years, and to make certain alterations in the classification of industries, were voted down.

Hon. Adam Beck's two bills to amend the Power Commission Act passed their third reading yesterday. The first provides for the public construction and operation of Hydro Radials, and was exhaustively explained by Hon. Mr. Beck a few days ago. The second bill Mr. Beck explained yesterday. The first section provides for the expropriation of flooded lands on behalf of municipalities. The next section gives certain powers to townships to make appropriations for the lighting of highways.

"The third clause," said Mr. Beck, "refers to the amendment to the act, giving the commission power to authorise and approve of inspectors to look over wiring and plant installed by municipalities."

Still Wrangling Over Terms.

KINGSTON, Ont., April 29. — The offer of Major R. W. Leonard of a military residence at Queen's University over which there has been much controversy, was discussed at a meeting of the council of university yesterday afternoon. No recommendation was made, the matter being left over for the trustees to decide at the meeting to-day.

The council is divided on the question, one half holding that Queen's should have full control of management while others claim the board of control should be equally divided between members of the militia and the college.

Thackeray's Pink Bonnets.

Thackeray was fond of putting pink bonnets on such of his lady characters as were to be specially fascinating. The eternal Becky wore one, the mushy Amelia wore one on her wedding tour (very probably on her second one also), and the dashing Beatrix also set off her beauty by this means.

GUN-RUNNING CONTINUED EACH NIGHT WILL TROOPS SURROUND BELFAST?

Appearance of Warships Off Larne is Denied But Constable Swears He Saw a War Vessel in the Harbour.

HOME RULE SITUATION

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BELFAST, April 29.—Belfast people believe this city will shortly be surrounded by a ring of troops from Great Britain. While the appearance of warships off Larne is now denied by some newspapers the Constable there declares one poked its nose right into the harbour at 4.30 o'clock Tuesday morning. The residents believe the next appearance will be with troops landing, however, not at Larne. Meantime gun running continues nightly on a small scale, and the latest rumour is that Inishowen Nationalists successfully ran a cargo of arms, sent by an American sympathizer. This is not credited here. The police are still reported active, taking the numbers of cars distributing arms from various centres. In Donegal this doubtless will be done enthusiastically but the numbers are probably false. It is stated the report will show the same cars in various parts of Ireland at the same hour.

With constables and excisemen, instead of indignation, one finds praise of the volunteers. An exciseman who was captured, grins amiably as he tells how kind the captors were. Carsonism pervades and cripples every sphere of official activity on which the Government could normally rely. They have really more constables than are necessary for police. But not enough for the soldiery, was the only excuse of a man closely in touch with the force. The seizure of the ship Bosna by gun runners for use against the Captain's protest, becomes graver in view of the assertion that a revolver was used to coerce him. A peculiar point is that the crew is said to have known what would happen, but the Captain was kept in ignorance.

EXCITEMENT AT DERRY.

Londonderry, April 29 — Maxims passing through the streets of Derry to-day with an escort of soldiers from Omagh, caused excitement. The guns, however, were only going from one railway station to another on the way to the regular camp at Magilligan. Ten policemen, on bicycles, left Derry, apparently in search of arms, but returned when overhauled by the Ulster motorcyclists. Advices received here state that the Government has received the resignations of a large number of army officers in India.

PET NAMES.

London, Eng., April 29—The House of Commons was thrown into a wild uproar again to-day when the former Unionist leader, A. J. Balfour, the most brilliant speaker of the Unionist forces, referred to Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, as a "despised agent and the meanest criminal.' He was replying to Churchill's suggestions, last night for compromise. The Government supporters jumped to their feet waving papers, and protesting vigorously. Balfour stood his ground and continued the argument.

THIRD READING OF CITY'S BILL YESTERDAY

The Measure Passed by the Legislature Briefly Explained for Benefit of Peterborough Citizens

LEGISLATURE NOTES

The Act respecting the City of Peterborough received its third reading last night and will, no doubt, receive the Royal Assent in the course of a day or two.

The Bill substitutes for the name of the Water Commissioners the name "The Peterborough Utilities Commission," as that body will now have not only control of the water supply system, but also all the municipal electric power and lighting system.

The new Act makes clear that the property of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, which the City can expropriate is the distributing plant of that Company, owned by them in April, 1912, and the additions made thereto since that time.

The Act also requires the Company within one month after it comes in force to furnish to the City a complete inventory of such property and further provides that the City, upon passing a by-law for that purpose, may, on ten days' notice, take possession of all such property on giving security for payment of the value thereof, which value is to be determined by arbitration in the usual way.

A change in the law, which may be interesting to persons proposing to lay out roads upon their property will also shortly come in force. Under the present law a road less than 66 feet wide cannot be laid out either by a private individual or by the municipality. The change about to be made will provide that a road of a less width can be established if the consent thereto of the Provincial Municipal Railway Board and approved by the Municipal Council, is obtained.

Wants to Build a 9 in. Wall in Fire Limit

J. M. Roszel, who intends to build a house on lot 63 George street, has written the Council asking permission to build a 9-inch wall instead of a 14-inch wall which is required by the by-law. The Board of Works will report.

One Standard Of Morality

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., April 29. —In the lower house of the convocation of Canterbury, the Bishop of Southampton moved a resolution expressing the opinion that there should be one standard of morality for men and women and equality of treatment by the law. The present state of the law, the Bishop said, was barberous in its treatment of women.

An Oratorio That Is Worth While

Judas Maccabaeus is the oratorio of the hour. We have threats of war in Mexico and Ulster; and in Belfast real war is waged by the suffragettes. They do the only real fighting. If there are any suffragettes in Peterborough they should go hear Judas Maccabaeus to-night. It would put fight into them. It is war's "magnificently stern array" set to music that would put the spirit of battle into a sucking dove. Nothing in the way of grandiphonous and inspiring music equals this oratorio. "See the Conquering Hero Comes," one of many similar, is as conquering as the hero, himself—tuneful, triumphant, thrilling; and the grand climax chorus, "Hallelujah! Amen!" might well be bracketted for dignity and grandeur with the "Hallelujah Chorus" of the Messiah.

WILL CONTINUE BUSINESS

Mr. L. A. Fisher, local representative of the Home Health Society called on the Examiner this morning to say that their work here has been detained on account of the fact that they did not have a license in the City. They have made restitution in this regard and will continue business here. All orders taken will be delivered promptly.

C.P.R. TO RESTORE OLD EASTBOUND MORNING SERVICE

Regular Westbound Train at Noon Will Have Fewer Stops and New Train Will Take Care of Local Traffic

WILL BE APPRECIATED

It is reported that the new C. P. R. time-table, to be issued in a few days, will announce a change in two of the trains passing through this City. Rumour has it that the Montreal train will be given a fast schedule, requiring only six stops between Toronto and Smith's Falls, and that a new passenger train will be run to handle the local east-bound morning traffic. In short, it is the intention to restore the service which was discontinued a year ago. It was felt locally that the withdrawal of the local east-bound was not strengthening the local service, and a strong petition was presented to the Company to continue running it. The purpose of the proposed change is said to be the Company's desire to make the morning train to Montreal faster by eliminating the stops at smaller stations. The news comes from a railway source and is said to be authentic.

Ald. Duncan Denies That He Permitted Dumping into Manhole

The dark lantern squad, whose work at this time of the year materially enhances the City's sanitation used a manhole on Perry Street a few night ago, instead of taking their load to the incinerator. The residents of the street howled loud and long the next morning, and a rumour got around that Ald. Duncan had given permission for the dumping into the manhole. The fact is that no one gave permission for the use of this manhole, and Ald. Duncan reported the case to the police this morning. The city officials believe they know the offender, and the residents are assured that there will be no repetition of this action.

The carts of the night riders no longer rumble their malodorous way into a neighbouring township. They —ahem—it might be said that they call at the incinerator. In fact they have been calling for several nights now, and as a result soft coal will be needed to speed the process of reduction to ashes. It is probably a matter that might be just as well overlooked, but at any rate the details as related to the Council last night, will be passed over.

Sewers Ordered For Number of Streets

The Council passed a by-law last night providing for the construction of sewers on the following streets:

Chamberlain, from Alfred to Park.

RUMOUR OF MURDER OF AMERICANS IS DENIED

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, April 29.—There is reason to believe that not a single United States citizen in Mexico has been murdered, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary. Ninety-five English-speaking people arrived here safely from Cordoba to-day. They said that howling mobs threatened their lives, but they got safely away without being hurt. There has been lots of other rumours of assassination, but none confirmed. There are still several train loads of refugees on their way here from Mexico City.

FEDERAL TROOPS NOW IN CHARGE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

DENVER, Col., April 29.—To the joy of all peaceable citizens of Colorado the Federal Cavalry arrived in the Strike Zone to-day and took charge of things immediately. Martial law has been declared, and anybody violating peace of the district will be sharply and surely dealt with by Uncle Sam's horsement. The Colorado militia, which was worse than useless in the preservation of order, will likely be withdrawn and sent home.

200 MINERS IMPRISONED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 29.—A force of two thousand trained and well-directed men were fighting this morning for the lives of two hundred in the burning coal mines, near here. Several bodies have been recovered from one shaft, but it is thought there is still a chance for the other miners in shaft two.

$40 TO SELL CIGARETTES

The Council Doubles Back on Previous Decision and Concluded to Enforce Original Fee of $40

VOTE WAS 6 TO 5

The Council's pendulum proclivities were illustrated last night when the cigarette license was fixed at $40 and the proposed $15 fee was lost on a vote of 6 to 5.

The whole question is fresh in the minds of readers. Ald. Anderson introduced a by-law fixing the license fee for cigarettes at $40. Then came a delegation to the Council five or six weeks later, and it was decided that $40 was too large and a motion passed to reduce it to $15.

Last night the amendment to fix the fee at $15 was read, but hit the breakers on the second reading, the following division resulting:

Yeas—Ald. Duffus, Stratton, Langford, McIntyre and Mayor Buller.

Nays—Ald. Saunders, Duncan, Dobbin, Johnston, Anderson and Green.

As a result Ald. Anderson's original by-law wriggles through with a whole hide and goes into force on May 1st. In the meantime the pendulum rests, inviting someone to set it in motion again, swinging this way and that.

Garbage Collection To Cost 1 Mill on $

The Council put through the garbage by-law last night. The district to be served remains the same as last year and the East City chickens, as a result, should meet the winter well lined with fat. A by-law was also passed to levy a rate of one mill on the dollar to pay for the collection this year.

MR. PECK ASKS FOR DETAILS

Council Endorsed Granting Municipal Franchise for Married Women, But Was Not Specific on Involved Consideration

PROPERTY VOTES

Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., has written the Council, through City Clerk Armstrong, for its opinion on some of the involved points in equal franchise for married women which the Council endorsed at a recent meeting.

The Council gallantly passed the resolution and instructed that it be forwarded to the local representative in the Legislature. The following letter from Mr. Peck indicates that the Council's resolution was not sufficiently comprehensive to thoroughly enlighten him on the City Fathers' views of this question:

"I beg to acknowledge your favour of the 7th inst. enclosing copy of resolution of the Council in favour of extending the Municipal Franchise to married women.

"I would be glad if I could have the Council's view in respect of questions which arise in giving effect to this conclusion. At present the married woman's property is represented by the husband when a vote is taken. Is it desired that the wife shall vote on the property and the husband not? Or is it to be left optional with the wife if she shall claim the right? Or is it desired that both should have the right to vote on the property? And if this latter view is adopted and two votes thus given on one property would not this be unfair to the man who holds property in his own name and whose property would thus carry only one vote?"

KENNYMORE WINS CLASSIC

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEWMARKET, Eng., April 29.—J. Thursby's "Kennymere" won the classic three-year-old race over a field of eighteen starters here to-day. Corcyra was second and Black Jester third. Burbar, heavily backed by Canadians and United States, was scratched.

Council Passed Many By-laws Last Night

The Council passed another sheaf of by-laws last night. All the members were present and it was not until near midnight that the routine work was concluded. One by-law endorsed an agreement with H. B. Taylor for supplying sewer pipe; another with the Peterborough Hardware Co. for cement supplies; another provided for the appointment of Engineer Parsons as building inspector; another with W. Scott & Co., and R. J. Wolstenholme for hard, screened coal at $6.75.

C. H. ROGERS OFFERS TO BUY WATER LOTS

Mr. Claude H. Rogers has applied to the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, for the water lots 1, 2, 146 and 147, south of Maria street, and the Council has been asked to say whether it has any objection to their sale to Mr. Rogers. The Board of Works will consider the matter.

Assessment Rolls in By The First of May

The tax collector was instructed by the Council last night to return the assessment rolls by May 1st.

MR. BENNETT SEEKING FOR INFORMATION

Conservative Member for Calgary Wants To see the Correspondence Over The C. N. R. Grant

"STICKING TO GUNS"

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., April 29—R. B. Bennett, Conservative M.P. for Calgary, stated this morning that he intends to move in the House this afternoon for all papers, correspondence, etc., which passed between the government and Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann in connection with the present proposals for aid. Mr. Bennett believes that this will prove some interesting information. "I'm sticking with the guns," was all that Mr. Bennett would say this morning as to his attitude on the question. It is not expected that there will be any discussion on he resolutions. The debate will probably start on the second reading of the Canadian Northern Railway Bill next week.

Sir Wm. Mackenzie did not give the impression this morning of being any too well satisfied with the conditions of the agreement.

Ready to Excavate Cellar of New Church

The Cox building on the lot at the end of Simcoe Street, on Rubidge Street, has been razed to the foundation, which alone remains to be removed when everything will be ready for the excavation of the cellar of the new Methodist Church. It is reported that the supply of teams is not as large as the present demands call for. The erection of the Church will be proceeded with as soon as the excavation has been finished.

OBITUARY

JOHN TAYLOR.

The death occurred early this morning of Mr. John Taylor at his later residence, 500 George Street. The deceased, who was 62 years of age, had been ill for the past two years, but his condition had only been serious for the past two months. The late Mr. Tayor was born in Otonabee, where he resided until about three months ago, when the family moved into the City. He was a well-known farmer in Otonabee and his numerous friends will learn with deep regret of his death.

His wife, two sons and three daughters are left to mourn his loss. The sons are Messrs. Fred H. of Bounty, Sask., and Roy of Healey Falls, and the daughters are Mrs. John Douglas, Millbrook; Miss Sarah J. M. Taylor of Abernethy, Sask., and Miss Elsie, at home. Three brothers, Messrs. Joseph of Peterborough, James of Buffalo, N. Y., and Robert Knox of Toronto and one sister, Mrs. John Rae, of this City, also survive him.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock from the above residence to the Keene Cemetery. The service will be held at 1 o'clock. The Canadian Order of Foresters of Zion, of which the late Mr. Taylor was a member, will attend.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Isadore Darrah, 147 Stewart street, and family, desire to thank their many friends, and especially the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, for kindnesses and expressions of sympathy shown them in their recent bereavement, occasioned by the death of the late Miss Lena Darrah.

BY-LAWS CONFLICT

Transient Traders and Pedlars By-Laws Are Due to Cause a Great Deal of Trouble in This City

TEST CASE NEEDED

That there is an apparent confliction between the Hawkers' and Pedlars' By-law and the Transient Traders' By-law of this City, that is destined to result in a great deal of trouble in the future, was the opinion expressed to the Examiner to-day by several local legal authorities. In some cases the conflicting by-laws have already occasioned a good deal of discussion, and in another case which appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning the tangle shows signs of becoming even more disagreeable.

The Hawkers' and Pedlars' By-law No. 1774 to license, regulate and govern hawkers' pedlars and petty chapmen became law in Peterborough in November 1913, and provides that all such shall have a license before they can do business in Peterborough. Hawkers are defined in the by-law as being agents for persons not resident within the County of Peterborough, who sell or offer for sale, tea, coffee, spices, baking powder, dry goods, watches, plated ware, silverware, furniture, carpets, upholstery, millinery, jewellery, spectacles or eye glasses, or who carry or expose samples or patterns of any such article which is to be afterwards delivered within the County of Peterborough to a person or persons not being a wholesale or retail dealer in such articles.

The Transient Trades' By-law provides that all persons who do not pay income tax or business assessment in this City and who offer goods for sale by auction, or in any other manner shall have to pay a license of $100. The license demanded by the Hawkers' and Traders' By-law is $50.

Practically all the pedlars who operate in this City are non-residents and do not pay either business or income assessment. Therefore, they, according to the wording of the Transient Traders' By-law, are working under the provisions of the said by-law and must pay a license fee of $100. But the other by-law previously passed provides that the license fee shall be $50, so which license shall the ordinary pedlar be required to pay? If he comes into the City and attempts to sell his good without a license, then he is promptly stopped and an information laid against him. Before the passing of the Transient Traders' By-law the case was very clear, and the information was laid under the provisions of the Pedlars' By-law. But as it stands now it would seem that the offender is liable under both by-laws, and that the choice of laying the information rests with the Chief of Police.

Under the provisions of the Pedlars' By-law any man in the employ of a company manufacturing goods in Ontario can peddle that company's goods without a license, provided he has a certificate of the fact that he is employed by them with him while selling. But such a person would be neither paying business assessment or income tax so that to all appearance at least he would come under the provisions of the Transient Traders' by-law, and would have to pay a license fee of $100. This ni spite of the fact that he is in reality a pedlar, and should, according to the provisions of the Pedlars' by-law be exempt from a license.

A local man who manufactures his goods right in Peterborough has commenced to sell them from door to door. A complaint was lodged by the Retail Merchants' Association that he should pay a license fee of $100. It is every evident that an Ontario man, as manufacturer, he has the JUDAS MACCABAEUS.

Judas Maccabaeus the heroic and grandiose oratorio of Handel, is timely in its production in Peterborough to-night—with its majestic martial movements it seems to fit in with mood of the world—wars and rumoura of war. The privilege of hearing the final rehearsal last night at the Collegiate Institute Hall, permits the assurance of a splendid production in the Grand Opera House to-night. Judas Maccabaeus, in its music, is worthy in its character of the theme, and in robust ringing tone is, if one can differentiate Handel's great works, his grandest in this respect. St. George's Society has gathered a chorus that does justice to the work. The parts are admirably balanced, and the members of the chorus have had the musical spirit and enthusiasm to put a great deal of hard and effective work upon it; and all who take advantage of hearing it "in full dress," so to speak, to-night, will be abundantly rewarded.

The promotors of, and the participants in, the oratorio presentation, deserve not only credit for the actual specific good work done, but for the large general impulse given to the higher and nobler forms of musical culture, and for the spirit of cooperation among citizens of different creeds and denominations which the chorus and its work represent. Reference to this feature is justified on the grounds that it is a matter of general civic interest and involves the promotion of conditions and the development of a spirit that make for the harmony of direct and actual cooperation, that constitute the highest elements of good citizenship and ideal social relationships and interests. The Examiner has long contended that there is a great deal of first-rate musical material in Peterborough. That this is true, and that it can be effectively combined to excellent effect, is demonstrated in concrete form by effective rehearsal and presentation of the splendid work of Judas Maccabaeus, whose production makes a wide demand upon the musical talent of the city and represents nearly, if not all, creeds and denominations in Peterborough.

THE CONSUMER PAYS.

No good citizen objects to paying taxes so long as he gets reasonable value in public service or other advantages from their payment and subsequent expenditure. But when taxation is imposed, with the object, or, at least, with the effect, of helping special interests, at the expense of the taxpayers, its justification is doubtful. The Borden Government refuses to remove the duty from wheat, so that Canadian farmers in the West can get the benefit of free admission of their wheat to the United States on the ground, among others, that such removal would be hostile to the interests of the Canadian milling industry. How badly the millers need protection, how much they deserve protection by the people of Canada is shown by the fact that Canadian flour is shipped three thousand miles to Great Britain, and sold there, at a much lower price than is charged the Canadian consumer. While Canadian flour sells in London at $4.70 per barrel, the same grade and make of flour is sold at $5.30 to $5.40 per barrel in Canada. The Canadian miller certainly does not sell his flour at a loss in the London market. He makes a profit. He could therefore reduce the price of flour to the Canadian consumer from 65 to 70 cents per barrel, and make as large profits as he makes by selling it in London, plus the cost of shipment three thousand miles across the ocean. It is very fine to protect the millers; but ten millers benefitted to a million Canadian consumers taxed for their benefit doesn't seem to balance fairly. The miller gets rich and the consumer contributes, helps swell his gains, by an extortel price for flour greatly in excess of the price paid by the consumer in a distant market. In effect, the Canadian taxpayer pays extra taxes without getting any advantage or return except the privilege of also paying higher prices for a prime necessity of daily living. Does taxation make you rich?

NOT A BUSINESS GOVERNMENT.

The influences of a refugee Mexican may result in a larger extension of Canadian trade than that which Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, has got in two or three years of circumnavigatory sky-larking. He has gone to the ends of the earth, looking for trade, while the government he represents is busy building and strengthening barriers against trade at our doors. Don Algara Romeroue y Tereros, Mexican charge d'Affaires at Washington, who fled to Toronto when he got his walking ticket at Washington, on the outbreak of hostilities, is to go to Ottawa and endeavour to open the way to a large and profitable trade between Canada and Mexico, which he thinks can be easily done. He thinks that Mexico knows more about Canada and trade conditions than Canada knows about Mexico and its trade possibilities. Hon. Mr. Foster has amassed a good deal of academic knowledge of Japanese tea houses and Japanese Geisha girls, which he letsout in eloquent little lectures at pink teas, but he hasn't told us a word of the big chances of trade with Mexico. Mr. Foster was in China, and we were given to understand that he would, when he came back, resume by cable the trade negotiations he was unable to complete in Australia. He has been "on the road" as Canada's "commercial traveller" nearly ever since his appointment as Minister, and the most he has to his credit, if he deserves the credit, has been to make unimportant trade arrangements with countries whose total trade with Canada for a year wouldn't pay Mr. Foster's travelling expenses. A business concern would not keep "on the road' a month a real traveller who made such a sorry record. But the Borden government is not a business government, or if it is its chief business is collecting taxes with one hand and scattering them with two.

MR. BURNHAM'S AIRSHIPS.

Nobody can say that Mr. J. H. Burnham, of Peterborough, is not a valuable member of Parliament. He is one of the very few representatives of the nation at Ottawa who possess a soaring imagination, and the House is always getting the benefit of it, either in new ideas, or in new languages invented on the spot to express ideas which might otherwise be recognized as having passed their first youth. His imagination soared more than usual yesterday. In fact it lifted the whole of our western wheat crop into the air, and sent it scurrying about over Canada at the behest of market prices.

The Georgian Bay Canal, forsooth! What do we want with the Georgian Bay Canal, or the St. Lawrence route, or any other route by rail or water? Mr. Burnham would scrap the whole lot of them, and do our freight carrying between West and East and vice versa by means of airships. In fact he has up his sleeve a company which will establish such a line of airships right away for one two-hundredth part of what the Georgian Bay Canal would cost. Mr. Burnham's proposition seems to have struck Parliament dumb. We hope this will not discourage Mr. Burnham. We frankly confess we would like to hear some more about his scheme. It is time Canada began to take a little interest in the dominion of the air.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

REGULARS WALLOPED YANS 17 TO 0 AND BEAT RAYEN COLLEGIANS 4 RUNS TO NIL

Busy Session For the Blountmen Yesterday Afternoon--- O'Hearn, Freeman and Geo. Miller Have Been Released and the Squad Will Probably Be Further Reduced at Once.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 28.—This afternoon was a busy session for Manager Curley Blount's Regulars. They devoted the first part of the afternoon to extracting revenge on the Yannigans for the beating of the day before by walloping them 17 to 0, and then handed a coat of whitewash to the Rayen High School team, beating the Students 4 to 0, in a six-innings game.

The Regulars-Yannigans' clash was a nine-innings affair, and a fine batting fest for the Regs.. Martin, the young southpaw from Buffalo, was on the firing line for them, and backed up by the fastest kind of fielding he succeeded in administering a shut-out. Terrill did the heaving for the Yans and the Regs had no mercy on his sore arm, hammering his offerings to all parts of the park. Manager Blount was in centre field, and he had a very busy session. Jimmy Gorman, the ex-Tri-State Leaguer, replaced Freeman at first base for the Regulars, and did stellar work. Gorman is a six-footer, weighing about 170 pounds, and is an experienced first-baseman, having played with Lancaster and Atlantic City in the Tri-State League. Price, the fleet little shortstop, has displaced a ligament in his arm, and on the advice of Bone-Setter Reese, will rest up his wing for the next few days. His place was filled in the first game to-day by Geo. Miller.

The second game with the Rayen team was a classy exhibition. The Students have a snappy team, in good condition from daily practice and, although they did little with the bat against the Petes pitchers, they showed up well defensively. Tracey and Sterling did the pitching for the Petes and made a good job of it, while Kelly handled their offerings. Manager Blount sent out a new infield with Gorman at first ,Schrage second, King shortstop, and Byrne third-base, and the combination looked very good, giving the Petes a fast, hard-hitting inner guard. Blount starred with the stick for the Leaguers, collecting three hits in four trips to the plate.

To-night Manager Blount made a further cut in his squad, First-basemen O'Hearn and Freeman, and Infielder George Miller, being allowed to go. Lack of experience was the only thing against these three. Freeman had been showing fine form at first base, but lacks training, and Manager Blount prefers a more experienced player. He has evidently found what he has been seeking in Gorman. O'Hearn has been hitting fairly well, but he too, lacks experience. The same is true of Miller, who has speed and fair hitting ability. There are still some twenty players in camp.

The weather was very warm to-day, and the players are pulling for its continuance for a while in the hope that the sore arms, which have been worrying a number of the squad, will disappear.

The morning was devoted to bunting and infield practice, with special attention being paid to the fielding of the pitchers. All the twirlers are improving in this department under Blount's snappy coaching.

BASEBALL MEETING TO-MORROW

All local ball clubs who are interested in the formation of either a City or a Mercantile League are reminded of the meeting to be held to-morrow (Thursday) night, for the purpose of discussing local baseball matters. There has been considerable discussion among local players in regard to plans for this season, and everybody seems to be at sea over the prospects and to-morrow has been called in the hope of clearing the air. It is hoped that all the local clubs will be represented.

Shag Fears Petes Most

Ottawa Journal. Manager Shaughnessy now thinks it's a four team race in the Canadian League with Erie, London, Peterborough and Ottawa the contenders. He figures that Peterborough is the most dangerous club of the three. However, the champs look to have the best ball club they have possessed since the Canadian League entered Ottawa.

"Smoky Joe" Wood, the Red Sox star slabster, expects to take his place on the firing line within a week or ten days.

CLASS B RATING SHOULD NOT HURT SMALLER CITIES

Fears are expressed in some quarters that the raising of the Canadian League from a Class C to a Class B rating will have a disastrous effect on Peterborough and the other smaller cities of the organization. It is true that the salary limit for a Class B league is $2500. Quite a jump from $1400, but at the same time it should be understood that the Canadian Leaguers have agreed upon a $1600 limit, this having been decided upon several months ago. Salary limits as a rule have been more or less of a joke anyway, and the club which manages to get hold of a few clever youngsters and gets rid of them at the season's end by draft or sale, usually has it over the club which pays big salaries to erstwhile stars who are coming down the ladder.

OPENING OF THE SOUTH MICHIGAN LEAGUE TO-DAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TOLEDO, O., April 29. — With the distinction of having the only ten-club circuit in organized baseball this year, the reorganized Southern Michigan League started merrily on its ninth season to-day. Since the close of last season the league has extended by adding Toledo and South Bend to the circuit.

The bunking of Toledo among the little fellows is due to the transfer of the local club of the American association to Cleveland. Rather than see Toledo without a baseball club the Southern Michigan League took over the entire local plant and added South Bend to even out the circuit. The league now has the largest city of any Class B organization except the Canadian, and the smallest one, Toledo showing 175,000 population and Adrian, the baby of the circuit, a few less than 11,000.

The ten clubs and their respective managers are as follows: Lansing, John Morrissey; Jackson, McMyers; Toledo, "Topsy" Hartsel; Adrian, William Crystall; Saginaw, George Holmes; South Bend, Ed. Smith; Bay City, Dan Jenkins; Kalamazoo, Charles Wagner; Flint, Jack Burke, and Battle Creek, Dan Collins.

Not Long.

"Is you riwle going to be away for some time?"

"I don't think she'll be gone for more than a week or two. She took only three trunks and a couple of suitcases."

BASEBALL WAR IS PIE FOR THE LAWYERS ENGAGED

NEW YODK, April 25.—One hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars is asked for in the damage suits now pending between the National and Federal leagues, resulting from the jumping of players. This stunt of the big league moguls in rushing into court with damage suits and injunction pleas is something new in baseball warfare. With the single exception of the Lajoie case, which was taken into court in Philadelphia, the war of a dozen years ago between the American and money in the way of fees for attorneys. The two old leagues kept out of the courts and used their coin as bait for players.

The present war among the big leagues is being fought along different lines. When a player does a flop his present manager loses no time in hot-footing into court with a plea for an injunction in one hand and papers for a damage suit in the other.

In connection with the numerous law suits already filed there surely are some strange and peculiar angles. To the trained lawyer they may not seem out of the ordinary, but to the everyday fan they look very much like the "bunk."

President Gaffney, of the Boston Braves, asks $25,000 damages from the Baltimore Federal league club on account of Pitcher Jack Quinn deserting the Braves and signing with Baltimore. Quinn's record shows that he did good work for Rochester after failing with the New York Yankees. He also showed up well after joining the Braves last fall. But to declare that Quinn is worth $25,000 on his past performances seems like juggling figures to the limit.

The Federal league is seeking $15,000 damages from Killifer of the Phillies and Blanding and Kohler of the Cleveland Naps. Ten thousand dollars is sought by the league from Baumgardner and Williams of the St. Louis Browns, and $25,000 from Hamilton of the same team. In these cases the players and their clubs are the defendants. The claim of the Federals is based on the refusal of the players to live up to the contracts they are said to have signed with the new organization.

In the opinion of lawyers the Federals will have to establish that the the Federal League of extraordinary services, or in other words, services that could not be performed by others. If the Feds are compelled to make their claims good along this line, they doubtless will centre the fight on the case of Bill Killifer, who is the star of the whole outfit that has been drawn into court. Killifer is ranked as one of the leading catchers of the big show.

As a counter action to the suit of the Federals against Killifer, President Baker of the Philadelphia Nationals, has filed two suits against the officials of the Chicago club of the Federal league. Baker asks $25,000 damages and an inunction restraining the Federal League from interfering with the players of the Philadelphia club.

With Blanding, Kahler, Hamilton and Baumgartner, the other defendants in the damage suits filed by the Federal league, ranking nineteenth, twenty-ninth, thirty-first and thirty-fifth, respectively, in the 1913 records of American league pitchers it is difficult to see how the Federal league can obtain any damages for the loss of their services.

With court decisions and three pennant races to follow the baseball fans will find plenty to keep them busy during the remainder of the season. And incidentally the lawyers will gather a nice bundle of change and learn more about the national pastime than they thought it possible to know.

BASEBALL

The White Sox have released Pitcher Walter House of the Omaha Club of the Western League.

Although a 'shorty' in comparison with most big league pitchers, Crutcher, the new flinger of the Boston Braves, looks to have the goods.

The Dubuque team of the Three-I league will play its home games on the new Municipal Athletic field, which has just been completed at a cost of $25,000.

By winning nine of the first ten games the Jacksonville team got the jump on the other South Atlantic League teams in the race for the "Sally" pennant.

Jack Leary, playing first base for the St. Louis Browns, comes from the New York State league, in which organization he has ranked along the .300 hitters.

It is an unusual experience for the Cleveland Naps to have such a hard struggle to get into the running. Usually the Naps have been wonders in the early season.

Seldom does a pinch hitter get such an ovation as was accorded Mike Donlin at the Giant's opening on the Polo Grounds. As a rule the regulars are the only boys who get the glad hand.

The scores of the games played by the Kansas City American Association team are posted at the Kansas City Federal League party. Evidently the Feds are wise in courting the favour of the K. C. fans.

A double play, unassisted, by a centre fielder is sofething unusual, and in accomplishing this feat in a recent game Tris Speaker showed a sample of the work that nets him $18,000 a year.

An X-ray examination of Red Kuhn's injured finger showed that the member was badly cracked but not broken. It will be some time before the White Sox catcher will be able to take his place behind the bat.

Dode Criss, who was the leading pinch hitter in the American league when a member of the St. Louis Browns a few years ago, has failed to "come back" for the Yankees and has been released to the Houston team.

Instead of "hitting the dirt" in stealing bases, Bill Holden of the Yankees is credited with introducing the "upright slide." It's fine work if the player is able to avoid collisions and being tossed in a heap out in the field.

BOXING

In the recent national amateur boxing bouts in Boston the Cleveland boxers won 16 of the 18 contests in which they took part.

It is rumoured in in Paris that the French authorities are very much opposed to the Frank Moran-Johnson bout and wil ltake steps to prevent the fight.

Matty Baldwin, who got in the way of an auto the other day, is rapidly recovering from his injuries and expects to resume training in a few days.

Fred Yelle, the Taunton, Mass., lightweight, is on his way to England to engage in several bouts. Later he expects to go to Paris to tackle a few of the French boxers.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Did you ever stop to notice the number of ex-Petes there will be scattered around the Canadian League circuit this year? Lee Osborne and Mack McNeal will be with Erie, Irwin Trout and Bill Schaeffer with Toronto, Cozy Dolan with Ottawa and Jack White with Hamilton.

Joe Brne, Ken Tracey and Willie Swarts are getting to be Peterborough veterans. This is the third season for each of them with the Petes.

Dave Hilliard is still with the Cleveland American Association team and has been in several games for the Shecks.

One week from to-morrow and the Petes and Yankees will be at each other over in Erie. Four games with Heine Smith's gang, three in St. Thomas, and then the Blountmen will be home to let the fans look them over.

The half holiday suggestion for opening day is meeting with hearty approval.

ERIE, Pa., April 27.—The batting order used by Manager Heine Smith, of the Erie club, in exhibition games has been: Harris, right field; Dunn, first base; Gygli, first baseman; Schaeffer, left field; Smith, second base; Betan, shortstop; Wiltse, third base; Daniels, catcher; Butler, catcher; Dorbeck, Osborne, Sutton, Stark, Taylor, pitchers.

WASHINGTON COURTHOUSE, Ohio, April 27.—The Washington team was easily defeated by the London club to-day, 12 to 4. The London players hit the ball hard and ran bases in mid-season form. Heck, pitching for London, had no trouble in holding the home team safe at all times. The game was featureless outside of the batting of the London club. The team plays here to-morrow.

The list of class B Leagues includes the following ten: Southern Association, Western League, Connecticut League, Texas League, Eastern Association, New York State League, Northwestern League, Tri-State League, Illinois - Iowa - Indiana League and Canadian League.

TORONTO, April 29. — "Knotty" Lee's Toronto Canadian League team, known as the Beavers, won their first exhibition game at the Island Stadium yesterday. Their opponents were the fast local Kew Beach nine, who had on their line-up a number of well-known ocal players. Four to three was the final score. Although the Beavers have been working out at the Stadium for the past week, this was their first game. On their showing yesterday they should prove contneders for the pennant flag of Fitzgerald's circuit. The catching and pitching departments are both well balanced, as in the infield, although Lee is not satisfied with the inner guard. The teams:

Toronto — Burrill, c.f.; Isaac, 3b.; Trout, c.; Schults, lb.; Ort, s.s.; Weidman, 2b.; Killian, l.f.; O'Hara, r.f.; Kirley, p.; Auld, p.

Beaches—Flynn, s.s.; Brennan, 2b.; Burridge, 1b.; McGraw, 3b.; Chandler, c.; Yates, l.f.; Williams, r.f.; Hickey, m.; H. Brennan, p.; Sharpe, p. Umpire—Allen.

TOLEDO, April 28.—(Special.)—The Toledo Southern Michigan League team played an eleven-inning tie with the Ottawa team at Swayne Field this afternoon, the score being 5 to 5 when the darkness intervened. The Toledo boys scored the first runs of the game in the third inning, when opportune hitting annexed them two tallies. Ottawa counted two tallies in the fourth and three more in the sixth. Toledo tied the score in the eighth. Neither side were again able to cross the pate. core:

Baxter, Ballinger and Dennis; Hall and Walger.

BRANTFORD, April 28.—The Brants played their first exhibition game here to-day, when they went up against the Eagle Place Stars and won by 14 to 0. The locals batted well, showed speed on the bases and took advantage of the errors made by the semi-pros.

Gero showed class, striking out the first six men to face him, and having eleven strike-outs in five innings Chase was touched up harder, but only one safe hit was got of him. Sandusky had three hits out of five times up, living up to his reputation as a heavy hitter.

Hamilton Spectator: The refusal of Harry Corns, the big outfielder, to report is now the only worry that the local directors have. Corns has worn a Hamilton uniform for two seasons and in that time has always proved a most formidable part of the team. He is a real heavy hitter, abtting well over the .300 mark each season, while he has always proved a warm favourite with the fans. Corns gave the impression last week that he had a grievance against the club, but when pressed on the cause of the grievance finally admitted that what he really wanted was a very substantial salary increase. This the local directors refused to do, as they had already offered Corns more than he ever got from the Hamilton club and thought they were doing rather handsome by by him. That he will yet come around seems to be the general opinion.

Council Will Extend Street Paving Around Central Park Block

The Area Outlined Some Time Ago is Stretched North on Aylmer to McDonnel—Murray Street Will Also Be Paved, But Entire Work May Not Be Completed This Year

THE WORK IN PROSPECT

Another addition to the street paving area was made at the meeting of the Council last night when it was decided to extend the work on Hunter and Simcoe streets east, to the east side of Queen street, on Aylmer street from Brock to McDonnel, and on McDonnel and Murray streets to Georgs street.

Not All This Year.

It does not follow that all these streets will be paved this year, but once they have been passed upon, everything is then ready to put in services of all kinds and to lay the pavement either this year or as soon as possible. It is understood that the Council intends to pave as many of the above mentioned streets as possible this year, but Mayor Buller sounded a little warning note last night regarding high interest and also mentioned the great extent of the work included in these streets which may be taken to mean that all the work will not be concluded before the next frost gets into the ground.

Alderman Anderson moved a motion to eliminate the pavement on Simcoe street from Water to Queen street.

Alderman Stratton also opposed this stretch. Even though he did belong to the Peterborough Club, if the pavement was not needed there, or was needed to a greater exten in some other section of the city, that was all he would consider.

Alderman Johnston urged, made a plea for George street from McDonnel to Smith street. Care should be exercised in regard to Hunter street, for the reason that a new bridge may be built there in the near future, and its approach will likely extend quite ad istance up Hunter street.

Alderman Anderson—There is no chance of the bridge coming as far as Queen street.

Alderman Duffus—Advertise the Simcoe street pavement too. If the people need it they will want it, and it will not do any harm to advertise.

Mayor Buller—I suggested that strip on Hunter street. There are so many visitors to the city who drive around to see the beautiful grounds there on Hunter street. A number of prominent citizens drew my attention to it.

Alderman Anderson's amendment, seconded by Alderman McIntyre, to cut out Simcoe street from Water to Queen street, was supported by Aldermen Stratton and Langford. The other six members opposed it, and Alderman Duncan's motion including the above mentioned streets, carried.

Alderman Stratton asked for a pavement on Park street from Charlotte to the north ,and Alderman McIntyre mentioned Hunter street east, from the bridge to Mark street. These claims followed Alderman Johnston's mention of George street north. Mayor Buller asked the members not to wander over the whole city, stating that there was now as much work in prospect as could be covered this year.

Council Will Sell Patterson St. House

Ald. Duncan is the City's real estate broker. The Council has entrusted it with the sale of several buildings already, and last night authorized him and Mayor Buller to sell the house on the north side of Patterson, which must be removed for the opening of the new street between Patterson and Riverside. Ald. Duncan stated that the street had been named Rutherford Avenue, and is practically an extension of the old Rutherford Avenue.

ALCOHOL AND TUBERCULOSIS

To the Editor:

"At the meetings of the United Kingdom Alliance in Manchester, England, leading doctors all over the world, including Chinese physicians, of the highest rank and reputation in their profession were present. They all spoke of alcohol as a dreadful protoplasmic poison which lowers the vitality and renders the system more liable to disease, especially consumption. This most terrible of all diseases is the most deadly disease in the world. A great Paris doctor found that there was no question that the man who took alcohol in however small quantities introduced into his blood that which tremendously lowered the power of the white cells to overcome the microbe. That has been proved directly and indirectly by statistics of persons who have visited Paris in order to be treated of various diseases."

"Sir Arnold White has discovered that the germs of consumption are found in great numbers in the bedroom of a victim of tuberculosis, and that the second prolific site of this deadly enemy of mankind is the public barroom. Medical Officers of Health, including our own distinguished Dr. Niven, are in perfect accord with that opinion."

Some time ago the International Congress on Tuberculosis met in Paris, and was attended by the world's greatest experts in that disease. That Congress passed unanimously a resolution which they forwarded to the government of every country to the effect that the fight against tuberculosis must everywhere be combined with the fight against alcohol.

The doctors who passed that resolution were not temperance cranks, but men who devoted their lives to the study of tuberculosis, and they said, "If you are going to fight this you must simultaneously fight alcohol." In view of these facts what tomfoolery it is to talk about stamping out consumption without attacking the cause.

And what folly it is to maintain places that cause consumption and at the same time to be spending thousands in an attempt to stamp out the disease.

Council Grants $50 To Board Of Trade's Toronto Exhibit

The Council gave the Board of Trade $50 last night to help defray the expense of the advertising exhibit which the latter organization will make at the big convention of the Ad Club of America, which will be held in Toronto, in June.

Mr. Basil Hall, President of the Board of Trade, stated that the convention would be held at the National Exhibition grounds and would continue five days. The Peterborough Board of Trade had arranged for a booth fifteen feet wide, which would be devoted to advertising Peterborough. Booklets would be given out, and displays of different articles manufactured in this City will be used. Photographs of the City and of the summer resorts around this district will be hung in the booth. The Board of Trade was spending $50 and providing all the necessary labour.

Mr. G. O. Cameron said there would be 15,000 of the leading advertising men of the continent present at the convention, and may of these men represented the biggest industrial houses in the country. The booklets issued by the Salvation Army and given to the City could be distributed at the Convention.

Mr. J. A. McNabb spoke of the importance of this convention and urged the Council to assist the Board of Trade in their efforts.

Ald. Johnston, on moving that the $50 be given, stated that the demand was quite a reasonable one. Ald. Duncan seconded the motion.

THE MEANING OF SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Many of your readers have noticed with pleasure the efforts being put forth to provide the children of this City with supervised playgrounds and bathing places.

The suggestion of having bathing places at Inverlea Park and at Crescent Street commends itself to all. The chief difficulty will be to secure good supervisors who will be able to teach the children to swim. The establishment of these bathing places should prove a great boon to both the boys and the girls of Peterborough.

The report of the discussion regarding the play-grounds was not so satisfactory. From the report, one would think that those taking part in the discussion confused athletic grounds with supervised playgrounds

The supervised play-ground movement is quite distinct from providing athletic grounds for the youth of the City.

The larger boys who play baseball, and the girls, who play tennis, can afford to go to the outskirts of the City, where these games may be indulged in.

The supervised playground supplies an entirey different want. It is more of a combination of a gymnasium and a park than an athaltic fied.

The play-ground may be large or small, but it must be a place where a mother may safely send her little children, knowing that they will be carefully looked after, and both amused and instructed.

A good supervisor is the most important consideration, and in all small cities the supervisors is a woman. The hours during which the grounds are open are usually from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

No ground can be well equipped for less than $200. This equipment comprises swings, sand piles, sand pits for jumping in, ropes for playing horse, hoops, teeter-boards, etc. Each ground must have some shady spots and be provided with a lavatory.

Last summer, Brockville, a place half the size of Peterborough, established a supervised play-ground. The equipment cost them $227; the supervisor cost $167. It was open during July and August and the daily attendance was 280.

The success of the undertaking depends almost entirly upon th supervisor. Children do not know how to amuse themselves, but they soon learn under a skilfull teacher. When they get tired of play the supervisor tells them stories and interests them in a number of ways.

The supervised play-ground is a real boon to the children who cannot leave the City during the summer months. It improves their health and physique and, under skilfull supervision, develops a healthy mind and character.

Toronto, London, Hamilton, Belleville, and other Ontario cities have established these play-grounds.

It may be of interest to know that Montreal and one or two other cities secured supervisors from Peterborough last summer.

A Well-Wisher.

Imperial Home Re-union Association Meets

The Advisory Committee of the Imperial Home Re-Union met at the office of G. N. Gordon, on Saturday, and passed recommendations to bring to Peterborough three persons upon the application of local residents. On account of industrial conditions this winter not being the best the Imperial Home Re Union did not encourage the coming to Peterborough of the families of British working men in the Old Country. However, the persons who are coming under the auspices of the Association now are those who can take positions at their various trades and in no case likely to find themselves without work when they reach Peterborough.

Someone Faked A Tender On Board Of Works For Watering

Ald. Duncan is of the opinion that some one faked a tender for the street watering in the west ward. The tender of J. McNeill for $650 was accepted, but Mac did not report for duty, nor was there any teamster of that name known by the Street Department. The contract was given to Arthur Stinson at $615.

The street watering in the southern district has been accepted by Mr. Collins for $625.

FARMERS DO NOT LIKE NEW LAWS

Say They Will Ship Produce to Toronto Rather Than Come to Peterboro' Market

Mr. Editor,—Just a few lines I would like published in regard to the new laws which the papers say come into force on the first of May. These laws are by no means an improvement to the market. The farmers and their wives who attend the market are known well enough without our names being printed on our rigs and baskets. I myself, as well as most of the farmers am known by everyone they meet from the time they leave home until they get on the market. Those who don't know us need not buy from us. There are some people who go to market and hang around till the very last, looking for something cheap. Sometimes they get something not up to the mark from some person who comes from a distance once or twice a year and sells cheap in order to get away.

The farmers are as honest as most City people. What about the quarter of pork that was stolen from a man's sleigh on the market? What about the load of wood that was carried away stick by stick and a note left saying they would take another load at the same price? Look at your market in Mr. Doherty's time. They derived $2000 or more from market tolls. What do they make now? Under your new laws it will be even less.

The farmers are shipping their eggs and cream and milk to Toronto and elsewhere. If you were at Cavan station at 8 o'clock in the morning and see the cans of cream, milk, cases of eggs loaded on the local for Toronto, you would realize what has happened to the market, and this is only one instance. It will be fowl after this, for people will not come under your new laws. It costs something to raise fowl, besides our work. This is raising the cost of living. Most of the farmers have customers whom they supply week after week. I have customers whom I have supplied with all kinds of produce every week for fourteen to sixteen years. If our goods were not up to the mark they would soon tell us so and get it elsewhere. Most of the farmers have good scales in their barn and houses. They know the weight of their goods. While in the City the women have ounces of stillards which are not lawful at all, and they tell you it is not right weight, when they do not know anything about the weight. They are insulting the farmers by telling them so. A few years ago people's butter was weighed on the market and handled pretty roughly, and very little of it was found light weight. I know a case where a woman wanted two pounds of butter weighed and the market clerk or toll man put it on the scales and said it was light weight. The seller said that was funny as she had a $10 pair of scales in her house. When she brings it here it is light weight, and the toll man looked around and found two nails on the scales. He saw his mistake, struck off and never collected his fees. What good did that do. Some of these ladies never went back. A few more of your new laws and the farmers will have their goods shipped down from Toronto. We will do without Peterborough and its market.

Now we read that the horses must be removed from the market. Where will we put them? You shut up half the hotels, leaving little or no accommodation for farmers and their horses. What good did it do? One hotel just does the business of two or three. The market is almost used as a street. When a farmer drives on the market with his team he can scarcely turn around or back in without moving a couple of rigs which are standing around taking the room as the loafers do upstairs.

The usual routine was carried out during the course of the evening.

First order, march down town, accompanied by both bands. On the return the companies were handed over to the Company Commanders, and section dril was carried out on the outside parade ground. Sergt. Instructor Dunkerley was engaged putting the finishing touches to a large squad of recruits, while Sergt. Webb of the Staff Signalling Corps, gave an interesting lecture to the signallers, coupled with practical instruction.

The officers were highly pleased with the turnout last night it being the largest this season, and hoped it was indicative of a larger turnout in future. As has been announced several times, recruiting this year will terminate on May 5th. This will give all an opportunity to get into good shape before going to camp.

A meeting of the officers was held after the parade, when the final arrangements for the trip to Berlin were made. Both officers and men alike are anticipating and looking forward to the trip to the Dutch Town.

Something in regard to the approaching Royal visit was also mentioned. In case of a Guard of Honour being required, that would be formed by the 57th Regiment, and Col. Clegg says that he can produce 100 of the best who will reflect credit on the Regiment. Should an escort be required that would be formed by the 3rd Dragoons, probably C Squadron which is the local squadron.

TO MAKE INDIA PAPER IN MAINE

Examiner Special:

GARDINER, Me., April 29. — The first India paper ever made in the United States will soon be turned out by one of the paper mills in this City. Heretofore a single firm in England has had a monopoly of the manufacture of India paper. The paper is made of flax and is very fine in texture, very light and very strong. It runs twice as many sheets to the pound as the ordinary book paper and consequently is in much demand for printing large works.

A Letter On The Labour Situation

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Having been in your City a little over a week, I have heard some reports about foreign labour being favoured before local labour, which has, I understand, been unemployed all winter, and have rent to pay and also a family to support. Being interested in the working man, I was asked by some taxpayers and some of the unemployed to see if such conditions did exist in regards to the street paving contract. I may say the foreign element is no doubt strong. I made it my duty, dressed up as a workman, to report for a few mornings to ask for work. Then I went to my hotel and dressed in my every-day clothes, came back and stayed around to watch the men work. From what I have seen and heard I understand any white man that is working on the job has got it through influence of some other person, or has bought it through some empoyment agent for the sum of one dollar and fifty cents. Some one must get a rake-off of fifty cents, as an Empoyment Agent can only charge one dollar. Where the situation is one that pays under $75 a month. I understand, the unempoyed called on the Mayor of your City and were promised work for all on the street paving jjob. Now, I do not think the Mayor of your City is alive to the situation of the unemployed, as I see by one of the labour papers that the Mayor and the City Clerk had told one of the agents of that paper that only five per cent. of the men were idle. Now, I have been through eight industries in your City and find conditions different. Now I think some person ought to awake the Mayor up. Don't let him sleep like that. I believed he called himself the people's candidate. If you take a walk up that beautiful street of yours, called George, you would think he was the people's candidate of Sunny Italy.

Now, working man take a record of every alderman, of what he is doing for the working man, and use your vote in the right way, as the welfare of your City lies in the hands of the workman and remember Sir John Macdonald's words: Canada for the Canadians; not Canada for the Italians. Also remember you can elect a Jimmie Simpson in Peterborough just the same as the Toronto workmen did. I am a home-brew.

Yours truly,
J. Barnhardt.

Talent Tea A Great Success

A very successful talent tea, in aid of All Saints' Church was held yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Thos Dawson, 530 Bonsecord Street. In the afternon about thirty were present, while in the evening about sixty people attended. A musical programme was given in the evening, those contributing being Messrs. Geo. Chander, Treneer and Weller, and Misses Sanderson, Laing and Williams. Miss Clarke gave a recitation that was much enjoyed. An exceedingly pleasant time was spent by all present and the very substantial sum of twenty dollars was realised.

Council Permits the Installation of Oil Tank

The Crown Oil Co. were given permission last night to install their big oil tank on the G.T.R. property south of Rink Street. The tank will be buried on its side, three feet remaining above the ground. A galvanised iron building will encolse it and the company agrees to remove the entire outfit one month after notice is given by the City.

HAVE YOU EVER SEEN A GREEN ROSE?

To the Editor:

Sir,—If I were to ask you if you had ever seen a green rose, you might reply, "Do you see any green in my eye?" I should probably have done the same—until yesterday, when, happening to drop into Mr. Greenslade's electric boot repairing factory, I saw what I had hitherto supposed to be an anomaly, viz., a green flower. He had there a rose plant, the flower of which differed from the usual rose in shape and general characteristics, and which was as green as the foliage; a bud on this plant is of precisely similar shape to the average rose bud. I certainly, had I heard of this, should have been inclined to think that someone was trying to "sting" me—in fact, trying to work off a belated All Fool's day joke, but "seeing is believing," so runs the adage, and the fact remains.

Yours,
F. R.

ESSAYS ARE APPRECIATED

344 Water St., City.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I am sorry to see that you have discontinued the essays on "Reading and its pleasures," that have been appearing in your valuable paper. Will you kindly allow me to express my appreciation of those Essays, and to hope that they will be resumed in the very near future. I am sure many other of your readers have received pleasure from them as well as myself. I sent my appreciation some time ago, but it was not inserted, probably from reasons of space. At the same time I would like to thank you for your articles against vandalism, especially that form of it that induces people to walk across a beautiful corner lawn, to save a matter of two or three steps. More power to your elbow. Thanking you, I am,

Yours truly,
R. Mitchell.

Watering Carts Will Daily Briefly on Sunday Mornings

The City Council briefly discussed the Sunday watering of the streets last night.

Ald. Anderson—I wouldn't like to see the watering cart around all day on Sunday.

Ald. Duncan—It will be only early in the morning and on windy days. It will be mostly in the vicinity of the Churches.

Ald. Duncan stated that the whole quest ion was mostly in the hands of the City Engineer and a cart would be called out only when he concluded that it was needed.

Assessed for 10 ft. More Than His Deed Entitled Him To

W. A. Hunter wrote the Council that the published assessments stated that he is assessed on his property, 230 Reid Street, corner of Sherbrooke, for 35 feet frontage, where his deed reads only 25 ft. He has also been paying taxes for 5 years on 10 ft. that he does not own; also on 10 ft. of sidewalk and 10 ft. of sewer. He asked for a refund and correction of 1913 assessment.

Council Will Borrow $10,000 for Waterworks

A by-law was passed by the Council last night authorizing the borrowing of $10,000 for the extension of the waterworks.

WERE AFRAID OF A FIRE

Big Sign in Front of Scotland Woollen Mills Store Caused Excitement

Last night about eleven o'clock the fire brigade were called to the Hunter Street store of the Scotland Woollen Mills. The motor that operates the large electric sign in front of the store, was sparking in such a manner as to make passerby fear that it would set the place on fire. The Chief responded with the light buggy and chemical tanks, but before he reached the premises the power had been shut off and the motor had ceased to spark. The sign in question, which is a very large one, has caused considerable attention. First the local by-law had to be amended to allow its being hung out at all and last night it was the cause of some excitement.

Anstruther Citizens Are Heavy Losers

ANSTRUTHER, April 28.—Mr. C. Tucker of Anstruther, had the misfortune to loose a very valuable cow last week. During the past 12 or 13 months he has lost two cows, a fine driving mare and yearling colt. The total loss would be in the neighbourhood of $400.

Mr. John Marshal, who lives in the northern part of the Township of Anstruther, had his house and all the contents, excepting two trunks and the sewing machine totally destroyed by fire about 8 o'clock Saturday morning. No insurance. Both Mr. Tucker and Mr. Marshal have the sympathy of the community in their loss.

CLAIMS WORK WAS UNNECESSARY AND CITY SHOULD PAY

W. H. Taylor wrote the Council asking a cheque for $15.08, for reasons mentioned in the following letter, which was referred to the Board of Works:

Referring to the enclosed account of Adamson & Dobbin for $15.08, this account represents alterations in plumbing at 591-595 George Street, made necessary on account of the fact that the City, following incorrect plans, put a second connection in one house. It was my desire that the second connection be put in No. 595, but your City Engineer insisted that it should be in 591, where, as he was informed, there was aready a connection. On account of this error an extra expense of the above named amount was incurred in changing the sewer pipes to the new connection.

SOME THINGS AND A FEW OTHERS

Judging by the odours that breeze into the street cars from the rear vestibules, some smokers must be auxiliaries to the garbage incinerator.

The only thing chic about some of the new skirts are some of the wearers.

Mayor Buller is experimenting with a fadeaway on a back lot preparing for opening day.

What's the use of having foresighted aldermen. The Council of a few years ago that proposed to buy playground areas was ahead of its time. One is inclined to feel that the ballots that polling day were in the hands of an enlightened electorate. Were they not?

George Elliot was a wee small voice in the wilderness when he advocated garbage collection a few years ago. A foreshanded alderman is not appreciated.

When Monaghan and Otonabee riparian residents hear of this public bathing scheme they will cut the thread that suspends a certain injunction.

Let us see, public playgrounds, swimming places, skating rinks, a heavier police force, more hydros, pavements and taxes. Is there anything you want, ladies and gentlemen? Rub the lamp and you can get anything but a police woman.

Try This on Your Player.

Everybody's selling it, selling it, selling it,
Everybody's selling it, selling what, selling stock.
See that row of figures over there?
Ain't that awful, hear them all declare
Where is it going? Answer, echoes where?

It's a bear, it's a bear, it's a bear.
Everybody's selling it, selling it, selling it,
Everybody's selling it, selling what, selling stock,
It's bound to hit the bottom mighty soon,
Hope that bulls shoot it higher than the moon
But in the meantime there is gloom,
Everybody's selling it now.

(With apologies to Everybody's Doing It.)

C. P. R. Wants $1,000 To Remove Poles

Mr. Marshall of the C.P.R. has informed the Council that the cost of removing the company's telegraph wires from George street to the Spar line would cost $1,000, which the company feels the city should pay.

Toronto Man Allowed to Continue Selling Goods After Giving Security For That Amount

In Police Court this morning a Toronto man was charged with selling goods under the Transient Traders Act without a license. He contended that he did not come under the Act, but the Magistrate decreed differently and said that the license fee would have to be forthcoming. He agreed to pay the $100 and gave security for that amount until he took out the license. The defendant, L. A. Fisher, said that his predecessor had been selling the goods in Ontario for ten years and had never had to take out a license. He said that in Chatham his right to sell was questioned, but after a trial it was agreed that he could operate without a license. The case was adjourned until Friday. The defendant, with a staff of assistants, is in Peterborough selling books, taking orders and then delivering the books afterwards.

CHICAGO JOE TO HANG FOR MURDER

Special to The Examiner:

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 29.—"Chicago Joe" Buonomi, who murdered Jennie Cavaglieri in the woods near Stratford, Oct. 22, 1912, will forfeit his life on the gallows in the State prison at Wethersfield to-morrow. Buonomi was twice tried and convicted of the murder. The evidence showed that the Cavaglieri woman had been a character of the underworld in Chicago and that Buonomi had lived off her earnings. When the woman had deserted him he lured her to a lonely spot near Stratford and shot and killed her.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BALL LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

A meeting of the Principals and Vice-Principals of the Public Schools of the City was held in the Central Schol last evening for the purpose of organizing the Baseball League for the boys of the Public Schools. Mr. H. Yenney, the retiring President of the League, occupied the chair. The election of officers of the League for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Hon.Pres.—Mr. V. Eastwood.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mr. E. G. Patterson.
President—Mr. M. Clark, King Edward School.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. F. Voaden, Queen Mary School.
Sec-Treasurer — Mr. L. J. Colling, South Central School.

There is a keen interest shown by the boys in the League and the citizens should encourage the boys by being present at the games and helping financially. Each school has entered a team in the League and there will be considerable rivalry for the Shield. A schedule of the game will appear in a few days.

right under the Pedlars' by-law to peddle his goods in any Ontario town without being charged a license. And yet the said manufacturer pays neither business or income assessment in this city, and it is the claim of the Retail Merchants' Association that he comes under the provisions of the Transient Traders' by-law and should be made to take out a license. The complication in this case is evident, but is exceeded by the confliction that concerns the case that came before Magistrate Dumble this morning.

In this case a Toronto man took orders for books that were delivered later. A close examination of the list above will show that he is not liable for a license under the Pedlars' by-law, as books are not included in the list. But the charge was laid against him under the Transient Traders' by-law, and he agreed to take out a license under protest.

Seen in connection with the two by-laws a local lawyer this morning gave his opinion that pedlars from house to house must be exempted from the clauses and provisions of the Transient Traders' by-law as they were, without doubt, pedlars and not transient traders. Other lawyers agreed with that, but all expressed the opinion that the wording of the Act and the by-laws made a direct clash that will lead to a great deal of trouble for the authorities in the future. The only way that light can be thrown on the matter in this province is to have a test case go to the Court of Appeals.

The consensus of opinion of the local lawyers is too, that residents of the city cannot be construed as a transient trader whether or not they pay business or income tax. A transient trader, they agree, is one who comes into the city to do business with the intention of withdrawing from town at some future date.

Opinion Of Local Board Was Given

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 29.—The consideration of a bill recently introduced into the Legislature by Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, empowering municipalities through their Boards of Education to build schools for the care of feeble-minded children, was the principal item of business, was the principal item of busi- City Hall to-day of the Ontario Society for the Care of the Feeble-Minded. The assembly room was crowded with delegates from all parts of the province, including thirty-eight Children's Aid inspectors from various cities and townships.

A letter was read from M. A. Morrison, chairman of the Peterborough Board of Education, giving an opinion that the bill would not meet the requirements of the province and that few municipalities would be able to provide for the education of feeble-minded children. Dr. Helen MacMurchy explained that the bill for the first time empowered Boards of Education to have special classes, not only for the mentally deficent, but also for children who for any physical causes are unable to take advantage of the regular school courses, such for instance, as children suffering from poor sight or nearing. It is, he said, the first bill giving such wide powers.

Flat Denial From Rowell

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 29.—In the Legislature to-day, Leader N. W. Rowell flatly denied the charge of Howard Ferguson that he had received a retainer from the Dominion Government while holding a seat in the Assembly, and had thus forfeited that seat. Mr Rowell said that never at any time was he instructed or retained by the Dominion Government, and had never received one dollar from that source since he had been a member of the Ontario House.

GAVE CONCERT IN HAVELOCK

Local Salvation Army Band Journeyed to That Village and Received a Warm Reception

Last night the Salvation Army Band gave a very successful entertainment in the village of Havelock. The band, almost up to full strength, left last evening via C.P.R. and returned this morning in order to allow the members to repair to their daily occupations. The concert was given in the town hall and was very largely attended and very heartily enjoyed. The band rendered a number of selections in its usual inimitable style and greatly pleased the audience.

A BIGGER C. P. R. YARD ENGINE FOR PETERBORO

The C.P.R. yard engine working in Peterborough will be replaced with a larger type which will be brought up from Montreal in a few days. There is a temporary big engine now at work until the other arrives. It is explained that the former engine could not pick up a string of cars as easily as it should have. The handling of grain for the Quaker Oats Company necessitated the pulling of the loaded cars up and down the grade on the spur line. There was also the siding to the Campbell Milling Company's plant, where a slight grade demanded all the former yard engine's power to walk away with it.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

To remove egg stains from silver, rub with salt on a damp cloth.

Always hold fruit-stained table linen over a bowl and pour boiling hot water over it before placed in the wash.

Paint stains that are old and dry may be removed from cotton goods with chloroform. It is a good plan to first cover the spot with olive oil.

When frying potatoes, sprinkle a teaspoonful of flour over them.

"THIS IS THE LIFE."

Twenty and twenty-five years ago we were sentimental in song, melodramatical, melancholy. "Sweet Marie" floated from porches under spreading maple trees and made the Jays moan and sad. "After the Ball" filled swains and maidens with tender fear of the tragedy of life.

Now we are chill, cynical, sophisticated, singing "This Is the Life." The farm hand on the vast Dakotas, the town beau on the Wabash, the village belle in Nebraska know nothing of "Sweet Marie."

They are "ca-ba-ret-ing" with Farmer Brown: "I love the cows and chickens, but this is the life—this is the life—I love to raise the dickens!"

A cheap world, but not sad. Once it sang of broken hearts. Now it sings of outbursting Reubens. Our moon's an arc light.

KNOWING THE ROUTE.

A woman who, by bearing and dress, could be distinguished as "newly rich," entered a street car, and with a very haughty air seated herself near an old Italian.

When the conductor came to take up the fares, should said to him in a loud voice: "Let me off at my husband's bank."

The conductor, evidently knowing her, assured her that he would, and passed on to the Italian.

"Let me off at my peanut stand," called out the old fellow, as he paid his fare.

NEW YORK, April 29—Weakness developed in new places in the late afternoon, like in the Rock Island issues which broke to new low record figures on the definite announcement that the May interest would be defaulted and in Can. Pac., which there was a recurrence of liquidation. The general list was affected unfavourable and a new short interest seemed to be in process of materializing. News and views of steel trade, published in the weekly trade journal were unfavourable but the steel stock was not as weak as might be expected under the circumstances, and some of the holders of the stock, while expecting a better condition of finished material thought that such a development might be followed by a revival of buying demand. S. T. P. statement for March attracted favourable comment, the earnings of the system both in gross and net, making a new high record.

Chicago and Northwestern, whose figures were published on Tuesday, about made an excellent showing for the month. Large blocks of Missouri Pac. were thrown upon the market during the afternoon, which caused a decline in that issue of about two points to 15 1-2, later rallying about half a point from the low price. It was said in the street that it was stock passing from the estate of Jay Gould. Insiders were again conspicuous on the short side of Can. Pac. which caused a decline of nearly four points. The closing was rather weak and nervous, which was due to the conditions in Mexico and Ulster.

MEDIATION TOO LATE?

Pancho Villa Has Taken Solution Into His Own Hands.

LONDON, April 30. — The relief caused in Mexico City by the proffered mediation of the South American republics was only transitory, according to a despatch dated April 28 from the Mexican capital to The Daily Telegraph. The correspondent adds that after having believed it had to face war with the United States the Mexican Government again finds itself confronted by revolution under more unfavorable circumstances. It fears that mediation has come too late to affect the internal struggle, and that it will only prove to be a vain attempt to settle by pacific means a situation which is apparently approaching a violent solution.

Francisco Villa, according to the correspondent, has united under his command the most important nucleus of the combatant forces, and appears to have resumed hostilities with greater vehemence and success.

COMPROMISE LIKELY

Resumption of Conferences on Home Rule Are Expected

CARSON ACCEPTS THE OFFER

LONDON, April 30. — A compromise on the question of Home Rule for Ireland seemed yesterday nearer than ever before. There existed a strong belief in Parliamentary circles that the conferences between the leaders of the two great parties which had been unsuccessful in reaching any agreement last autumn would shortly be resumed.

The House of Commons discussed the Ulster crisis again yesterday, when it wound up the two days' debate on Austen Chamberlain's motion for a judicial inquiry into the Government's "plot" to crush the Ulster Covenanters. The motion, which was virtually a vote of censure on the Cabinet, was eventually rejected by a party vote of 344 against 244, a Government majority of 98.

An atmosphere of great solemnity and restraint overhung the House throughout the debate. The growing belief that civil war in Ireland is a reality which cannot be escaped if the Home Rule bill becomes law as it at present stands seems to have influenced members on both sides of the House as it has the newspapers supporting both parties. During the past week the press of both opinions has become more conciliatory in tone than it has been at any previous stage of the discussion.

Sir Edward Carson, whose leadership of the Ulster rebellion makes him the dominating figure on the Opposition side of the House, yesterday accepted the overtures made Tuesday by Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, who had invited Sir Edward Carson to make an attempt to compromise the Home Rule question on a federal basis. Sir Edward reiterated his detestation of Home Rule and repeated his offer, that if Ulster were excluded from the bill "until this Parliament shall determine otherwise," instead of the six years' period which Premier Asquith had offered, he would submit the proposal to the people of Ulster.

Sir Edward in his reply to Mr. Churchill's invitation declared all he wanted for Ulster was such terms as would conserve the dignity of the Ulster men and their civil and religious freedom. He concluded that in case the Home Rule bill passed it would be his earnest prayer that the government of the south and west of Ireland would prove so successful that it might be to Ulster's interest to join and form a united Ireland.

Premier Asquith concluded the debate with an eloquent speech, which contained the statement that his offer of the temporary exclusion of Ulster Counties from the operation of the Home Rule bill for a period of six years remained open. He said he considered Sir Edward Carson's statement a most important one, and he recognized and reciprocated its spirit. A settlement, he declared, could not be successfully negotiated by bargaining across the floor of the House of Commons, and the questions at issue could not be settled behind the backs of the men of Ulster or of the rest of Ireland.

Arthur J. Balfour, former Unionist Premier, in a moving peroration to his speech, justified Ulster in making civil war. He said his public life had been devoted to the cause of the union between Great Britain and Ireland, and concluded:

"If, in order to avoid the incalculable horrors of civil war, we must set up a separate Parliament in Dublin, I shall think it marks the failure of my whole life's work."

DUTY MUST STAY.

Hons. Mr. White Refuses New Brunswick Request for Free Potatoes.

OTTAWA, April 30. — The House spent the day in committee of ways and means upon the tariff resolution presented by the Finance Minister at the close of his budget speech. Practically the entire sitting was taken up with the resolution presented Tuesday by Mr. Loggie (Northumberland, N.B.), providing that potatoes from the United States should be admitted free of duty when the governor-in-council was satisfied that the present United States embargo upon Canadian potatoes had been removed. The debate was practically confined to Liberal members from New Brunswick and Conservative members from Ontario.

Mr. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) in support of the resolution said the effect of the Underwood law reduction to 10 per cent. had been to greatly stimulate the export of potatoes from New Brunswick. Unfortunately the embargo now excluded Canadian potatoes from the United States.

Mr. Lake (Muskoka) asked if the embargo was justifiable. He thought it was the same old story, namely, that whenever Canadian imports commenced to come in the United States by some trick shut them out.

Mr. Best (Dufferin) spoke from the standpoint of the Ontario farmer, urging more protection instead of less.

Dr. Edwards (Frontenac) also spoke for the Ontario farmer. He did not believe that the New Brunswick farmer would be well advised to tear down the tariff wall. He would find there was little demand in the United States for his potatoes.

Hon. Mr. White briefly declared that the Government would not consider removing the duty on potatoes. He could not see why the United States Government should remove the embargo to secure the Canadian market, if Mr. Carvell was right in his contention that the United States did not produce enough potatoes to feed her own people.

The resolution was defeated.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

At least four persons lost their lives in a fire which started early yesterday in a thickly settled residential block in Portland, Oregon.

Robert M. J. McGill, chief accountant of the Transcontinental Railway Commission, died suddenly esterday at Ottawa in his 52nd year.

The C. P. R. steamer Montfort, which grounded near the Isle of Orleans Tuesday was floated yesterday. The vessel suffered no damage.

Hon. Dr. Roche smiled yesterday at the report that he is to resign as a member and head the Civil Service Commission. He denied that he has any such intention.

Counsel for Charles Becker surprised the district attorney yesterday in New York by saying he would be ready to proceed with the trial scheduled to begin May 5.

Capt. Magalhaes, a Brazilian official, who accompanied Col. Roosevelt in the jungle, reports that the colonel has discovered a tribe of naked savages who are called Pauhates.

Two companies of 104th Regiment, Westminster Fusiliers, will be despatched to Vancouver Island coal mining districts to forestall possible renewal of rioting among the miners.

INSURANCE CASE HEARD.

Leslie Downey Gets Preliminary Hearing at St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, April 30.—Charged with conspiring with H. L. Pearce of Toronto to defraud Dr. Currie of Merritton out of a sum of money, Leslie Downey was granted a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Campbell yesterday. The case was adjourned until to-day.

Dr. Currie testified that he subscribed for shares in the Colonial Life Insurance Co. of Canada, which Downey said had already applied for a charter and had appointed a prominent Toronto doctor chief examiner.

On the strength of these statements, and in view of the fact that he himself was to be appointed local medical examiner for the company, Dr. Currie claimed that he signed an application for twenty shares and paid the premium of $300 by check.

William Vale, deputy superintendent of insurance in the Attorney-General's Department at Toronto, testified that he had never had any application for a charter from the Colonial Insurance Co. A prospectus was filed on Feb. 20, 1913. Complaints had been received from all [illegible]

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of alumina, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

SCOPE IS WIDENED

Mediators May Deal With Whole Mexican Situation

MANZANILLO BOMBARDED?

WASHINGTON, April 30. — The scope of mediation plans for the settlement of the Mexican crisis was suddenly broadened last night so as to include the entire range of Mexican affairs — not alone the critical issue between the United States and the Huerta regime, but also the conflict between the elements of northern and southern Mexico, which have rent the republic for many months.

This signal enlargement of the mediation program followed the receipt, late in the day, of a formal acceptance by Gen. Carranza, chief of the Constitutional forces, of the principle of mediation as proposed by the ambassador from Brazil and the Ministers from Argentina and Chili.

Earlier in the day the mediators made another decisive move in asking the United States and Gen. Huerta to agree to an armistice by which all aggressive military movements would be suspended pending the outcome of the negotiations. The mediators confidently expect both sides to accept the armistice proposal. A separate proposal for an armistice as between Huerta and Carranza will also be made, and with its acceptance all the warring elements throughout Mexico, as well as the American forces, would maintain a military status quo.

The American Government in its formal reply to the armistice proposal will expressly stipulate that an untoward act toward Americans will be regarded as an infraction of the armistice.

Manzanillo Bombarded?

MEXICO CITY, April 30. — The port of Manzanillo, on the Pacific coast, was bombarded yesterday by an American warship, according to a telegram received yesterday by Gen. Blanquet, Mexican Minister of War, from Gen. Jose Maria Mier.

The telegram says the wharves and adjoining buildings were destroyed by shell fire.

Landing at Salina Cruz.

MEXICO CITY, April 30.—A despatch from Oaxaca says American marines landed at Salina Cruz yesterday after the American commander had threatened to open fire on the port in case the Mexican officials offered resistance.

One Standard of Morality.

LONDON, April 30. — The Lower House of Convocation of Canterbury Tuesday discussed the attitude of the Church of England towards divorce.

The Bishop of Southampton moved a resolution expressing the opinion that there should be one standard of morality for men and women and equality of treatment by the law.

The present state of the law, the bishop said, was barbarous in its treatment of women. The resolution was carried.

McMullen Suspended.

TORONTO, April 30.—York County Constable James E. McMullen has been suspended until further order by his Honor Judge Winchester. The suspension, which comes into effect immediately, is not made on the ground that criminal proceedings are pending against McMullen in the Police Court, but the senior county judge has taken action under the Private Detectives' Act.

This act provides that no person shall engage in the business of a private detective without having first obtained a license from the Treasurer of the province.

Sanguinary Strike In Colorado Terminated by Militia.

DENVER, Col., April 30.—Under a truce agreement, which stopped the fighting at Walsenburg yesterday afternoon, approximately 650 strikers to-day are surrendering arms to militia officers appointed by Col. Verdeckberg. The strikers were not taken into custody, but will be subject to prosecution in the courts for the killing of Major P. F. Lester of the hospital corps.

Violence in the strike zones of Colorado came to an end shortly after midnight when a downpour of rain drove to cover striking miners who near Walsenburg, the only point in Colorado where actual violence obtained, and yesterday dawned with the prospect of indefinite peace between the warring industrial factions. Federal troops from Cheyenne, Wyo., arrived in Canon City, and troops from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, were expected to reach Trinidad last night.

Seven More Strike Victims.

FORBES, Col., April 30. — Seven men lie dead in the Forbes camp of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Co.

Most of the mine buildings are in ashes. Nine defenders are missing, but are believed to have reached the Majestic mine. Three strikers are thought to have been killed in the latest outbreak in the Colorado labor war.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Making a Reputation in the West.

Saskatchewan Man Tells How They Cured Him, After Four Months' Suffering from Backache and Other Forms of Kidney Disease.

St. Phillips, Sask., April 29.—(Special.)—In a new country where changes of climate and impure water are among the difficulties to be surmounted, kidney trouble is prevalent. It is the kidneys, the organs that strain the impurities out of the blood, that first feel any undue strain on the body. Consequently Dodd's Kidney Pills have been well tried and tested in this neighbourhood.

They have stood the test. Many settlers tell of backache, rheumatism and urinary troubles cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Otto Olshewski is one of these. In speaking of his cure he says:

"I suffered from kidney disease for four months. My back ached. I had heart flutterings, and was always tired and nervous. My skin had a harsh, dry feeling; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"I consulted a doctor, but as I did not appear to improve, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes, and now I am all right."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always stand the test. Ask your neighbours.

WELCOMES INQUIRY

Mr. Rowell Gives Effective Answer to Fergusson Charge

LAST FIGHT FOR RIDINGS

TORONTO, April 30.—The Ontario Legislature faces prorogation on Friday. The last item of the year's business was swept from the boards yesterday when the redistribution bill finally passed third reading after three hours of vigorous opposition from the Liberal members.

William McDonald (Centre Bruce), whose constituency is no more, made a determined effort to change the clause affecting the riding but his two amendments, one that the boundaries be left as before and the other that certain townships be changed about, were defeated.

Messrs. Proudfoot and Sam Clarke attacked once more the double voting plan in force in Toronto and claimed an unfair treatment of the minority.

The constituency of Monck disappears entirely.

In the last minute of the session a Government Bill to license employment agencies and require them to show security went through without opposition.

An echo of the debate of Tuesday over the Snider affair, in which G. Howard Ferguson accused Mr. Rowell of having done professional work for the Federal Government was heard yesterday when the Liberal leader made a formal statement to the House.

Mr. Rowell said that he had been retained by the Oka Indians and the missionary society alone, and produced letters telling of the arrangement. Everything had been done at any rate before he became a candidate for the Legislature. He was not employed by the Ottawa House.

Mr. Ferguson retorted that this was the sheerest quibbling and deception for it was well known that the Indians were wards of the Government and that his fee had been paid for Government service.

This was followed by a charge by Thomas McGarry (Renfrew) that he could prove that Mr. Rowell was the paid agent of the former Ontario Government, and had engineered the Soo industries' deal, including the Lake Superior Steel Corporation loan. The records would show that he received $50,000 and over for that work.

Mr. Rowell stated that his firm had acted in an advisory capacity to defend the interests of the province in this matter, and that his fees had come from the corporation.

The Renfrew member asked if Mr. Rowell still drew money from the corporation, and was told that until two or three months ago such had been the case.

"I did not say that I was not retained by the old Government, but I do say that my fee was paid by the corporation," stated Mr. Rowell.

After several sharp passages the discussion terminated.

When the statute law amendment act was in committee, Hon. I. B. Lucas introduced a clause implementing the resolution of the Hydro-electric municipalities permitting the payment of a sum annually up to $15,000 to the members of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Mr. Lucas explained that whatever portion of this money went to Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, would be in addition to the salary of $6,000 voted by the Legislature, and the act of indemnity passed a year ago would apply in this case as well. As Col. Hendrie and Mr. W. K. McNaught had both declined to accept any remuneration for their services on the commission no clause indemnifying them from the provision of the Legislative Assembly act was included.

The law respecting moving picture shows was amended to include theatres as well. This was done to prevent children under the age of fifteen years attending shows unless accompanied by an adult member of the family.

Pollman Evans Will Come.

TORONTO, April 30. — According to a statement made in the Jury Assize Court at the City Hall yesterday, Pollman Evans had his passage booked to come back from France to stand his trial here along with his co-directors of the Union Life Insurance Co. on a charge of conspiracy to defraud.

"Mr. Pollman Evans, by cablegram, has intimated to me that he will be here at the next sittings of the court," said his counsel, W. E. Raney, K.C. "If the crown is ready to proceed at the present session, he could perhaps be here for that."

LAKE FREIGHTER LOST.

Steamer Benjamin Noble Goes Down With Over 30 on Board.

DULUTH, Minn., April 30.—That the steamer Benjamin Noble, her crew of 30 or more, and a large cargo of railroad iron, were swallowed up in the turbulent waters of storm-swept Lake Superior Tuesday night, was made almost certain yesterday when the life-saving crew picked up wreckage from the steamer off Minnesota Point, Duluth. All efforts to find the hulk of the steamer have proved fruitless.

The general belief is that she missed the Duluth entrance and struck the point and foundered in very deep water. In addition to the high seas Tuesday night, there was a heavy mist and snow, and the Duluth entry light was out.

Up to last evening no bodies had come ashore. Reports by excited people who lined Park Point that bodies had been found yesterday afternoon proved incorrect.

While the Noble was trying to make the harbor, the south light on the Duluth entry pier went out. No blame is attached by marine men to Capt. Prior, who has charge of the lighthouse here, or to members of his crew. If the fault lies anywhere, vessel men say, it is with the antiquated equipment of the lighthouse department. The lighthouse has no electrical service and when a storm of such proportions as that of Tuesday and Wednesday night comes up, there is no way for the lighthouse men to get back and forth to attend to the lights.

The list of dead or missing includes: Capt. John E. Iseshardt, aged 31, Milwaukee; First Mate Geo. H. Longiary, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Chief Engineer A. C. Coger, Port Clinton, Ohio; Steward John Coleman, Oswego, N.Y.; Assistant Steward Thomas Proud, Oswego; Fireman Otto Guntch, Toledo, O.; Fireman Wm. Goulett, Toledo.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOHN HAM, R. WAS TROUBLED WITH Weak and Dizzy Spells.

Heart Would Beat Something Awful.

Those feelings of weakness, those dizzy spells which come over people from time to time, are warnings that must not go unheeded.

They indicate an extremely weakened condition of the heart and a disordered state of the nerves. One dizzy spell may pass off, but eventually they will come frequently, and at the same time more serious.

Those who are wise will start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills before their case becomes hopeless, for they have no equal for restoring the heart to its usual strength, and making the nerves firm and steady.

Mrs. Len. Kinney, Moose Mountain, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with weak and dizzy spells, and my heart would beat something awful. I got so I had those spells every day. I got so I would try one medicine, and then another, but nothing did me any good until I got Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I can safely say they did me more good than anything I ever took, for I feel like a very different woman. 'My friends often ask me what I have been taking, and I always say 'Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.' I tell all my friends who say their heart troubles them, to take your pills."

'Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hinz, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

"Little Jack Horner."

"Little Jack Horner," the familiar nursery rhyme, had its origin in a real tragedy.

During the Reformation, the head of Glastonbury Abbey in the west of England resolved to make his peace with Henry VIII., and, in token thereof sent certain title-deeds of abbey property to the King at Whitehall. For security's sake, the abbot placed the documents in a pie dish, and covered them with a crust. The dish he gave to a rustic lout, named Jack Horner, and he told him to carry it by the high road to the King in London.

On the road, Jack Horner became hungry, and came to the conclusion that it would be foolish to starve while he had a pie in his hands. So he broke the crust and put in his thumb and pulled out a roll of parchment. The disgusted and disappointed fellow threw both pie and parchment into a nearby brook.

When the deeds did not appear, the King charged the abbot with contumacy, and commanded that the unfortunate cleric should be hanged.

MONEY IN COLLECTING.

Trifles Picked Up Here and There Worth Good Sums.

"The collecting craze is played out. There are too many people at the game to make any profit," the writer heard a man remark the other day. And to a certain extent he is correct—that is, if one collects spasmodically, without enthusiasm, and without properly using one's brains.

As Mr. J. Herbert Bailey, editor of The Connoisseur, remarked the other day. "The general public does not realise what large sums can be made by the buying and selling of antiques. When a man goes to the Caledonian Road Market and picks up some valuable thing for a mere trifle, the find is in the brain of the purchaser. It looks like luck to the onlooker, but it is really the just reward of long years of persevering study."

According to Mr. Bailey, quite a number of people make a good income by picking up antiques in places like the Old Kent Road, and selling them again in the West End. An old man who made his living in this way left a fortune of $100,000 when he died, not very long ago. Mr. Bailey knows of a man who bought for $125 a picture of which he himself did not know the value. A friend happening to see it, asked how much he would sell it for. "Six hundred pounds," was the reply, which was not meant to be taken seriously. "I will give you four hundred and fifty pounds," was the answer, and the picture changed hands.

The increase in the value of antiques is due in a great measure to the wealthy collector, who is ready to pay a fabulous sum for anything that takes his fancy. Referring to curious collections, Mr. Bailey mentions that there has been rather a craze for collecting death masks lately. Another great quest of the collector is a miniature of a single eye, and he himself possesses a most exquisite miniature of Mrs. Fitzherbert's eye.

There are people, too, who collect pole heads which used to be carried at the head of the now defunct village club processions, and their value has increased to such an extent that, whereas a little while ago they could be had for sixpence each, they now cost from 30s. to £2.

Another new idea is the collecting of brass ornaments worn by horses. One man has over a thousand, and the interest lies in the fact that they will soon disappear. Farmers very often hand the brass amulets of their horses down from generation to generation, and it is interesting to recall that in olden days these brass ornaments were regarded as mascots to ward off the evil eye, and as a safeguard against accidents or death.

The Literal Mind.

Man is never literal in the expression of his ideas except in matters most trivial. Very often man's words are not a language at all, but merely a vocal gesture of the dumb. They may indicate, but do not express, his thoughts. The more vital his thoughts the more have his words to be explained by the context of his life. Those who seek to know his meaning by the aid of the dictionary only technically reach the house, for they are stopped by the outside wall and find no entrance to the hall. This is the reason why the teachings of our greatest prophets give rise to endless disputations when we try to understand them by following their words and not by realising them in our own lives. The men who are cursed with the gift of the literal mind are the unfortunate ones who are always busy with their nets and neglect the fishing.—"Sidhana—The Soul-nature of Life," by Nottingham Times.

Worry Stops Digestion And Destroys The Nerves

This Letter Tells of Case Which Baffled Doctors—Lasting Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

If you only worry enough, digestion will stop entirely. Worry and anxiety consume nerve force at a tremendous rate. Blood rushes to the brain to renew the wasted nerve cells, and other parts of the body must suffer accordingly. When nervous energy is being consumed by the brain in worry, there is not sufficient left to run the machinery of digestion. This is why nervous, irritable, worrying people usually suffer from the food they eat the nourishment essential to the maintenance of health.

"Laugh and grow fat" is an old saying laden with value for nervous people in particular. Drop the worry habit and use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and you will soon get the nervous system restored to good condition. Digestion will improve, appetite will return, and you will find such symptoms as headache and sleeplessness fast disappearing.

Mrs. Fred Jenson, 60 Gladstone Avenue, Windsor, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervousness and stomach trouble and never found anything to equal them. I was a nervous wreck. Doctors gave me up as incurable, but now I feel well again and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to several people suffering as I did, and they have also been cured by its use. I am fifty-one years old, do all my own work, and am very thankful that I learned about this great medicine. I am satisfied that my cure is lasting and want others to benefit from my experience."

FARM AND DAIRY MARKETS

Toronto, Monday, April 27.—Although spring work has been slightly delayed in starting, farmers are now active with their crops in Eastern Canada. As usual there is a lull in farm produce markets as deliveries fall off when spring work starts. Business in general is not on a par with business at this date last year. There is a tendency in many quarters, and in no place is it more in evidence than in Parliament, to gloss over prompt conditions and paint rosy pictures of what is going to happen in the future. Farm and Dairy's Marketman would suggest that it would be more to the point to enquire into the causes of the present depression and thus be in a position to prevent a re-occurrence of business stagnation.

In farmers' markets the most noticeable result of seeding operations is the jump in the price of potatoes. From now until after seeding the quotations on this crop will be high. Other points of interest are the apparent dullness in the butter market and the slight recession in cattle quotations.

WHEAT

Crop conditions all through the Western States continue ideal. A threatened drought has been averted by timely rains. Locally the wheat market has been strengthened by the delayed opening of navigation, and No. 2 Northern is now quoted 95c; No. 3, 93½c and wheat overcoming, 90c to 91c. Ontario wheat is in demand at $1.01 to $1.02.

COARSE GRAINS

Here the market is quiet. Corn is down a trifle but other changes are not noticeable. Oats, C.W. No. 2, 41c; No. 3, 40c; Ontario oats, 35 to 36; corn, 71½c to 72c; rye, 65c to 66c; peas, 85c to 90c; barley, malting, 56c to 58c; feed, 51c; buckwheat, 70c to 72c. Montreal quotations are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 43c; No. 3, 42c; corn, 75c to 76½c; barley, malting, 60c; feed, 51c; peas, $1.70 to $1.75; buckwheat, 68c to 69c; rye, 72c to 73c.

MILL FEEDS

Mill feeds are still a coarse article and prices hold firm at recent high levels. Bran, $24 to $25; shorts, $26 to $28; middlings, $30 to $32; feed flour, $34 to $35. Montreal dealers ask for bran, $23; shorts, $25; middlings, $33.

HAY AND STRAW

Unexpected demand from the United States points has strengthened the hay market, although quotations have not advanced here: No. 1, $14 to $14.50; No. 2, $12 to $13.50; straw, $8.50 to $9. At Montreal quotations have advanced, though some dealers regard the advance as only temporary: No. 1, $15 to $16; No. 2, $13 to $15; No. 3, $10 to $12.

EGGS AND POULTRY

There is no change noticeable in the situation. Receipts are liberal and the surplus is being placed in storage at 20c to 22c for new-laids. Montreal dealers report eggs to be of good quality, with sales of round lots at 21c to 21½c.

Dressed poultry are on the boom. Dressed fowl, 15c to 17c; alive, 14c to 16c; yearling chickens, 18c to 20c; alive, 15c to 16c; geese, 14c to 15c and 12c to 13c; turkeys, 17c to 22c and 14c to 17c.

POTATOES AND BEANS

Potatoes have taken the usual shoot upwards, Ontario's new being quoted at 90c a bag in car lots, with New Brunswick's at $1. Higher prices may be expected until the surplus is marketed after seeding. The Montreal market also reports greater strength.

Beans here are quoted $2.10 to $2.20 for primes and $2.15 to $2.25 for hand picked.

HIDES AND WOOL

Quotations are: Hides, cured, 14½c to 15c; part cured, 13½c to 14c; green, 12c to 12½c; horse hides, $4.50 to $5; horse hair, 30c to 40c; calf skins, cured, 13½c to 15c; deakins, 81 to $1.40; lamb skins, 81 to $1.25.

Wool quotations are: Unwashed, coarse 16½c to 17c; fine, 17½c to 17¾c; washed, rejects, 18c to 19½c; coarse, 25½c to 26½c; fine, 26½c to 27½c.

SEEDS

Wholesale seed merchants are selling to the trade per cwt. as follows: Red clover, No. 1, $15 and $22; No. 2, $17.50 to $18.50; alsike, No. 1, $21; No. 2, $17 to $18.50; timothy, No. 1, $6.50 to $9.50; No. 2, $7.25 to $7.50; alfalfa, No. 1, $14 to $15; No. 2, $13 to $13.50.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The outlook for butter is not a hopeful one with the Pacific markets largely supplied from New Zealand, and even small shipments from that country being landed in the East. New York quotations are on a par with Montreal, hence there is little outlook for trade in that direction. If the surplus is to be disposed of in Great Britain, lower values will have to rule. On the local market wholesale dealers are quoting as follows: Farmers' separator prints, 24c to 26c; dairy prints, 22c to 24c; creamery prints, 28c to 30c; storage, 26c to 27c; solids, storage, 23c to 25c; bakers, 17c to 17½c.

Cheese quotations have also receded slightly. New large, 15½c to 15¾c; twins, 15½c to 16c; old large, 14½c; twins, 14¾c.

HORSES

Quotations on the horse exchanges average about as follows: Heavy draft, $220 to $250; agricultural horses, $140 to $200; express horses, $160 to $200; light delivery, $125 to $175; roadsters, $140 to $200; serviceably sound, $80 to $90.

LIVE STOCK

Liberal runs the early part of last week weakened the market and placed quotations on a considerably lower level than ruled the week previous. Toward the end of the week smaller shipments tended to strengthen the market, but last week's levels were not reached. The best advice that can be given to shippers is to cull their herds carefully, shipping only well finished beasts, retaining the poorer ones until they are in condition to command attention on the market. On the final day of the week a load of fine feeders were sold for shipment to the United States at $7.40. This was one of the notable sales of the week. Quotations are as follows:

Choice heavy steers, $7.80 to $8; handy choice steers, $7.70 to $7.80; butchers' steers, good, $7.40 to $7.70; com. to med., $7 to $7.40; heifers, $6.50 to $7.75; choice cows, $6.25 to $7; com. to good, $4.50 to $5.75; butcher bulls, $6 to $7.50; feeders, $6 to $7.50; stockers, $5 to $7.25; canners and cutters, $3.50 to $4.50.

Choice milch cows are in active demand at $65 to $100; com. to med., $40 to $65 and springers, $40 to $100. Calves range from $5 to $8.50.

Quite a few spring lambs are arriving on the market, and are meeting with a ready demand at $8 to $10. Weather lambs bring $9 to $9.25; buck lambs, $6.25 to $7; light ewes, $6.50 to $7.50; heavy sheep and bucks, $5.25 to $6.50; culls, $4 to $5.50.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Saturday, April 25.—The tone of the market has live hogs very steady owing to the fact that the supply was not in excess of the requirements and a fairly active trade was done in Ontario selected stock at $9.10 to $9.25, and Manitobas at $9.50, weighed off cars. There is a good demand for small lots of abattoir fresh-killed dressed hogs, and prices are unchanged at $13.50 to $13.75.

MONTREAL BUTTER AND CHEESE

Montreal, Saturday, April 25.—There is more activity in cheese this week, owing to the steadily increasing offerings at country boards, and prices have recorded a substantial reduction from those paid a week ago, owing to the fact that the quantity offering is more than can be conveniently handled by the local trade, and buyers are not willing to pay any more than they believe they can obtain for export, consequently 11½c to 11¾c was the best price for this week at the country boards, and salesmen were forced to accept this price, as this was the best obtained. The highest price was paid at Picton on Friday, where 160 boxes sold at 11¾c. There were a few twins sold there and these fetched 12 1-16c a pound. The receipts this week amounted to 1,300 boxes, as compared with 870 boxes last week and 1,800 boxes the corresponding week a year ago. The first steamers are due to arrive here the middle of next week and the first sailings will probably take place about the 3rd or 4th of May. By that time cheese will be more plentiful on that market, and the market will have become more settled than it is at present.

Market for butter is fairly steady and finest fresh is quoted at 30c. Dealers generally are looking for lower prices next week, as a large increase in the receipts is generally expected. The balance of the stock of old butter has now disappeared, and from now on we will be handling fresh goods on this market.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel Rachachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

BLACK HAND SECRETS REVEALED BY CHIEF OF SECRET SERVICE

THE BARREL MURDER MYSTERY SOLVED

By William J. Flynn

Chief of the United States Secret Service.

"Petto the Ox" Knew the Meaning of That Shrill Whistle.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS ARTICLE.

ON the morning of April 12, 1908, the body of a man jammed into a sugar barrel was found in a street on the east side of New York. The police were utterly at a loss to find any clew leading toward the murderer of the man, whose throat had been cut, or even to establish his identity. William J. Flynn, then chief of the Department of the East of the United States Secret Service, after a tireless hunt learned that the victim of the "barrel murder" was Marueno Benedetto, a Sicilian. He put into the hands of the police evidence incriminating Luciano Parrino, known variously as "Tomaso Petto the Ox," or "Il Bove," but the evidence was not sufficient to hold the man for trial, and an indictment for murder in the first degree was quashed. This left the mystery deeper than it had been before, and the police were utterly at a loss.

"PETTO THE OX," released by the courts because there was not sufficient evidence to bring him to trial for the murder of Marueno Benedetto, disappeared from his accustomed haunts in New York. Whether the police followed his movements I do not know, but the eyes of the Secret Service were ceaselessly on him and the long arm of Uncle Sam hovered ever over him, ready to strike. Aside from a matter of pride, it was my business to follow Petto, for I knew him to be identified with a band of counterfeiters I was trying to break up.

The very fact that he shunned New York after his release strengthened my growing belief in the existence of a Black Hand Society. There was not sufficient evidence in the hands of the police to make him fear them. New York was the headquarters for his band, yet he fled to Pittston, Pa., and we knew that he feared something. It was reasonable to suppose that if he was the murderer of Benedetto he feared vengeance.

In Pittston, on the outskirts of the city, Petto lived in a small house where many a foul plot was hatched and many a blackmailing scheme was originated, with Petto as the master plotter. The decent Italians of the district feared him as they would a plague. Even the poorest of them were not safe from his depredations and the most powerful were his easy prey.

One night "The Ox" was sitting in a comfortable room of his little house. Doubtless he was gloating over some rich haul or plotting some new trick by which to wring gold from an industrious neighbor. Outside a Scotch mist chilled all things and Petto hugged the fire for warmth.

A shrill whistle pierced the night. Petto must have started, for he was not a brave man, though he held cheaply human life when it was some one else's. From his pocket he snatched a heavy revolver. At the same time he quickly turned out the lights, that no man might see him through the window. "Petto the Ox" knew the meaning of that shrill whistle. Cautiously he crept toward the door of his house. Slowly he opened it and peered through the mist. On his quickness of eye depended his life, and it was hard to see.

Something must have moved in the darkness, for Petto fired once. At the same instant five quick stabs of red stirred the curtain of mist that hung between him and his lurking enemy. "The Ox" fell; dropped as drops the animal for whom he was named, when struck with the pole ax. Five leaden slugs had found his body. One had carried away a part of the hand with which he gripped his own revolver, which fell fully loaded by his side.

The murderer of Petto took no chances. Lest "The Ox" should be playing possum, he sank a dagger into Petto's heart.

So far as the police records of any city go, the slayer of Petto has never been discovered. Nothing which might help materially in a solution of the mystery, was found, but about Petto's neck hung a little brass crucifix, just such a one as was found on the body of the barrel victim, with a skull and crossbones beneath the feet of the figure on the cross.

Here was another mystery, and yet it confirmed me in my theory of the first. It started a train of thought on which I worked to a certain conclusion and afterward my ideas were confirmed by the confessions of Black Handers with whom I talked.

To my mind there was no doubt that the slaying of "The Ox" was an act of vengeance. The most reasonable supposition (I was already morally certain that Petto killed Benedetto) was that he had died at the hand of a relative of Benedetto's. It was but a step further to attribute the killing of Benedetto himself to vengeance.

Now, for the moment, I must lead you back again.

In January, 1908, several months before the barrel murder baffled the police of New York, three Italians were arrested in Yonkers, N. Y., charged with counterfeiting five dollar notes of the National Iron Bank, of Morristown, N. J. These notes were being imported from Italy by the Lupo-Morello gang.

The three men arrested were Isadore Crocervera, Salvatore Romano and Giuseppe De Prisma. The last, you will remember I told you, was the brother-in-law of the barrel victim and was the first to identify him as Marueno Benedetto.

When I took hold of the case the Yonkers (N. Y.) police told me that there had been a fourth man in the company of the three arrested, but that he had gotten away. I knew at once that this man was the treasurer of the crew passing the counterfeit money. The treasurer, with the bills on his person, always lurks in the background, and if the others get into trouble he immediately flees with the bulk of the counterfeit notes. His first move is to go to the headquarters of the gang, where all the machinery of the Black Hand Society is immediately set in motion in the effort to win the release of those captured.

So accurate was the description of the man who escaped furnished me by the Yonkers police that I at once identified him as a counterfeiter known in the files of the Secret Service as No. 6. Incidentally I knew Crocervera and De Prisma were members of the Corleone band—in other words, were members of the Black Hand.

The men who made the arrests in Yonkers went with me to New York, and I stationed them where they could obtain a good view of No. 6. They at once declared that he was the man who had escaped from them, and on February 19 we arrested him.

He gave the name Giuseppe Giallambardo and was sentenced to serve six years in prison.

Meanwhile I several times questioned Crocervera, De Prisma and Romano. I knew that none of these men would talk. If any one of them did and was released, his body would doubtless be found, broken and mutilated, within twenty-four hours. On one occasion I had Crocervera and De Prisma brought to my office at the same time. I left Crocervera in the outer office and with a great show of secrecy kept De Prisma locked up with me in an inner office for more than an hour. Crocervera, of course, knew that he was in there and my scheme was to make him think that De Prisma had confessed, thus leading the other prisoner, in a spirit of spite, to incriminate his companion and perhaps divulge many secrets of the band.

After I thought Crocervera had had time to think things over I dismissed De Prisma. As he left my office I went to the door with him, and in sight and hearing of Crocervera shook him cordially by the hand and bade him goodby heartily, as if I was much gratified by what he had told me. As a matter of fact he had told me next to nothing, but I wished to strengthen Crocervera's suspicions against him.

The ruse was fruitless. Crocervera told me absolutely nothing. He did, however, convey to the leaders of the Black Hand news of all that transpired in my office. This I learned later through a number of different channels.

He gave it out that De Prisma had confessed all, and that every member of the band was in danger. Although my little piece of acting did not result in forcing Crocervera to disgorge secrets of the Black Hand, it had convinced him of De Prisma's duplicity and had far reaching results of an unexpected and a startling character.

The members of the society had no reason to doubt the truth of Crocervera's accusation against De Prisma, and when we arrested No. 6, who called himself Giallambardo, they were absolutely convinced that the prisoner had betrayed them.

The three men captured in Yonkers were sent to Sing Sing, convicted of passing counterfeit money. The fact that De Prisma himself was serving a term in prison did not excuse him in the eyes of the Black Hand Society, which believed he had betrayed its secrets. According to the tenets of the organization De Prisma should be punished by death, but De Prisma was in prison, and it did not suit the designs of the Black Hand to wait for vengeance until he was released. The anger of the Sicilian flares up like loose powder when it is kindled and revenge must be quick if possible.

According to the unwritten law of the Black Hand, of which I shall write more later, as De Prisma was where he could not be punished his nearest male relative was marked to pay the penalty. De Prisma had no male blood relatives and so at a conference of the leaders of the society it was decided that his brother-in-law should die. This was Marueno Benedetto, the man whose body was found in the barrel covered by Crocervera's coat. "Petto the Ox" was selected to commit the crime.

"Petto the Ox" was chosen to kill Benedetto, the barrel victim. In turn Petto was shot to death by a kinsman of Benedetto. Many suppose that the avenger of the barrel murder was De Prisma himself, who in the natural course of events would have been called upon to act. This is because De Prisma was released from Sing Sing at about the time of Petto's death, but I can say for certainty that De Prisma did not shoot "Il Bove" (the Ox), for he was still in prison when Petto answered the shrill whistle which blew him to his death.

The police will also tell you that De Prisma when released attempted to flee to Palermo and that he died at sea, probably at the hands of an assassin. Of this more later.

Knowing the methods and the ideals of which they may be called—of the Black Hand, and remembering the incident in my office when Crocervera believed De Prisma had betrayed him, I reconstructed this chain of events and, despite the failure of the police to fasten the guilt of the barrel murder on Petto, and despite the lack of real evidence, I was firmly convinced that "Petto the Ox" was the murderer.

The death of "The Ox" strengthened this conviction.

And—well, there were other reasons for my certainty, reasons which I dare not tell because I must safeguard the lives of others.

After the death of Petto the two murders were officially of little interest to me, but I was determined to prove my theory correct. I can say that in every detail the story I have told you was corroborated years afterward by men who knew the facts.

In no way were the troubles of the Secret Service [illegible] by the deaths of Benedetto and "Petto the Ox" and the disappearance of De Prisma, though with the grim ending of these incidents the New York police lost interest in the men whom the Secret Service was shadowing. The band was rather disorganized for a time, but when their suspicions were allayed they began to feel safe once more they gravitated back to their old haunts—the café of Pietro Lucerillo, on Elizabeth street; the dance hall saloon of Ignazio Lupo, just around the corner, and the darker apartment of Giuseppe Morello, with its [illegible] of garden and worse, in the rear of Lupo's saloon.

Here the men who were making bogus bank notes congregated, and here the unknown operatives of the Secret Service watched them and waited.

In telling of the fight against the counterfeiters I should begin with other activities of the band leading up to the counterfeiting game and showing more and more that the Black Hand actually exists.

Much of what I am about to tell I knew at the time it occurred; the rest was told to me later.

Nothing all the activities of the Black Hand is a passion for getting wealthy without working—a mania for making money quickly. Although there are many members of the society, for the most part the plunder goes to a few leaders, particularly to the leaders like Lupo and Morello. Although the Black Handers are not averse to preying on their countrymen from Sicily, and even from Corleone, the cradle of the society, they particularly delight in terrorizing quiet, law abiding Italians from the Neapolitan districts.

In their schemes for blackmail the Black Handers are aided by the villainous notoriety many of them had in Italy before they migrated to the United States. Much of the trouble aroused by the Black Hand might have been avoided had the Italian government taken steps to extradite the leaders of the band and had Uncle Sam handed them over to the police of Italy. Perhaps the government at Rome considers itself well rid of the offenders and is content to have them remain in America.

According to the records of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Italy, Giuseppe Morello was convicted in the Court of Assizes of Messina, Italy, on September 14, 1884, of forgery of credit paper and swindling. He was sentenced to six years and forty-five days' imprisonment and fined 1,000 lire.

In 1890 Morello, alias Frittodu, was declared by the Court of Palermo to be a habitual criminal and was charged with being a member of a group of men banded together for the purpose of robbery and homicide.

Another report in the same department says that Morello was accused of the intentional slaying of Anna di Puma and that he then emigrated to New York. I do not believe any attempt was ever made to extradite him. It was also believed that Morello was the author of the murder of Giovanni Vella, a crime for which Francesco Ortonella and Francesco Orlando were convicted.

As to Lupo, he was tried and convicted of murder in Italy under what will seem to Americans very strange conditions. Lupo was charged with a certain murder, but he had already escaped from the country and fled to the United States. This, however, did not prevent the Italian court from trying him, for in Italy one accused of murder is tried for the crime whether his person may be produced in court or not. Thus Lupo was tried and convicted of murder after he had already made his escape to New York.

These are the men whose brains directed the activities of the Black Hand in America before they were placed behind prison bars. It was they who benefited most by the blackmailing schemes of the band. As fast as Morello acquired money he invested it in barber shops, shoe repairing shops and restaurants, while Lupo put his capital into a string of grocery stores. He soon became one of the greatest importers of olive oil and lemons in the United States. According to the most accurate estimates we can make, the two men acquired more than $200,000 in a few years.

Lupo was perhaps the more enterprising of the two men. It was he who suggested that with money they saved from the various business ventures into which they put their ill gotten gains they build a tenement house. This house was sold at such a profit that they constructed several others, all of which netted them handsome gains. The money was each time reinvested until the two men were carrying on a really big business.

Again it was Lupo who suggested that as there was so much money in building tenement houses it would be profitable to have more capital, and he suggested that they form a company.

Accordingly the Ignatz Florio Association of Corleone was organized as a stock company. Stock was sold only to Italians from Southern Italy and the capital was to be used for the erection of two rows of tenement houses for Italians in the upper part of New York city. The capital stock of the association was sold for $3 and $5 a share. When dividends were due the amount was to be paid to the holders of the stock or credited to their accounts. The houses were built in quick succession.

As quickly as they could Lupo and Morello acquired control of all the stock and used the funds of the association to further their own private ends.

The heads of the association soon began to get into trouble. Some of the contractors who had erected the tenement houses were paid. Others were not. Some of the holders of stock received dividends while no money was paid to others. The same was true of firms which furnished the building materials.

There were stockholders all over the country, as far west as the Mississippi valley and south to the Gulf of Mexico. Lawsuits threatened. Creditors and unpaid stockholders alike were becoming menacing. Lupo and Morello knew that their activities would not bear the scrutiny of the law. They must appease those who were clamoring for money due them lest they bring suit against the association.

It was then the two hit upon the scheme of counterfeiting money. It was decided to establish a large and well equipped plant for the making of bogus bills.

It was planned to use the stockholders as agents for the working off of the spurious money. The idea was to give each stockholder one dollar in counterfeit money for each thirty-five cents due him. The receivers of the counterfeit money, those who knew it to be bogus, Lupo and Morello, were to instruct how to pass it. Certain creditors, including stockholders, who could not be trusted to countenance the counterfeiting scheme were simply to be paid with the bad money to keep them from bringing suit.

This was in the summer of 1908. In May, 1909, counterfeit two dollar and five dollar bills began to appear in many of the large cities of the East and Middle West, especially in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Chicago and Boston. Some of the bills appeared as far from headquarters as New Orleans. Yet the appearance of the counterfeit notes in all these various cities was simultaneous, which showed that a large and well organized band must be operating.

Now, in the summer of 1909 secret service operatives constantly watched Lupo and Morello and those of their lieutenants who were known to me at that time.

Daily reports sent to my office in New York kept me informed of their movements and I was not surprised to learn that usually at about the time when the counterfeit bills made their appearance, Morello had just made a flying trip to one of more of the cities where the spurious notes cropped out.

On this occasion Morello went to New Orleans with a secret service operative on his train approximate of the long journey. This man went aboard Morello's train in New York city. He sat close enough to him part of the time to touch him without rising. He may have exchanged pleasantries with Morello; perhaps asked the Black Hander for a match to light his cigar or drank with him in the cafe car. It is not without the range of possibility that another secret service man may have been on the train during part of the journey. If so he probably believed his colleague to be a friend of Morello, a counterfeiter himself, for these operatives do not know one another.

From every point where the train for New Orleans stopped, I was informed of Morello's whereabouts. Reports were sent to me from Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and all other cities along the line of travel.

When Morello arrived in New Orleans he was greeted by a number of men, Italians, all from Corleone, who went with him to a little café frequented by their countrymen. For a while they drank and smoked, carrying on as though they were merely friends united after a long separation and bent on having a good time. The operative was not to be hoodwinked. He lingered about and kept his men under close scrutiny. Finally they went into a rear room and were closeted there in conference for more than two hours. Morello left the café in a great hurry and took the very next train back to New York, my man still shadowing him.

One other time when Morello was in New Orleans on the business of the Ignatz Florio Association of Corleone certain Italians who knew of his counterfeiting operations threatened to expose him. They were not satisfied with taking bogus money for their stock in the association. One of these men was a hotel keeper, a leader among the Italians of his class in the city.

Word was carried to Morello that his enemies were plotting to inform the government of his work, and as a defi to those who threatened him he walked the streets of New Orleans wearing on his head a red handkerchief knotted at the four corners. The significance of this will be made more startling in a later article. For the present suffice it to say that his enemies knew what it meant.

That night the hotel keeper who had threatened to expose Morello was found dead. He had been shot through the heart and Morello had left New Orleans.

In the meantime Lupo had fled from his creditors, having contracted heavy debts in carrying on his grocery business. But though he might elude creditors he was not able to slip from the clutch of Uncle Sam, and I knew that he was living in Ardonia, N. Y., which is not far from Highland, across the Hudson River from Poughkeepsie. Lupo also had made several trips to cities where counterfeit money was making its appearance, and this, coupled with the fact that he lived in Ardonia and that I knew the money was being manufactured somewhere within 100 miles of New York, gave me a pretty clear idea who was at the head of the work.

The fact that the men entrusted with the business of getting the bills in circulation in all the different centres were all from Corleone is interesting, as I have said before that to get into the Black Hand Society a man must be from Corleone, or come recommended from some one living in Corleone or who once lived there.

The net was drawing close about the counterfeiters. My men watched them at every turn. Some of their most secret schemes were reported to me before the rank and file of the Black Hand itself knew what was afoot. My aids—again those unheralded heroes known merely by numerals to all but myself—were working themselves into the very inner councils of the band. Day by day these Secret Service men risked their lives to gain the confidence of the men who were directing the work of the counterfeiters. Just how these men reported to me I cannot tell at this time. My words would sound their death knell. Later I shall tell all that I dare.

We were certain that Lupo and Morello were the leaders of the counterfeiters. We knew many of their lieutenants, but we were not ready to arrest them. Previous experience in rounding up counterfeiters had taught me not to attack until my every gun was trained. Should we arrest the few we knew, the others would most assuredly escape. We had evidence enough, perhaps, to convict Lupo and Morello and charge them with making the notes, but it would have been difficult to prove that they were actually engaged in their manufacture and more difficult still to show their connection with the circulation of the bills.

Many of the "shovers of the queer," which means the men who put the notes in circulation, were known to us, but to arrest them as they worked among the little Italian shops would have exposed those who were actually making the money and plotting the work. The counterfeiting plant would have been dismantled at once and the whole gang dispersed until they considered it safe to begin work in a new locality. This was the baffling situation which faced the Secret Service at the close of the summer of 1909.

How we further drew taut the strings which closed the net entangling the entire Lupo-Morello band I shall tell next week, when the uncovering of the Black Hand will begin my amazing revelations.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE BLUE-EYED KITTEN

(By Belle Maniates.)

It was three days before the wedding Constance had lost interest in the presents that had been pouring in. They were all so conventional, and there had been such a tiresome repetition of silver, glass and china.

"Why can't people be original even in wedding presents?" she wondered.

Her meditions were interrupted by the entrance of a maid with a note.

"For me?" asked Constance stretching forth her hand.

She read the note twice, thrice, her face aglow with curiosity, interest, and memories of the past.

"My Dear Connie—I hear you are to be married on Thursday next. In memory of old days, which I trust you have not forgotten, I am sending you a wedding present. I cannot hope to compete with the costly gifts you will receive, so I have sent you something for which long ago I heard you express a wish. You will not, I am sure, have a duplicate of it. I am sending this note in advance to prepare you for my gift, which will arrive in a short time.

"Wishing you all happiness, I am, most sincerely. Dolph Kane."

The note carried Constance back to the days before her father had made money, and they had lived in plain style in a small town. She had been "Connie" then, and at the public school from the days of the sixth grade until she was graduated Dolph Kane had been, in the school vernacular, "her steady." He was two years older than she, but they had been in the same classes.

The fall after she was graduated her father had struck oil, and they had moved to the City. For a time she and Dolph had corresponded regularly, then in a desultory manner, and finally all communication had ceased. So many things had happened. She had been abroad twice and had lived in a whirl of social pleasures. But she was sure she had written since she had heard from him.

Her heart beat a little faster as she read his note that sounded so boyishly like him. She remembered so vividly his eager, alert face. He had been a favourite with the entire house hold, and he had been urged to visit them after they left Marshfield, but he had refused. She had tried to make him realise that their change of fortune would not affect their friendship, but he had been very foolishly proud about it. A year later he had gone West, and she hadn't heard where he was until this note. She wondered what his gift would be. Something different from the others, of that she was sure. A very warm, tender feeling crept into her thoughts of him. She summoned her maid.

"Find out, Elsie, who brought this note."

Elsie returned with the information that it had been brought by a district messenger.

"Then he must be here in the city," she recided, and gave orders that no messenger bringing a present was to be allowed to depart until she had interviewed him. She waited restlessly, trying vainly to recall what she had wished for in those bygone days. At last she was summoned to the servants' hall. A messenger stood there with a basket to which was attached a tag bearing her name

"Where did you go to get this," she asked, "or was it brought to the office?"

"I was telephoned for," informed the boy "to come to 416 Hollis Building, and when I got there, a young man gave me this basket."

"Yes; it was a real estate. The names on the door were Douglass & Kane."

The boy was allowed to depart and Constance opened the basket. Out sprang a kitten, whose soft fur was of spotless white. A blue ribbon was tied about its neck. Then she noticed that its eyes were bue, and she remembered how she had once longed for a kitten with blue eyes.

"To think of his remembering! No one else I know would remember that long," she thought wistfully.

Carrying the kitten in her arms she went to the telephone. She found the desired number for Douglass & Kane by calling information. Dolph Kane's voice answered.

"Dolph, this is Connie."

"Oh, how did you find me"

"By the boy, of course; but how long have you been living here in the City, pray?"

"Two weeks."

"And you never came to see us! Do you call that frindly?"

"Well—you see—I heard you were to be married."

"What difference did that make?"

"A great deal to me."

A silence followed, which was broken by a plaintive mew from the kitten, who had stuck her head into the receiver.

"Is that the kitten I sent?"

"Yes; and she is a darling. I like her best of any of the presents."

"That's nice of you to say so."

"Dolph, if we had known your address we should have sent you an invitation to the wedding. They are all mailed now, but I want you to come on my personal invitation."

"I'd rather not, please, Connie."

"But you will—to please me, Dolph—I want to see you; but I shall be so busy for the next three days. Come, if only for a few moments, please, Dolph."

"Very well, Connie, I'll come."

After the telemonic was over, Connie stepped from the receiving line to greet an eager-faced young man.

"Connie! And I thought you were to be the bride Douglass told me so."

"People always do get Cornelia and me mixed up. But," in feigned alarm "you won't take your present back?"

"No, Connie. And will you take me back?"

"I never let you go, Dolph."

WOULD COUGH SO HARD
Would Turn Black In The Face.

A cough cold is one of the most dangerous kind. It leaves the throat or lungs, and sometimes both, affected if not taken care of immediately.

Obstinate coughs and colds yield to the grateful soothing action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, containing as it does all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree.

Mrs. C. J. Selig, Dartmouth, N.S., writes:—"My little boy, six years old, had a dreadful, hard cough. At night time he would cough so hard he would turn black in the face, and at times he would cough nearly an hour before he would stop. I tried different cough syrups, but they did him no good. The little fellow was wasting away, as he could not eat or sleep, the cough troubled him so. I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and it did him so much good I got another. Now I am only too glad to be able to write this to tell how thankful I am, and to tell every mother to use nothing else."

Price, 25 and 50 cents.

Be sure you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. See the trade mark; the three pine trees.

ABOUT BIRDS.

The lark sings in the glen,
But there's more music these days in

Than, sitting by the fire, to hear
The cackle of a duck?

Some pine and sigh and sob,
While some are charmed with, day or dark,

Are all enchanting critters,
But it's the eagle on the coin
That gives our soul the titters.

But, oh, we hate when sleeping late
The crowing of the rooster!

In these immodest times.

The Bait.

"George," said Mrs. Smith, sitting up suddenly in bed, "there's a burglar in the place!"

"Nonsense!" replied her husband drowsily.

"I'm quite right," she returned. "I can hear him distinctly creeping the floor of the room below. Now"—excitedly—"he's lighting one of those cigars I gave you for your birthday. I heard him pick up the box and put it down again."

Then George sat up and listened.

"By Jove, Annie, you're right!" he answered. "He is! He's actually smoking one of those—er—or—those cigars!"

Then he nestled more comfortably beneath the blankets.

"Go to sleep, Annie," he said complacently. "We'll find the poor wretch in the morning!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Quite Another Thing.

"Whom are you going to give those cigars to?"

"To the janitor, so that he will give us more heat."

"Why, I thought I heard you abusing him terribly this morning."

"My dear woman, you don't think I dare address the janitor like that? I was talking to the landlord."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Should Genius Be Fat.

Byron would never have agreed with Theophile Gautier's dictum that men of genius should be fat. For the increase of his too, too solid flesh was one thing of which he was afraid, and various freak diets were adopted to keep it under. "Don Juan" was written almost entirely on gin and water, and in 1813 he lived on six biscuits a day and tea. Previously at Athens he had tried a diet of rice in small quantities washed down by vinegar and water, and later on he tried one thin slice of bread for breakfast and a vegetable dinner, keeping down hunger by chewing tobacco. And apparently such diets stimulated the brain while mortifying the flesh.

Three Big Guns Destroyed.

NEW YORK, April 30.—A London cable says: The British ordinance department has had a series of mishaps in the big gun and shell tests at Shoeburyness. The last, which has just occurred, due to a defective shell, and which has been kept secret, is the third within the last six months. Since each gun costs $100,000, the loss of three is a serious matter to the Exchequer.

Saved Two From Drowning.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 30.—But for the pluck of section of John McAvay, jr., in jumping into the Kaministiquia river, off the Empire Elevator Dock yesterday morning, two small Italian boys would have been drowned. The boys were fishing driftwood from the river and fell into water 20 feet deep. They clung to a block of ice until McAvay reached them.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF CELEBRATING CONFEDERATION

It is suggested that the Dominion Parliament at its present session should take steps for the celebration of Confederation. It is not too early to begin. Although Confederation was not an accomplished fact until July 1st, 1867, a series of events and actions leading up to it began in 1864. Of course federation had been proposed long before that, but we speak now of the proposal and working out of the plan which was actually adopted.

In the early sixties, Canadian affairs were in a condition which caused grave anxiety. The parties were about equally divided, and one ephemeral Government succeeded another. A certain Government was said to have a "drinking majority," because a member could hardly leave the chamber for refreshment without endangering the life of the Ministry which he supported. The Hon. James Young tells a story of two members being lured out to a suburban resort in a carriage, and left to walk back to the capital, which they did just in time to save the Government of the day. The Parliament was composed, in equal numbers, of members from what are now Ontario and Quebec, and, racial and religious differences were emphasized. It had been intimated that Canada must provide for its own land defences, instead of relying upon British regulars. At the same time the relations between Canada and the United States were not friendly, owing to the alleged sympathy of Canadians with the South. It was generally believed, and rightly, that the reciprocity treaty of 1854 would be ended by the United States.

Canada had, therefore, to look for new means of defence and new openings for trade, while its instrument of government was almost paralyzed. Relief was urgently required, and relief came just in time.

June the fourteenth, 1914, is a day on which the celebration of Confederation might begin. On that day, fifty years ago, a committee of which George Brown was chairman recommended the federation either of the Canadas, now Ontario and Quebec, or of all the North American colonies, as a solution of grave political difficulties. Almost immediately the Conservative Government then in power was defeated. Instead of taking a partisan advantage of this, George Brown proposed that the leaders on both sides should get together and try to settle the Canadian question. If you want to understand the public opinion and sentiment of Canada fifty years ago, imagine Carson proposing that Asquith and Bonar Law should get together and settle the Irish question. The comparison is not strained, because George Brown in his way was a famous champion of Protestantism, of Ontario as against Quebec. Another incident which may throw light on the sentiments of 1864 is related by Sir Richard Cartwright in his "Memories of Confederation":

"On that memorable afternoon when Mr. Brown, not without emotion, made his statement to a hushed and expectant House, and declared that he was about to ally himself with Sir George Cartier and his friends for the purpose of carrying out Confederation, I saw an excitable, elderly little French member rush across the floor, climb up on Mr Brown, who, as you remember, was of a stature approaching the gigantic, fling his arms about his neck and hang several seconds there suspended, to the visible consternation of Mr. Brown and to the infinite joy of all beholders, pit, box, and gallery included."

Here we are warned that the analogy must end, for we have no expectation of an Irish home ruler hanging about the neck of Sir Edward Carson. But the incident may serve to show how anxious Canadians were fifty years ago, and what has since been achieved under Canadian home rule within the British Empire, and Provincial home rule within Canada. We as Canadians would all rejoice if the United Kingdom could settle its troubles in the same way, or rather in a similar way, with such modifications as circumstances may require.—Toronto Star.

VANCOUVER, April 30.—Asiatics of all races will be barred from entry into Canada under a new interpretation, or order-in-council, No. 897, details of which were made public yesterday to representatives of trans-Pacific lines by Malcolm R. J. Reid, superintendent of immigration. The new interpretation has made the order-in-council applicable to Chinese, Japanese and Hindus, and will become effective on May 21.

It will be remembered that entry of laborers, skilled and unskilled artizans into British Columbia was prohibited for a period of six months. At the expiration of this time the order was extended for another six months, or until Sept. 30. This order keeps out all labor under the head named, both white and yellow, but there was some misapprehension as to how it would affect Chinese who were prepared to pay the head tax of $500.

The possession of $500 for the head tax will avail them not at all, and the bars will be rigidly enforced against Chinese, Japanese and Hindus, as against white labor.

Mayor On His Dignity.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 30.—Mayor Baxter told Rev. Dr. Eber Crummy, president of the Lord's Day Alliance for British Columbia, in a letter yesterday that he would not reply to any communication from nor receive any delegation, including Rev. C. H. Huestis, secretary of the Alliance for British Columbia and Alberta. His action was the result of a letter from Mr. Huestis demanding a more definite reply as to the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act than the "vague and childish" statement that the law would be reasonably enforced.

Two Ways.

There are two ways of learning the value of anything we want. One is to get it, the other to lose it. — R. W. Straffman.

Face Sores and Eruptions

Zam-Buk Will Quickly Heal.

The approach of Spring finds many people with unsightly face sores, eruptions, boils, etc. In this connection Zam-Buk is invaluable. An illustration of the way in which it cures even the most serious and chronic cases of eruptions, sores and ulcers, is provided by Mr. R. H. Barker, of Glencarn, Ont. He says:

"I never could have believed that any remedy could cure so quickly and at the same time so effectively as Zam-Buk cured me. My face began to be covered with a kind of rash, which itched and irritated. This rash then turned to sores, which discharged freely and began to spread. I first tried one thing and then another, but nothing seemed to do me much good and the eruption got worse and worse until my face was just covered with running sores.

"Apart from the pain (which was very bad), my face was such a terrible sight that I was not fit to go out. This was my state when someone advised me to try Zam-Buk. I got a supply, and within a week I could see that the sores were rapidly healing. A little longer and Zam-Buk had healed them completely, and my skin was as clean as if I had never had a sore. We shall never again be without Zam-Buk in the house."

Zam-Buk is unequalled for Spring rashes, eruptions, childrens sores, scalp diseases, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, eczema, tetter, pile, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries and diseases generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations. Zam-Buk Soap, which may be had from any druggist at 25c. a tablet, should be used instead of ordinary soap in all cases of eruptions and skin diseases.

WORLD'S WEALTH.

British Empire Leads In Production of Coal and Gold.

That there has been an increase in the gold output of the world, and that the British Empire supplied over half the total production, is recorded in a report for 1911 of the chief inspector of mines, issued as a blue book.

The report states that the number of persons engaged in mining and quarrying at home and abroad that year reached nearly six and a half millions. Of this total, roughly speaking, nearly one-fifth were employed in the United Kingdom and more than one-third in the British Empire. It should be noted however, that no statistics were published by Bolivia, Brazil, China, Persia, and Turkey.

More than half of the total number were employed in getting coal alone; Great Britain employing nearly 1,050,000, Russia (1909) over 169,000, Germany nearly 701,000, France over 200,000, Belgium over 144,000, Austria over 129,000, and India over 116,000. The total amount of coal produced was nearly 1,187 million metric tons, the value of which was estimated at nearly 435 million pounds sterling. The quantity and value compared with 1910 showed an increase of nearly 33 million tons in the output, and of over 15 million pounds sterling in value.

Gold showed an increase of 33,489 kilograms, as compared with 1910, the total output being 716,865 kilograms (23,047,728 ozs.), of which the value was estimated at nearly £96,000,000 sterling. The British Empire supplied over 57 per cent. of the output; Australia contributing nearly 10 and four-fifths per cent., and Canada, India and New Zealand and Rhodesia combined, over 9 per cent. of the total. The United States contributed over 20 and one-third, and Mexico and Russia combined over 15 per cent.

The death rate in the coal mines in the United Kingdom was 1.17, and for the British Empire 1.25.

THEY WORE MOURNING.

Socialists Who Demonstrated Before Oil Trust Offices Arrested.

NEW YORK, April 30.—At a Socialist meeting Tuesday night it was agreed that "mourners" should gather in front of the Standard Oil building at 26 Broadway, as a protest against the sacrifice of lives in Colorado.

Yesterday morning Upton Sinclair, author of "The Jungle," his wife and three other women were arrested on the sidewalk there.

Mrs. Sinclair was later released. The other women said they were Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman, an English suffragette, who has once been in jail with Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst; Mrs. Margaret Remington Cherier and Mrs. Donie Listner.

"I wasn't doing a thing but walking up and down in the street with a piece of crepe on my arm," said Sinclair.

May Stop Issue of Gift Coupons.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 30.—The controversy before Congress regarding the proposed prohibitive tax to stop the practice of issuing gift coupons with cigarettes, cigars and tobacco, along with gifts and tobacco attachments, it was announced yesterday has been postponed by the House Ways and Means Committee until next December.

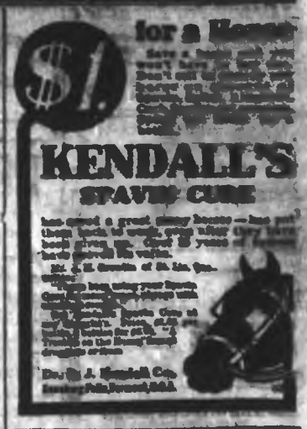
Attacked by Thugs.

A gang of Dacoits recently attacked Mr. Higgins at a tea garden at Chittagong, India. Mr. Higgins was seriously wounded, but managed to shoot one of the dacoits dead. He is a prominent planter, owning several tea gardens and also a large residence at Chittagong. A determined effort is to be made to crush the terrorists in Eastern Bengal. Two regular regiments are to be stationed at the headquarters of the district to undertake the duties of guarding the Treasury, while the police concentrate their efforts on the suppression of Dacoity.

THIN PEOPLE CAN INCREASE WEIGHT

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol doesn't itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fatty sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—you guess it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat-producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bone. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Druggists sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.



All Bosh, Says Shaw.

George Bernard Shaw, playwright, author, and cynic, says the peace centenary celebration between the United States and England is all "bosh." After stating that the people of the two countries individually and collectively loathe and hate one another, he continued:

"Suddenly they realize they haven't fought each other for a hundred years. Immediately they wish to raise a big sum of money in order to celebrate the event by clustering over one another.

"Now if they had been fighting with one another for a hundred years and suddenly stopped, I would be able to understand such a movement. But for two friendly nations suddenly to conjure up feelings of thanksgiving because they happen to have behaved like decent citizens, although all the time ready to fly at each other's throats, is beyond my powers of comprehension."

In answer to the question as to what he thought the proper method of celebrating the one hundred years of peace he suggested that monuments would be a fitting tribute, as then no lies would be told except in speeches made at the unveiling of the memorials and in the actual inscriptions thereon.

The Mere Formality Won.

"Yes, sir," said the pale, youthful suitor; "I have come to ask you for your daughter's hand. She is fair as lilies, charming"—

"Is that Mary you're talking about?" asked papa.

"Yes, sir. It is a mere formality, I know, this asking for your daughter's hand, but we thought it would be pleasing to you if it were observed."

Mary's papa stiffened.

"And may I inquire," he asked, "who suggested that asking my consent to Mary's marriage was a mere formality?"

"You may, sir," replied the young man simply. "It was Mary's mother."

Answering the Phone.

Commenting on the fact that however inaccessible a business man may be to callers, he will generally answer the telephone. Electricity says that the explanation is a very simple one. There is an element of mystery about a telephone call. The called party never knows, until he actually responds, whether or not the caller is a person of importance or has something of vital import to communicate. It is just a matter of luck, and your average business man, no matter how deep he may be in the conduct of his affairs with others actually present, will almost invariably break off the most important personal conversation to answer a telephone call.

LIBERALS DECIDE TO STRONGLY OPPOSE GOVERNMENT POLICY

At an Enthusiastic Caucus This Morning Opposition Unanimously Resolve to Take a Strong Stand Against Proposals.

ACCOUNTING WANTED

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Ont., April 30. — By unanimous decision Liberals in caucus this morning decided to oppose the Government's proposals for further aid to the Canadian Northern. It begins to look as though the session will be longer than expected, and is just entering upon its most interesting phase. The proceedings of the caucus this morning were punctuated at intervals by bursts of cheering which penetrated through the doors and reached through the corridors. In this respect the proceedings were reminiscent of the naval bill caucus held by the Liberals last year, and which heralded one of the biggest fights known in the House of Commons. It is understood that a very strong stand was taken by members from every part of the Dominion, especially on the matter of a through accounting by the Canadian Northern of large sums of public monies already expended. It was hotly contended by many members that not one cent of additional aid should be given to the company until they had accounted for every cent already given.

SENIOR LACROSSE STICKS ARRIVE

One dozen and a half Lally lacrosse sticks were received by Trebilcock Bros. to-day for the local lacrosse [illegible] for Saturday afternoon at Central Park. A meeting of the executive is called for Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Examiner office, when arrangements will be made for the practice and the disposal of the sticks. The shipment of junior sticks is expected in a few days and if the necessary support is forthcoming there will be sticks for all the boys. The new ones are neat and invite good stick handling. Within another month the game should be restored to such an extent that some of the old timers will forget that the good old pastime was ever dormant.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR THE MONTH

Activity in Building of Residences and no Single Permit Issued for Amount Over $10,000

TOTAL WAS $98,015

So far this month there have been a total of 70 buildig permits issued, amounting in all to $98,015.00. Of this none of the permits went over the $15,000 mark. Last year during the month of April there were 56 permits issued, totalling $116,536.50. Of these several were for unusually large amounts so that on the whole although the figures for the month this year are approximately $18,000 below those of last year, yet the comparison is not really so unfavourable as a cursory glance at the figures would seem to indicate. There has been a good activity in the building of residences, etc., according to the permits during April, 1914. A $6,500 residence on Aylmer Street, by Mr. Copping, a $3,500 residence on Water Street, to be erected by Mr. Ruth; a $7,000 residence to be erected by Mr. G. H. Thompson, on Hunter Street; a $4,000 residence for Mr. John Crane, on Weller Street, are among the larger permits this month. An apartment house, costing $5000, is also to be built on Murray Street.

FEE FOR SECURING POSITION IS ONLY ONE DOLLAR

Mr. G. S. Hogg of the Dominion Employment Bureau, Charlotte Street, states that recent published statements regarding the fees for positions secured are not in accordance with facts and are unfair to the agency. A cash fee of $1.00 is charged for an situation secured. Should credit be required by the party securing the position the fee is $1.50. There have been no increases and no rake-offs. The agency has endeavoured to place as many possible in positions, and there have been no objection raised to the fee when a position was secured.

Failure And Success Come With Effort

In Order to Succed in Business Man Must First Venture and Many Times the Venture Results in Failure

He only is exempt from failure who makes no effort.

In the lexicon of youth, which fate reserves for a bright manhood, there is no such word as fail—it comes later in life.

There are so many reasons which can logically and truthfully be advanced as causes contributing to the numerous failures, that I will only endeavour to analyze the most principal ones, the business failures.

Perhaps the most general and common cause is lack of capital. Many men venture into business with just enough money to "swing" the enterprise for a month, at the end of which time they expect the new business to be self-supporting. It seldom is, and as the concern becomes a financial cripple the inevitable is sure to happen—FAILURE.

BUSINESS INSTINCT REQUIRED.

It might be said, in passing, that combined with the first form of failure there are two others: Lack of business instinct and business experience. And these three are frequently augmented by another equally as dangerous in business, and that is, engaging in a business of which you have no knowledge or experience. No man can hope to succeed in any line of business where his principal qualifications and assets are ignorance.

Ignorance without question the most pronounced cause of business failure, in any line, or in any community, is that of lack of patronage. No business concern, professional man, church or school can long endure without patronage. Heaven's eternal wisdom has decreed that man should ever stand in need of man.

Patronage is the sustenance of business, and without it failure follows just as surely as death follows the rock-flower and the ivy when their support is withdrawn.

FARMERS FREQUENTLY FAIL.

Listed among the business men who frequently fail is the farmer, the greatest producer of us all. He fails for the same reason as do some of our other business men, because of ignorance. Many of these men have been born and reared as farmers, and imagine that that is all the qualification necessary to follow that vocation. It is not. Technical education, constant study of conditions elsewhere, and a full realization of the necessity of fertilization of their farms constitute the first principles of the successful farmer.

When a farmer fails, the whole community suffers, and the man who must bear the brunt of the burden is the local merchant. His capital is invested and his hope of returns rests with the farmer's ability to produce; if a blight, a drought, a cyclone or pest burn destroy the crops, the merchant must make the best of it and "carry" accounts another season, or until there is a good crop.

We know that the average consumer does not feel that his local merchant is a robber or a cheat, but like all human kind, the catalogues and prices of mail-order houses appeal to him and he forwards his order and cash, without considering the injustice he is doing himself, his merchant, and his home town.

Loyalty is the greatest virtue with which man is endowed, and the practice of it now by residents of small cities and towns in favour of the local merchant whose business is affected by the result catalogue trusts would be a display of generosity manifested only by men and communities where the practice of the Golden Rule obtains.

HOME RULE SITUATION

Exclusion of Northeastern Counties Regarded Unfavourably by the Extreme Unionists in Derry

A REMARKABLE CENSUS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDONDERRY, April 30.—London despatches indicating the possible settlement by the exclusion of the northeastern counties are regarded unfavourably by the extreme Unionists in Derry, who say provisional government is unlikely to agree unless the plan is to exclude all but Cavan and Monagh. The delegates from Fermanagh and Tyrne are strong in the Unionist counsels, and would fight the proposal. The vessel credited with landing American arms for Donegal Nationalists is now said to be one of those which took part of the Mountjoy's cargo, and the arms are for Ulsterites. The police were evidently informed the landing was intended, and are patrolling the shores of Loughfoyle, but their vigilance is the best evidence that no landing is likely. A remarkable census which indicates the thoroughness of the Ulster organization has just been completed. It shows the location of every horse, cow and vehicle in Ulster, and locates every Protestant and Catholic family. By means of this the Carsonites would know where to commandeer food and carts in case of war, and also what roads would likely be unsafe.

A Young Legislator

Special to The Examiner:

FORT SMITH, Ark., April 30.—When the Arkansas Legislature convenes next January among its members will be Ernest Hatley, twenty-three, whose emulation of Bob Taylor, the late lamented U. S. Senator and Governor of Tennessee, won him his office.

He fiddled his way into the confidence of the voters. He will be the youngest member of the Legislature.

Flagman Gets A Fortune

Examiner Special:

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 30. — After having been a flagman on the Grand Trunk Western Railway for the last fifteen years and barely able to eke out an existence, Philander W. Halliday has come into possession of a fortune of $100,000 as the result of the death of his sister, Mrs. J. Crow, of Dillon, Mont. Until notified of his windfall some time ago Halliday had no idea that his sister was a rich woman, and not until he investigated would he believe that he had inherited a fortune. Halliday will not give up his work.

A WOMAN MINER WHO HAS MADE GOOD

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TACOMA, April 30.—Mary E. Hart, sister-in-law of Lieut. Gov. Louis F. Hart, of Washington, is a woman who has "made good" as an Alaskan miner.

"I am not a millionaire, but am comfortably situated and have enough to keep me nicely as long as I live," she says.

Mrs. Hart went to Alaska in 1900 and got out on the beach and shovelled sand into a "Long Tom" rocker with the rest of the prospectors.

"That is where I got my start in the Jupiter-Mars mine, the Cheuyemere, Lone Star and other paying propositions."

Mrs. Hart is not only a gold miner, but a literary woman. In face she is known best for her literary and club work.

She started the old Pacific Monthly, the first literary magazine on the coast.

MORE PEACEABLE IN STRIKE ZONE

Examiner Special.

DENVER, Col., April 30. — Despatches from the strike zone this morning indicates a more peaceable aspect with the occupation of the United States Cavalry. It is apparent that fighting between the strikers and mine guards with the militia occasionally joining in was in progress all day yesterday. There were twelve deaths and forty wounded.

MEDIATORS ARE READY

Argentine, Brazil and Chili Prepared To-day to Put Their Peace Proposals into Writing.

DETAILS NOT KNOWN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 30.—The South American mediators, Argentine, Brazil and Chili, were to-day ready to reduce to writing their initial proposals designed to restore peace between Mexico and the United States. The nature of these proposals is carefully guarded and any announcement regarding them is purely guesswork. Secretary Tumulty today gave authoritative denial to the rumour that United States warships had bombarded Mazanillo on the west coast of Mexico. The rumour originated, it appears, from the fact that there was a large fire on the waterfront of that town.

NEW ICE CREAM PARLOUR OPENED

Messrs. Dawson Bros. Will Commence in Business at the Corner of George and London Streets

Messrs. Dawson Brothers, who for a number of years have successfully conducted a grocery business at the corner of Park and McDonnel Street, are opening a branch store for the sale of ice cream and fruit at the corner of George and London Streets. Messrs. Dawson Brothers will handle Toronto City Dairy ice cream and their store will be the only place on George Street where the well known Toronto delicacy can be soured. They will sell the cream in brick form as well as for consumption on the premises. In order to introduce Toronto City Dairy ice cream, the firm will give away ten gallons of cream on Saturday, and they invite the public to drop in and have a trial dish.

SUCCESSFUL AT QUEEN'S

The list in last night's Examiner of local students who were successful in the recent examinations at Queen's University, did not include the names of Messrs. Harold Hill or Harry Leahy, both of whom were successful in getting their year. The former succeeded in Latin, French, English, English History and Mathematics.

BIG BUILDING YEAR COMING

Many Large Structures to be Erected—A List of Some of the Buildings

SOME ALREADY STARTED

The building prospects for the coming summer loom bright above an otherwise rather drab horizon. A brief review of some of the buildings in prospect may give the joys a new lease of life.

First there is the new Government building on George Street, including post office, customs house, Trent Canal offices, etc.

Second, there is the new Methodist Church for the congregation of the Charlotte Street Church. The excavation for this building is already under way.

The Barrie building is announced in another column of this issue.

It is generally understood that Messrs. A. Comstock and Sons will erect a building on the lot between their present premises and the Grand Opera House. Mr. Will Comstock did not deny that the firm has this matter in hand, but did not state when the work would be begun.

The basement of a new Catholic Church will be erected in East City and made ready for occupation until the rest of the building is completed.

The vestry and rectory for All Saints' Church is already under way.

The Braund block on Charlotte Street is making good progress and a substantial building will be completed this summer.

Then there is street paving and extensions and improvements to the street railway system.

In addition there are numerous houses under way and some to be started in a short time.

It looks like a good year for the man with the pick, and the builders, hardware men, painters and associated lines.

Yes, it looks like a big year.

UPTON SINCLAIR IS STARTING HUNGER STRIKE

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, April 30.—Upton Sinclair, the famous writer, who, with his wife and three other women, were arrested while picketting the Standard Oil Company premises in protest of the Colorado "Massacre," to-day refused to pay a fine and went to jail for six days, and immediately declared a hunger strike. He berated the court and said: "Twas controlled by the Standard Oil Co." His companions were fined.

HURLED LITERATURE AT THE KING

Special to The Examiner:

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., April 30. — A suffragette broke through the police lines here to-day while King George was passing through the street, and hurled a bundle of suffragette literature at His Majesty. It missed the King and his chauffeur. She was arrested. The King smiled grimly as the auto hurried on.

MURDOCK IS ACQUITTED

Special to The Examiner:

WELLAND, Ont., April 30.—Andrew E. Murdock, secretary of the Welland County Temperance and Moral Reform League, charged with perjury in connection with an affidavit made asking for an injunction prohibiting the returning officer declaring the Canada Temperance Act defeated, was acquitted this morning.

HOWL FROM SMALL DEALERS

Held Stock Expecting $15 License Fee—$40 Is Too High—Two Days To Sell Supplies

MAY SEEK REDRESS

What most of the tobacco dealers think of the Council's by-law placing the fee for the sale of cigarettes at $40 is not told in parlour language, or at least in words with a ring of charity.

"Here we are," said one of the smaller dealers, "with a stock on our hands, and we have only till Friday to dispose of them. We had intended taking out a license for $15, but this $40 proposition is out of the question. If that is justice to give a man two days to get rid of his stock, then I don't want any more of the Council's brand."

One of the larger dealers said he intended to take out a license anyway. His trade would stand for it, and he expected he would rather in more business when the little fellows were cut off. "I don't know what some of them will do. They may have a couple of hundred dollars' stock on their hands, and I don't know what they will do with it. The Council knew that the dealers expected a $15 license and most of them intended to take them out. If they knew it was a $40 fee they would surely have sold their goods. The Council showed a "pin-head" policy when they tied up these smaller business men in that way. If they had allowed more time there might not be as much room to kick, apart from the going back on their former resolution. Why don't they put themselves in the places of the men who are affected, and see how they would like this dose?"

The chief objection is not based on the $40 fee. Apparently the action of the Council was not a surprise. It was the lack of thought for the dealers who intended to take out a $15 fee but who were blocked by $40 and still have their goods, expecting the former.

It is just possible that some of these men will seek redress of some kind for the position when the Council has placed them by their latest volte face.

It is true the by-law called for $40 and was never changed, but the Council in committee recommended a reduction to $15 and the smaller dealers took that body at its word.

THE TORONTO MARKETS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 30.—Live Stock Market.—Receipts light, trade quiet, Choice butcher cattle, $7.75 to $8; calves, stockers, sheep and lambs steady; hogs off cars $9.20.

AN EXPLANATION

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I have heard nthing but praise this morning of the work of the chorus in Judas Maccabaeus, last night. Everything went well till the final number, and that the chorus knew down to the ground, and at the previous night's rehearsal it was the best number practiced. As some think that the apparent hitch last night and the repeat of the last few bars, ordered by he pro tem conductor, was the fault of the chorus, in justice, I wish to explain that the chorus has been trained for six or seven months to make a distinction pause between the last "Hallelujah" and the final "Amen!" This did not seem to meet the views of the Conductor, and in the idea of many who did not know the circumstances, the chorus was bamed for not doing its work right. I am certain that if our own Conductor had directed the singing of this number, the chorus would have done it the justice they were fully able to do it. No man, or chorus, either, can serve two masters.

Yours truly,

Justice.

BARRIE'S, LIMITED WILL BUILD FOUR STOREY BUILDING

On the Lot Immediately South of the Customs House — Whole Property May Be Built Up, But Present Plans Call For 55 Foot Frontage and Entire Depth of Lot

COMPLETELY MODERN

The announcement that Barrie's Limited will erect a modern four-storey office and factory building on the lot south of the Customs House, George street, is pleasing proof of the continued development of the business section of the city. The new building will have a frontage of 55 feet and will extend back to practies" the rear limit of the lot. It will be of the steel skeleton type with concrete and brick construction, and a fancy tile front. In its finish and architecture it will be one of the prominent buildings in the heart of the city, and is promised to be a splendid addition to the mercantile and business district.

Will Be Begun Soon.

Mr. Thos. Barrie, president of the company, stated to The Examiner that the work will be begun in the near future, and its completion is called for September. When the construction operations have been commenced the progress will be hastened in order to have the building ready for fall.

May Build on Whole Lot.

The entire frontage of the lot is 110 feet, and it is just possible that the company will utilize the whole lot this year. This point is not definitely decided upon, and the plans under consideration at present call for a 55-foot building on the north half of the lot. The depth will be about 112 or 116 feet, and the basement will be so constructed that the structure will really comprise five stories.

Provision for Offices.

The fourth floor will be used by Barrie's factory, and the second and third floors will be planned for office suites. There will be ample elevator accommodation to all floors, and there will be steam heating from a central plant. Every provision is being made for the generous use of natural light, and the ventilation will follow the latest approved ideas.

A Fine Appearance.

As stated above, Barrie's Limited are not overlooking the external appearance of their new building. The glazed tile which will be used on the front will be of a copper bronze colour with white trimmings, giving an effect which should be very attractive and appropriate for the main business street. The plans call for a graceful front which will contribute a fine piece of business architecture.

A Home Industry.

It may be well said that the Barrie building when completed will be something of a monument to the ability and industry of Mr. Thos. Barrie. Beginning in a humble way in Peterborough, his business has spread across the Dominion until it is now recognized as one of the prominent fur houses in Canada. From the Peterborough store developed the branch stores in Regina, Edmonton and Saskatoon, and the whole range of this progress is fresh in the memory of the mapority of the citizens.

From the retail business grew the large manufacturing department which has been principally centred in Peterborough. In short, an important industry has grown up gradually during recent years.

Company Prospering.

The report in an evening paper a few days ago regarding the 1913-14 fur business is surely falsified by this announcement of the construction of the Barrie building. This latest advance is one of the natural forward steps which the company has been making at regular intervals during recent years. It follows in a regular order upon the opening of the western houses. In regard to the company's business during the past year, Mr. Barrie states that they had not felt the shrinkage that the prevailing conditions would have warranted.

Stores on Main Floor.

Mr. Barrie states that the ground floor of the building will be divided into two stores, between which there will be an entrance into the upper

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, APRIL 30, 1914

THE ORATORIO.

The oratorio, Judas Maccabaeus, as presented at the Opera House last night, marks another advance step in musical interests in Peterborough—in musical capability and achievement, in increasing popular appreciation of real musical expression at its highest. The entertainment of a great audience is not the chief consideration; but the cultural, the inspiring influence, the demonstration that the import of the effective cooperation and collaboration of the musical forces of Peterborough has not been estimated at its true value. In its short three years of existence, the St. George's Choral Society, and the public spirited musical people that have worked with it, under the spur of the enlightened enthusiasm of Mr. Devey, have done much more than present high class music in a high class way—they have led the way in higher musical culture and popular appreciation of good music. They have shown what can be done; they have had an inspiring and encouraging effect upon every musical church organization. All this demonstrates that the abundant musical talent in Peterborough can be combined for accomplishments which detached individual excellence, no matter how worthy, is powerless to achieve. The Maccabaeus Chorus as an organization, and the splen did Conservatory orchestra, demonstrate, not only the capability of concerted music in Peterborough, but the possibilities, that inhere in harmonious cooperation and organization of the plentiful musical talent of the city. These two organizations, St. George's Choral Society and the Conservatory orchestra, are accomplishments that, in either excellence or importance, or capability, do not exist in any city of our size in Canada, and what they are and what they do are only a part of what they might be in size if the existing musical talent of Peterborough could be or would be similarly combined. Harmony is the soul of music, and music at its best can only exist in Peterborough by musicians practically becoming the body of this soul. More general cooperation of our musical forces will not only conduce to greater and more effective accomplishment, but will constitute a unifying element of citizenship, and stimulate the spirit of working together that is necessary in the promotion of all the other interests of Peterborough.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Though the unbalanced violence of the militant suffragettes has discredited the votes-for-women movement, there is still, it appears, room for academic discussion and reasonable propagandism. Toronto protagonists, have organized a campaign under the euphemistic title of "The Political Equality League," and the list of members embraces many distinguished names. At the inaugural meeting, many temperate statements were made and some severe ones. Of this latter is the remark by a prominent artist to the effect, that asking the Provincial government to grant votes to women is like asking an overfed ox to write poetry. Another who has had a good deal of experience with criminals, said that woman is "not at her best as a militant, but as a suppliant"; for "the intelligent entreaties of a good woman are hard to withstand." A good test of this sentiment would be to try it on flinty officials like Police Commissioners. One lady threw down the gauntlet—"no more private bills—the government's themselves must father equal suffrage bills" and stand or fall by them. A sensible woman hoped "that Canadian woman may get the vote, but not too soon—not before they know the value of it, and will [illegible] Mr. Arthur Hawkes suggested the best argument that women might to [illegible] upon the platform and a floor [illegible] all political questions — [illegible] great public question the [illegible]. This is good advice unless he means the platform of a street car— women who get off a street car backward have a good deal to learn before they can be trusted with the ballot — must show some capability to use the ballot without hurting themselves in their interests. The militant suffragettes, after all, are the logical and courageous women. They have ceased to hang on to the suffrage matter as an excuse for the exercise of a woman's dearest right—talking. They take to action and to bricks and dynamite and arson. Women should have the right to vote. If they don't exercise their right wisely, they will err in good company—they can't make more of a mess of the use of the franchise than men do. Representative institutions as interpreted and applied by men have become so much of an object of scorn and hissing that we might well try what women armed with the ballot, would do. If they used the right to vote badly, they would at least do it gracefully and decently, and not like many men do, make a close combination of bribery, beer and the ballot.

MR. SNIDER AND HIS EXCUSES.

"A poor excuse is better than none" sometimes. Mr. Snider's statement that he visited Peel, Huron and Welland during the time of the vote on the Canada temperance act because he thought he might learn something which would be useful to him in the duties of his office will not hold water. If he were misunderstood about the object of his visit he has himself to blame. — Stratford Beacon.

A SWIMMING POOL NEEDED.

A pubic swimming pool where boys may go and have a plunge is one of the institutions that is needed, and, we trust, will be built. Scarcely a real boy was ever born who didn't like to try his limbs in water. The canal is treacherous. It has claimed many victims. A pool under a director would give 3,000 boys and girls in this city just what they want.—St. Catharines Journal.

THE WORST MAY COME YET.

Now, after three years, the people of al sections of Canada realize how sadly they have been duped by the flag-flappers' cry of "let well enough alone." Unfortunately, it has not been growing worse from year to year, and, although the Minister of Finance in announcing his big interest budget, with favours for the plutocrats and nothing for the plain people, was seemingly optimistic, there are men of weight and standing in the country who fear that the worst is yet to come.—Halifax Chronicle.

Petes Pitchers In Great Form Regulars Beat Yannigans 4-2

Creswell, Schettler, Sterling and Belting Only Allowed Seven Hits During the Afternoon and Had the Indian Sign on the Batters All the Way--Former Red Sox Pitcher Out With the Petes.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 29.—The great strength of Peterborough's pitching department was effectively demonstrated this afternoon, when the Regulars took the Yannigans into camp after eleven innings of spellbig baseball, With Belting and Sterling working for the Regulars, and Schettler and Creswell for the Yans, the sum total of the hitting for the entire squad was seven hits. Schettler and Creswell held the Regulars to four safe blows in eleven innings, while the second squad could only collect three from the offerings of Belting and Sterling. Manager Blount instructed his pitchers to cut loose, and they proceeded to do so with a vengeance, all four showing speed and a good variety of hooks that gave them the Indian sign on the swatmiths. Belting and Schettler opposed each other for the first six innings, and when they left the mound, the score was 3 to 2 in favour of the Regulars. Then Sterling and Creswell took up the task, and big Bob held the Yans scoreless for five innings, while the Regulars could only collect one run off Creswell in the same period. The young southpaw under Blount's coaching is developing a good move to first-base, while his delivery has also improved. He should be a consistent winner in the Canadian League this season judging by the form he is showing. All four pitchers looked mighty good to-day.

Eddie Price's sore arm showed a great improvement to-day, and he was back at shortstop for the Regulars. Kelly caught for the Yans, and Manager Blount also threw in his lot with the second squad for the day. Schrage played fine ball at second base for the Yans, and Fox gave a good account of himself at shortstop. Both teams fielded splendidly, and played good snide ball, the result being a snappy ball game.

The morning was spent in the usual hitting and infield practice. The work of the inner line of defence shows a daily improvement under Blount's coaching methods, and an effective system of team play is being developed. There is no time lost with Manager Blount. He is a hustler himself, and expects every one to hustle. The result is the players are on their toes through every practice. The battle for infield places is still going on. Schrage is fitting in well at second, and the white-haired Bronx boy may yet land a permanent berth.

Pitcher Chaney, a Youngstown boy, who has just been released by the St. Paul's American Association team, was out with the Petes to-day and played left-field for the Yans. He is dickering with the Feds. Chaney was with Youngstown in the Inter-State League last season, and was sold to the Boston Red Sox, who turned him over to St. Paul.

Manager Blount has arranged games with strong semi-pro teams for Saturday and Sunday, and these games should leave the Petes in tip-top shape for the opening next week.

NEW YORK STATE LEAGUE OPENING

Examiner Special:

SCRANTON, Pa., April 30.—In four cities of the New York State league circuit the umpire's cry of "Play ball!" was heard for the first time to-day, marking the opening of the 1914 championship season. The Albany team lined up for the initial contest at Wilkes-Barre, Syracuse appeared at Elmira and Troy at Scranton, while the champion "Ringoes" entertained the Utica team at Binghampton.

The circuit of the league remains the same as last season, but there have been many numerous changes among the managers and players. John Kelly has taken the place of Dick Smith as manager of the Scranton team and Ed Phelps has succeeded Jim Tamsett at Alantry. Other new managers are Fred Payne at Syracuse, Wid Conroy at Elmira, and Pete Noonan at Wilkes-Barre. Of the new managers, Conroy, Phelps and Payne are the best known, all being former big league players.

The New York State league will play a season of 140 games, closing September 13. All the teams on the circuit have higher priced men than ever before and the club owners and managers all along the line predict that the race for the pennant will be one of the most interesting in the history of the organization.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

WASHINGTON C.H., Ohio, April 29.—The local baseball club won the 13-inning contest here yesterday afternoon by 2 to 1 from Doc Reisling's London Canadian League club, mostly because of the fact that the men behind Reno gathered in everything that came off the visiting team's bats. The game was fast and snappy, marked by sensational fielding by the locals, which saved the Washington nine early in the game.

Southpaw Steiger made his 1914 debut and displayed grand form, as the locals only secured two hits in four innings, while Hammond, who relieved him, was also in fine fettle, going the full nine innings, allowing but one run and seven hits, striking out eight of the locals.

Manager Reisling cavorted around second base, giving McGonagle a rest, and was credited with the only stolen base in the game.

BRANTFORD, April 29. — Since the Canadian League received Class B rating, Manager Deneau has immediately taken steps to strengthen the Red Sox and the first department in which a change will be made is catching.

Rube is in communication with Sioux City of the Western League for a high-class backstop, who is reputed to hit the ball over the .300 mark. Before the season opens several other changes are expected.

Matty Lamoud is a fine little catcher, but is a little undersized for faster company, and Rube has decided to strengthen this department.

ST. THOMAS, April 29.— The St. Thomas ball club may be deprived of the services of First Baseman Mills, whom they purchased from the Saginaw club about two weeks ago. Mills has written to the club officials stating that he does not think he will play ball this season, and that it was not at all likely that he would report. This information was received with much regret by the fans, as the new first-sacker was heralded as a top-notcher. This position is now between Lamb and Hammond. The first named has shown considerable class and will probably get the call.

President Stanley announced yesterday that arrangements had been made with the Ottawa club and President Fitzgerald to open the season in St. Thomas on May 6th instead of May 7th, owing to the visit of the Governor-General on the 6th. His Highness will probably be unable to attend the game, but in honour of the distinguished visitors, the mayor has proclaimed a half holiday. The contest will not commence until 4 o'clock, so that everybody will be able to get a glimpse of the duke and princess before the game starts.

The city board of works have had a big crowd of men working at the ball grounds, and by the time the bell rings the playing field should be in better condition than last season.

CHATHAM, Ont., April 29.—The Ottawa baseball squad returned last night to Chatham from Toledo after a four day tour of exhibition games. Three games in all were played, the Canadian League champions winning one, losing one and playing an eleven inning tie at Toledo yesterday.

Pitcher Oscar Kohl is still here, Manager Shaughnessy having left him over to get in shape. He had done no pitching this season and was ticketed for his release, but account of his confidence in his ability to show something when his arm got right, he was given an additional week to round to.

The Senators brought with them Catcher Artie Lage of last year's team and Pitcher Tom Kane. Shaughnessy will weed out some of the surplus players by the end of the week. There are now seventeen in camp.

Hamilton Spectator — The many baseball fans who have passed judgment upon the squad of players at present in charge of Manager Yates are of the opinion that the Hamilton pilot has a pretty likely lot of material at hand, in fact they opine that Yates has corralled the best squad brought into the city since the Canadian League was organized and that a pretty formidable machine should be fashioned out of this same material.

This opinion is pretty well shared and for this reason the fans will be surprised to learn that Manager Yates is not quite as well satisfied as are the fans, and that he is planning some important changes. The Canadian League is a Class B organization now and it is a Class B team that is going to represent Hamilton if on Robert Yates has his way. For this reason it was stated by an officer of the club this morning that the club had purchased Outfielder Sheckard from the Allenton club, of the Tri-State League (Class B), and that a good fast infielder was expected here shortly from the Philedalphia Americans, Manager Connie Mack having promised the club the services of a most promising player. In addition to this Manager Yates made an attempt yesterday to secure Lidgate, the youngster who has been alternating with Catcher Egan in the backstop duties on the Baltimore International League team. Lidgate was promised to Yates some weeks ago by Manager Dunn, of Baltimer, but showed such form in spring practice that he was retained. M'Avoy, the youngster who was with Berlin last year, has been sent to Baltimore, giving Yates some hope of securing Lidgate.

THE FIGHTING TEAM OF THE LEAGUE

The Brantford Expositor says: Keep your eye on the Erie Sailors. They have a fast infield, a slugging outfield, an daccording to reports have picked up a couple of good pitchers. With Manager Smith at the helm the Yankees should be able to make a good showing in the league this year, and with the Petes, are really the dark horses, Toronto also being in the coloured class.

Little word has been received from the Petes at Youngstown. Guess they will again be the fighting team of the league.

Workmen's Compensation Act As Recently Passed By Government

Provisions That Apply to Employers and Employees--What Happens When a Widow Re-marries--Employers Must Pay---Act is Fresh From the Law Factory

The Workmen's Compensation Act, which has just passed the Ontario Legislature, was prepared by Chief Justice Sir William Meredith on instruction from the Government. Sir William visited several countries to collect information for the bill. The object of the act is to provide payment to workmen who are injured during the course of their employment, or who contract diseases at their employment. The operation of the act is to be placed in the hands of a board of three men called the Compensation Board. This board will provide a fund to which all owners of factories and like institutions shall be compelled to subscribe on a basis of the number of employes engaged in such factories, and on other terms arranged by the board.

In certain classes of work employers will not be required to subscribe to the accident fund of the compensation fund, but in case of accident to their employes they will have to pay compensation at the rate provided by the act or decreed by the board.

Employer Must Pay.

The employer is liable to provide compensation for all injuries sustained by his employe unless the injuries do not disable the employe for a period longer than seven days. Unless misconduct results in death or serious disablement the employe is not entitled to compensation for accident happening through wilful neglect.

If a workman is engaged outside the province his dependents are entitled to compensation provided his residence outside the province does not exceed six months. This part of the act protects railway and steamship employes.

In case an action is instituted by a workman or his dependents, and an amount less than what the compensation would have been is secured by such action, then the balance will be paid out of the accident fund to equal the compensation. An employee cannot claim compensation and enter an action, too. Should he not enter an action, when the accident was due to some person other than his employer, the board or employer may enter the act on and the amount obtained shall go to make up the compensation.

The act provides that an employer carried on his own payroll at a salary not exceeding $2,000 shall be entitled to compensation for injury.

All agreements made between employe, dependent and employer to forego compensation in case of injury shall be void in the eyes of the board.

The Scale of Compensation.

The amount of compensation in case of death shall be the necessary expenses for burial not exceeding $75; where widow or invalid husband are dependent, a monthly payment of $20; where widow or invalid husband and one or more children are dependent, $20, with additional $5 for every child under sixteen years, payments to cease when child dies or reaches age of sixteen; where dependents are children, $10 per month per child, the whole not to exceed $40 per month; where workman was under 21 years, $20 per month to dependents until he would have reached age of 21 years; where dependents are other than those named above they shall be entitled to a sum proportionate to pecuniary loss occasioned to them through the death, sum not to exceed $40 per month.

If Widow Marries.

Should a widow marry then her weekly payments cease, but she gets a sum equal to two years of payments, and this sum must be paid one month after marriage.

Will Pay His Bills.

A monthly payment in respect of a child shall cease when the child reaches sixteen year or dies; where a workman leaves no dependents his compensation shall go to pay medical bills, etc.; in case of permanent disability the workman shall be entitled to 55 per cent. of his average weekly salary with the employer for whom he was working when the accident occurred; where permanent partial disability results the workman shall be entitled to 55 per cent. of the difference in the salary he formerly received and the amount earned by him after the accident; where the impairment of the man's earning capacity does not exceed 10 per cent., his compensation can be paid to him in a lump sum. The board reserves the right to invest the compensation for a workman or his dependent.

The Compensation Board.

The compensation board will consist of three members appointed by the lieutenant-governor in council. They shall be members until removed for misbehaviour or reach the age limit of 75 years. Each commissioner must devote his whole time to the work. The chairman will receive per annum $10,000; vice-chairman, $8,500; and the other commissioner, $7,500.

The board has the power to grant compensation to a man who contracts an "industrial disease" as the result of his employment. Where a man's employer proves that the workman's former employer is to blame for the disease, then the first employer shall pay the compensation. Farm labourers, domestic servants, and their employers are not included in this section of the bill.

Chapdelaine At Brantford

Brantford Expositor: "Chappy" Chapdelaine, who was one of the recruits signed with the Brantford ball team of last year, and who, when released by Brantford, went to Peterborough, where he made good last year, holding his job and receiving much praise for his work, has been released by that time. He arrived in the city yesterday, having come here by the "side-door pullman" route, but nevertheless landing in good shape.

"Chappy" states that this spring he was sent his contract, and when he asked for a raise was given it. Then, the same day that he reported he was let go. He came to this city to get a job with the Brants, but there is no place for him, and he will likely continue further west in an attempt to land a place with some other Canadian League team.

Sir Sandford Is Installed Once Again

KINGSTON, April 29.—A feature of Queen's University's seventy-third spring convocation this afternoon was the installation of Sir Sandford Fleming of Ottawa as Chancellor for the thirteenth term of three years. The students loudly acclaimed the aged Knight, who is in his eighty-eighth year, as he was robed by the Registrar of Queen's Council, J. M. Farrell B.A., and installed by Principal Gordon. Sir Sandford stated that he had desired to retire from office, but had again consented to accept the post. He paid tribute to the great assistance he had been given by Principals Grant and Gordon.

The laureation of two hundred and seventy graduates in the various faculties was preceded by the presentation of the following for honourary degree, which were conferred by the Chancellor; D.D., Rev. J. W. Mitne of Weston and Rev. J. M. MacDougall of Spencerville; LL.D., Rev. Prof. George D. Ferguson of Kingston and Mr. Hamilton Cassels, K.C. Toronto, Chairman of Queen's Board of Trustees.

50,000 BARRELS OF CEMENT CANADA'S DAILY CAPACITY

Importations Are Now Unnecessary.

The recent boom in construction operations in Canada is illustrated by the fact that in 1912 the Dominion consumed 1,434,413 barrels of imported Portland Cement, an amount larger than the total importance of the three preceding years. In the same year there was an increase of approximately 1,450,000 barrels in the consumption of domestic cement, according to figures published in the Monetary Times.

In 1913 there was a falling off of 1,200,000 barrels in imports, though the consumption of domestic cement more than offset this decrease.

It is stated that the Canadian mills can now turn out 50,000 barrels of cement daily, thus doing away with the immediate necessity of imports to supply the demand.

The following table shows the consumption of Portland cement in Canada for a series of years:

	Canadian Barrels	P.C.	Imported Barrels	P.C.
1913	5,656,222	67.1	284,008	2.9
1912	7,132,735	83.3	1,434,413	16.7
1911	5,682,915	90	651,816	10
1910	4,765,975	93	340,210	7
1909	4,497,709	97	148,193	3

floors. Further details of the plans will be made public when several points have been definitely decided upon.

Light for Basement.

Mr. Barrie explained that the prisms were being inlaid to give the most light possible to the basement. If the whole space under the sidewalk could be secured they would have to put in foundations for smaller sections of glass in front of the basement windows.

Agreement is Comprehensive.

Mr. Parsons read the agreement upon which the City granted permission to the Turnbull Company to put in their goods' elevator. Mayor Buller stated that Mr. E. H. D. Hall left no loopholes and the City would be completely protected.

Ald. Anderson stated that with him it was a question as to whether the proposed sidewalk would be safe.

Mr. Parsons replied that on this point it was merely a matter of construction. The whole sidewalk would be removed, the excavation made, cement walls built to the sidewalk level and girders laid. On this the prisms and cement would be laid.

The City Engineer's objection was simply on the point of giving the use of the space.

Hour for Elevator's Use.

Ald. Duncan stated that he objected to the use of the goods elevator until 11 a.m. He would like to see as little inconvenience to the public as possible.

Mr. Barrie stated that there would be room for pedestrians between the building and the edge of the elevator opening.

Mayor Buller remarked that most of Barrie's goods were received in bond, and it would be impossible to get a day's shipment out until after 10 o'clock.

Ald. Green reviewed the situation non-committingly.

Ald. McIntyre said he would rather have the matter referred back to the City Engineer.

Mayor Buller—Anything that may be done will be subject to Mr. Parsons' approval.

Ald. Stratton said he did not think any more openings should be allowed on the main street.

Ald. Johnston moved that the request of Mr. Barrie be granted under the same conditions as those presented to the Turnbull Company.

Ald. Stratton moved in amendment that no action be taken and Ald. McIntyre seconded it.

The amendment being lost the motion went through.

EIGHTY CASES IN THE PAST MONTH

During the past month, eighty charges have been laid at the police station. This scale is somewhat less than that of the corresponding month of last year, but still signifies the fact that the law has to hold sway, in cases of dispute and crimp, which can in no other way be governed.

Convictions in all cases have not been made, and in many instances warnings have served perhaps better, as a preventive than a conviction would have done.

Eighty Cases.

Twenty-nine drunks appeared before Magistrate Dumble and the following number of infidels were brought into that Worthy's protectorate to receive his consideration. Twenty-one disorderly persons, eight drunk and disorderly, four blacklisters, one for supplying a blacklister, six cases of assault, one of which embraced the clause, "doing bodily harm," two drunk in charge of a horse and rig, two carrying pistols, cycling on the sidewalk, one cruelty to animals, one found in common gaming house, one keeping a common gaming house, one breach of the pool room by-law, one case of fraud, one case of non-payment of wages, and one case of theft, making a total of eighty cases.

Next Months List.

Next month's list will in all probability embrace a wider circle of offences, if some who are not as yet common offenders are proved to be so.

Automobile Drivers.

Reference is made to drivers of automobiles. It is asserted by the police authorities that these persons will be made to reduce the speed when turning corners. Several accidents have been very narrowly averted at the junction of George and Hunter Streets within the past two or three weeks, and prosecutions in some instances will follow.

To-day the last day of April, proved a blank one at the police court.

Cyclists.

Those who ride cycles, should beware of the cycling squad which is in vogue in connection with the local Police Department. These officers travel from one limit of the City to the other, and are quite apt to be in the district where they are least expected. It is anticipated that the Police Magistrate will have a busy time with offenders on cycles, who prefer riding on the sidewalk, rather than on the roadways (the place intended for them). They should remember that they are not in Lindsay. The by-law in that town permits of cyclists using the sidewalk, where the streets are not paved, and providing the cyclist dismounts 20 yards in front of a pedestrian.

354 DOG TAGS ISSUED UP TO TO-DAY

"Do you want a dog tag?" The foregoing is the question that is flung at anyone entering the Police Station, and whether or not he came in for a cheap night's repast or not, his dog tag would be given the primary consideration.

To date there have been 354 tags issued. This is simply rushing business. Last year up to this time, only 121 had been issued, but before the month of May had expired, 453 had been sold.

Those who have not secured tags had better do so at once, bearing in mind the fact that to-morrow is the first of May, and that after that date, no mercy will be shown, but the "pound" of flesh will be taken in full weight.

The police are looking forward to a busy time, and incidentally, the incinerator caretaker will have his share of work, disposing of the bodies of the canines. It is probable that one or two days' grace will be given.

There is no doubt, however, that the number of dogs in the city has decreased during the past few years. Some years ago, nine hundred tags were sold, but there is hardly the possibility that such a number will be recorded this year.

MR. N. C. CAMERON SAYS THERE IS NO CONFLICT

Between Transient Traders' By-law and Peddlers — Latter Coming Into City Should Take Out Two Licenses of $100 and $50 — Local Manufacturers Should Have a $100 License.

CONTRADICTS LAWYER'S VIEWS ON BY-LAWS

Secretary N. C. Cameron of the local Retail Merchants' Association stated to the Examiner to-day that the Local Transient Traders and Pedlars' by-laws do not conflict, as stated in yesterday's paper, and in commenting on it he says that the Pedlars' by-law covers all cases of peddling, as the by-law reads:

A license shall be taken out each year by all hawkers and pedlars, and other persons carrying on petty trades, or who go from place to place to the City and rents a store, stays, with any animal, etc., bearing or drawing goods, wares of merchandise for sale. It is somewhat confusing at first sight, in reading the definition of hawkers and pedlars, as it goes on to enumerate several articles of merchandise. This clause was designed to make the law clear, but instead it makes it more confusing, and if the articles so enumerated were erased altogether it would be more easily understood.

There is also an exemption to manufacturers within the Province under under the Pedlars' By-law, but none under the Transient Traders.

Any person starting into business in Peterborough for the first time is a Transient Trader and is required to take out a license. Then if he should go from door to door selling goods he would become a pedlar, so that he would be required to take out two licenses. In the case of the local manufacturers who are selling goods from door to door he is a transient trader only, as he is exempt under the Pedlars Act and only one license would be required.

The Transient Traders Act is the only safeguard the City has of collecting its business tax.

For instance, a stranger comes in to the iCty and rents a store, stays, say, nearly a year and then gets out. The only one liable for business tax is the tennant; he, having gone, the City would be the loser. If he stays long enough he gets the amount of the license allowed on future taxes, or in other words, he is paying his taxes in advance to the extent of $100.

An amendment was made in the Transient Traders' Act at the last session of the Ontario Legislature, adding the words "or who may offer goods, wares or merchandise for sale in any other manner," which broadens it out to cover every possible case and any former stated cases that have been before the Courts do not make a precedent considering the amendment now in force.

INQUEST HELD

Into the Death of a Cobourg Christian Scientist

COBOURG, April 29.—Wallace Milner, a youth of nineteen, died here yesterday, and an inquest was held to-day by Coroner Dr. Ferris, Crown Attorney Kerr conducting the inquiry into the cause of death. Milner was a Christian Scientist, and lived with his grandmother, Mrs. Anderson, and his uncle, George Anderson. He had been in poor health for some time, and had, it was stated, been given treatment, according to his own desire, as the evidence of his mother, grandmother and aunt, by his uncle and by Mrs. MacNaughton, also by a Mr. Perry, of Toronto, the latter giving him "absent treatment," beginning on Sunday. The inquest lasted all day, and was adjourned to next Thursday.

Wreckage Was Gathered Up

Very fortunately for the shippers, the five Grand Trunk cars that left the track near Madoc, yesterday morning did not burst when the accident occurred but held together and kept the grain inside from spilling out. As a result every bit of the car-go was transhipped to other cars and proceeded eastward. As soon as the accident occurred hurry calls were sent for the Belleville and Lindsay auxiliaries and both of them soon arrived on the scene. A temporary track was laid around the rupture in the regular line and this was used by the Madoc local and the freight trains going to and coming from the the east. Last night the last of the trucks were lifted on to the track, or to other men's houses on foot, or sible, so that all signs of the run-off of the five cars have been eliminated.

Grocers Of The City Suggest That Thursday Half Holiday Be Given During June, July And August

And Will Circulate Petition to Have All Grocery Stores Close at a Uniform Hour Every Night--Held Banquet in Coleman's Last Night.

The Grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association held an enthusiastic meeting and banquet in the Savoy (Coleman's) restaurant, last night. The meeting was called to discuss matters of interest to the retail trade, and was presided over by Chairman D. H. Kerneghan.

The business was disposed of during the first part of the evening and was followed by refreshments which were satisfactorily provided and served by Messrs. Coleman Bros.

The Thursday half holiday during the summer came in for considerable discussion by the grocers last night. It was the general opinion that, as the half holiday was so successful and satisfactory during the months of July and August that it would be well to have it held weekly during three summer months. It was therefore decided to recommend to the Retail Merchants that the Thursday half-holiday be held weekly during the months of June, July and August this summer. There was hardly a dissenting voice when the proposition was discussed, it being agreed that the thing was worth a trial during the coming summer at least.

The hour of closing for grocers was also discussed. It was felt by some that there should be some regulation, or at least an agreement between the retail merchants of this City to provide that all grocery stores close at the same hour. The municipal by-law at present provides that all dry goods, hardware, boot and shoe stores as well as some others, must close at seven o'clock. As there is no business between six and seven o'clock the result is that the stores who come under the by-law all close at six o'clock. Last night the gathering favoured the proposition of having the grocers closing at an earlier and more uniform hour. It was decided to take steps by means of a petition to find out just how many local grocers would endorse the proposition. At present the proprietors of the various grocery stores close them whenever they choose.

The matter of the transient traders by-law was taken up and it was shown that the coffers of the City are being enriched to the extent of several hundreds of dollars annually, through the passage of the said by-law.

Mr. T. A. Fisher, representing the Lindsay Retail Merchants' Association, was present at the meeting, and in a brief address outlined the work that the Retail Merchants' Association of that town was carrying on at present successfully.

Chased By The Inspector

Fish Spearers at Chemong Lake Had an Adventure

BRIDGENORTH, April 29. — How brave some young men feel when they go out to battle armoured with a deadly weapon to meet their enemy. This is what occurred to two young men from our village. They departed from the south side of Chemong Lake the other evening with a large skiff filled with fat pine, a fishing Jack and a fine spear. They enjoyed the sail across the lake to Donoughs' Bay, where they intended to commence war, but who can tell what will happen. They prepared for action in the form of a fire on the Jack, which looked as brilliant as Adam Beck's Hydro-Electric lights. One stood at the front watching for a fine fish to make its appearance.

They were quietly pushing their way through among the stumps and logs when, behold, the inspector from the village appeared. He shouted, 'Don't loose courage, boys, stand still, I know you."

But they retreated, and in their haste ran their boat on a stump, but that did not stop them. Strange to say, the inspector did the same trick, and that finished the battle for the night.

It is whispered around that the two others who had just returned from action gave the inspector the key of the bay. The boys say the next time they go they will get one of "Ham's" dirigible balloons.

COMMANDER EVANS COMING

Will Lecture on the Scott Expedition

Commander Evans of the British navy, who was second in command of the Scott expedition to the Antarctic in which Capt. Scott lost his life, will lecture in Peterborough on May 13th. A number of local gentlemen have interested themselves in bringing Commander Evans here and no doubt many citizens will be anxious to hear him. His story of the expedition is said to be fascinating in its interest.

Will Be Entertained.

The principals and chorus of the Zepkra production will be the guests of the members of the Conservatory orchestra tomorrow. The children will be entertained from 4 to 6 p.m., while the adults will assemble at 8 p.m.

FIVE BODIES ARE RECOVERED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ECCLES, W. Va., April 30.—Rescue parties this morning reached the bottom of the mine shaft and found five dead bodies in a heap. They are pushing on with life-saving apparatus hoping to find live miners in the inner workings.

CHRIST'S MESSAGE IS NOT A CREED

"Simply refraining from doing certain things will not get you a life insurance policy to Heaven. You must claim as all brothers. A true Christian loves his fellowmen. He is always ready to do something for others. Because a man refuses to commit certain evils, it does not necessarily say that he is a Christian. Christianity is not a creed or a conformity. It is a disposition to ove others, and an attitude of love for others." So stated A. P. Fitch, President of Andover College, Mass.

"Men struggle away the best part of their lives in search for truth, or in an attempt to discover something of interest to the world, and when in sight of victory they pass away,' said Mr. Fitch. "There is nothing so certain as that life is short, and that great achievements take immeasurable time. Yet when in sight of their goal the lives of these men end.

All is Futile.

"The result is that waves of sorrow pass over the earth. There is worry and trouble, and the undertone of everything is melancholy. We strive for it, but never reach it. And when confronted by failure every man of intelligence must at some time or other wonder why he is on earth, and ask himself what use life is to him.

Doctrine of Sacrifice.

"But there are things which man cannot understand. God loves all, the longer, the beggar, the thief, and the Christian, and He wants to show that love. To be a Christian you must view the world as God views it. You must love your fellowmen and sacrifice yourself for them."

President Fitch closed with an eloquent appeal to his audience that they go out and do something for others. The Royal Male Quartette and the Columbia Conservatory Orchestra provided music.

MOTHERS' DAY WILL BE OBSERVED HERE

Mothers' Club and Salvation Army Are Arranging for Suitable Recognition of Day

The second Sunday in May is Mother's Day, and will be fittingly observed in this city. The Mothers' Club are already actively engaged in arranging for the day, and expect to see that the day will be a memorable one, and that it will receive due recognition here. In the past the day has been observed in Peterborough as the sentiment and purpose of it deserves, and believing that the object of the day will appeal to everybody the Mothers' Club is looking for the hearty co-operation of all.

Adjutant McElhiney, head of the Salvation Army here, has also made complete arrangements for a recognition of the day by the members of the Army. He has received from headquarters large art posters explaining the purpose of the day, announcing the date and containing information as to what are the decorations to wear on Mothers' Day. They are of real value in assisting the celebration of the occasion in Peterborough, and should aid much in so doing. Pretty post cards have also been secured by Adjutant McElhiney, as well as suitable buttons for the children to wear on Mothers' Day.

The correct decorations for the day are white carnations and white badges. The especially made buttons which are in the possession of Adjutant McElhiney will be worn by the children of the Salvation Army.

Activity In Real Estate

Activity in real estate still continues in Havelock. Mr. P. Cane of Peterborough has sold his lot south of the "Creamery site" on Concession Street, to Mr. Thomas Stillman for $20.00. Mr. Stillman has also purchased the "Creamery site," consisting of five lots, from Mr. C. A. Ghent, for $120, and it is rumoured, will re-establish a creamery on the property. Mr. Ghent has negotiated the sale of the house on Mathison treet belonging to Miss A. Barrett of Toronto and occupied by Mr. J. Leeworthy, to Mr. S. Cross for $1250.—Havelock Standard.

"NO ENGLISH NEED APPLY"

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In glancing over the "small ads." of your issue of April 28th, I was at the same time surprised, amused, and disgusted to see tacked on to an advertisement of Board offered, the words "Englishmen need not apply."

To put it mildly, are such things in good taste? It is such insults and snubs as these towards the English which make some English people form an erroneous and uncomplimentary opinion of the Canadians.

Fortunately there are Canadians—and Canadians; and some of them are very charming, pleasant and agreeable people.

Yet, there are, unfortunately, others who appear to put themselves out of their way to vex, harass, insult and annoy the English—anyway British—from whom most of them have descended. And it is these people who make the English form a sometimes adverse and, may-be, mistaken impression of the Canadian people in general.

And the greatest transgressors among those who wish to belittle those who come from the land of their parents' birth are those whose parents were born in England, but who themselves have been born in this country. The Canadian of generations is altogether different, with but a few notable exceptions. Among those to whom I allude in the former category it seems that a man might be forgiven for forgery, swindling, or even murder, but he may never expect forgiveness for the crime (?) of being an Englishman. And yet have not the great majority of Canadians come from British stock? unless indeed their progenitors were Indians. "What business have you—Englishmen over here?" is a common question, and, mark you, there is in most instances a qualifying adjective used of a not harmonious type when an Englishman is referred to, and some of the worst of the vilifiers are descendants of the pauper peasants brought over here to keep them from starvation by the Hon. Peter Robinson!

I am glad to say I have personally met some charming Canadian ladies and gentlemen—and I have also met some others.

I am one of those, who

"In spite of all temptation,
To belong to another nation
He remains

AN ENGLISHMAN."

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Many an Englishman in this town no doubt, will have felt very much insulted after reading the advertisement for two gentleman boarders. This boarding mistress living at 285 Dalhousie Street, corner of Stewart, actually wants two gentlemen boarders, but "Englishmen need not apply." Are the Englishmen too clean, or is she thinking of the extra meal? Perhaps a bunch of Italians or Chinamen would be more suitable for her boarding house. She seemingly doesn't know that nearly all the men who are in boarding houses, "convenient to the C.G.E." are Englishmen, and trade being so dull at this time of the year, with plenty of good boarding houses vacant, No. 285 ought to consider herself lucky if she does get any boarders, even if it is an Englishman. Thanking you for space in your valuable paper.

Proud Englishman.

Victoria Park Should Not Be Neglected

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I see that the new pavement will be extended as far northward as the corner of Aylmer and McDonnel streets in order to encompass Central Park.

While no exception can be taken to such action, why neglect Victoria Park, a more beautiful and central spot and where the band concerts are given? When they are paving Water street to the corner of the Park, why not continue the work along the front of this Park at least?

Yours truly,

Enquirer.

The City And The C. P. R.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I believe the C.P.R. demand $7,000 for taking their poles off George street, which was a privilege they got for nothing. It is fair to presume that in proportion they would want one million dollars to allow us access to our river-front, because of the large tract of land along the bank given to them by our foolish Council.

Yours truly,

Citizen.

MORTGAGE WAS BURNED.

Monday night was a night of rejoicing for the parishioners of St. John's Church, it being the occasion of the burning of the mortgage on the parsonage. This long-hoped for event took place in the basement before a large number of rejoicing members of the Church, and the gentlemen who had the honour of applying the match to the debt monster was Mr. Jas. Black, who has worked hard and faithfully in collecting the funds for the purpose. St. John's Church property is now entirely free of debt.—Havelock Standard.

BIRTHDAY OF DUTCH PRINCESS

Special to The Examiner:

THE HAGUE, April 30—From the German frontier to the North Sea, every city, town and hamlet of the Netherlands to-day displayed a profusion of flags and gave other evidences of rejoicing over the fifth anniversary of the little Princess Juliana, who will one day be the ruler of the Netherlands, with 60,000,000 subjects at home and abroad.

The birth of the Princess on April 30th, 1909, was hailed with great joy by the people of the Netherlands, since it fulfilled a long-deferred hope and assured the succession of the House of Orange to the Dutch throne. The infant Princess was christened Juliana Louise Emma Marie Wilhelmina. The name of Juliana was given her in memory of Countess Juliana of Nassau, wife of Prince Frederick Henry, and mother of the two branches of the House of Orange Nassau. The name of Louise recalls Louise de Coligny, wife of William the Silent. The names of Emma, Marie and Wilhelmina are those of her grandmother and her mother.

THE TORE OF BETTER SERVICE

JUDAS MACCABEUS GRANDLY PRESENTED

If the Examiner can claim no credit, it can enjoy the satisfaction, that results justified its prediction of the splendid, all-round success and public enjoyment of the presentation of Judas Maccabaeus, in the Grand Opera House, last night. To the praise of all concerned in the work, it was magnificently done, and the large and appreciative audience was delighted, to enthusiasm. The conductor and chorus were keyed to concert pitch from the beginning. The soloists were entirely adequate; and the accompanists provided them by the Toronto Symphony Quintette, left nothing in the way of artistic effectiveness to be desired, and last, but by no means, least, the Conservatory Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, proved itself worthy of going with the chorus, and that is saying a good deal. The orchestra, reinforced by the Symphony Quintette, performed the beautiful overture to the Oratorio in a most capable and effective manner. Mention should not be omitted of the excellent work of Miss Maggie Flowers, at the piano.

The chorus was strong in many ways. It had the confidence of ability and knowledge of its work, thanks to its intelligent response to the admirable training of Mr. Devey, the Conductor, whose ability is equal to his enthusiasm. The choral balance of parts was excellent, the volume of tone, when called for, was melodiously large, and the necessary nuances were smooth and effective. These qualities, combined with sharp attack, made the singing of the chorus exceedingly good. The chorus, in spirit and performance, kept pace with the crescendo of beauty and grandeur of music that marks the oratorio. While the general performance of the fourteen or fifteen choruses sung was of high character, some of them, thanks in part to the majestic swing and power of the music, seemed to give especial delight and get especially enthusiastic greeting. These included "Hear us, O Lord," "Fallen is the Foe," conspicuous for beautiful shading and effects of harmony; the inherently dramatic and dramatically done, "We Never Will Bow Down," "See the Conquering Hero," with its beautiful orchestral setting, and the grand finale, "Hallelujah, Amen!" The latter was conducted by Dr. Torrington of Toronto, the "father of oratorio in Canada," and it was the crowning triumph of the choral victories of the evening, in which the choir incidentally celebrated its own musical triumph in glorifying the victories of the Judean hero.

The principals were all capable singers, and not the least capable was the city representative—all the others being from Toronto—Miss Dorothy Allen, soprano. She has the true oratorio voice, of a beautiful quality of strength and musical tone, and the oratorio spirit. Her singing was of the highest character in voice and art. Miss Olive Casey of Toronto is not new in oratorio in Peterborough, and fully maintained her reputation. Her voice, method, and musical instinct, though she is young yet, are possessions that mark her for a brilliant future. One of the most delightful numbers of the evening was the exquisitely beautiful duet "O Lovely Peace, with plenty crowned," so exquisitely sung by her and Miss Allen that a repeat was rapturously demanded and given. In contrast with the stately and stirring march of the music of the oratorio, it was a tone poem, breathing the sweet air of peace coming after the strident notes of strife—like the calm and hush of a beautiful summer evening after rage of a storm. Mr. Albert Downing of Toronto was the capable tenor. He sang "Sound an alarm" with so much fire and effect that he was compelled to repeat the number, which he did with even greater success. Mr. Frank Oldfield of Toronto took the bass numbers with splendid success. His singing, which, musically and vocally, is artistically classical, is marked by a very welcome and rare clarity of enunciation. He won his triumph in "The Lord worketh wonders." He was enthusiastically encored and repeated the number to universal delight.

Before undertaking to conduct the final chorus Dr. Torrington of Toronto expressed his hearty appreciation of the work of the chorus, conductor and orchestra, and congratulated both them and the people of the City upon the great impulse to musical achievement and ambition represented by the work and influence of such masterpieces of the masters. Praise from Sir Hubert is praise indeed. Dr. Torrington has had a wide experience as conductor of oratorio work and his praise counts for much as that of one who knows. His high opinion of last night's work was only a reflection of the inevitable sentiment of the audience.

The conductor, the chorus and the orchestra deserve so well of the public for their splendid work last night that the latter should know to whom they were indebted for the great musical entertainment they enjoyed. The following names deserve the credit:

BIG DISPLAY OF FOREST PRODUCTS

Examiner Special:

CHICAGO, Ill., April 30—The Forest Products Exposition, the first large exhibition of the lumber and kindred industries ever held in America, was opened in the Coliseum to-day, and will be continued until May 10. The principal purpose of the Exhibition is to impress upon the minds of the American people the importance of forest conservation and scientific woodland development. To this end the Federal Government has sent an elaborate exhibit illustrating every feature of modern forest conservation and development. During the period of the exposition the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association and other organizations connected with the lumber industry will hold convetnions in Chicago.

Cleveland To Change Time

Special to The Examiner:

CLEVELAND, O., April 30—Cleveland's decision to change from central standard to eastern standard time will be put into effect to-morrow, and it is expected that for a while at least it will be a case of "confusion worse confounded" for the people. The change is the result of a campaign that has been waged for a long time by the business interests of the City. Under the new arrangement the factories and shops will begin work an hour earlier in the morning and close an hour earlier in the afternoon, thus giving the employees the benefit of an additional hour of daylight after work. Much confusion is expected to follow the change, however, since the postoffice department, the most of the railroads and the express companies, and numerous other concerns have decided not to conform to the new time change because it would necessitate a complete rearrangement of their schedules.

Ed. Wade Appointed Foreman of Sewer Construction Work

Ald. Duncan read a report from the City Engineer, last night, that Edward Wade had been appointed as sewer foreman.

In reply to Ald. Stratton it was stated that Richard Hall and Martin Neary were the foremen last year.

Ald. Stratton — "Was there any reason that these men were not given a chance this year?"

Ald. Anderson—"The appointment was left to the Engineer."

Ald. Stratton—"And we must support the Engineer."

Furniture Dealers To Close Earlier

Will Ask the City Council to Pass By-law Making Closing Hour Uniform

The Examiner is informed that the furniture dealers of this city will likely petition the Council at the next meeting to pass a by-law for the early closing of furniture stores. At present the by-law provides that all dry goods, hardware and boot and shoe merchants must close each evening except Saturday at seven o'clock. Already a number of signatures have been affixed to the petition which is in charge of Mr. N. C. Cameron, and it is hoped that the Council will see fit to grant their request at an early date.

Errors in Frontages Follow Complaint Made By W. A. Hunter

The complaint of W. A. Hunter that he was assessed for ten feet more frontage than his deed showed him to possess, was dealt with by the Board of Works last night. Mayor Buller stated that Mr. Throop on Crescent had a similar complaint, and had stated that he would refuse to pay taxes on another man's property.

Alderman Duncan—They've got me down for 46 feet on George street and I have only 41 feet.

Alderman Johnston stated that the tax bills showed plainly the frontage on which taxes were levied.

Alderman Anderson—Most of the people don't read them carefully.

Alderman Saunders — They had wrong frontage for me and I went to the assessor. He made it right in no time. Some of these people should do the same.

Mayor Buller—I don't think you can make a man pay the 1914 taxes on property he does not own.

On motion of Alderman Johnston and Alderman Green, the communication from Mr. Hunter was referred to the City Engineer and Solicitor, to be taken up with the Court of Revision and Assessor.

Board of Works Have A Surprise Account For Utilities Commission

A bill amounting to $75.14 was received by the Board of Works from the Water Commission, now the Public Utilities Commission, for the use of a boiler, repairs to same, and incidentals. Engineer Parsons went over some of the work that had been done by the Board for the Commission, and made a total indebtedness of $285, which will be presented to the Commission without any admission that the $75 account was incurred by the Board. The $285 account includes the use of a centrifugal pump for sixty days, at $1, used in connection with sewer in the north end, last season, and other incidentals which the Board easily recalled when they were presented with the $75 bill. The money may all come out of or go into the same pocket, but if the Board of Works' pocket is threatened they claim that they have an extensive contra account.

The City Fathers Have Their Hands Full These Days

If the City Fathers were paid by the hour for their extra time spent in transacting civic business the tax rate would be out of sight. Monday night the special playgrounds committee held a session, Tuesday night the Council held an extra meeting that broke up about midnight, and last night the Board of Works came through with a session that lengthened out to near 11 o'clock. The Finance Committee is billed for Friday afternoon, and there may be some other Committee desirous to demonstrate that it is not behind the others. Next Monday there is the regular May meeting of the Council and so it goes, one giddy whirl of doing with a little of the spice of undoing thrown in by way of variety. It may become necessary for the various Aldermen to secure private secretaries, especially the committee chairmen. And while the civic mill grinds all that comes to it, the City Clerk separates the wheat from the chaff. It certainly is a strenuous existence.

Arranging For Visit Of 15th Regiment

Colonel Marsh, of the 15th, (Belleville Regiment), was in the city last evening, in conference with the officers of the 57th Regiment, regarding the approaching visit of the Belleville Regiment to Peterborough, on Victoria Day. The Regiment will arrive in the city on Saturday night, will pitch camp in Central Park, and will remain over Sunday and Monday. On Sunday a church parade will take place to one of the local churches. No other definite programme has been arranged. Colonel Marsh looked over the camping grounds, and was satisfied that they would meet with the approval of the men.

Arrangements for the trip of the 57th Regiment to Windsor are still incomplete. The adte has been arranged for Labour Day, but no further particulars are available.

Steam Blowing Across George Street Dangerous

Mr. W. H. Munroe, of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, has written the Council that the steam from the kiln exhaust at the McDonald Estate mill blows across the street when the wind is from the east, and is a source of danger to the public. In this vaporous cloud a street car bumped into a delivery waggon last year. The pipe has been raised about ten feet, but the condition has not been improved. Alderman Green presented a question as to what authority the city had over this steam exhaust, and before the company is again approached, Solicitor Gordon will be asked his opinion. One of the Aldermen suggested that the exhaust be run into the sewer.

BOARD OF WORKS APPROVES OF REQUEST PRESENTED BY MR. T. BARRIE FOR NEW BUILDING

Recommended Granting Use of Space Under Sidewalk With Permission to Install Goods Elevator and Four Foot Strip of Glass Prisms to Light the Basement

THE DISCUSSION

At the Board of Works meeting last night Mr. Thos. Barrie presented a request to use the space underneath the sidewalk in front of the proposed Barrie's Limited new office and factory building immediately south of the Customs House, also to put in a six-foot square goods elevator in the sidewalk towards the outer edge. Mr. Barrie also asked to be permitted to place glass prisms in the sidewalk through a space four feet wide next to the building and extending along the front except at the entrance. This latter privilege is contingent upon the granting of the first.

Mr. Parsons in his report stated that a precedent had been established in regard to the goods elevator in the sidewalk, and he felt that this request should be granted. He did not present any objection to the strip of glass prisms providing there were none in front of the entrance to the building. On the consideration that the city would be giving away property it owned he did not approve of granting the use of the ground under the sidewalk.

Alderman Stratton—Are we going to allow all other applications for elevators in the sidewalk?

Alderman Duncan—We don't need to.

Alderman Stratton—What about other applications? We will likely receive others.

Mr. Parsons—I was opposed to the goods elevator at the Turnbull building. I did not recommend it. The Board and Council saw fit to grant the request. Under that condition I do not think we should make fish of one and flesh of another.

Alderman Stratton—If this is not the right principle why not stop right now?

A Home Company.

Alderman Duncan—This company is manufacturing goods and giving employment to people. So far as I can see if the elevator were not opened after 9:30 a.m. I thing it would be all right.

Alderman Johnston—I don't think this is so harmful. The company assumes all responsibility and agrees to indemnify the city. We are protected there. This building is going to be an ornament and I think we should do what is fair by our citizens.

Could Not Get Lane.

Mr. Barrie stated that he had tried to get an entrance through the government and Comstock properties but without result. He stated that the whole lot might be built upon this year.

Provide for Conduits.

In opposing the granting of the use of the ground under the sidewalk Mr. Parsons stated that the city might want to use it for conduits.

Mr. Barrie replied that the company would install brackets for conduits. He felt that it would be wise if the ground under all the sidewalks on the main street were excavated it would be an easy matter for the city to lay conduits when they were needed.

Mr. Parsons stated that he did not see why the city should give the ground which would be used for store purposes.

Mr. Barrie replied that it was not in use now, and in all the large cities it was a general practice. Even in the new cities of the west this was being done.

Mr. Parsons—But there is a high rental charged for this space. It was only a nominal rental at the Turnbull corner.

Mr. Barrie—We would be willing to pay a fair rental for it. But we are not asking much from the city. We do not want a bonus nor anything of that kind. I think it is the least the city can do to grant us this lease, even though there is no more charge than that to the Turnbull Company.

Mayor Buller.

His Worship stated that providing the sidewalk covering was sound in every way, the city did not stand to lose anything. We are getting an industry, built up by a local man. If a stranger came here we would be perfectly willing to help him. The least the city can do is to give Mr. Barrie what he wants. We find the goods elevators on the busiest thoroughfares in the large cities. Mr. Barrie remarked that the city should try to build lanes for the convenience of the stores.

Alderman Duncan replied that it was not laid out for that provision in every locality.

St. John's Church was the scene of a quiet 8 o'clock wedding Wednesday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, when Miss Muriel Bell, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. After the ceremony the bride and groom drove to their home, 450 1-2 Mark Street, East City, where a dainty little supper was served. VILLA AND HUERTA TO HOLD MEETING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

In the meantime no fighting has taken place between Federals and Constitutionalists for some days.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

STAATSBURG, N.Y., April 30.—Vincent Astor, son of the late John Jacob Astor, a victim of the Titanic disaster, and the wealthiest young man in the United States, was quietly married at noon to-day to Helen Dinsmore, of Huntingdon, at the beautiful estate of the bride's parents here. Their joint estates are valued at nearly hundred million dollars.

"ERRORS OF JUDGMENT."

Lord Murray's Speculations Not Dishonorable, Say Lords.

LONDON, May 1.—The committee of the House of Lords appointed to investigate Lord Murray's dealings in American Marconi shares, yesterday issued it report, which finds that he committed "errors of judgment." There was, however, nothing in his conduct "which reflects upon his personal honor."

The committee recommends "there should henceforth be an inflexible rule to preclude those who hold any public office from entering upon any speculative transactions in stocks or shares under any circumstances whatever."

Lord Murray, when he was chief Liberal Whip in the House of Commons, was said to have invested some of the funds of the Liberal party in Marconi shares.

Liberals Will Fight to Safeguard Country in C. N. R. Bargain

TARIFF CLAUSES ADVANCED

OTTAWA, May 1.—The forthcoming legislation respecting the Canadian Northern continues to be the sole topic of conversation on Parliament Hill. The Liberal Senators and members held a caucus yesterday morning, at the conclusion of which a statement was given out to the effect that the Opposition would fight the proposals of the Government to the bitter end.

At yesterday's sitting of the House seven Conservative members, Messrs. Fisher (Brant), Armstrong (North York), Smith (S. Ontario), Walker (Northumberland), Sutherland (Oxford), Best (Dufferin), and Rhodes (Cumberland), severally arose as a matter of privilege and denounced as unwarranted the insinuations in some Toronto newspapers to the effect that they were lukewarm in their support of the Government and might be reckoned among the insurgents. They all declared that they would most heartily support the Canadian Northern legislation.

The formal resolutions, which cover some fifteen pages, appeared on the order paper yesterday as a notice of motion, but the Prime Minister was not in his seat when the same were called.

It is quite likely, however, that by agreement, the House will be moved into committee of the whole on Tuesday next to consider the resolutions, and a considerable time may be spent in the committee stage before the resolutions are reported and the bill introduced.

The resolutions, which embody the contract between the Government and the Canadian Northern, are more or less technical and will have to be carefully explained before the House will become seised of their meaning and import, except in a general way.

The House spent another day on the tariff resolutions, the Liberals putting up a determined opposition to the increase of duty upon dressed stone. Mr. Pardee (West Lambton) said the new tariff would be prohibitory and in this position was supported by Hon. Frank Oliver, who claimed that the consumer would be injured without benefitting the stonecutters. Finance Minister White, however, replied that the quarrymen, stonecutters and stone contractors were unanimous in demanding a higher duty and the item passed.

The evening sitting was taken up with the iron and steel schedules. Some of the Liberal members objected to the duty on wire rods, claiming that the smaller manufacturers of nails would be at the mercy of the big concerns at Sydney and the Soo.

Col. John A. Currie (N. Simcoe) said that the Government was pledged to prevent this, and he believed that the United States steel corporations' entry into the Canadian field would reduce the prices of all iron and steel production.

Hon. Mr. White intimated that when the increased duties upon structural iron were made effective by order-in-council that a readjustment of the iron and steel duties would be necessary.

The House in committee of ways and means passed all the tariff resolutions laid on the table at the conclusion of the budget speech, but the bill to amend the Customs Act was not introduced, as the Finance Minister explained that some minor modifications would be made.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

C. J. L. La France, city treasurer of Quebec, has tendered his resignation and Mayor Drouin refuses to accept it.

Fire, which started at midnight on Wednesday, damaged main street, North Bay, buildings to the extent of $15,500.

The steamship Saturnia, which scraped the lower Traverse Bar on its way to Montreal, appears to have been damaged more seriously than was supposed.

James Elliott, a lifelong resident of St. Catharines, aged 79, went out for a walk late Wednesday afternoon and returning sat down in a rocking chair, and expired.

An application for a charter for an electric railway from Toronto to London and Windsor, with branches to Woodstock and Stratford, has been withdrawn at Ottawa.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived at Manaos, Brazil, last evening from his expedition through the hitherto unexplored portion of Brazil. He was greeted with an enthusiastic reception.

Upton Sinclair and the four women who were arrested with him on Wednesday in font of the Standard Oil Building, wearing crepe, went to jail in New York in default of a fine of $2.

William Shaver, aged 21 years, of St. Catharines, unmarried, and Earl Crawford, aged 19, of Port Dalhousie, were among the crew of nineteen of the steamer Noble, lost on Lake Superior.

Wilfrid De Fonvielle, the oldest aeronaut in the world, died Wednesday at the age of 90. As early as 1864 he began experimenting with balloons and made some remarkable discoveries.

Moving Day In Montreal.

MONTREAL, May 1.—To-day is the annual moving day in Montreal, when it is estimated that fully 100,000 people are changing their residences. This year's flitting is hardly so extensive as those of previous years, but all sorts of rigs are being used at the usual high prices. As usual, there is the long list of minor accidents, owing to the rush of people to get out of the old and into the new residences. Rents everywhere have been generally increased. One result especially noticeable this year is that more Montrealers are moving across the river and out to the neighboring municipalities.

Duke of Argyll Dying.

LONDON, May 1.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—The condition of the Duke of Argyll, who is lying ill with double pneumonia, continues critical. He several times lapsed into unconsciousness last night, and the worst is now feared.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

SESSION ALL BUT OVER.

Official Ceremony To-day Concludes 1914 Legislature.

TORONTO, May 1.—The Ontario Legislature prorogues to-day. This afternoon Sir John Gibson, with a military escort, will enter the chamber and proceed to grant royal assent to the many items which have passed into legislation during the session now closing.

The proceedings will follow the usual formality and a display of fashion is expected. The showing of the members, however, will be small as the majority have departed to their various businesses at home.

Lady Gibson and Miss Gibson will be present as interested spectators of the last occasion on which Sir John will officiate as Lieutenant-Governor. He retires during the year.

INTERRUPTED WEDDING.

Militant Asks Bridegroom New Question—Package Thrown at Him.

LONDON, May 1. — Suffragettes caused a disturbance at the fashionable wedding in St. James Church, Piccadilly, yesterday of Noel Buxton, M.P., and Lucy Pelham Burn. Many society people and political friends of the couple were present. Whilst the clergyman was reading the service, a well-dressed woman shouted, "Mr. Noel Buxton, will you promise to treat this woman you are about to marry properly and insist that she has a vote?" Almost simultaneously a man interrupted the service and both were promptly removed from the church by other members of the congregation.

Threw Bundle at King.

CAMBRIDGE, May 1. — A suffragette broke through the police lines here yesterday while the automobile of King George was passing through the streets, and hurled a bundle of suffragette literature at his Majesty. She missed the King, but struck the chauffeur of his car. The woman was immediately arrested.

BOGUS BILLS CURRENT.

Hamilton Is Scene of Attempt to Pass Bad Commerce Tens.

TORONTO, May 1. — Counterfeit $10 notes of the Canadian Bank of Commerce of the issue at present in use are in circulation in Hamilton. The counterfeits, which have so far been seen, are numbered 452,477 in red over black, whereas the genuine notes now issued by the bank are numbered in blue. The colors used are also much deeper in tint than those of the genuine notes, especially the yellow and red on the face. On the back there are two or three flaws in the design, apparently made by blots which appear on the word "Bank," where it occurs at the foot of the note. The counterfeits are countersigned by H. O'Reilly.

Sarnia to Have a Big Time.

SARNIA, May 1.—Arrangements are now complete for the big demonstration to be held here on May 7th, when the Duke of Connaught will christen Sarnia the "Imperial City." School children, the local regiment, the cadets, the Boy Scouts and the fraternal societies will be in a procession, and Walpole Island Indians, in full warpaint and feathers, will also be present.

Saved From the Gallows.

CHATHAM, May 1.—Frank Smith, colored, who was sentenced to be hanged on May 8 for the murder of James Conyers, will not hang. The sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment. Conyers was stabbed during a quarrel and died several days later when complications set in. Smith has no friends here.

Soon General Strike.

PEORIA, Ill., May 1.—The Illinois District Convention of United Mine Workers of America, yesterday adopted a resolution, asking the International organization to request the American Federation of Labor to call a general strike throughout the United States in protest against the Colorado labor troubles.

LAW MAY RETIRE.

Austen Chamberlain Freely Talked of as Unionist Leader.

LONDON, May 1.—Conviction that a settlement of the Irish situation was near was expressed on every side here to-day. Political and club circles breathed a sigh of relief. That civil war had been near was undoubted; that it would have been confined to Ireland was held impossible. What its consequences would have been none could foretell.

There were important changes in leadership freely forecasted yesterday. It was said that Mr. Bonar Law, a Canadian, would soon retire as Unionist leader in favor of Mr. Austen Chamberlain, whose utterances on the Ulster question recently have shown him less acrid and eminently level-headed. Mr. Redmond, it was said, was in danger of losing his head. Nationalist rank and file resent his concessions in order to help toward a settlement. A possible successor was not named. The Leader Times yesterday expressed the view of the vast majority, when it says that settlement was never so near. Drilling of troops in Ulster, and to some extent in the south of Ireland, continued, in preparation for any eventualities.

A few questions over Ulster were addressed to Premier Asquith in the afternoon from the Opposition benches.

The questioners added little, however, to the stock information. The air of the Commons was like the weather outside—gone considerably cooler in the past 24 hours.

As to measures dealing with gunrunning, the Premier stated that measures had already been taken "which we hope will prove effective to prevent the recurrence of such incidents."

Tells Mother What to Do for Delicate Children.

"My little boy has ben rather delicate for a long time. He was always very pale and his appetite was poor. Several people recommended 'Vinol'. I gave it to him and he took it willingly, as the taste is delicious. In a short time I noticed a great improvement in his appetite. He soon had more colour in his cheeks. He is now well like other children, and romps about every afternoon after school. I am so happy with what Vinol did for my little boy, that I want every mother to know about it."—Mrs. C. R. This delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil is a wonderful body builder and strength creator for both young and old. We promise to give back your money in every such case where Vinol does not benefit. This shows our faith in Vinol.

Seven Thought to Have Perished on Schooner Wm. Jamieson

NO WORD SINCE TUESDAY

KINGSTON, May 1.—It is feared that the schooner William Jamieson, owned and sailed by Captain "Jack" McCullough of Napanee, foundered between Duck Island and Long Point on Tuesday night during the gale, when en route from Oswego to to Napanee with coal, and that all aboard were lost.

Those on board the vessel were Capt. Johnston McCullough and wife, David Hearns, William Hearns and wife, and "Jack" Johnson, a young negro, all of Napanee, and a Toronto man whose name is not known. William Hearns is a nephew of Mrs. McCullough.

The Jamieson has been engaged in the coal trade for many years, and was always regarded as a first-class boat. She was laid up at Napanee all last winter, and underwent extensive repairs.

The Jamieson loaded 334 gross tons of coal at the Delaware & Hudson elevator in Oswego, and cleared Tuesday afternoon for Napanee, the coal being consigned to Charles Stevens, coal merchant of that town, but since the time of her clearing nothing is known of her, and as no trace whatever up till the present can be found of the schooner it is feared that she went down.

The vessel cleared from Oswego in fine weather, but during Tuesday night it blew a hard gale. Under ordinary circumstances the schooner should have reached Napanee on Wednesday morning. Thursday morning inquiry was made at Brighton, where it was believed the vessel would go for shelter if in trouble, but the report given there was to the effect that the vessel had not been seen in that vicinity. As a result of this information the worst was feared.

The schooner Keewatin, en route from Oswego to Kingston, was in the upper gap, loaded with coal, and ran into the bay for shelter, followed by the schooner Julia B. Merrill, from Sodus Bay to Kingston. The latter vessel became unmanageable and rammed into the Keewatin and almost sent her to the bottom. The Keewatin reached Adolphustown, pumps being kept busy all the while. The Merrill, following the latter towed the vessel to Collins Bay, where the cargo of coal is to be relanded.

The tug Umbria, owned by Fahon Brothers, contractors, ran ashore near Carlton Island on her way from Cape Vincent to Kingston. The crew of four is safe.

No Trace of Noble.

DULUTH, Minn., May 1.—Though long stretches of beach were patrolled from daylight yesterday, no new wreckage from the lost steamer Benjamin Noble came ashore, nor were any bodies seen. The lake was placid and a warm sun shone on snow, twigs and small land wreckage left by the great storm that ended Wednesday.

Mariners are puzzled by the disappearance of the Noble, but their belief is that she attempted to reach Duluth harbor but with the red light on the south entrance pier out and the fog horn silent, she struck side-on against the termination of the sand bank that forms Park Point, upset and slid into deep water. The crew, probably inside because of the storm, must have been caught there.

All over-due-boats are accounted for to-day.

Steamer Fouls Lock.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 1.—The steamer Compton, owned by the Hall Forwarding Co. of Montreal, at six o'clock last night carried both head gates and one foot gate of lock 4 Welland Canal, completely blocking traffic.

LETS CABARETS GO ON.

Judge Warmly Denounces Commissioners For Their Action.

MONTREAL, May 1. — The fact that the judgment of the License Commission revoking the licenses of four restaurants where cabaret shows were held was published in the newspapers here before the cases were finally decided upon, figures as a reason that has caused Judge Charbonneau to quash the decision of the commissioners. The restaurants affected are the Regal, Parisian, Arbours and the Arlington, all of which have been denounced in the pulpits in the city.

His lordship commented rather bitterly on members of the bench who allowed themselves to be influenced by the public opinion of the moment and averred that such public opinion should play no part in influencing the decisions of a court of law.

Single Tax Colony In Trouble.

MOBILE, Ala., May 1.—A bill was filed here yesterday in Chancery Court, asking dissolution of the Fairhope Colony in Baldwin County, the principal experiment of the single tax in the United States.

Alexander J. Melville, a member and lessee of the corporation, is plaintiff.

The bill alleges that the corporation has failed "because the single tax theory never can be carried out in any jurisdiction where laws deny the essentials of the theory."

It also is charged that the moneys of the company are being expended for the benefit of only a portion of the tenants and members.

TO ATTACK TAMPICO.

Rebels Are Mobilizing Forces For Concentrated Assault.

EL PASO, Texas, May 1.—While Gen. Carranza has not replied officially to the proposition of the South American mediators for a federal-rebel armistice, his answer is said by officials here to be plainly forecast in orders promulgated yesterday for a concentrated attack on Tampico.

The federal gunboats and the land defences of Tampico has proved too big a task for the troops of Gens. Cabellero and Gonzales, and orders were issued yesterday for the mobilization of 12,000 troops from the States of Coahuila, Tamaulipas and Nieve Leon. It is reported also that Gen. Villa will lead the attack.

Rafael E. Musquis, a son-in-law of Gen. Carranza, and a leader of the Junta here, is among authorities for the declaration that the armistice in Northern Mexico is impossible.

It was rumored in connection with the proposal that acceptance of the proposition would have to carry with it some form of recognition of the belligerency of the rebels, but Gen. Carranza is said to have commented that he did not care to attain it in that way, as it was bound to come due time with the complete victory of his forces.

Gen. Villa was at Parral yesterday. It is learned that his recent trip to Juares and his present journey were on business matters connected with raising revenue. The United States is said to have become very rigid in its demands for the protection of all foreign interests in Mexico, thereby embarrassing the process of raising funds by war taxes and confiscation.

American Officer Slays Himself.

LONDON, May 1.—A man about 60 years of age, who described himself as Major Henry C. Fitzgerald, an American, and believed to have been formerly paymaster on the staff of Gen. Merritt in the Philippines, was found shot in the Charing Cross Hotel yesterday. He died from his wound after he had been conveyed to a hospital.

The police authorities are of the opinion that the man committed suicide.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

"Arteriosclerosis."

Hardening of the arteries, as the Greek term means, is one of the processes of growing old. A man is as old as his arteries, and some men are much older than others at the same years. Arteries are not merely tubes that carry blood under pressure from the heart, but living channels which themselves react to changes in the human body, and by degenerating lose their elasticity and so interfere with the circulation. Vitality soon ebbs when the blood current is hampered, and every organ suffers. It is the whole of life that must be regulated. Overworking, but, above all, overworrying, overeating, overdrinking of stimulants—all contribute to the wearing out process eventually seen in arterial degeneration. But the crux of the problem is the individual element, for what constitutes excess for one man in many of these ways seems to leave others quite unaffected. The prevention of arteriosclerosis is the adaptation of the individual to his nature, his work and his play so as to obtain the longest life for the human machine that he gets by heredity from his special family strain.

Puts Boys on Farm.

Since the beginning of 1913 the State of Victoria, Australia, has taken 1,850 boys between sixteen and twenty years of age from England. All these boys have been granted steamship passages at less than half the minimum fare, which is $67.60, and they have been given a Government guaranty of farm work immediately upon landing in Melbourne. Hitherto both Australia and Canada have been following the policy of trying to take only experienced British farm workers for the agricultural work of the Dominions. Australia now takes any healthy boy of good character of all classes and calling and guarantees to place him with a good farmer at $1.82 to $3.65 a week, according to efficiency, in addition to board and lodging.

Gruesome Relic of Ashanti.

Lt.-Gen. Sir R. S. S. Baden-Powell has given to the museum of the Royal United Service Institution in Whitehall a very interesting, if rather gruesome, relic of the Ashanti expedition of 1896. It is the brass bowl used to receive the heads of the unfortunate victims of King Prempeh. The bowl, which resembles an ordinary bathtub in appearance and size, is about five feet in diameter. On the rim are four small lions, rather cleverly modelled, and a number of knobs, evidently intended as an ornamentation. Therr is a gap in the continuity of the series of knobs to allow a space to the victim to insert his neck preparatory to the execution.

An Unconscious Toast.

Lord Clyde one day after dinner asked a chaplain to one of the regiments in India for a toast, who, after considering some time, at length exclaimed with great simplicity:

"Alas and alack a day! What can I give?"

"Nothing better," replied his lordship. "Come, gentlemen; we'll give a bumper to the parson's toast, 'A lass and a lac a day'."

A lac means 100,000 rupees, or $25,000, which is certainly an income to make one happy.—London Chronicle.

Increase for Workmen.

All married workmen on the Duke of Devonshire's Chatsworth estate who are in receipt of less wages than twenty-three shillings a week are to have an advance of one shilling a week.

Most Wonderful Clock.

The most wonderful clock in the world is in St. Petersburg. It has ninety-five faces. It indicates simultaneously the time of day at thirty points on the earth's surface, besides the movement of the earth around the sun, the phases of the moon, the signs of the zodiac, the passage over the meridian of more than fifty stars of the northern hemisphere, and the date according to the Gregorian, Greek, Mussulman and Hebrew calendars. It took two years to put the works together.

Sensitive.

"She's getting rather plump."

"Yes, but don't you dare to tell her so. She nearly sued her husband for a divorce on account of her plumpness."

"Why, he isn't to blame."

"No, but she heard that he was complaining that he had an elephant upon his hands, and she thought he meant her, and he only meant a house he was trying to rent."

Louis of the Oysters.

Louis des huitres (Louis of the oysters) was the nickname given to Louis XVIII. of France because he lived in high style and especially enjoyed oysters. In French this nickname is a fairly good one, as his official name was Louis dix-huit (the eighteenth), which sounds very much like des huitres.

ROSEBERY ON LITERATURE.

Reading Is the Salvation of Many a Busy Man.

I want to recommend literature to you as an infinite refreshment and resource in the avocations of life. You may think it will be only leaving one fatigue for another, but I venture to assure you that it is not so. One great example is worth a ton of precept, and I will give you the example of Lord Liverpool, who for fifteen years or thereabouts was Prime Minister of this country, a sufficient onerous position at the best of times — and probably less enviable than any position that you are destined to occupy.

Lord Liverpool, as I say, was Prime Minister for fifteen years. He was harrassed and he was torn by Canning and Eldons and all sorts of colleagues, as many Prime Ministers are apt to be, and he had a very arduous time of it.

But what he said was this — that the only secret by which he was enabled to go on through his arduous pilgrimage of fifteen years was his practice, regularly renewed and never omitted, of reading for half an hour or an hour before he went to bed in some branches of literature wholly unconnected with his political administrative pursuits. Now that was the experience of a hard-working man—there was no harder-worked man probably of his time—and I venture to recommend it to you.

My words may not come home to you at this moment when recreation may more probably take the form, and a very wise form too, of athletic pursuits. But even in these days of youth and bud and hope, when life is so large and easy comparatively before you, it would not be a bad plan to try the germ of a little literature, to begin the practice even to a limited extent, because, believe me, the time will come when you will become a little short of wind—when your legs won't carry you uphill quite swiftly as they do now, when they will even cease to feel very vigorous on the flat.

When that unfortunate period comes—depend upon it, it will come—you will find the want of some resource in the place of that football which knows you no more.

An instance of another Prime Minister came into my mind, the famous Sir Robert Walpole, who was Prime Minister for two and twenty years, longer than Lord Liverpool. Well, he was compelled to retire by a hostile vote of the House of Commons, and retired as an elderly man of past sixty to his country place, and there he found himself utterly wretched.

He had lost entirely the habit of reading for its own sake during his long twenty-two years of office, and he found himself, so to speak, on his beam ends without occupation, absolutely disconsolate, only able to look back repiningly to his past grandeur and power, and so lost all the comforts that his wiser successor had provided for himself.

I do not know that it will be an additional stimulus to impress my two examples upon you to remind you that Lord Liverpool, who read for an hour or half an hour every night before he went to bed, died in office, while Sir Robert Walpole, who had not acquired that habit, died out of office. I do urge you, now that you are members of the University of Glasgow and have to look beyond technical pursuits, from that point of view to begin the habit of reading, small it may be, reading for its own sake, however small a time you can give to it now.

A King's Criticism.

Perhaps the most candid criticism of a King's Speech" was one uttered by a King himself. There is that story of George III. who, leaving the Lords after opening Parliament, turned to his Lord Chancellor, with the remark, "Lord Chancellor, did I deliver the Speech well?" "Very well, indeed, sir," was the reply. "I am glad of that," said the King, "for there was nothing in it." George II., too, did not always feel himself bound to praise his Ministers' efforts. In 1756, for instance, when a spurious speech was circulated, he pleaded for mercy for the printers of it because, he said, he had compared the spurious with the real, and so far as he could understand either, he "infinitely preferred the former to his own."

The Order of Fools.

On Nov. 12, 1381, the Order of Fools was instituted by Adolphus, Count of Cleves. Members were not by any means idiots, however, for the word had a different meaning then. They were the prototype of our modern fraternal orders, doing a similarly benevolent work. Their insignia consisted of a mantle, upon the left shoulder of which was embroidered a jester, or fool, in cap and bells, yellow hose and silver vest. So these cheery, useful jokers had a bright, happy outlook upon life and met together to dispense the earnest of their healthful existence at stated intervals, the chief day of which was Nov. 12.

For the Boy's Sake.

"I want my son to enjoy his boyhood, because he will be a child only once."

"That's all well enough, but there's no use in making oneself a slave to one's children."

"I don't make myself a slave to one's children. I find my greatest enjoyment in giving them pleasure."

"Then why did you kick so strenuously when your boy asked you for a dime to pay his way into the picture show?"

"Sh-sh! I don't want him to overhear. I know he'd be sorry if he spent the money to see that show. I was there myself this afternoon."

Both Commanders Perished.

A memorable sea fight in the war of 1812 was the battle between the American ship Enterprise, 16 guns and 108 men, and the British Boxer, 14 guns and 100 men. The Enterprise was commanded by Lieutenant Burrows and the Boxer by Captain Blythe. The battle occurred Sept. 4, 1812, in the bay not far from Portland, Me., and resulted in the capture of the Boxer, both commanders being killed. The two vessels were taken into Portland on the 7th of September and anchored off shore. The coffined bodies of the two commanders were rowed ashore by sailors of both ships and after public funeral services were buried side by side in the village cemetery. Longfellow, then a lad of five years old and living in Portland, recalls the event in his poem "My Lost Youth," written during a visit to Portland in 1846, in which he says:

I remember the sea fight far away—
How it thundered o'er the tide!—
And the dead captains, as they lay
In their graves, o'erlooking the tranquil bay,
Where they in battle died.

Work While They Sleep.

"They call the Mexican Indians lazy," said a traveler, "but the Mexican Indian is the only man I've ever seen who works while he sleeps.

"In the interior of Mexico one balmy January afternoon I came upon an Indian hut romantically situated beside a stream. A hammock of native grass was swung across a narrow branch of the stream, an Indian slept in the hammock, and a string, tied to his foot, dangled in the water.

"As I approached, the string tightened with a jerk. The Indian awoke. He seized the string and hauled it in. There was a fish of three pounds' weight on the end of it.

"'Here you are, Mercedes!' shouted the Indian.

"His brown wife came and removed the fish. She rebaited the hook. Then the Indian, lying back in the hammock again resumed his sleep angling act.

"'Work while you sleep—I've never seen it done except in Mexico among the supposedly lazy Indians."—Exchange.

Bedouin Thief Trackers.

A curious profession among the Bedouins is that of the "thief trackers." Being without paddocks or stables and their animals always more or less at liberty, theft of stock would appear to be an easy and frequent matter. Each tribe, however, has its little company of "trackers," and it would be either a bold or an ignorant man indeed who ventured to interfere with an Arab's live stock. There was one instance in which a camel stolen from a camp near Ismailia was, after weeks of labor, successfully tracked to the Sudan, where the beast was recaptured and summary vengeance wreaked upon the robbers. Selected for natural ability and trained from boyhood to discriminate between each animal's footprint, this faculty becomes so highly developed that a particular horse's or camel's trail is unerringly picked up from among the thousands of impressions on the dusty highway.

A PIONEER OF EMPIRE

CHALMERS VIRTUALLY FOUNDED BRITISH NEW GUINEA.

Scottish Missionary, Who With Nothing But His Courage and Faith In His Work, Went Among Cannibals and Stayed There More Than a Score of Years—Gave His Life For the Cause.

"Of the many gallant men," the late Lord Shaftesbury once said, "who have done heroes' work as Scouts of Empire, I know none who bore a braver heart through more perils than James Chalmers, who was the pioneer and virtual founder of British New Guinea."

If ever a man was born for adventure it was surely this son of an Aberdeen stonemason, who was cradled one August day, in 1841, in an obscure fishing village on Loch Fyne; and who seems to have imbibed a passion for roaming with the first breaths of sea-air he drew.

Before he had entered his 'teens, James Chalmers had made a local hero of himself by saving two lives at great risk to his own, and was known as the most fearless lad in the district. It was an unkind fate that condemned him for a few years to a stool in a solicitor's office at Inveray; and it was a glad day when emancipation came, and, after three years' training, he was sent away to the far South Seas as a missionary to Raratonga, a voyage on which he had his fill of adventure. Shortly after leaving Sydney his ship struck an uncharted reef, and for three weeks, until Sydney was reached again, it was a thrilling race with death.

When the John Williams set sail again, her damage repaired, she was driven, a helpless wreck, on the rocky coast of the Savage Island; and Chalmers and his fellow-passengers narrowly escaped with their lives in a whaleboat. Arrived at last, after such perils, at Raratonga, Chalmers was destined to spend several years in the South Sea Island before at last the long-cherished desire of his heart was realized, and he was sent to the most dangerous missionary work in the world, among the cannibals of New Guinea, where, with his wife, he arrived in the summer of 1871.

Here, indeed, was a fine field for a man of lion-heart — the only white man in an island nearly three times as large as the United Kingdom, peopled by the fiercest of savages, whose chief passions were murder and cannibalism. But to James Chalmers danger was the very breath of life, and without a tremor he greeted the dusky crowds, wearing necklaces of human bones, which thronged the beach at his coming and thankfully made his quarters in a portion of their chief's house.

At any moment he knew that his life might be in danger; and indeed the peril was very near, for he was scarcely awake on the following morning when the house was surrounded by excited natives, and a gigantic savage, wearing a human jawbone suspended from his neck, demanded gifts for them all — tomahawks, knives, or beads, of which a large quantity had been brought ashore. To demand and threats alike, however, the stout-hearted Scotsman presented a granite front. "No," he replied. "I will give nothing to men who carry arms," and so resolute was his attitude that at last the crowd slung muttering away.

The cannibals had already learned to respect the missionary who had so confidently trusted his life to them. One by one they came to him with friendly overtures, and were genuinely grieved when he declined their invitation to join them in their feasts, or politely refused the offerings they brought of cooked human flesh.

But to these days of growing security there soon came a variant of grave peril. Chalmers had transferred a few of his trunks for safety to a lugger moored in the bay; the natives had made a raid on the boat with an eye to booty, and in the fight that ensued one of them had been killed. This was an outrage which must be wiped out in blood, and within an hour the mission house, which Chalmers had now built and into which he had moved, was surrounded by a dense mob, brandishing spears and clamoring for the lives of the white man and his wife.

"Escape if you can," said a friendly native. "If you do not they will murder you." But both Chalmers and his wife refused to budge an inch. During the long night they awaited the end, while the besiegers, their numbers now grown to thousands, filled the air with blood-curdling cries and the blasts of war horns. When at last dawn came, Chalmers showed himself and offered compensation for the slain man's life, exhibiting parcels of tomahawks, cloth and beads; but his offers were greeted with cries of derision. "Give us more, much more," their leader cried "or we will kill you now."

"You may kill us if you like," said the undaunted missionary, "but at any rate we shall die fighting." And, pointing his musket at the mob, he dared them to "come on." "The first," he shouted, "who moves a step forward is a dead man." At the sight of the pointed gun and the grim resolute face behind it a silence fell on the crowd for they knew the deadliness of the fire-weapon; then one after another they began to slink away; and to the missionary's amazement, within a few minutes he was facing an empty space.

Not until Chalmers had spent twenty-one years in New Guinea did he enjoy the well-earned luxury of a holiday-trip home; and within a year he was back again among his flock, very many of whom had now abandoned cannibalism and were leading reformed lives.

In 1901 his end came suddenly and tragically when on a visit to a bloodthirsty tribe he was slain and his body eaten by the cannibals.

If a man is square it is easy to put up with his sharp corners.

THE MAN WITH THE WOODEN LEG

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

Of the six passengers who alighted from the stagecoach at the Acorn inn, in Blissfield, one April evening, one was a man with a wooden leg. The stranger registered as John Gordon of Chicago, and, when he gave out that he might remain in Blissfield for several weeks, everybody wondered what business could have brought him there. After three or four days it leaked out that the man was a government agent, who had come to watch the men who had been stealing timber off certain lands. That gave him increased respect, and yet even I, a schoolboy, noticing the man's steel gray eyes, firm set jaw and thin lips, could have told that he was cruel, if not bad hearted.

He had lost his left leg at the knee, and the substitute was not a cork leg, but a crotch and a stick—the plainest and cheapest sort of an affair. His dress was also very plain, his speech that of the common order.

"The man with the wooden leg," as he came to be generally spoken of, had been in town about a week when one of the leading merchants was robbed of about a thousand dollars in cash. The local constable did a great deal of talking, but struck no clew, and in his desperation he asked Gordon to assist him, believing no doubt that a government officer of any sort ought to be more or less posted in detective work. Gordon seemed to think the matter over for awhile and then replied:

"The case is as plain as the nose on your face. The merchant's son took the money, and after this thing quiets down he will go off to St. Louis to have a good time. I'd stake my life he's got every dollar of the missing cash securely hidden away somewhere."

Ten or twelve days passed, and then came a terrible tragedy.

The richest man in Blissfield was Squire Higgins. He owned the woolen mills, a store and several houses and had money to lend. He was a widower, but lived with his son and wife. His room was on the ground floor, while all others slept upstairs. He had no safe, but kept his money in a tin box on a shelf in a closet. He had a bank account over at Medina, ten miles away, but often had $1,000 or more in the house. One evening when the others were ready to go to bed he announced that he had some business to attend to and was seated at his desk in the sitting room when the others retired. About midnight the daughter-in-law heard a fall and a groan downstairs, and when her husband went down to investigate the squire was found dead on the floor, having been stabbed no less than five times in the body.

House and grounds were searched, but the murderer had escaped, and he had also taken with him the cash box, which contained about $700.

Gordon seemed to take a lively interest in the murder. No outside help would have been called in and the murderer might have gone his way but for the arrival of another stranger. He was, as it happened, a first class detective, who was just then employed in tracing a missing man. The crime was a day old when he reached Blissfield. He heard all the particulars from the loungers at the inn and then volunteered to look the ground over.

This was a courtesy on his part which the sheriff could not refuse, and after supper he was taken to the house.

The tracks in the garden were still fresh when the detective took hold of the work, and in three minutes he had made up his mind to something. He had little to say to any of the men, explaining that he had not yet completed his investigations, but as he left the house to return to the inn, while I followed at a respectful distance, he turned down a quiet lane, beckoned me to follow, and when we were alone he lighted his pipe and asked:

"Boy, do you know any man in town who is lame in the left leg?"

I answered in the negative, but added that there was a man with a wooden leg at the inn. He at once began to question me about this man, not yet having seen him himself, and I told him all I knew and all I had heard. Of course he told me nothing in return, though I heard him chuckling to himself, and his face betrayed the fact that he was pleased about something. I acted as his guide to the jail, and when in the presence of the sheriff he said:

"I want you to go with me to overhaul the man with the wooden leg at the tavern."

The sheriff, detective and constable, with two or three other citizens, proceeded to the inn and to Gordon's room. He was cool and quiet and offered cigars all around, but those who were watching him saw him grow pale as the sheriff began by begging his pardon and hoped no offense would be taken, but would be let them look at his wooden leg.

Gordon faltered and bluffed and was reaching for his pistol under his pillow when the detective seized him. When they had him securely bound they unstrapped his wooden leg, and, lo, his left foot was there as right as any man's.

Yes, he was the man who had robbed the merchant and the postmaster, and he was also the murderer of Squire Higgins. On the evidence worked up by the detective in a couple of hours' time Gordon was tried, convicted and hanged, and every dollar of the stolen money went back to the rightful owners.

KITCHEN ECONOMICS.

How to Make Palatable and Nourishing Soups From Leftovers.

The question of economy in the kitchen is easiest solved by the good cook. The woman who knows little or nothing about cooking finds it very difficult to make ends meet at times, while the woman who is either a natural born cook or has been trained to cook beautifully can always serve a dinner, even if there is nothing but scraps in the house.

To the housewife whose only knowledge of cooking is how to broil and roast meat and boil and bake potatoes and a few other vegetables—to this woman scraps seem fit for nothing but the rubbish heap. The idea that these scraps may be used would probably never occur to her, while the suggestion that not only might they be used, but that they might be made quite delicious, would seem preposterous.

One way to save the leftovers is to make them into a good soup. When there is a good butcher's bone for a solid foundation a great many of the scraps can be put into the soup pot for flavoring. The bones left over from roasts of lambs, veal or chicken can be made into fine soups with the aid of the celery leaves and any odds and ends of vegetables which happen to be on hand. A carrot, a turnip, a few onions, peas, all may be thrown into the soup pot. They all add strength and flavor.

Patriotism in Hayti.

Hayti, which is now again in one of its perennial revolutions, breeds a spirit of sensitive patriotism unknown in other countries. Some years ago a general in the Haytian army ordered an artificial eye in Paris. The maker executed the order to the best of his ability; but the eye was returned from Port au Prince, with a letter complaining that "the eye you forwarded us is of a tint that resembles the Spanish flag. I am far too patriotic to wear any colors but those of my own country." After ascertaining from the Minister of Marine, the colors of the Haytian standard, a scarlet and green eye was despatched, and this met with approval.—London Daily Chronicle.

When People Walked.

It may safely be asserted that no Scottish member has walked from his constituency to Westminster when the British Parliament opened a few days ago, nor even undertaken the journey on horseback. In the eighteenth century, however, Mr. Macleay of Ury, who represented Kincardineshire, always walked the whole way to London to attend the Session, doing five miles a day with perfect ease. Lord Monboddo, too, always rode to town on horseback, disdaining carriages as effeminate, and George III. declared with perfect truth: "I ought to be proud of my Scottish subjects when my judges ride and my members of Parliament walk to the metropolis."

THE place was Clinton Hall, just off Grand street, in the heart of New York's big east side; the time, an evening not many weeks ago; the occasion, a presentation by a group of young people of three short plays never before seen in New York; the speaker, one of a crowd of young and old, from the neighborhood and from "uptown," who were pouring out of the hall into a narrow street alight with the torches of pushcarts and the flaring arc lights of the "movies."

"But how do they ever do it?" she was asked. "Where did they get the background and the training to make this possible? Why are they so different from all the other amateur players that one sees?"

Those who knew the answer smiled sympathetically, for they, too, had passed through a period of wonder the year before, or the year before that. This is the third season of public performances by these young people, and each year those of the audience who added to their curiosity a real interest in new dramatic ventures have gone to headquarters for enlightenment and have been rewarded with the interesting history of the Drama Club of the Henry Street Settlement.

The Misses Alice and Irene Lewisohn have been the guiding spirits of the settlement's dramatic work since its inception. From them one learns that the bill just witnessed is only the latest step in a programme of dramatic work which was started on its way some eight or nine years ago.

About 1905 or 1906, when the Misses Lewisohn were leaders of two of the settlement clubs, they saw that while the settlement offered many kinds of entertainment in its clubs, and valuable instruction in its classes, it lacked an adequate outlet for the imagination, sentiment and poetic feeling in the children and young people who each week passed through the doors of the settlement.

How could this creative poetry be let loose with advantage to themselves and to the neighborhood? How could it be provided with a means of expression and be made to contribute to the newer civilization a portion of that culture and aestheticism and those traditions of literature and of art which are the heritage of the older nations? Some sort of dramatic interpretation seemed the rational answer.

Of a cast of youngsters who have never acted before and on an audience of parents and friends usually amused to this sort of thing from their children one cannot suddenly evolve a full fledged drama. There must be first some simple form of entertainment, with singing and dancing and a little pantomime; then more pantomime; the next year, a few spoken lines, the following year more lines and finally the dialogue and action of a real play. Incidentally, the young children of the early casts grow up meanwhile, so that when the work arrives at its dramatic majority the comparatively few players required for this more difficult form can be selected from among the scores who have had preliminary training.

About eight years ago the Misses Lewisohn, with the aid of the younger children from the settlement classes, presented "Three Impressions of Spring," an interpretation in dance, pantomime and song of the spring myths and legends of Japan, India and Greece, on a temporary stage erected at one end of the gymnasium, the simple but suggestive scenery representing a garden with a background of latticework and green trees. When in danced wistaria blossoms, cherry blossoms and butterflies the garden became Japanese; when a flame altar was added, before which was performed a dance of spring offerings, the garden changed swiftly to India. Other early pantomimes were "A Fairy of the Holidays," "The Revolt of the Flowers," a musical fantasy, and "Snow White." Then came "Hiawatha," an arrangement of the American epic into which story were woven many Indian dances and monies.

This festival was so appealing as to warrant a revival three years later.

"Sleeping Beauty" was given not alone as a fairy legend but also as a midwinter pantomime, symbolic of the awakening that comes to all things after the winter snows. It, too, had to be revived. "The Discontented Daffodils" was a fairy story with a beautiful ballet and four changes of scene, which sounds pretentious until one learns how simply and economically it was managed.

Night time in a lonely glade was obtained by a deep blue curtain as a back drop, a tree in which perched an owl, a trickling brook shining in the moonlight, and the stage lights being turned low. Of course the construction of the brook from a piece of galvanized iron, a few feet of rubber hose and a wooden tub was a secret. Successively, a gypsy camp with a campfire and a trained bear, the exterior of a castle and the throne room within the castle were presented with similar commonplace materials.

In the costuming attention is paid to line and color rather than to rich materials or elaborate design. If the right color cannot be purchased the material is dyed. Yards of stuffs are dyed for each production solid colors, shaded ones and variegated effects. Under this sympathetic treatment common cottons, tarletans and cheesecloths become things of beauty.

An example of the efficiency of simple devices was provided in the pantomime based on three poems by Eugene Field called "The Shadow Garden of Shut-Eye Town." In successive scenes appeared the bedtime hours in nurseries of America, Holland and Japan. First the sleepy children and the mother singing lullabies, then the dream of each child as he or she falls asleep, then Dreamland itself, where all the children meet and play with fairies and pierrots and other delightful beings, who perform dances and ballets of their own kingdom, until the Spirits of Dawn, a band of dancing maidens, come to scatter them and to waken the children again.

The change in nurseries was accomplished by a single shifting of the screens that formed the box set and by the addition of a few characteristic properties or furnishings. Curtains of flowered cretonne over the window, a rocking horse in the middle of the floor and a little white enameled bed indicated the American nursery. [illegible] lattice window, pots of tulips on the window ledge and a cradle shaped like an enormous wooden shoe signified Holland. A lighted lantern, a bundle of flowers and a vase, which the child adjusted into a flower arrangement for the sleepy little girl to admire before she curled up in the characteristic bed of cushions and rugs laid upon the floor, symbolized Japan.

The deep blue curtain as a back drop again provided an effective sky, and [illegible] the floor of the stage ran a green hedge made of cedar boughs with a latticed [illegible] arbor in the middle, through which entered the fairies in filmy skirts and gauzy wings to dance an exquisite ballet. After them came the pierrots in characteristic black and white, each carrying aloft on a slender rod a lighted lantern of pumpkin shape and color, and, last, the Dawn Maidens in clinging draperies of shell pink and rose, playing on cymbals and triangles as they dance the new day in and put the dream folk to flight.

Festivals of a more serious nature—the cycle of Hebrew ritual festivals, so far three in number—are significant as attempting to interpret the ancient symbols once so full of meaning. Miriam, or Passover Festival, portrayed through dance and ancient chants the incident "and Miriam took a timbrel in her hand and all the maidens went out after her with timbrels and with dances." Through her dance Miriam prophesies in pantomime the victory of the Israelites over the many tribes that beset and hindered them during their wanderings and their ultimate finding of the Promised Land.

The Chanukah, or Midwinter Festival, celebrated in connection with Christmas, more [illegible] pagan historical and legendary lore as well as parts of the ritual service still used in the synagogues and told the story that all nations and all religions know in one form or another, clothed in some legend or tradition, the story of the birth and mystery of Light, symbolized the world over by the altar flame, the Yule log, the lighted Christmas tree, the Chinese lantern or the Chakunah lamp. The Hebrew harvest feast, called the Feast of Tabernacles, was celebrated in connection with the American Thanksgiving. But instead of limiting the thanksgiving to the first harvest reaped by the white man in America it was extended to the universal harvest.

The ritual chants and synagogal melodies for these festivals were gathered by the Misses Lewisohn.

The dances were arranged with the idea of symbolic interpretation, and symbolism was again the keynote in costuming, coloring and stage settings. The settings for these ritual festivals have been kept even simpler than for the others—only a background of blue covered lattice, natural greens and branches

The Chanukah employed a stone altar, effectively backed by hemlocks, before which a pagan sun dance was performed, and in the Feast of Tabernacles, or thanksgiving, corn, wheat, pumpkins and other harvest fruits were used in sheaves and mounds. With their minor chants and rhythmic motions and symbolic colors these festivals have made a strong appeal to the more serious emotions of both old and young.

Girls in the sewing classes make the costumes and flowers, the boys make the scenery and so far as possible furniture and properties; a festival choral class meets once a week for general voice training under an expert director and for special practice in the songs of the piece then under rehearsal, and three festival dancing classes, under the personal direction of Miss Irene Lewisohn, meet once a week for training in classic technique, folk, national and interpretive dancing and pantomime. In these classes are mapped out, rehearsed and perfected such ballets as the Water Dance and the Dance of Wood Sprites in the pantomime of "Sleeping Beauty" and the imperial ballet of "The Discontented Daffodils," with its premières danseuses, its simulation of toe dancing, to the music of Coppelia, and its charming poses and evolutions. Here, too, are taught the ceremonies of the ritual festivals.

The present dramatic club was recruited from the festival classes, the pantomimes and the dramatic class. The producing staff was increased from two to five, the Misses Lewisohn being joined by two young women of some professional experience, Miss Helen Arthur and Miss Agnes Morgan, and by the well known actress Mrs. Le Moyne.

The play, chosen by the five producers, is read aloud to the club. Competitive readings are then held, extending over a period of three or four weeks. Seated around a large table in the dining room of the settlement, the young people take turns in reading aloud, under correction and criticism from the producers.

The first play, given at Clinton Hall in 1912, was "The Shepherd," a serious revolutionary drama of Russian peasant life, never before produced in New York. Presented in a Russian neighborhood, by the sons and daughters of Russians, many of them revolutionists, it made a stirring impression upon its audience. Spirited Russian folk dances enlivened one scene and bright hues and handsome embroideries of the Russian costume added touches of color to the sombre yet romantic story. The proceeds of three out of the four performances were sent to the Friends of Russian Freedom.

The production of these plays in the Henry Street Settlement shows the variety of the répertoire and the versatility of the young actors and lends color to the hope of the Misses Lewisohn that American dramatists writing for the professional stage, especially the younger men and women who are still struggling for recognition, may be interested to let the dramatic club perform their plays and even to write plays especially for them. Because of the low admission charge, the club can pay only small royalties, but it can promise an intelligent, sympathetic, though simple, production, adequate rehearsing, good English on the part of the players, and a professional standard of excellence in all departments. Also, the emphasis is put on the play itself, never on the exploitation of any player; everything is subordinated to the beauty of the whole, to the desire to produce as perfect a piece of work as is possible in the circumstances.

Next year the club hopes to make more than one production, perhaps as many as three in the course of the winter, and some day to have a stage of its own where changes of set may be tested as well as apparent, and where the choice of play need no longer be limited to those requiring only "interiors" and where the festivals by the younger children, now a regular feature of the year's dramatic programme, may receive a more spacious mounting. Performing in a little theatre of their own, these companies of young players should make a strong appeal to a wider audience than they have yet reached, not only on their own east side but also farther uptown.

AUCTION BRIDGE By PROSPERO

I am sorry for the mix-up in type and general mischief that occurred in my last article.

The test hand given as No. 7 was the same hand as No. 1, under discussion, and the play at minus 4 by YZ refers to it. The contract stands that YZ do not take but three (or less) tricks.

The result of the game showed but 3 tricks for YZ, who would also mark for 3 aces above the line, the aces held by AB inversely.

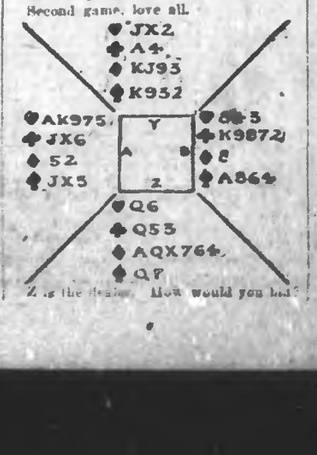
In Query No. 2 the score should have been: AB, one game in; second game, love all. Z is the dealer and said trains 1; A by. What should Y do on following hand:

Hearts—Q, X, 9, 4.
Clubs—A, Q, 5.
Diamonds—A, J.
Spades—A, 9, 8, 7.

No game for trumps in diagram at 8, but making under hearts.

Test Hand No. 8.

Score:—AB one game in, and 150 ahead in penalties.
Second game, love all.



Z is the dealer. How would you bid?

OLD IRELAND'S FINEST

ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY A MAGNIFICENT FORCE.

Police Upon Whom Will Fall the Main Task of Quelling Possible Disturbances in Ireland If Home Rule Becomes Law, Has Splendid Record Both For Honesty and For Courage Against Heavy Odds.

The Royal Irish Constabulary always looms large in the life of the Irish people. And, in the far from improbable event of grave civil disorder supervening if the Home Rule bill passes into law, it is on this force that (in the first instance, at any rate), will devolve the duty of quelling it. As regards its own organization, the Royal Irish Constabulary will not itself be immediately affected by the passage into law of the Home Rule bill. For that measure specially provides that for the first six years the force shall be excluded from the sphere of the new Irish Parliament, but shall, during that period, maintain its present status under the jurisdiction of the Imperial Parliament.

There is no need to dilate on the magnificent physique of the R. I. C., as the force is called. Many competent judges maintain that, physically, it is the finest police force in the world. The present strength of the R. I. C. stands at somewhere around eleven thousand men of all ranks. At the head is the Inspector-General, Sir Neville Chamberlain, K.C.B. Under him there is a Deputy Inspector-General, three Assistant Inspector-Generals, thirty-six county inspectors, 196 district inspectors, 235 head constables, and the great mass of men consisting of sergeants, acting sergeants and constables. Members of the force hold medals for pretty nearly every kind of service for which such distinctions are granted—from the Zulu, Afghan, Egyptian, and South African wars to saving lives at sea. The band of the R. I. C. is well known as one of the finest in the United Kingdom.

Admirable as is the physique of the men of the R. I. C., their splendid discipline is at least equally noteworthy in a country where courage, tact, and imperturbability are constantly called for on the part of the officers of the law. If the history of the force is, to a large extent, one of serious conflicts and collisions with the populace, the conduct of its members, at such times of stress, has been, on the whole, uniformly and traditionally fine—"The R. I. C. is your profession, make the best of it," is the advice constantly handed down by one generation to its successors. And, in truth, the discipline of the R. I. C. has, times without number, been tested as by fire. For the temperament of the Irish people, if as sweet, is, nevertheless, as wild as are their own purple hills. And people who love to go about with blackthorns in their hands, and an inherited disposition to hit a head whenever they see it, take a terrible lot of policing.

On the whole, the able and resolute manner in which the officers and men of the R. I. C. discharge the severe duties that are so often thrust upon them has not made them unpopular with those of their compatriots with whom they have so often been brought into collision at times of disturbance. Indeed, they enjoy a curious kind of popularity—one that would, probably, be largely impossible in any other land where police are so often, by the nature of their position and the condition of the country, in conflict with popular sentiment. But the Irishman's generous nature is able to make large allowances for the exigencies of official duties. It should be pointed out that those of the police whose conduct has been so unfavorably commented on in the report of the recent commission appointed to enquire into the question of the police and the Dublin riots were not members of the R. I. C. For Dublin has its own distinct and separate metropolitan police force, while the jurisdiction of the R. I. C. extends over the whole of the country with the exception of the capital.

It was in the stormy days, so near and yet so far, of the troubled eighties, and by the manner in which it handled the Land War, that the R. I. C. "made itself"—by its forbearance quite as much as by its fortitude. The year 1880—with Gladstone, not yet a Home Ruler, in power—was the most troublous of all. In that year, the outrages, specially reported, numbered nearer three thousand than two, nearly a hundred and sixty persons received constant police protection, nearly twelve hundred were protected by patrols, during the first six months seventeen hundred families were evicted, and two hundred meetings of the Land League were held. One need know but little of either Ireland, or the police work in it, to realize the appalling volume of special work which figures such as these represent.

During the eighties, at first Mr. Gladstone's Government and then Lord Salisbury's, were constantly adding fresh duties to the normal ones of the R. I. C. But, with it all, what was little less than a revolution was taking place in Ireland. And that it was so largely a bloodless one is a fact which will stand to the lasting credit of a police force, drawn from the Irish people themselves, which was entrusted with powers that were quite extraordinary. Ameliorative legislation, passed by both Liberals and Unionists—particularly by the latter as regards the semi-eternal land question—had its due results, in a lessening of popular turbulence, during the nineties and the years which the present century has so far seen.

THE ROKEBY VENUS.

Picture Which Was Slashed Has an Interesting History.

The slashing of the Rokeby Venus by an English suffragette centres world interest upon this wonderful painting.

The Rokeby Venus took its name from Rokeby Hall, in Yorkshire, Eng., where it hung for many years before it was brought to London. The painting shows Venus half reclining before a mirror. At the time the painting was brought to the National Gallery in London, about seven years ago, several Americans tried to buy it. The National Gallery had to pay what was then considered an enormous sum to retain the painting in England.

In 1906 the picture was sold under an order of the Court of Chancery for $150,000 to Messrs. Agnew & Sons, and an outcry was started that America was after the Velasquez. A sum of $225,000 was raised by public subscription and the painting was obtained for the National Gallery. When, in April, 1910, a doubt as to its genuineness was set on foot by a critics in The Morning Post, Lord Balcarres, who had charge of the fund, announced that he had a standing offer from an art collector to buy the picture for $275,000. The genuineness of the masterpiece was soon afterward established to the satisfaction of all art critics.

The painting is one of the very few works of Velasquez which depict the nude human figure. The Spanish inquisition prescribed a fine of 1,500 ducts, excommunication and a year's exile for any one who painted an "immodest picture." In the later years of his life Velasquez painted two pictures of the woman depicted in this painting. One of them was called "Venus and Adonis" and the other "Psyche and Cupid." Both were listed among the pictures in the Alcazar at Madrid in 1666, 1686 and 1700 and then disappeared.

Charles B. Curtis in his book "Velasquez and Murillo" suggests that both paintings were in the palace at Madrid when it was burned in 1734, that "Venus and Adonis" was destroyed and that "Psyche and Cupid" survived and was the painting which eventually fell into the hands of Robert Morritt of Rokeby Park, in Yorkshire, and came to be known as the Rokeby "Venus." There is a black spot near the head of Cupid which has been attributed to scorching in the fire.

Mr. Morritt bought the picture for $2,500 on the recommendation of Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Miss May Richardson, the suffragette who mutilated the valuable canvas, was arrested on July 4 last for dropping a petition in the lap of King George while he was driving through Bristol. She served three months for that. The moment she was released she went to Hampton and was arrested there with Miss Rachel Pearce, charged with setting fire to the former home of Chancellor Tristram. Miss Richardson was sentenced to jail for four months, but would take no food and was set free when physicians said she had appendicitis.

Comedy of Imported Arms.

The management of a company playing "The Bohemian Girl" in Dublin have received the following letter:—

Gentlemen,—A package containing two swords has arrived at Kingstown, addressed to you. Will you be good enough to let me know for whom and for what purpose the swords are intended?

The swords and some soldiers' uniforms were ordered by the company from England, but only one uniform got past the customs official at Kingstown, the others and the swords being held up under the royal proclamation as warlike accoutrements. Local members of the Imperial Yeomanry came to the rescue and lent uniforms, or the opera would have had to be postponed.

The First "Coin Sweater."

"Coin sweating," which so often figures in the Old Bailey calendar, is a very, very old crime. More than six centuries before Christ there was a coin sweater, one Alexander of Byzantium. He was chief officer of the public treasury and he amassed an immense and sudden fortune by "clipping" the money in so skilful a manner that his frauds could only be discovered by weighing. The Byzantines gave him the nickname of "the File" from his making such dextrous use of that tool, whence probably comes the modern term of "file" applied in England to thieves, pickpockets and cunning, hard-headed scoundrels.—Pearson's Weekly.

Liverpool's Land Values.

Bootle's gigantic neighbor, Liverpool, affords an interesting example of the increase of land values in the course of a few centuries. At one time the lordship of the manor of Liverpool and the right to all customs, anchorage dues, etc., on the Mersey belonged to the crown, and were made over to the City of London in discharge of certain loans. The City Fathers of that day, however, did not realize the value of the investment, and their rights—now worth millions—were disposed of to Lord Marybank for $2,250.

Winning a Thousand.

Some years ago a jewelry firm in New York sent the late J. P. Morgan a fine pearl, offering it to him for $5,000. This Mr. Morgan decided to purchase, and two checks were made out—one for $5,000 and the other for $4,000. He then removed the pearl from its box and, having substituted for it the $5,000 check, resealed the package. Mr. Morgan's clerk was next dispatched to the jeweler's with the sealed box and a note containing the check for $4,000, stating that Mr. Morgan would be pleased to purchase the pearl if they would be satisfied with the check. The unsuspecting jewelers—in ignorance, of course, of what the sealed package now contained—closed with the astute financier's offer. And the box in which the $5,000 check serenely reposed was returned to Mr. Morgan unopened!

GOING TO THE HYENA.

The Kikuyu Native Has a Picturesque Phrase For Death.

A good deal of attention has been directed of late towards the district of Kikuyu in Africa. The conference there between Christians of several denominations promises to have memorable results. At any rate, great interest has been aroused in a part of the world hitherto almost unknown to the majority of people.

Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainsford, a Lancashire, Eng., man, well known in Canada, has just returned from that very district, with a mind full of information regarding its inhabitants.

Dr. Rainsford says: "The Kikuyu natives and other tribes who live in that part of Equatorial Africa have not even a rudimentary idea of God or of spirit—no glimmering belief in any hereafter is theirs.

"They are, or have been for ages, a crushed people, tyrannized over by stronger tribes, who robbed them of their cattle and stole their women. Cut off from all advancing races, they have remained nearer the life of the monkey than have, so far as we know, any other numerous people.

"Religion, save the terror and tyranny of the witch doctor, does not exist among them. He instances one custom of the Kikuyu: A superstition forbids these people to allow any one to die inside the frail mud and reed hut. If there is death in the hut, it must be abandoned or pulled down. Parents then will take their children, children will take their parents out of these huts and leave them in the brush outside, where very shortly and very completely, they are eaten, often while still living, by the hyenas.

"And this to save the small trouble of building a new hut. Ask a Kikuyu if some one of his fellows, whom you knew, is alive, and he will says: 'No, he has gone to the Ieci' (i.e., hyena). That is their way of speaking of death."

Good Boots.

Talking about a shortage of food at one period during his last expedition, Sir Ernest Shackleton tells an amusing story of one of his companions. On his return to England his bootmaker met him and asked:—

"How did you find those boots I made for you?"

"Best I ever tasted!" was the prompt reply.

EFFECTIVE SPRING TONIC OVERCAME WEAKNESS

System Was All Run Down---Could Not Attend to Work ---Lasting Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The cold, changeable Canadian winter is a severe strain on all who are not in robust health. This is proved by the many deaths, particularly of aged people, which occur about March, and the very many people who find themselves weak and run down in the Spring.

The overeating of heavy foods and living in stuffy rooms, where the air is laden with poisons, leave the blood impure in the spring. You must have something to restore vigour, and, as stated in this letter, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most effective spring tonic.

If you have any doubt on this point just read the letters that are appearing daily in this paper from persons who have proved the efficiency of this great food cure. No medicine ever aroused so much enthusiasm in those who have used it.

Mr. A. Sicard, Dana, Sask., writes: "When I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my system was so much run down that I was weak and exhausted, and could not attend to my work. The effect of the Nerve Food was almost like magic, for in a few days the weakness wore away, and I found strength and vigour being restored to the body. That cure was effected three years ago, but I generally use the Nerve Food in the Spring as I can find no treatment so effective as a spring tonic."

You can avoid the headaches, the depression, the indigestion and tired, wornout feelings this spring if you begin at once the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great prescription enriches the blood, and there is no germicide so effective as pure, rich blood. Fifty cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

LIKE EVANGELINE'S SEARCH.

Missionary Finds Wife After Three Year Funt In Wilds of China.

After wandering for three years through the wildest parts of central China in search of his wife and child, Dr. George Hadden, a missionary from Ireland, tells the story of his adventures. The wife and baby were found in Hong Kong.

In his hunt he covered 10,000 miles, traversed Hunan province to the border of Tibet, was pelted with clods by 2,000 semi-barbarous Chinese at Kueiyangchow and had many thrilling escapes from death.

The Haddens were stationed at the mission of Yung Chow Fu, where Dr. Hadden was a missionary for seven years. They were separated in March, 1910, by the Shang Sha riots on the Yang river, a tributary to the Yang Tse river. Mrs. Hadden was carried to Hang How, where her child was born on St. Patrick's Day. Dr. Hadden was carried up the river, losing knowledge of his wife's whereabouts.

He wrote many letters, none of which brought him news of his wife, and, having no other method of travel, he walked from place to place through the great interior of the country.

When making his way across the plowed fields of Kueiyangchow the half-civilized natives regarded him as a devil in flesh and blood and followed him 2,000 strong. He felt to run would be to invite destruction, so he walked calmly before the excited horde, but he admitted he walked "rather fast."

After three years of travel he finally got back to his old station in Yung Chow Fu and there learned that his wife was in Hong Kong, where he joined her, and for the first time saw his boy, who had been named Patrick by Mrs. Hadden because he was born March 17. They went to Canton and are now going to their home in Ireland on leave of absence.

Queer Feathers.

Baron Kenyon, at one time Lord Chief Justice of England, loved to hear himself talk, and his summings up were at times extraordinary examples of flamboyant speech. Here is a specimen taken from "Law and Laughter":

"Addressing a butler convicted of stealing his master's wine, Lord Kenyon once said:

"'Prisoner at the bar, you stand convicted on the most conclusive evidence of a crime of inexpressible atrocity—a crime that defiles the sacred springs of domestic confidence and is calculated to strike alarm into the breast of every Englishman who invest largely in the choice vintages of southern Europe. Like the serpent of old you have stung the hand of your protector. Fortunate in having a generous employer you might without discovery have continued to supply your wretched wife and children with the comforts of sufficient prosperity and even with some of the luxuries of affluence, but, dead to every claim of natural affection and blind to your own real interest, you burst through all the restraints of religion and morality and have for many years been feathering your nest with your master's bottles.'"

The Army's Postoffice.

One of the most picturesque branches of H. M. postoffice is the Army Postoffice Corps, which deals with the correspondence of the British troops in the field. The Army Postoffice Corps is a volunteer organization, and it only mobilized in war time and occasionally for manoeuvres. It consists of members of the 8th City of London Regiment (Postoffice Rifles), composed entirely of postal servants, specially transferred to the Army Reserve. The duties of the army postoffice are to receive, sort, and distribute correspondence, to sell stamps, stationery, and postal orders, and to perform all the main functions of a postoffice. The Army Postoffice Corps was created in 1882 at the time of the first Egyptian War, and served with distinction through that and the succeeding campaign in 1884-5.—Ripon Observer.

Shot By Picket.

Shot in error, Ernest Prescher, a private in the Transvaal Scottish, has died in hospital at Johannesburg. Prescher was wounded in the neck as he was patrolling the railway near Denver Station. The shot was fired from a picket stationed in a plantation near the line. The dead man was wearing a black mackintosh instead of a military coat. As he stepped into the culvert for the passage of a train, it is surmised that he did not hear the challenges owing to the noise of the train and a mine battery in the vicinity. The picket had been looking for the man who had laid the dynamite on the railway.

New Year in Japan.

In Japan the New Year is welcomed with far more zest than in this country. One is expected to arise with the sun and don new clothes to meet the auspicious morning. Then he worships, performs obeisance to the spirits of his ancestors and pays homage to all relatives older than himself. No ordinary viands are consumed at breakfast. On every tray, covered with evergreen leaves and supporting a rice dumpling, are placed a lobster, oranges, persimmons, chestnuts, dried sardines and herring roe, all these dishes possessing allegorical meanings. This meal is the start of the festivities, which in olden times were continued for many days, business being almost entirely suspended. The idea of celebrating New Year's in such a manner is that the year is going to be the way it is started. Smile on New Year's day and you will smile throughout the year. Complain on New Year's day and you will complain all the year round. Weigh your anchor with merry song of heart and it will be smooth sailing all through the voyage. Begin right and you are bound to finish right. That is the Japanese idea of New Year's celebration.—Bulletin of the Japan Society.

Mechanism of the Ear.

The human ear is a delicate piece of mechanism. That which we ordinarily designate as the "ear" is, after all, only the mere outer porch of a series of winding passages which lead from the world without to the world within. Certain of these passages are filled with liquid, besides having membranes stretched, like parchment curtains across the corridor at different points. When a sound wave strikes these they are turned into vibrations and made to tremble like the head of a drum does when struck with a stick or with the fingers. Between two of those parchment-like curtains a chain of minute bones extends, which serves to tighten or relax the membranes and communicate vibrations to them. In the innermost place of all a row of white threads called nerves stretch like the strings of a piano from the last point from which the tremblings reach, passing thence inward to the brain.

Made a Bad Break.

"I think I must have made a bad break last Sunday," mused the fellow who seldom goes to church.

"You see, I got an alumni catalogue of my old school, and in looking through it I found that one of my classmates was the pastor of a Cleveland church. So I called him up, and he said that he was still preaching and that if I wanted to meet him I should come to church on the following Sunday morning, which I did.

"He introduced me to his wife, and she took me into the pew with her. Well, during the sermon I got very drowsy. I was nodding in the middle of the sermon, and the parson's wife touched me on the elbow.

"'You seem sleepy,' she whispered. 'Try some of my smelling salts.'

"'No; thank you,' says I; 'I'd rather sleep!'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Three Ages of Crime.

"There are three ages of criminals," said Lecoq, the detective.

"The first age, from seventeen to thirty, is the daring and desperate one. Highway robbery, bludgeonings and boldups, murder for a few dollars—this is the worst age, a cruel, wicked and supremely foolish age.

"The second age, from thirty to forty-five, is the cautious middle one. Burglaries that are safe and easy, forgery, counterfeiting—in a word, crimes demanding neither violence nor pluck—that is the second age.

"The third age, from forty-five to seventy, is the executive one. The criminal is now a gang leader. He does not act himself, but he plans and commands crimes of magnitude, train robberies, bank robberies, kidnapings and the like."—New York Tribune.

Why She Believed.

"What sort of a chap is that fellow that has been calling upon you?"

"He's the luckiest fellow in the world."

"How do you know?"

"He told me so."

"And do you believe all he tells you?"

"I believe that, for he told me it just after I had promised to become his wife."—Houston Post.

How They Manage.

"I'd like to know how you and your wife get along so well together."

"I'll tell you. Whenever ma decides that one of the children needs punishing I don't interfere, and when I decide to correct one of the youngsters she does the same for me."—Detroit Free Press.

Always put up in Green Tins bearing the name "GLIDDEN."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

AN UPSET ROMANCE

The young person eating chocolates on the window sill was all of 15. Her expression was befittingly disillusioned and sad.

"No," she remarked again in the hushed silence which had first met her statement. "I am firmly resolved—I shall never, never marry!"

"How perfectly exciting!" gasped the equally young person established tailor fashion on the sofa cushions piled up on the floor. "Why, Dorothy!"

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" burst out the girl with wavy hair, from her place on the couch. "You know we were going to have houses side by side, and exchange recipes — and everything! Do you really mean it, Dorothy?"

"Yes, Marie," admitted the young person on the window sill in the gentle tones appropriate to a renunciation. How anyone could feel otherwise after going through what I have gone through is entirely beyond me!

"There are some things you know," she continued; "that leave one feeling never the same again! After one's eyes are opened to the fickleness, the untrustworthiness of men—"

"Why, Elmer must have been doing something perfectly awful!" interrupted the girl on the sofa cushions, excitedly hitching nearer. "What was it?"

The young person eating chocolates sighed deeply.

"I shouldn't feel that I could explain to you about it," she murmured, "except that it is my duty to warn you! Never trust a man! Elmer was so different from the others I have met in my life. For one thing, he was much older and more experienced. You know that he—"

"Oh, he's awfully grown up!" agreed the girl on the couch. "He was 17 his last birthday party! And he's so tall that when you walk behind him you can't tell whether it's himself or his older brother—and his brother is in business!"

"Elmer wears the grandest overcoat!" chimed in the girl on the sofa pillows. "I adore it."

"Do you?" inquired the blighted young person on the window seat, a trifle stiffly. "He could wear a million overcoats now and they wouldn't make the slightest impression on me. None whatever! You get beyond those trifles when real things happen. Elmer always seemed to have such grand ideals! He never got silly like the other men—I couldn't begin to tell you of all the beautiful things he has said to me — in notes, of course. He wrote the most wonderful quotations! There was one about a jug of wine and loaf of bread beneath the bough and thou—beside—me I can't just remember it—that almost made me cry. It was so beautiful and so touching!"

"Does Elmer drink?" queried the girl on the sofa cushions in awed tones.

"Didn't I say it was a quotation?" demanded the blighted one scornfully. "I should say not! And he was always writing things about sunkissed hair and flowerlike faces and starry eyes—oh, in the loveliest way, you cant' imagine. He'd never talk about them when I mentioned what he wrote though, just got red and said 'Huh!' or something like that, but of course I understood. There are some things you can't talk about."

"Yes, indeed!" sighed the young person on the couch. "Once Arthur—"

"Of course," interrupted the girl on the window seat ruthlessly, "Elmer wrote that he had never cared for any girl before as he did for me. He said I was light in his dreary life. I can't begin to explain how serious it makes you feel when a man says things like that."

"Mercy! I should think so!" gasped the girl on the soft cushions, breathlessly.

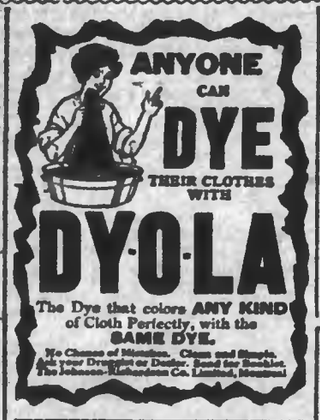
"After he finished high school and college and took a course in medicine Elmer told me he would have something to ask me. And I resolved to be true to him. I had perfect faith in Elmer—and it was all Isabel's fault, anyway. She had been crazy about him for ages, and I know just how she looked pathetic and sighed and everything. She is always complaining that this is such a lonely world.

"Naturally Elmer was touched. He wrote her a note that had all the loveliest quotations he had put in mine and old her the sun was shining behind the clouds, and she showed it to me, deliberately! She said she was so happy that she had to share her joy. So I told Elmer he was a cheat and perfectly horrid, and he just got red and said 'Huh!' And when I asked him what he meant, he said it again, and I left him standing there right in the middle of the crossing and walked home alone.

"I suppose," concluded the young person on the window sill, "I shall walk alone the rest of my life—but these troubles come to everyone. Using my quotations on Isabel! There is nothing sacred to some men! He may be happy with her, but he'll think of me at times—in the twilight—"

"Don't cry," begged the girl on the soft pillows. "He isn't worth it! He'll repent some day when it's too late."

"Do you really think so?" asked the blighted one, eagerly. "I hope he feels perfectly awful when he does! And anyhow—I'm going to show Isabel all his notes!"



A short answer seldom helps things along.

Men make houses, but women make homes.

Some men do no wrong because they are too lazy to do anything.

When a man borrows trouble the interest eats up the principal.

The most expensive education is that got in the school of experience.

When the men have to do the housework they probably will turn naggers too.

A woman can break a man's will more easily than he can break her won't.

Half of our diseases are in our minds and the other half are in our houses.

A Paris scientist says that cooks should wear gloves. Too many frills spoil the cook.

Of course it is less trouble to make enemies than friends—but friends are worth the trouble.

There can be no more smoking in the United States senate, but there will be occasional cases of fire.

A New York newspaper recommends gardening for jaded men. Does it mean cabaret roof gardening?

Is the rule which prevents German diplomats from marrying foreigners a compliment to woman or otherwise?

A scientist says that a radium solution will greatly enrich the soil. No doubt of it—something like $3,000 a foot.

The question of whether a sea green or violet blue wig constitutes grounds for divorce is sure to come up sooner or later.

These pessimists who say that a young man has no chance nowadays are the kind who never learned to play baseball.

Parisian beauties who paint lizards on their faces would probably throw a fit if told there was a mouse in the next room.

The German minister of war would not abolish duels, but regulate them. About what per capita of duels should be permitted?

The department of agriculture has produced seedless and puckerless persimmons. Now make them attainable without a pole.

The United States has more widows than widowers. To those inclined to take a Wellersque view the situation is truly alarming.

Eighty thousand rabbit skins have been shipped from Tacoma to Paris. Wonder what they will be when they are shipped back!

Synthetic milk is announced from a London laboratory. But the maker of an egg will be hailed as man's everlasting benefactor.

Train and Track.

Because of the scarcity of wood in Switzerland, about 70 per cent of the ties on the government railroads are metal.

The first railroad in Prussia to use electric traction on a large scale obtained much of its equipment from the United States.

Spain is considering the building of a double tracked railway line of normal European gauge, to be operated by electricity, between Madrid and the French border.

Pounds and Weights.

Here is a question that will tax the arithmetical powers of a youth. Suppose that for some reason or another a shopkeeper who sold goods by pounds and half pounds, but never in quantities exceeding twenty pounds at a time was told that he must transact all this business with four weights only. What must these four weights be? The answer is half pound, one and a half pound, four and a half pound and thirteen and a half pound. With these it will be readily seen that any weight from half a pound to twenty pounds may be determined in pounds and half pounds.

Arrangements have been concluded for the meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria next week of the eighteenth annual convention of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association. Leading men of the cotton industry will be present from all over New England and the South. One of the principal features of the programme will be an address by A. R. Marsh, a former president of the New York Cotton Exchange, on the new rules adopted by that body. The convention banquet will be held Monday evening. At the banquet Frank A. Vanderlip and others will discuss the "Duke Warehouse Plan."

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts Before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to moral activity, also to neutralise the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

She Lived Like A Millionaire In Gay Gotham

NEW YORK, April 28—This is the story of a successful adventuress.

A few days ago the Manager of the Hotel Biltmore, New York — which is the newest plush-lined pile in town—spoke to the cashier.

"Present Mrs. Edith Wilson's bill to her," said the manager. "And tell her that we prefer that she pay at once."

Positively the only interference with the manager's programme lay in the fact that Mrs. Edith Wilson was not in her elaborate apartment at the Biltmore. She hasn't been in since. Some of her clothes were there. The Biltmore didn't want them, but took them as a possible asset. Mrs. Wilson didn't worry, because wherever she goes she can get more on credit.

She has lived in New York for four years like a millionaire. Like Cassie Chadwick, she had demonstrated that money can be borrowed on any good story. She had an apartment on Riverside Drive, and she kept an automobile by the month, and she spoke about Schwab as "Charlie," and Gould as "Georgie," and Astor was nothing short of "Vincie, dear."

She told her men friends that her income was $100,000, and that she did not have a single security that paid over four per cent. That was true. But it wasnt as good a reason for loaning her money as her friends thought. She would not open a checking account, but preferred to keep her money in cash, in her safety deposit box. If only one person can get into a safety box, only one person can talk about what it contains. Mrs. Wilson was sure in tuning her talk to the key of millions. When her creditors opened her safety box it held nothing more valuable than a collection of old railroad time-tables and newspapers.

She first appears as the protege of a staid old Quaker woman in Haddonfield, N.J., and inherited her protectress' money when she died. Edith had always planned a life of wider horizons. The day after the funeral she appeared in Philadelphia. Pretty soon a Philadelphian married her. It was a mutual disappointment, for each thought the other was rich. But they lived in some happiness for a time. Edith did her own housework. One day Old Man Wilson tottered up to her.

"Fly with me," he begged.

She Flew with Him.

He was almost too shaky to hold on to a fence. But he was seventy-five years old and rich and she flew. In Venice she had herself made over by a paraffin specialist into a tearing beauty. Eventually they returned to this country. At Atlantic City she faked a telegram announcing that her Philadelphia husband was dead. Wilson was genuinely and silently in love with her. They were married the next day and arrested soon after. The shock killed Wilson. Edith was free, with a sackful of jewellery he bought for her and some thousands in cash. The Philadelphian divorced her and she began her campaign against New York.

She had a $6,000 suite at the Hotel Knickerbocker, and an extravagant apartment at 11 Riverside Drive, and another on West End Avenue, later. Because she never paid a bill until it could be dodged no longer — and because she had a little money and could pay when she had to—she did remarkably well.

It was, of course, Mrs. Wilson's plan to marry some man with an income—perhaps in society—but anyhow with an income. She kept away from women. All she had to do was to smile at a man and he began to bask.

True Hospitality.

I pray you, O excellent wife, not to cumber yourself and me to get a rich dinner for this man or this woman who has alighted at our gate, nor a bedchamber made ready at too great a cost. These things, if they are curious in, they can get for a dollar at any village. But let this stranger, if he will, in your looks, in your accent and behavior, read your heart and earnestness, your thought and will, which he cannot buy at any price in any village or city, and which he may well travel fifty miles and dine sparely and sleep hard in order to behold. Certainly, let the board be spread and let the bed be dressed for the traveler, but let not the emphasis of hospitality lie in these things. Honor to the house where they are simple to the verge of hardship, so that there the intellect is awake and reads the laws of the universe.—Emerson.

Actors in China.

Music as a profession is not now regarded as wholly reputable, but it is common to hear men singing snatches of theater songs as they go along the streets or country lanes, and amateur instrumentalists are many both among the poor and the better educated classes. We listened once, almost entranced, to a beatman on the inner waters of the Chekiang province declaiming with clear, strong voice and tone and rhythm for more than an hour at night a poem of short cantos in praise of Buddha. * * * It is a common thing at Peking, the chief home of actors, to see a man standing with his face against the city wall and yelling like one demented. He is an actor practicing his part and strengthening his voice.—Moule's "The Chinese People."

Saw Her Chance.

"No man shall ever kiss me except my future husband," said the girl as she was about to leave the gate.

"Suppose I agree to be your future"—

"Why, then, I'll kiss you," she said eagerly. And she did.

Her mother was informed that he had proposed, and the old lady called on him the next day to arrange matters, and before he knew it he was eternally hooked. It was a very mean advantage, but a bird in the hand is worth two on the garden gate, a...

Secret of Direction.

The apparently bewildering way in which Arabians, Eskimos and other primitive people make their way through forests, snow covered areas or other regions which have little to indicate direction to white newcomers has led to a widespread belief that they possess a mysterious sixth sense of direction. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the arctic traveler, who has lived much with Eskimos, is very skeptical about the existence of any superiority or sense of direction among primitive peoples of any kind and gives strong evidence from personal experience that Eskimos have no such superiority. The ability of Indians and others to find their way he attributes solely to their familiarity with the country through which they are traveling. They note many things that they have seen before and that have no significance to the stranger in their land. White men can and do acquire the same ability to find their way when they have learned to know a country. When the land is equally strange to the white man and the Indian or Eskimo, the white man, because of his better developed reasoning power, is more likely to have a correct idea of direction than the Eskimo.—Indianapolis News.

Profit in Arresting Deserters.

"The members of the police department are continually on the watch for deserters from the army or navy," explained the man about town. "The reason is that the government sets a price of $25 upon the deserter's head. Of course policemen are anxious to gain the reward and are on the watch.

"The Bowery is the district most frequented by deserters, and that is the first place in the city where search is made for them. A score of deserters are picked up along this thoroughfare every year.

"Before a member of the police department can accept the reward for catching a deserter his claim must be approved by the coumbsioner. Even then he does not draw the entire amount, for the usual deduction for the police pension fund is made."—New York Sun.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 1.—The fight in the Senate over the repeal of the exemption of American coastwise vessels from the payment of Panama Canal tolls was formally opened yesterday when the Interoceanic Canal Committee reported the House Repeal Bill without recommendation.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A letter is talk upon paper, and it is not as easy to write what you have to say as it is to tell your story in spoken words, because when you talk your audience is before you, and you can adapt your words to it, while when you write you do not see the receiver and may not know him.

The mail is the most important public service institution in the world. Without it more than local business would be impossible and there would be no economical method of interchange. The letter, whether it be of business or social purport, is in many respects the most important of documents, playing its part on every field of endeavour.

The effective letter-writer is in demand by every business house. Few attainments tend more toward promotion.

Ninety per cent. of all busines letters are crudely written, poorly expressed, and not likely to be perfectly understood. I am aware that it is well-nigh impossible to write a letter which will be as intelligible to the receiver as it was to the sender, and that misinterpretations are liable to occur; but there is a vast difference between a letter clumsily put together and one which is written in good English, which makes its point plain, and holds the attention of the reader.

I should advise every young man and woman, in business or about to enter it, to study letter-writing as carefully as he or she takes up bookkeeping and stenography. It is an invaluable art and furnishes its possessor with a definite and positive business asset.

The question naturally arises, What shall I do to become a good letter-writer?

I do not propose to furnish a short-cut rule for succes in this direction; but, briefly, I should say to the would-be letter-writer: First, learn good English. Practice expression. Know how to spell. Understand the fundamental rules of grammar and of construction. Then study good letters. Read the correspondence of your firm, if you are permitted to do so, particularly those letters which come from successful houses. Get in tune with them, so to speak.

The average book on letter-writing will be of some assistance to you, provided you do not copy verbatim. It is better for you to get the principle of letter-writing than to absorb definite forms of letters.

One method of attaining proficiency in this line is to write a letter, rewrite it, and continue to rewrite it, attempting to improve it each time.

Very likely you have some friend or acquaintance who is proficient in letter-writing. Ask his assistance.

Above all do not establish any definite rule for letter-writing. If you do the result will be stagey and set. The effective letter not only makes its point, but it does it in an easy, fluent way. It tells its story, whether it requires one page or a dozen. Brevity is to be encouraged, but not at the expense of clearness.

You cannot learn to be a good letter-writer as you learn bookkeeping and stenography. It is not a concrete art. Proficiency is obtained only by experience, by coming in contact with that which is good, and by learning to discriminate between the good letter and the poor one.

Do as the sailor does who would learn to handle his vessel. He keeps on the water, even though he may tumble into it. To learn to be a good letter-writer, get into letters.

If Hair Is Turning Grey, Use Sage Tea

Here's Grandmother's Receipt to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair

The beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth' Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural colour, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

Catacombs of Druids.

Eleven miles southeast of London, in Kent, a few years ago were discovered the catacombs of the ancient Druids, which are now much visited by sightseers and are lighted, for a part at least, by electric lights. Over fifty miles of chambers cut in the chalk cliffs have already been explored. The Druids lived in these catacombs when attacked by their northern enemies, and here they buried many of their dead. The stone on which the human sacrifices were made is still to be seen, and also the well, from which water is drawn to this day.

STEAMER FEARED LOST WITH 500 PEOPLE ABOARD

Wife of the Governor-General of Philippines is Supposed to Have Been One of the Victims.

S. O. S. SIGNALS HEARD

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 1.— It is feared here that the passenger steamer Siberia, plying between San Francisco and the Orient has foundered near Formosa with between four hundred and five hundred crew and passengers, including Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, wife of the Governor-General of the Philippines. Several S. O. S. calls were heard from the Siberia last night, but there were no vessels nearer than two days' journey and they are now hurrying to her assistance. Messages have ceased and the worst is feared.

A CHORUS THAT IS AS GOOD IN PHOTO AS IN ORATORIO

The Orme studio has finished a spendid flash light photo of the Judas Maccabaeus chorus and orchestra as they appeared on the stage in the Opera House on Wednesday night. The grouping is exceedingly effective, the ladies in white embraced—framed—by the gentlemen in black, with the orchestra and principals, in contrasting attire, extended in front of the whole, making a very picturesque photo group.

The picture is otherwise important and unique, in that no other city of similar size in Canada could show two such groups of two bodies of amateur musicians as the Maccabaeus Chorus and the Conservatory Orchestra. The photo of the chorus is further conspicuous, since it represents a band of not ony capable but courageous choralists, with a courage and confidence justified by the result, they attacked and splendidly conquered an heroic work like the Judas Maccabaeus Oratorio. With a courage and confidence not, however, so well justified by the results, they faced an expenditure of something like $600 to produce the work. Again the photo represents an organization that is to remain as an active and uplifting element in the musical life of Peterborough. It has won its place. It is, pretty certainly, here to stay.

The pit has been unused for several years now, but there has always been one siding into it. Now, however, a steam shovel has been installed at the pit and the two other sidings will be put into use.

MORE ARMS ARE IMPORTED

Last Consignment for Londonderry Brought Into the City Under a Load of Turnips

SITUATION TO-DAY

Examiner Special:

LONDONDERRY, May 1—The last consignment of arms for this district is said to have been brought to Londonderry to-day under a load of turnips and the guns are now hidden in lots of five. The distribution to individual volunteers will not take place at present. The Mountjoy affair cost half a million dollars and there is a disposition to require each volunteer to pay for his rifle. The whole conversation of Derry business men to-day is whether the City would be grouped with what are called the north-east counties of Ulster by Mr. Balfour and Sir Edward Carson, in proposing settlement. Donegal is the city's best customer and the merchants are alarmed at the possibility of putting the county and city under different governments. They say the City must be excuded from the home rule counties, but they do not want separation from Donegal.

Londonderry is likely to have an election soon as David C. Hogg, the Liberal member is dying. It is a very close constituency and an election under the present conditions would almost surely mean riots.

WOMAN KILLS MAN BREAKING INTO HOUSE

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 30.— Threatening to shoot William Buss, a Lehigh canal lock-tender, at Hope's Lock, near Reddington, if he persisted in breaking in the door of her room, Mrs. Martha Albany carried out her threat, and as the door was battered in levelled a shotgun at Buss.

The full force of the shot hit him in the neck and he died shortly after being removed to St. Luke's hospital here.

Buss died without accusing the woman, but she freely admits the killing of the man, claiming it was done in self-defence.

Mrs. Albany was arrested by Constable Cyrus Rauh of Freemansburg and committed to the Northampton county jail. She is 35 years old, while Buss was 55.

CAUSE OF DIFFICULTY

MADOC, April 30.—Copies of the audit of the firm of accountants examining into the financial conditions of the Dale private bank, which closed its doors some time ago, were handed to the shareholders to-day. It is stated that a net shortage of $132,600 has been revealed, and that the deposits amounted to $445,000. The liabilities are said to be in the neighbourhood of $480,000.

The bank's managers, according to the report, had made extensive investments in Winnipeg, Edmonton and Port Mann properties, and it is said that the failure to obtain the expected return from these within the anticipated period brought about the unhappy state of affairs. So far as can be ascertained at present, fifty cents on the dollar will be paid to the depositors, with the addition of another twenty-five cents at some future date.

Full responsibility is being assumed by the shareholders, who are said to be four in number, being Mr. J. C. Dale, sen., the President and Manager of the defunct bank, who is away; Duncan Mackenzie, James A. Caskey and Duncan Macbeth, all residents of Madoc and vicinity.

It is understood that an assignment was made to Magistrate Casement three days ago, and he will immediately assume control of the accounts, etc., and look after the interests of all parties connected with the bank.

The property in Winnipeg is said to consist of corner lots in various sections of the city, and while an increment over the purchase price would be obtained by their immediate sale it is estimated that a net loss would probably be sustained. It is intended that this property will be held until the market is more opportune.

PRESENTATION TO MR. WISE

Yesterday marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the wedding of Superintendent Frank Wise of the Little Lake Cemetery and Mrs. Wise. They were married just a quarter of a century ago and were the first couple to be married by Rev. Canon Davidson after he was made rector of St. John's Church.

An pleasant incident in connection with the day was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Wise from the employees of the cemetery of a sterling silver nut bowl, accompanied by the following address:

To Mr. and Mrs. F. Wise—

In asking your acceptance of this token of our regard we, the undersigned heartily congratulate you both on the occasion of your silver wedding and hope you will both live to share many happy years together and celebarte your golden wedding in due time.

ANNUAL MEETING OF 57TH REGIMENT

Last night the annual meeting of the 57th Regiment was held in the Armouries. Col. Clegg presided and the meeting was a very gratifying one from every standpoint. Reports were presented from the Regimental Band, Mess, Rifle, Athletic and Trip committees, all showing the financial position, as well as the activities of the regiment during the past year, to be very satisfatcory. The various committees were appointed for the ensuing year. A more detailed report of the meeting will be given in to-morrow's paper.

MADE FIRST TRIP

There are signs of summer along the water front these days. The Rainbow was docked at the old Wolfe Street wharf after its first trip up the river and was tied to a scow of mixed freight for Rice lake ports. The boat houses are opening above the C.P.R. bridge and several large steamers are tied up at the new George Street wharf. The fishing inspectors are on the watch during the day time and long after dark, motor boats are out on the lake, and below Rye's boat house, and the usual indications of activity on the water are exhibited up and down the river.

DEATH LIST IS AT LEAST 180

Seventy-five Bodies Have Been Recovered From Scene of Mine Disaster

SEARCH PARTIES BUSY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 1.—Seventy-five bodies have now been recovered following the mine horror near here, but there are still ninety bodies choked up in the mines. The work of recovery is hampered by falling timbers and escaping gas. There is no doubt now that 180 lives were sacrificed in this disaster.

MANY PEOPLE ARE MOVING JUST NOW

The demand for the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company's big moving van has been decidedly heavy during the past few days, an evidence that Moving Day in Peterborough is a reality. In Montreal and Toronto it assumes a general packing of family tents and seeking new quarters. At the local office to-day it was stated that there are more people moving than in former years. The idea of some people is that a change is as good as a rest and others feel that it is cheaper to move than pay rent.

UNDER ARREST IN TORONTO

TORONTO, May 1.—Herbert R. Kirkby, who claimed he hailed from Peterborough, is under arrest here, on several charges of theft. Certain evidence from Peterborough will be needed at his trial.

It will be remembered, that Kirkby, who represented himself to be a commercial traveller was charged here, on Jan. 7th last, with the theft of a diamond ring from a relative. He was brought back from Ottawa to face the charge. He was found guilty, but allowed to go on suspended sentence. His home is in Vancouver. He can now be sentenced for the theft of the diamond ring, if the Police Magistrate feels inclined to take that course. It is probable, however, that no action will be taken by the local authorities, until after the charge in Toronto is heard. Kirkby, is but a young man of 20 years of age, and has already, apparently taken to a life of crime.

The abuse of the judgment handed out by Magistrate Dumble will go against him.

REVENUE CUTTERS HUNT FOR STEAMER

There is However Little Hope That the Benjamin Noble With Crew of Twenty Escaped Destruction in Gale.

NARROW ESCAPES

Special to The Examiner:

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., May 1. — Eight revenue cutters and tugs are patrolling the western end of Lake Superior for traces of the Steamer Benjamin Noble of Detroit, supposed to have gone down Tuesday or Wednesday with twenty men aboard. There is now little or no hope that she escaped destruction in the terrific gales. Three overdue vessels, Heffelfinger, Griffiths and Sinapia reached Duluth to-day badly battered in the storm. The steamer Franz arrived at the Soo to-day with all her upper works washed by waves. Officers had to lash themselves to the rigging so that they should not be swept overboard.

Schooners Are Safe.

TORONTO, May 1.—Despatches this afternoon indicate the probability that both schooners, Jamieson and Mowat, thought to have gone down on Lake Ontario with twelve men aboard, are safe. It is thought they have taken shelter in some of the numerous inlets near Kingston, Ont.

ANOTHER QUEEN'S SUCCESS

In the list of successful students recently announced from Queen's, Kingston, appears the name of a Peterborough young lady—Miss Margaret Girven, Sherbrooke Street.

The subjects in which she passed with flying colours were: Latin, Mathematics and English— all three with first-class honours; and second-class honours in French.

Miss Girven is now up in Saskatchewan at summer school. Her many friends in and out of Peterborough wish her success, and congratulate her in recent results.

LEGISLATURE PROROGUED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 1.—In the presence of Mr. Speaker, some members of the Cabinet, and a very few of the legislators, His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, Sir John Gibson, formally prorogued the Legislative Assemgly this afternoon. In his address he referred particularly to the passage of the Workmen's Compensation Bill and temperance legislation. The address also suggested the probability of more vigorous prosecution of improvements of the highways.

BLOODSHED IS NOW EXPECTED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TRINIDAD, Col., May 1. — The striking miners showed signs of revolting against the authorities of the United States cavalry this morning, when the order was given that they must surrender all arms within twenty-four hours. They declined to do so unless the mine guards are compelled to do the same. There is danger of bloodshed.

SETTLEMENT DAY FOR LUMBER FIRMS

Wednesday was "Settlement Day" with the lumber firms who have been buying timber in this district. Messrs. Stevenson and Maniece, of the Crown Timber Office, Peterborough, attended in the interests of the Crown. Mr. John Pearson made settlements for the Dyment-Mickle Lumber Co., while Messrs. Garrishore, Kitchener and Suggitt performed duties for the Gull River Lumber Co., and Mr. Mark Rogers attended in the interests of Rogers Bros.—Minden Echo.

C. P. R. LINER MONTFORD ON THE ROCKS—The Montford from London and Antwerp, carrying 358 passengers, which ran ashore and stuck on the Beauport Flats about two and a half miles below Quebec. There was no danger to passengers and she was floated the next day. The damage was very slight.

A TRUCE IS AGREED TO DURING NEGOTIATIONS

United States and Huerta to Keep Peace While Peace Envoys Are Working.

MESSAGE FROM POWERS

Examiner Special:

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Restrained, but none the less steady preparation for any military eventualities that may become necessary, and the quiet but definite progress of the mediation program being worked out behind closed doors—these were the two outstanding features of the Mexican situation here yesterday.

The three mediation envoys of Argentine, Brasil and Chili continued their private sittings through the day and evening. Their first move for an armistice was succeeded by the practical suspension of hostilities or a truce between the forces of the United States and the Huerta regime, although there were still ominous sounds of conflict between the Huerto and Carranza forces.

Secretary Bryan formally notified the South American envoys that the American Governments took it for granted that there would be no hostilities during the mediation proceedings, and has intended no further acts of aggression while the conferences were being held. But the attitude of Huerta and Carranza on the cessation of hostilities was still unknown last night. While there has been no period set within which the negotiations must be concluded, Secretary Bryan said yesterday he believed they would move forward "as rapidly as possible."

While the envoys were not yet ready to make announcement, several interesting phases of what has come up during the discussion were learned from authoritative sources. It appears that while the attitude of Gen. Huerta was definite in accepting intermediation as between the United States and the Huerta Government, it has not yet been made clear that his acceptance will apply also to intermediation which includes Carranza.

Another outgrowth of the discussion was an intimation that both the Huerta and Carranza elements would send representatives directly with the mediators and that Francisco De La Barra, now at Paris, as ambassador for the Huerta authorities, would probably be designated to act for Huerta. It was known that the mediators themselves had made no move to secure a personal representative for either party. But there was reason to believe De La Barra's coming was being considered at Mexico City and that a representative of Carranza, who is on his way here, may be authorized to act in that direct capacity.

Funston's Force.

VERA CRUZ, May 1. — The task of guarding the City of Vera Cruz and its environs was taken over from the navy yestery by Brig.-Gen. Frederick Funston and the Fifth Infantry Brigade of the United States army.

While martial law still continues in force, the actual municipal government is being conducted by R. J. Kerr, the American civil governor, who has enlisted the aid of Mexican officials to act under his superintendence and in accordance with Mexican laws.

After a morning enlivened by the marching to and fro of large bodies of American soldiers, sailors and marines, the city resumed its normal and somewhat sleepy life, made gay in the evening by outdoor dinner parties at the numerous cafes and restaurants, accompanied by music and sometimes by dancing.

Gen. Huerta last night accepted the proposal that there be no further hostilities between the United States and Mexico, pending the efforts of the envoys to bring about an amicable settlement of difficulties between the countries.

Constitutionalists Fire on Ship.

WASHINGTON, May 1. — Rear Admiral Mayo at Tampico, reported to the Navy Department last night that the Ward Line Steamer Antilla, flying the Cuban flag, was fired upon and held up in the river there Wednesday by Constitutionalists, but later steamed into port under cover of fire on the rebels from the Mexican federal gunboat Vera Cruz.

WILL ASK COUNCIL FOR A HALF HOLIDAY

A deputation of fans, business men and others will wait on the Council at the Monday night meeting to petition for a public half holiday for the opening of the ball season in Peterborough on May 14th, when London meets the Blountmen for the first game of the season. Mayor Buller has expressed himself in favour of the idea and it is expected that the Whole Council will express their approval.

SIX LICENSES ARE TAKEN OUT

Half a Dozen Local Tobacconists Pay $40 for the Privilege of Selling Cigarettes

OTHERS REFUSE

Six local tobacconists made application for and have taken out licenses to sell cigarettes under the new by-law, to-day. The license fee has been raised by the by-law, which comes into force to-day, to $40. As a result up to noon to-day none of the dealers who handle cigarettes in connection with groceries had made application for, or taken out licenses. Those who have are: Messrs. Sam Ray, J. Collins, Gainey Bros., A. Breault, A. Clydesdale, Yeates Bros. and Nicholls. All of the above are well-known tobacconists in the centre of the city.

One local dealer, who sells cigarettes in connection with a pool-room, says that the license will be too heavy for him and has decided not to take one out. He claims to have $200 worth of stock on hand, and is at a loss to know what to do with it.

MAY DAY IS QUIET IN CANADA

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., May 1. — A summary of the May Day situation throughout Canada indicates few labour strikes. Generally speaking, where there had been negotiations for an increase by the men, a settlement was made by the acceptance of a small increase. The fact that things are quieter than usual is probably due to the fact that in all Western cities and many Eastern ones, there is not so much work going on this year as during the last six or seven years. In Montreal to-day the Socialists held a huge demonstration.

GODERICH HOTELS STILL OPEN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

GODERICH, May 1. — Notwithstanding the statement of Hon. Mr. Hanna made in Toronto yesterday, that Huron would be dry May 1st, all hotelkeepers here have their bars open to-day. They have not been notified to close and have paid their license fees for three months. It is said by some that as hotelkeepers have not received licenses they are violating the law and are criminally liable, but as they have paid their money for three months the vendors feel they can sell booze with impunity.

Huerta Frees All Who Will Fight The States

Special to The Examiner:

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, May 1. — Word has been received here that General Huerta has released all political prisoners in Mexico City who will agree to join United Mexico in resisting the United States. According to reports here he has addressed on hundred such prisoners personally saying: "We are now brothers."

An Appeal Has Been Entered

Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield, barristers, etc., have this morning entered an appeal against the judgment of Police Magistrate Dumble, in the case of D. Sullivan, who, it will be remembered, was found guilty of keeping a common gaming house, by His Worship, and fined $100. The fine at the time was paid under protest.

SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1914

GOOD ROADS.

The "first Canadian and International good roads Congress" is called for May 18-23, 1914, in the "Arena," Montreal. Nothing is of more national, industrial, or social importance than good highways. No donbt the proposed congress will have considerable educative value—and education is greatly needed for there is a vast amount of popular ignorance as to the value of good roads. None need instruction on this point more than governments. Governments and governing bodies, however, need spurring to action more than academic instruction. The one way, and the only effective way, to get good roads, is to build them. England, Scotland, Ireland, and France have more good roads in one county or arrondissement than the whole of Canada. These countries didn't talk a century or so about good roads; they made them, and, having made them, they maintained them—kept them made. In the poorest counties of comparatively unwealthy Ireland, the country roads are better—better built and better kept—than the streets of populous and wealthy Canadian cities. What is wanted are good highways—rough paces made plain for the plain people, the farmers of the country. The programme of the Congress indicates that the automobile interests will be largely promoted, no fewer than three of the speakers being automobile association officials. There is no objection to this, but it must not be forgotten that while the interests of both classes in good roads are common, the interests of other vehicles are transcendantly greater than that of automobiles. This latter interest deserves, however, this credit. In its short life it has shown a commendable and active interest in highways which the farming community as a class has failed to exhibit. If the farmers would organize and work as hard for good roads as the automobile people, infinite good would result.

GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY.

Sir James Whitney has declared that he was "bold enough to be honest and honest enough to be bold." How he has lived up to this is a matter of opinion; but that he has transmitted these qualities to his successors is open to successful contradiction. In the absence of Sir James his Government shows neither honesty nor courage. With a majority of three to one in the Legisature, the Government has not the courage to give its opponents a "square deal." With its overwhelming majority it dares not risk a general election on the merits of its record and policy. It is afraid to risk a general election without gerrymandering three Liberals out of their seats, and arranging the four new Toronto constituencies so that "the four new members must be Conservatives, who will ride in on the shoulders, or be carried in the pockets of, the present members." This does not show either courage or fair play; it doesn't show much confidence in the electors endorsing the policy and course of the present government. There are other failures in courage. Hon. Mr. Hanna who is wobbling about, pro tem., in Sir James Whitney's shoes, is afraid of investigation of the details of his relations with Contractor Taylor, from whom he received a 500-dollar contribution to the Conservative party funds. He employed Mr. G. Howard Ferguson, the political ticket-of-leave man to stifle investigation in the Public Accounts Committee. If Mr. Hanna is innocent in the matter, why object to investigation to make it clear that he is innocent? If he, however, has something to conceal something crooked to keep down, then his objection to having the truth known is understandable. It is charged, and virtually proven, that Mr. Hanna sent License Inspector Snider into three counties where the "Scott Act" was under vote, to give the Act a black eye in the interests of the liquor traffic. Mr. Hanna denies this; but the simple denial of even a Minister of the Crown, as we have him these days, is not proof. Mr. Hanna refuses an investigation commission into this charge, and thereby lays himself open to grave suspicion. An investigation can do no harm if he is innocent in the matter. The truth brought out would make assurance doubly sure. If he is not innocent, if he has trafficked with his duty in the interests of the traffic, then—then we have an explanation of his refusal to grant investigation. Nobody can be blamed for believing that guilt, not innocence, fears the search light.

HOW IT WORKS.

One of the chief objections of Ulster—or rather of the politicians who arrogate the right to speak for it—to Home Rule, is that in case it becomes adopted, the majority in Ireland will give scant justice to the minority in the matter of representation and administration. In reference to this the relations of the majorities to the minorities in Ulster county government as in actual operation are illustrated by the following few statistics:

"In County Monaghan there are 54,747 Catholics and 19,858 Protestants, yet in the County Council there are 34 Catholics and 23 Protestants. In Antrim County 43,301 Catholics in a population of 190,000, yet there are only five Catholics holding salaried positions to 60 Protestants. In Tyrone there are 82,205 Catholics and 66,168 Protestants, the latter holding 47 positions to five Catholics. In Armagh there are 56,000 Catholics and 63,000 Protestants, yet there are only three places held by the former to 47 held by the latter. Such a condition of affairs cannot be merely the work of chance. Cork County has a population of 367,000, of whom 31,000 are Protestants, yet the County Council appoint 119 Catholics and 24 Protestants to public positions. In Cavan there are 79,000 Catholics to 18,000 Protestants; the entire County Council are Catholic, yet that County appointed 30 Catholics and 26 Protestants to office. The highest paid officer in the county is the county surveyor, who receives $3,000 a year. He is a Protestant. The highest paid Catholic official just receives half this amount. In the city of Belfast, with 80,000 in its population, there is not a single Catholic in office."

STEAMERS HAVE BEEN LAUNCHED

Several of the steamers that have been undergoing repairs in dry dock during the winter have been launched in readiness for the opening of the navigation season. Mr. J. Young's tug Beaver has been slid into the water, and the Government launch Naiad has been also launched. Other boats, including a number of steamers, have been overhauled and are now ready for the water this season.

APOLOGIZES FOR ENDING LIFE

MONTREAL, April 30. — "I am sorry to give you this trouble by killing myself in your office, so excuse me. Kindly inform my wife as gently as possible of my deed."

Thus wrote Thomas James Doucher, before he shot himself in the office of the Ice Company at Coteau Station yesterday afternoon.

Doucher was found lying on the floor of the office in a pool of blood, with a bullet hole in his right temple and a revolver in his hand, by Foreman Steele, of the company.

Doucher up to two months ago was the agent at Coteau for the Ice Company, but was dismissed and another man appointed in his place. This seems to have worried Doucher, and it was to the new man he addressed his last letter. The deed evidently was premeditated, for the letter was dated April 13.

Coroner McMahon disposed of the case as a clear one of suicide. The letter was written in blue and black inks, and a bottle of blue ink was produced from the man's home, while the black ink was in the office of the company where he shot himself.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY IS READY FOR NEW TRIAL OF LIEUTENANT BAKER

Charge of Instigating Murder of Herman Rosenthal Will Be Gone into Again on Monday Next.

SOME NEW EVIDENCE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, May 1.—District Attorney Whitman and his aids have practically completed their end of the preparations for the second trial of Charles Becker, former police lieutenant, on charges of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, for which the four gunmen were recently executed in Sing Sing. The District Attorney will be ready for the trial to proceed next Monday, which is the tentative date fixed by Justice Seabury of the Supreme Court. If there is any postponement when the case is called it will be on motion of counsel for the defence.

The principal work of the District Attorney's office in preparing for the new trial has been in the rounding up of the witnesses. Since the first trial, which took place a year ago last fall, the witnesse for the State, or the most of them, have forsaken their old haunts in the metropolis, and some of them have taken up permanent residence outside the city and State. As soon as the Supreme Court granted Becker a new trial Mr. Whitman went to work to place himself in communication with those who had testified for the prosecution at the first trial. Within the past two months he has had assurances from each of them, either in person or by letter, that they will be on hand ready to testify when the case is called for the second time.

It is known that the District Attorney feels that he has the State's case in good shape. The general supposition is that Mr. Whitman will rest his case upon the testimony of Rose, Weber and Vallon. In that respect the case will resemble the one which was reversed by the higher court. But the testimony in corroboration, it is said, will be almost entirely new.

Jack Rose, "Bridgie" Weber, Harry Vallon and Sam Scheppe were the principal witnesses for the State at the first trial. They are the four informers who testified to having conducted negotiations between Becker and the gunmen and to have been otherwise concerned in the preliminaries of the plot that ended in the murder of Rosenthal.

The testimony of Scheppe was not of an entirely satisfactory character, and was freely criticised in the decision of the Court of Appeals. For this reason, and also because Scheppe has talked so freely and told so many contradictory and highly sensational tales since Becker's first conviction, it is considered probable that the District Attorney may not call him to the stand at the new trial.

Rose, Weber and Vallon are counted upon to take the stand and repeat the testimony they offered at the first trial. Since their release from jail, where they were held for many months as witnesses, the trio have kept in touch with the District Attorney's office. Rose now makes his home in Connecticut when he is not filling dates as a lecturer and evangelist. Vallon has been employed of late as a cigar salesman. Weber is engaged in a manufacturing business in Passaic, N.J.

There is much speculation in and out of legal circles as to the part that "Dago Frank's" confession, made within less than two hours of his death, will play in the second trial of Becker. The friends of the former police lieutenant hold that the confession if admitted, will amount to an exculpation of Becker as the instigator of the Rosenthal murder, and furthermore they declare that it shows the worthlessness of the testimony given by Rose, Weber, Vallon and Scheppe. On the other hand, District Attorney Whitman does not consider the confession as vital to the case, either from the standpoint of the defence or the prosecution. In the opinion of the District Attorney the confession in many ways corroborates the contention of the State—that there was a conspiracy, and that as a result of that conspiracy the gunmen were hired to murder Rosenthal a week in advance of the assassination.

The second interesting point in conection with the new trial is the probability that Becker will take the stand in his own defence. It is said that the ex-police officer strongly desired to take the stand at the first trial but was dissuaded from doing so by his counsel. If he takes the stand at the coming trial he will be subjected to a severe cross-examination. He will be asked in particular to explain how he managed to accumulate a large fortune on a salary of $3,400 a year. At the first trial it was said the District Attorney had traced some $70,000 on Beckers' accounts scattered in banks all over the city. If Becker takes the stand it will open the way for the State to introduce evidence to prove that Becker had made a business of "shaking down" the gamblers and that it was this which had led to his personal difficulties with Rosenthal. Under the circumstances the District Attorney believes that Becker will not dare take the witness' chair.

"NO ENGLISH NEED APPLY"

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I am glad to find that two Englishmen have taken up the cudgels for their fellow country men anent the advertisements inserted by "a boarding house marm" that "English people need not apply." I am informed on good authority that the boarding house keeper in question is the daughter of Old Country folk, although she was born in this country, having been brought up on a farm not many miles from here. This fact only helps to drive up to the hilt the argument used by "An Englishman" in yesterday's issue, in which he says the worst offenders against the English are those born of English parents in this country.

Where would this country be without the British intellect, brains, capital and labour that is present here. There is a British army and navy to defend it and allow its inhabitants to sleep in peace; there is British capital in pretty nearly every undertaking.

British brains and intellect are used in many responsible positions, British labour is looked upon as being reliable, and British work as being well done, and yet a little petti-fogging boarding house keeper has the "cool cheek" to affix to her twenty cent advertisement the gratuitious insult that "Englishmen need not apply." Pshaw! it makes one sick.

Once upon a time it was "No Irish need apply." The folly of this has been seen and the Irish are welcome everywhere — and well they deserve it. Perhaps some day when this New World is older and wiser, the present parrot-cry against the English will also become defunct.

Yours obediently,

.... Another Englishman.

Another Letter On Market Question

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Sometime ago there were many indignant letters from citizens of Peterborough published in your paper anent the produce they had bought in "The Market Place."

Some of these complained of having purchased eggs somewhere in the region of 40c per dozen, only to find them all, or nearly all, in anything but a fresh state.

Others had bought fowls which on cleaning out they found in a very diseased condition.

Only last week, someone I know of, bought some (supposedly) maple syrup, which tasted exactly like the sugar and water syrup we make for the bees; it had a thick sediment of sugar granules, and had not even had maple flavouring added to it.

There seems to have been many similar complaints, with no redress for the buyers.

Had they made these purchases at the shops in Peterborough, they would have been able to return them to the sellers and have had other goods, or their money refunded.

Our tradesmen have to keep their shops clean, provide bags or paper with which to cover the articles bought—(at the market we have to carry our own supply of paper, or convey the things bought through the very dusty streets uncovered, and often, in our bare hands). The tradesman has also to label his goods as to whether they are pure or compound; otherwise he is liable to a heavy fine. The places in which they store their goods have to be kept in a sanitary condition, and they provide men, horses and vehicles to convey the purchases to their customers' houses, etc. Yet you will often buy similar goods in our shops at less price than in the market, without the risk of a lottery. Eggs are often cheaper at some of our shops than in the market, and fresher too.

The days "Cavan Farmer" speaks of are gone long ago, never to return; farmers believe in geting a full share of the profits when they can, and quite right too.

Now-a-days they keep better account of what their produce costs them, and are therefore more alive to the value of what they have to sell.

It is quite right for the farmer to have a good price, but it is only fair that he should comply with the same conditions as tradesmen, especially as in the case of "The Market," he has no stiff rent nor middleman to fight against.

I should very much like to know why the farmers should be a privileged class, and why it is more of an insult to them to put their name and address on a basket, than for our town-sellers to put theirs over their shops and on their bills.

From my point of view it is a good chance for a farmer to build up a good name in the 'home market' by always supplying good quality.

Naturally people who have been served well once, will look out for the same person again. Besides, it is the very thing all the farmers' magazines are advising; they even advocate putting the name and address on each egg. I have myself bought such eggs.

The farm journals are all agreed, too, that poultry should b dressed for sale and their heads left on; it is done in Great Britain, and they are also shipped from here in same condition by the cold storage companies; yet one of "our local experts" informed one of your reporters that dressed fowl do not keep well in the storage! Funny, isn't it? The same man also said that the head is the chief means of knowing whether the bird suffered from tuberculosis. The Family Herald says the only way of telling is by an accurate examination of the inside.

Cavan farmer says they will send all their butter and cream to Toronto—"I don't think!"

I read that the Medical Health Officer there will not allow that sort of produce to enter Toronto unless it has undergone pasteurization.

If the farmers sell at shops we shall be better off than with the market, for the shop keepers will ahev such a good supply they will let us have things cheaper.

On the whole it seems to me that 'The Market' has been more beneficial to the farmers and Market Clerk than the citizens of Peterborough; those who hang around "until the last" in the hopes of getting something cheap are probably the only ones who "benefit by it.

A Woman.

To the Editor The Examiner:

Sir,—Through your valuable paper permit me to air my disgust at the advertisement for boarders, where no Englishmen need apply, which appeared in your paper on the 29th inst. Such ignominious piffle as this is disagreeable and unwholesome, not only to the English, but to all true patriots of the British flag. Speaking personally of the Englishman, Sparrow or Broncho, or whatever one might care to term him, I make bold to say, without fear of contradiction, that he is proud to think that he goes to form part of the Empire who owns—mind you, owns—such a Dominion as Canada. Through his veins flows the blood which men in all parts of the world envy, blood which produces the grit and pluck which has forever held England the predominating feature of the universe. All this empty claptrap which is uttered by ignoramuses to the effect that the Englishman has no right to be in this country, reminds me very forcibly of a tenant who owes rent. The advertiser for boarders undoubtedly knows the sensation which pulsates through her frame when the landlord approaches her. She hates the sight of him, says all sorts of uncomplimenary things about him. This is precisely the same as how the lower class of Canadians treat the Englishman. According to their view he has no right to set his foot upon his own property. Mark you, I say, and I say with emphasis, that he has more right to be in Canada than any other man in the world. It is as much his home as is England, if he chooses to come here. And for any descendant of his race to object to his settling here shows jealousy and ignorance in its purest form.

Thanking you for this valued space. I remain,

H. H.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I have seen the advertisement of the boarding housekeeper, that English people are not wanted. "What an ignorant woman she must be." Doesn't she know that the self-respecting Englishman or woman is clean and well behaved? And as there are so many English in this town I would like to know what the Canadian boarding housekeepers would do if all the English requiring board were to advertise "No Canadians need answer this?" I'll bet a good many would then pretend they were English.

Thanking you for a small space in your paper, I am,

Yours obediently,

An English Girl.

Millbrook Men Held Banquet

Millbrook has contributed its full quota to the making of Toronto. Some of the most prominent men of the city have hailed from that pretty village on the Grand Trunk between Omemee and ort Hope. A gathering of old boys of Millbrook made themselves at home last evening in the Metropolitan rooms.

Reeve R. J. Doak, of Millbrook presided, and introduced Mayor Hocken, who in his turn addressed the gathering. Rev. S. H. Pickup also spoke.

Prominent among the Millbrook old boys of Toronto are Dr. Norman Allen, Dr. R. J. Niddrie, Prof. Niddrie, Prof. Henry Needler, Dr. John Hunter, Prof. Henry Montgomery, Sam Hunter, James L. Hughes, F. G. McBean, E. R. Wood, and the Morrow family, who were so closely allied with the late Senator Cox in the Central Loan & Savings Company.

Letters of regret were sent by members of the famous Fallis family of Millbrook, who are locally known by the following distinguishable names: "Straw Boy" Fallis, "Muggins" Fallis, "Chopper" Fallis, "Tow Head" Fallis, "Young Willie" Fallis, "Young Johnnie" Fallis, "Miller Dick" Fallis, "Miller Bob" Fallis, "Weaver Willie" Fallis, "Jimmy in the Bush" Fallis, and "King Tom" Fallis.

"Fallis Line," near Millbrook, owes its name to this distinguished family.

BIG YARD ENGINE LEFT THE RAILS

The new C.P.R. yard engine of which mention was made a few days ago to the effect that it had replaced the smaller engine used in the past, missed a step at a switch in the yard near the new freight sheds this morning and the auxiliary had to be called from Havelock to replace it on the rails. Apparently the switch had been passed as usual but the wheels one one side took the wrong side of a frog and drew the opposite wheels off the far rail. Some of them remained on the track but the engine was too large for the local crew and yard men to handle. The engine was moving slowly and had proceeded only ten feet before it was brought to a stop.

ANGLO-SAXON NAMES MOST NUMEROUS IN THE U. S. CITIES

Smith, Miller, Brown, White, Hall and Allen Lead Among New Yorkers—Scotch Are Next

NO MELTING POT

Among the commonest names in New York those which occur more than five times in "Who's Who" are Smith 27, Miller 16, Brown 13, White 13, Hall 13, Allen 13, Johnson 9, Clark 9, Taylor 9, Lewis 9, Jones 8, Martin 8, Wilson 7, Davis 7, Harris 6, Young 6, Murphy 5, Moore 5, Robinson 5, Morris 5.

Other names of persons residing in New York, not in the ist of the fifty commonest names, but occurring five or more times in "Who's Who," are: Abbott, Adams, Alexander, Baker, Chaplin, Clarke, Cooper, Curtis, Davis, Eaton, Fiske, Foster, Fuller, Gilbert, Greene, Holt, Johnston, Lawrence, Lee, Merrill, Mitchell, Morgan, Morse, Norton, Parsons, Perry, Phelps, Porter, Post, Putnam, Richards, Russell, Scott, Stokes, Thomas, Vanderbilt, Walker, Warren, Wood.

"It would seem," says Dr. Wood, "that the original Dutch element has not maintained itself in general leadership in New York. The English element has. I suspect that much of the concentrated eminence now in New York iCty is due to migration of New England strains from Connecticut and Massachusetts."

"The truth of the matter is," says Dr. Wood, "that all the stocks that have come into America in recent years since 1830 have been very inferior o those aready here in the 17th and 18th centuries; and in general they have been getting worse and worse. There have been a few notable exceptions but, broadly speaking, all our capable men of the present day have been engendered from the Anglo-Saxon element already here before the beginning of the 19th century.

"We sometimes read magazine and newspaper articles about the Irish in America, the Germans in America, the eJws in Aemrica, describing the achievements of distinguished foreigners who have risen to high esteem and publising portarits of the same. It is because they are relatively few that it is possible to make a magazine article out of the material. Who ever saw a similar article on the English in America? The statistically true can be exciting only to the scientifically inclined.

"We have heard a great deal about the melting pot, but no one, as far as I know, has brought forward any proof that there is a molting pot in the true biological sense, i. e., that there is any genuine mingliing of blood sufficient to overcome the natural testimony that all species and varieties have to grow apart and become more disimilar in the course of time. If there had been a thorough mingling of races in this country there would have already been a decline in natural ability, but the tendency of like to mate with like, the natural tendency of the most successful to mate with themselves, works in the opposite direction. The real strength of a country is so dependent on the qualities of its leaders that it behooves patriots, sociologists and philosophers to take all these questions into account and consider more carefully the genesis and significance of that smal fraction of 1 per cent., which represents the intellectual crust."

OLD SONG DAY IN KANSAS STATE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TOPEKA, Kas., May 1—Other States have their Fast days, Patriots' day, Apple day, and other celebrations of various kinds, but it has remained for Kansas to be the first of the sisterhood of Commonwealths to set aside a day for the people of the entire State to revive the old songs that were popular when the grandfathers and grandmothers of today were in their youth. In response to a movement begun last winter and supported by the State Board of Education and other bodies, to-day was observed as "Old Song Day" throughout the entire State. In the colleges, schools, churches and other community centres the young and old assembled to join in the singing of "Annie Gray," "Swanee River," "Nellie Gray," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Oaken Bucket," "Mason's in the Cod, Cold Ground," and many other favourite songs of long ago.

$2,500 GRANT FOR BOBCAYGEON?

Victoria County's Warden, A. J. Varcoe of Mariposa, and ex-Warden A. E. Bottum of Bobcaygeon, left for Ottawa via the 5.25 C.P.R. train on Wednesday to interview the Minister of Railways and Canals in reference to granting the Village of Bobcaygeon $2560 towards paying for the building of the Little Bob. bridge in the Village. The result of the County's representative interview with the Minister will be anxiously looked for as this matter has been held in abeyance for two or more years.

Promises have been frequently given the Villagers that the amount would be given, but farther than this no tangible evidence of the Government's sincerity in carrying out the promise has been asserted. The difficuty arising in the first place through the narrowing of the span in the building of the bridge, which retarded the flow of water and at which the Government took umbrage.—Lindsay Warder.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY FOR LINDSAY?

Mr. B. Cooper of Toronto, President of the Cooper Cap Company, and Mr. C. D. Wilder, travelling salesman for the same firm, were in town the other day looking over the town with a view to establishing a branch factory in Lindsay.

In conversation with a ocal citizen, Mr. Cooper stated that they wished to establish another factory to take care of their Eastern Canada trade, owing to the congestion in their warehouse at Toronto. —Lindsay Warder.

Fire Alarm Cables Will Be Run Under Sidewalks When The City Decides They Are Necessary

Bell Telephone Co. to Instal Relay in Order to Relieve Pressure on Present Alarm System.

PULMOTOR DEMONSTRATION

The annual report of the Canadian Underwriters' Association upon the City's fire fighting and preventive conditions with other incidental considerations was read at a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee last night.

Ald. Green presided and the members present were Aldermen Anderson, Duffus, Saunders, Dobbin and Mayor Buller. The report was outlined in the Examiner several weeks ago. Among a number of suggestions it includes a recommendation that the brigade be increased to twenty-two men and three auxiliary stations be provided, one in each of the north, south and east wards.

Fire Alarm System.

The Bell Telephone Co. reported that it would be impossible to increase the voltage of the present alarm system beyond its present one of 48, and suggested improvements to meet the City's increasing needs at a cost of $900, which the committee feels to be impracticable this year from a financial standpoint.

The committee decided to request the Bell Company to install a No. 1 telegraph relay set on approval, at a cost of $45, to relieve in a measure the pressure on the present fire alarm system. Also, in future all alarm extensions will be made of copper wire.

Underground Cable.

Fire Chief Howard wrote that in view of the proposed extension of street paving, it would be inadvisable to lay underground cables for the fire alarm system. No action was taken, it being conceded that beneath the sidewalk is the proper position for underground cables.

New Hydrants Asked For.

Chief Howard also suggested that an additional hydrant on Langford Street is advisable to permit of some possible fires in that locality being reached with the fire hose available. Committee will look over the ground.

Seven New Hydrants.

Provision in the estimates having been made for seven additional hydrants this year, the committee will locate these when on their annual tour of inspection.

More Alarm Boxes.

Fire Chief Howard will recommend the placing of two additional fire alarm boxes, provided for in appropriation, giving several localities from which the committee will select when on their inspection tour in the near future.

Price Wanted For Hose.

Prices for 500 feet of new fire hose will be asked for.

Demonstration of Pulmotor.

The Canada Sanax Co., Toronto, will demonstrate the working of their pulmotor here in about two weeks time with a view to the purchase of one for use in this City. This machine is used with phenomenal success in resuscitating persons asphyxiated either by water, smoke or any other means.

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Ont., May 1.—Cordial messages from King George, Queen Mary and other members of the British Royal family were among the many felicitations recived at Rideau House to-day on the occasion of the birthday anniversary of the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada and the only surviving brother of the late King Edward. There was no official observance of the anniversary in the Capital, save that the flag was flown on the Parliamentary tower in honour of the event. His Royal Highness is 64 years old, having been born May 1, 1850, in Buckingham Palace.

Advises Women To Use Eyes

WASHINGTON, April 30. — Mrs. Anna M. Laise Phillips, of Washington, told an audience of women that if women use their eyes properly they can charm the most obstinate masculine heart.

"Do not flirt, though," she said, "and just take the tonics of air and water and of dress, shesaid: "There is sol ittle of it below the knees and so little above the waist, there is really nothing to be said." She concluded that "concise, well-balanced thought comes only when the hair is neatly combed."

NEW PASTOR INDUCTED AT SPRINGVILLE YESTERDAY

The Occasion Also Marked the Union of Springville and Lakevale After a Separation of Nearly Forty Years.

AN INTERESTING EVENT

The induction of the Rev. Geo I. Craw, late of Thornton, into the pastoral charge of Springville and Lakevale, took place to-day. One thing that gave the service a unique interest in both congregations was the fact that it marked the union of these two places of worship under one minister, after a separation of nearly forty years. Until about two years ago Springville was united with Bethany, and as the distance between the two is twelve miles it made the long drive and three services a heavy day for the minister. Now the distance is just six miles, and most of the families live close to their respective churches.

At the induction yesterday, Rev. Robt. Pogue, who has been interim Moderator, conducted divine worship and preached the sermon. The Rev. H. Brown of Warsaw, put the prescribed questions to the newly elected minister, and then by prayer inducted him into the pastoral charge of Springville and Lakevale. Rev. H. J. Keith then addressed the newly elected minister in suitable terms, and Rev. Wm. Johnston gave the address to the people.

At the close of the induction service, a reception was held for the new minister and his wife, when a number of addresses were given by th Ministers of the Presbytery, and the neighbouring Methodist ministers, the Rev. Mr. Butler and the Rev. Mr. Wickett. The choir rendered two musical selections, and Mr. John Marsh, the son of the former pastor, Dr. Marsh, sang a solo which was enjoyed by all present. Addresses of welcome were given by six men representing different departments of the work of the church. The Rev. Mr. Craw then came forward and in a few well chosen words expressed his thanks to all present who had extended words of welcome to himself and Mrs. Craw. He came among them to hold them to do the work of the Master in their midst, and he asked the sympathy and hearty co-operation of all. At the close the congregation was introduced by Mr. John McIntosh to the newly elected minister and his wife, when each by a hearty handshake, welcomed them to their new field of labour.

Refreshments were served at the close to all present. The people of the united charge are to be congratulated in the very happy settlement which has taken place; and on the man they have chosen as their minister. In Mrs. Craw, the manse at Springville has a lady who will worthily fill the place of Mrs. Marsh, who for so many years made herself the centre of many church activities in connection with the Springville congregation. Mrs. Craw by her sweet manner has already captured the hearts of the people.

Prices Will Be The Same

At a meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Baseball Club, it was decided to make no change in the scale of prices to be charged for the local Canadian League games this season.

Arrangements for the opening were also discussed. There will be the usual ceremonies, an automobile parade, headed by the band, and the customary frills at the grounds. It was decided to wait upon the Council at Monday's meeting and press for a half-holiday.

LAWS DON'T PREVENT CIGARETTE SMOKING

Dr. Bruce Smith Says Boys Will Get Tobacco If They Want It

OTTAWA, April 30.—That cigarette smoking among the young is the result of heredity and environment was the gist of the evidence given this morning by Dr. Bruce Smith, of Toronto, before the special parliamentary committee considering that problem.

The inspector of Ontario prisons gave it as their opinion that most moral reformers are beginning at the wrong end when they merely ask for more laws wherewith to punish the cigarette victim. Said he: "You have to go farther back than that. The 'keep-the-grass' policy never stops any evil."

Dr. Smith is opposed to any further prohibitory law. Boys who cannot buy cigarettes would steal tissue paper to make their own. It is the combustion of the tissue paper and the tobacco together which makes the cigarettes more harmful than pipe or cigar. Tobacco generally does not, he added, do as much harm to adults as tea drinking does to the women of Canada. The doctor also maintained that while some girls might smoke for a prank, the practice did not prevail to anything like the extent which some alarmists declare.

A child's welfare bureau, under federal control, with branches in every big centre, was Dr. Smith's recommendation as a means to educate children away from the cigarette and other evils.

He put little stock in the nitrate of silver cure for smokers, his view being that "if a person smokes cigarettes to excess you ought to treat his brain and not his throat."

CRITICISM OF HORSE SENSE ON HIGHWAYS

LONDON, Eng., May 1.—Postmaster-General Hobhouse was subjected to further severe criticism in the House of Commons to-day following his announcement that the net profit from this service during the last fiscal year was over twenty-seven million dollars. Sir Gilbert Parker, the distinguished Canadian novelist and M.P. in the British House, roundly denounced such a policy, say that he paid postal employees in the lower grades small salaries in order to build up an immense surplus at their expense.

MADAME NORDICA SAID TO BE DYING

BATAVIA, Java, April 30—Madame Lillian Nordica, who arrived here quite ill nearly a month ago, has had a relapse and is sinking. The doctors give up all hope of her recovery. She had engaged passage from Genoa, where her husband, George W. Young of New York had expected to meet her.

Madame Nordica, (Lillian Norton), pneumonia after a shipwreck off the Australian Coast.

Madame Nordica, (Lilian Norton), was born at Farmington, Maine, in 1856, and recived her musical education in Boston and Italy. In 1873 she was engaged and sang at the Crystal Palace in London. In more recent years she sang a great deal in Wagnerian opera, and had the distinction of appearing in Bayreuth in 1849. She has also been a distinguished member of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York for many seasons, her voice being a pure soprano of exceptional range and great power. She has been three times married, her first husband, an Englishman, being killed in a balloon accident. Her second husband was a Hungarian singer. In 1909 she was married in London to Mr. Young.

She was heard in Peterborough a year ago last fall.

English May Day Is An Ancient Holiday

(From the Toronto Mail and Empire)

May Day has no such significance to us in Canada as it has in other countries. In Ottawa there is a ceremony in Government House grounds and a Queen of the May is elected. In New Westminster they have a regular English celebration, and May Day there is one of the great holidays of the year. In Montreal it is the great moving day of the year, most leases falling due on the first of May, and in other parts of Quebec this significance attaches to May Day. In France and some other European countries it is the day for the beginning of strikes, and throughout the industrial world the first of May is a date more anxiously looked forward to, probably, than any other in the calendar. In England May Day has a peculiar character, and it is there that the beautiful old customs unchanged for more than a thousand years, will be enacted to-day in hundreds of villages, with the boys and girls dancing around the Maypoles set up in the Village greens all the way from John o' Groat's to Land's End.

The London Sweeps' Procession.

But though is cannot called a beautiful observance, the celebration of the London sweeps in London is performed to the greatest number of spectators. Most of the chimney sweeps in the city engage in it, and the procession winds through the streets for hours. No one appears to know when or where it will start, and citizens are likely to run across it two or three times in the course of the day. The chief feature of the sweeps' parade is a huge float in the form of a bower, beautifully decorated with flowers. In the midst is seated a grotesque figure, and the float is drawn by sweeps even more incongruously dressed. When the procession halts the sweep springs down from his bower and gives an exhibition of dancing and mad capering on the street. He is rewarded by coins flung into the hats of his assistants, and probaby the whole celebration of the sweeps is no more than a device to extract a few pounds from the pockets of the Londoners, who on May Day are apt to be in a generous mood. The sweeps' procession has been a May Day feature for years. Before that there used to be a parade of milkmaids, who danced along the streets leading cows wreathed in flowers.

Two Famous Maypoles.

May Day in London, however, has hardly been the same since the Puritans saw in the observances something Popish or pagan and sternly repressed them. Before that time, the greatest Maypoles in the world were in the City. One of the London parishes receives its name from the relation of the church steeple to the pole that used to be erected every May Day in the street. The pole was so high that it topped the steeple by several feet, and this fact is curiously preserved in the name of St. Andrew Undershaft. The most renowned Maypole in London, though, according to an attache of the British Embassy at Washington, who was interviewed by the Washington Star, was that erected immediately after the Restoration, when Charles II. ordered that the good old custom of observing the day should be revived.

In Rural England.

The tallest Maypole ever seen was planted in the Strand. Drums beat and flags flew as a detachment of sailors sent for the purpose by the Duke of York set up the pole in Little Drury Lane, opposite Somerset House, and ever since this part of the lane has been called Maypole Alley; although all traces of the great shaft vanished long ago. It is said that in some of the remoter villages there are to be found the Maypoles that were set up after the Restoration and a few that survived the rigors of the Commonwealth. The ceremonies in rural England are unchanged. There is the decking of the Maypole early in the morning by the young people, who have searched the wood for early flowers, the primrose being favourite. Then there is the dance about the pole and the jolility that Hardy has preserved in the opening scene of "Tess," and probably some deep potations, as was the unfortunate case with Mr. Durbyfield.

An Inheritance From Rome.

Tennyson has preserved for us the custom of electing a May Queen in his beautiful poem, and from a hundred writers, from Shakespeare, who refers to the Maypoles in "A Midsummer Nights Dream," to Dickens, who in "Barnaby Rudge" introduces us to that immortal taproom in the Maypole Inn we have references that show how deep an impression was created by the observance of this day. Rudkin in his time did much to revive interest in May Day, and it is thought that the Ottawa ceremonies are the direct result of his writing on the subject. The origin of the custom is somewhat obscure, but it is thought that May Day was established in England at the time of the Roman occupation, though it is rather odd that there should have been two pagan observances so alike and so closely following each other as those of Easter and May Day, for it is to be remembered that while the Resurrection is commemorated by Easter long before the Christian era the Romans had great feasts and celebrations about this time.

OVERDOSE OF HEROIN FATAL

BUFFALO, April 30—Following an investigation by Medical Examiner George B. Stocker and the police of the Pearl Street Station, Joseph King and his wife of 17 Court Street, were arrested recently and are held on an open charge. The police allege that a heroin party was held at the King apartment yesterday afternoon, and as a result, one man is dead and another lies in a critical condition at the Emergency Hospital.

William P. Maherg, alias Blake, 35 years old, of 610 North Nineteenth Street, Philadelphia, is dead, and Dr. Stocker wil perform an autopsy on the body. Blake's partner, Albert W. Parker, alias "Moxie," 31 years old, of 607 North Sixteenth Street, Philadelphia, is at the hospital, but it is believed that he will be discharged some time this week, and he too, will be taken into custody.

Hero of Heroin Party.

When the police were notified of Blake's death something mysterious was believed to have caused it and an investigation was immediately started by Dr. Stocker. Detectives claim that a heroin party was held at the King apartment yesterday afternoon and finally Blake and Parker became unconscious and were hurried to the Hospital. Both King and his wife declared that Blake and Parker were under the influence of liquor and drug.

King and Parker, the poice allege, are well known to the authorities. Some time ago headquarters detectives had King under arrest, but it was stated that the police were trying to persecute the man and he was let go in court.

eSarching Apartment.

After Dr. Stocker and the detectives complete their investigation, a charge may be placed against King, and his wife. However, they are still in custody and search is being made of their apartment and belongings for heroin.

Police Superintendent Michael Regan is in communication with the police of Philadelphia in an effort to earn something about the dead man.

EXPLANATION WILL BE GIVEN

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper. I would like to ask "An Englishman" and "Proud Englishman" to call at 285 Dalhousie street and an explanation will be given to them referring to an "Ad" recently in the evening paper, and after I have given them my "reasons" I will give them liberty to publish them in the paper, but I am afraid that part will be omitted. I might say my husband knew nothing whatever about the "Ad" until the following morning, when it was made known to him in the factory where he is employed.

Thanking you for space in your valuable paper, I remain,

A Member of a Good Old English Family.

ELECTED DELEGATES TO I.D.O.E.

The regular meeting of the Daughters of the Empire was held in their rooms at the Armouries yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Clegg, (Regent), presided. After the routine business was completed, two delegates were appointed to attend the I.D.O.E. to be held in Toronto, May 5th, 6th, and 7th. Several other members will attend also. Mrs. (Col.) Clegg and Mrs. (Major) Mills were the delegates elected.

The usual social time was then enjoyed, and Master Alevis Spellman, of Hastings, contributed an enjoyable solo on the 'cello. Mrs. Gliddon played the accompaniments on the piano.

CLAIMED $106 FROM A FORMER TENANT

The case of W. A. McIlmoyle vs. D. R. Henderson opened the Division Court this morning, and at the hour of going to press His Honour Judge Huycke was still listening to it. McIlmoyle claims $106 from the defendant for alleged injuries to his house at the corner of King and Rubidge Streets, which was vacated by the tenant in February.

Part of the evidence given this afternoon was in the form of details of the condition of the house when the tenant left it. The woman whom McIlmoyle engaged to clean it, said it was "fierce" in giving her description. The hardwood floor, she stated, in the drawing room and dining room was scraped as if by nails in heavy boots. Upstairs in one of the rooms there was what appeared to be tobacco spits on one of the walls.

To Mr. Gordon she stated that she did not think Mr. McIlmoyle had done it.

Do you think Mr. McIlmoyle's spits wouldn't dry on the wall, Mr. G. N. Gordon, counsel for defendant asked.

"Did you wash the wood work in the rooms?" he asked.

"Yes, I did."

"What was your object?" Was the wood work to be painted?"

"The wood was all grease."

"But you were told the reason for cleaning it?"

"It was to be painted."

Mr. J. L. Walker, painter and decorator, said he painted the bath room, halls, parlours and other rooms in the McIlmoyle house during February. The parlour walls were badly cut with nails, the dining room wall paper was considerably soiled and there were also nail marks. Some nail marks remained in the walls. On one room I did two years ago the paper was greased, soiled and there lead pencil marks.

C. J. Carrol said that he and Mr. McIlmoyle visited the house. The owner [illegible] he say the floors flooded. The water was coming from a tap that was about half open. Considerable water was coming from the tap. Witness had a key and went in with Mr. McIlmoyle [illegible] ter on the hardwood floor.

"I was trying to sell Mr. Zack the house. The floor looked as if it had been scraped. I am not sure whether there was a fire in the furnace or not. The house was vacated. Mr. McIlmoyle turned the water off in the cellar.

Mr. Jas. Sutherand, plumber, said he visited the McIlmoyle house about the end of January. The trap in the kitchen was choked with grease. There may have been some frost. I applied heat to the trap and loosened it. There was water on the kitchen floor. Grease collects in a trap when dish water is emptied into a sink. Some people manage to keep them clean."

Miss McIlmoyle was being examined at 3 o'clock.

HORSE SENSE

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was an eye-witness to a peculiar occurrence this morning which, I think is of general interest.

On my way to the office at about 8:15 a.m., a buggy passed me in Park street south carrying our manager to the same destination. The spirited horse trotted along gaily, but after the C.P.R. tracks were crossed he had a good look at the road—and then he quickly laid down on his back and had a fit, with the result that our manager had to walk the rest of the way.

Now, Mr. Editor, this animal had horse sense, which, of course, cannot be expected from our Mayor and Aldermen—because they are not horses.

Yours very truly,

Pasteurized Milk.

N.B.—If you don't believe this, just ring up "Doc" Robinson, it was his "rig." P.M.

Petes Spend Afternoon Learning A Complete New Code Of Signals

Manager Blount Strong Believer in Inside Ball and There Will Be Some System Used in the Coming Campaign --Pitcher Terrill Released Yesterday.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 30.—Manager Blount devoted the whole of the afternoon to-day to signal practice. The little leader is a keen believer in inside baseball, and the Petes will have considerable system about their methods this year, something different from the happy-go-lucky, every-man-for-himself policy of last season. At yesterday's workout all kinds of plays were pulled off by signal and for the remaining few days of practice, the Petes will be thoroughly drilled in the rudiments of team play, so that the team should be proficient in this line by the time the season opens. Considerable time will be devoted to signals from now on.

Manager Blount has not yet announced definitely the final composition of the squad which will be carried, but it is significant that only the following players were let in on the signals to-day: Catchers Millet, Ryberg, Kelly; Pitchers Schettler, Tracey, Cresswell, Sterling, Belting; Infielders Gorman, Price, King, Byrne; Outfielders Fox, Blount, Swartz.

Pitcher Sid Terrill was released this morning. The Rochester boy is a promising young fellow, who shou'd develop into a good pitcher, but he has been troubled with a sore arm, and had no chance of beating any of the regulars out of a berth.

The weather was cold this morning, and although the players reported as usual at the club house, Manager Blount decided that a workout would do more harm than good, and the morning practice was therefore declared off.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE WAS RE-ORGANIZED

Considerable Enthusiasm Shown at Meeting in Y.M.C.A. Last Night —Outside Men Will Probably Be Allowed This Year.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At an enthusiastic meeting held last evening in the Y.M.C.A., the Mercantile Baseball League was re-organized for the season. The meeting had been called to discuss the advisability of forming either a City or Mercantile League and the consensus of opinion among the delegates was that the Mercantile organization would be preferable, especially if each club was allowed the privilege of signing two or three outside men. The teams represented were the C.G.E. machine shop, C. G. E. Drafting Room, Bankers, Auburns, De Laval and Printers. Mr. Robert Carson was elected to the chair, and the following officers were elected:

Hon. President—Mr. Wm. Nelson.
President—C. Paton.
Vice—J. L. Murphy.
Secretary-Treasurer—W. English.
Executive—One representative from each team.

A committee composed of Messrs. Paton, Spratt, and Craig was appointed to go into the question of grounds, and secure information in this regard.

The meeting discussed various matters in connection with the League for some time. There was a feeling among some of the delegates that an effort should be made to cut down the membership of the League to four teams making a more workable schedule and providing a better class of ball. This and other matters were left over until a meeting of the officers and one representative from each team, to be held on Tuesday night next, in the Y. M. C. A.

FOR WORLD'S BANTAMWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

Examiner Special:

LONDON, May 1.—In a bout advertised as for the world's bantam weight championship, Charley Ledoux of France and Johnny Hughes of London, are to meet for 20 rounds in Cardiff to-morrow. Ledoux has held the French title, but his bouts in England and on the occasion of his visit to America several years ago did not stamp him as a world's champion. Hughes is a veteran of the London ring and stands at the head of his class. The meeting at Cardiff will be the third time that Hughes and Ledoux have faced one another in the ring. In their first bout Hughes lost on a foul in the second round, and in the second contest he lost a close decision on points.

LACROSSE EXECUTIVE MEETING TO-NIGHT

A meeting of the executive of the Lacrosse Club will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Examiner office when arrangements will be made for the first practice on Saturday afternoon, and other questions pertaining to future lacrosse work will be considered. All the members are requested to be present.

TYPOS TO MEET.

Printers should not forget the meeting of the Typos' Baseball Club tomorrow evening in The Examiner office at 7:30 sharp. Important business.

THE WESTERN ASSOCIATION GETS GOING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OKLAHAMA CITY, Okla., May 1.—The reorganized Western Association of Baseball Clubs started on its first pennant race to-day, with games scheduled to be played at Joplin, Mo., and Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla. For Smith appeared at Joplin, Muskogee at Tulsa and McAlister Oklahoma City. The schedule calls for a season of 140 games, ending September 13th. Class C. baseball will be played this year. If the association is successful this season it is the plan of the promoters to add two cities to the circuit next year, and place the organization in Class B. The claim is made that the association has the largest territory to draw from, with the shortest jumps between towns of any baseball league in the country.

BEAVERS WIN AGAIN

TORONTO, May 1.—That the Beavers will be a hard team to beat for the Canadian League honours is the opinion of those who have witnessed their work to date. They have played two exhibition games in the past three days, both of which have been victories. The second, played yesterday with the Park Nine of the City Amateur League at the Island Stadium, was won by 3 to 0. "Knotty" Lee has gathered a fast bunch of youngsters, who are, however, far from being in condition on account of the inclement weather of the past few weeks. Lee is now angling for new players, one of whom, Loud, an outfielder from South Bethlehem, Pa., is expected to report to-day. Purtell, an infielder, and a brother of the two Purtells now playing with the Montreal and Jersey City, is expected to arrive in a few days. Another outfielder is also being sought.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Catcher McNeal, of the 1913 Peterborough Club, who went south with the Buffalo Internationals this spring, was released to Manager Smith, of the Erie Yankees on Tuesday by Manager Clymer, of the Bisons.

Manager Ort, of the 1913 Saints, is playing shortstop in the exhibition games for the Toronto Beavers.

Ottawa has undoubtedly secured a good pitcher in Hall, whom they purchased from the Cleveland club. He pitched two games while on the four-day sojourn of the Ottawas, and displayed good form.

Hamilton Herald—There seems to be an opinion that Knotty Lee will finally wind up as manager of the Toronto Canadian League club. In fact, local fandom seems to be worrying more over this possibility than the men at the helm of the Toronto Canadian League club. James Jay McCaffery stated to-day that Knotty Lee was acting as business manager and scout for the Canuck Leaguers in the Queen City, but that as far as he knew there has been nothing said of his chance to pilot the club. Eddie Holly has refused, and Jack White, formerly of the Leafs and Bisons, is talked of, but no action will be taken in the matter for a few days.

CHATHAM, Ont., April 30. — George Nill, the former Washington and Cleveland second baseman, joined the Ottawa training camp yesterday and will either be played at second or third base this season. Spicer, who injured his ankle a week ago is about ready to get in the game again and will hold down short. Bullock has not shown the form expected of him this year and Manager Shaughnessy stated last night to a Free Press representative he would probably place Smejkal at third and place Nill on second.

An agreement has been reached between the Ottawa and St. Thomas clubs to open the season at St. Thomas next Wednesday, May 6th, instead of Thursday. The Duke of Connaught is visiting St. Thomas and the occasion has been made a holiday.

(Erie Despatch)

One more week for the grass to grow on Perryfield, and the fans will parade behind the Moose band to the diamond for the opening game of the season with Peterborough. With a few more summery days, Manager Smith expects to present to the rooters one of the strongest teams that has represented Erie in years.

All the squad but "Dummy" Taylor has been tried out and with the recent addition of McNeil of the Buffalo International to the receiving department, the Yankees have a team which expects to make a showing to be proud of in the Canadian circuit. With Schaeffer and Wiltze holding up the batting averages, Behan and Smith in shape to handle all the grass cutters, and Taylor, Osborne and Darbeck to carry the brunt of the box work, the Yanks present a well-rounded combination. Schaeffer in right, Dawson in centre and Harris or Dunn in left field, have practically been decided upon.

Daniels, whose throwing arm has been fixed up by Bonesetter Reese, probably will take turns with McNeil behind the bat, and Brown, Fitzpatrick, Sutton and Stark will finish out the pitching staff. Gygli will hold down the first corner.

The preliminary for the big show on May 7, is the automobile parade, which will form at the Chamber of Commerce behind the band and proceed up State street to Eighteenth, west to Peach street, down to Twelfth and thence to the ball park. City and county have ben asked to join in the procession the invitaton to any loyal fan being of course understood.

Curley Blount's Peterborough team has spent the past two weeks in practice at Youngstown, and from the advance notices, much may be expected of them. Pitcher Lew Shettler, one of the star performers in the Inter-State League last season, and Catcher Miller are among the mainstays of his team. Catcher Ryberg and Jimmy Gorman, first baseman, obtained from Atlantic City are others. Martin Hogan, who managed the Youngstown Inter-State League team last year, has been giving Blount valuable assistance in getting the squad in shape, although he has retired from the game except for an occasional yearning for the diamond which he overcomes by giving the benefit of his experience to the younger manager.

Hamilton Spectator—There is no doubt but that Manager Yates has a most likely squad at his disposal, but there is no getting away from the fact that the players are not as far advanced in condition and team work as they should be. It is in this regard that London, St. Thomas, Ottawa, Erie and Peterborough have the edge. All five teams have been playing games in Ohio and Michigan, with the London club coming out of the training season in the best shape of any of the clubs. Hamilton, Brantford and Toronto have suffered the most, with the worst possible shape of the lot. There is an element of much doubt as to the composition of the team that will represent Toronto in the League and present indications are that the Beavers will not make much noise in the League race, at least in the early proceedings.

Just what kind of teams will represent Peterborough and St. Thomas is not known yet, and will not be known for a couple of weeks. Erie, with the best of the old Guelph squad, and help from the Buffalo International League team available, should be a factor from the start, while London and Ottawa can be counted upon. The latter two teams should get away well, if spring dope counts for anything. As far as Hamilton is concerned, we are satisfied that the Hams will be very much in the race, and would call them to jump out at the front right from the start but for the fact that they have been held back to such an extent by the wretched weather.

As far as Hamilton is concerned, chief interest centres in the calibre of the local team and the strength of the Brantford and Ottawa aggregations. The rivalry between Hamilton and the other two centres is of the keenest, and the Ottawa-Hamilton and Ottawa-Brantford clashes this year will prove to be the events of a long schedule. Rube Deneau and Frank Shaughnessy are undoubtedly the most popular managers in the circuit. The fans like Deneau and respect him, while they have a large, wholesome respect for Shaughnessy, even though the big bow-legged chap is not as popular as Deneau. The other pilots in the League may be good ones, but it is safe to say that none of them will have anything on the Brantford and Ottawa leaders.

SNOW FELL IN LINDSAY DISTRICT.

The last day of April and snow! This is no April Fool joke, but a fact, there being a light fall of snow very early this morning in Lindsay. At Haliburton, it is understod, that there was quite a heavy fall, and that the ground was mantled with snow when the residents awoke this morning.—Post.

What Might Be.

If a man goes to church, and receives something there that sends him out with more courage, makes him feel better disposed toward his fellows, and stirs him to ambition to dignify his service to other men, he will go back to that church again. He will go because he has been benefitted. Multiply that man by the million and you have an idea of the possibilities of the church.

"THE INVISIBLE GUEST"

PARIS, April 30.—Maurice Maeterlinck, "the Belgium Shakespeare," has dismissed the trainers who were teaching him to box and is now devoting himself to writing a sensational book entitled "The Invisible Guest," calculated to refute existing psychical theories.

Maeterlinck's contenaion is that all our evil impulses and misguided opinions are inspired by a mysterious spirit—"The Invisible Guest"—which accompanies men through life.

This evil spirit, according to Maeterlinck's contention is that exorcised by special physical exercises, which he describes in his book.

CRITICISM OF THE WHISKEY SPOTTERS

Below is a quotation from Jack Canuck referring to a liquor case in Guelph a short time ago. It will be remembered that some time ago the two whiskey spotters, Solomon and Armstrong, gave evidence in Peterborough against Mr. D. M. King of Norwood, who was charged with selling liquor in a local option district. The information was laid by the Provincial License Department on the instance of the two spotters. It was tried here and Magistrate Edmison completely discounted the evidence of the two men, Solomon and Armstrong, and dismissed the case:

The Toronto weekly says:

"The business of the whiskey spotter may be necessary to put down the illegal sale of liquor, but the authorities have, of late, been guilty of employing certain men on whose evidence it would not be safe "to hang a dog."

At Guelph last week a case of more than ordinary interest was heard, before His Honour Judge Chadwick. This comprised two appeals, one by a hotelkeeper at Elora, from a decision of a Magistrate at that place, the other by the Inspector against the dismissal of a charge. The hearing was practically a new trial. The chief witnesses were two worthies named Henry Solomon and Frank Armstrong, who have been in the employ of the Government in various parts of the Province and have been pretty well discredited in mor than one case they have figured in. These fellows swore they secured liquor from the hotelkeeper in Elora on Sunday the 8th of February and a conviction was made, some Magistrates evidently concluding it is necessary to take the words of a spotter at the Gospel truth. Judge Chadwick severely censured the spotters, and characterized them as unreliable witnesses. This looks as if the Court believed them guilty of perjury. The license Department are never taken back when the men employed as spotters are found out in an untrue statement in the witness box. It is all in the day's work. The lapses of these men are never reported. They are protected. It is time the Attorney-General woke up to the ever-increasing perjury committed by these "protected pimps," and had a few of them sent down for it. Too many have absolutely no regard for the sanctity of an oath."

PACKING AWAY CLOTHING.

It will pay to send the cloth suit to the cleaner before packing away. The cost is very little compared to the probable loss if put away soiled. Moths are sure to find a spot if it is at all possible. The suit can be placed away in the box it comes home in. The sleeves should be stuffed with tissue paper, and plenty of paper should be put into the folds. A bag of lavender will keep off moths quite as well as camphor and will be found much more agreeable when the suit comes out of its wrapping again. A strip of newspaper should be pasted around the opening of the box, and the box itself be wrapped in newspapers. Moths dislike printers' ink.

Ostrich feathers, also birds and wings, should be treated with gasoline or alcohol before being packed away. Otherwise they are apt to disappear, all except the quills during their rest.

Heavy draperies and rugs must be well beaten and then rolled up and placed where sun and air can reach them. It is a mistake to pack them away in a dark place.

In covering upholstered furniture with slip covers care should be taken that moth eggs are not covered also. It is a wise plan to take off the covers now and then, also to examine the rugs and draperies for any intruders.

Delicious Cream Puffs.

One cup boiling water poured over half-cup of butter, and while still hot add one cup sifted flour. Let cool, then add three unbeaten eggs. Beat 10 minutes, then add soda size of pea. Drop on large baking tin by large spoonfuls. Be sure to leave space between for them to rise and spread a little. This recipe will make 12 nice large puffs or cakes.

Establish A New Month in Commemoration Of Peace Centennial

A Novel Proposal Made by the Moosejaw Times as Feature of Celebration--Peace Month From June 18 to July 16

The action of the United States in going to war with Mexico has come at a most unfortunate time, when everyone was discussing measures for celebrating 100 years of peace between the United States, Great Britain and Canada. The moral effect of the peace celebrations is, therefore, somewhat likely to be disturbed by the war-like operations.

Up to the present we have not seen any really worthy memorial proposed for the peace centennial. There are various propositions, including one for an exhibition, but so far there is a great lack of imagination in all of the proposals. What is needed to worthily celebrate the occasion is some form of a general memorial in which the whole of the English-speaking race could join, something which would appeal to sentiment and which would be both a permanent and a constant reminder, and have an educative effect in the interests of peace.

Our proposal is that this opportunity should be taken to reform the present cumbersome calendar with its twelve months of unequal length, derived from the vanity of a dead and gone Roman emperor, who altered the orderly sequence of thirty-one and thirty day months established by by Julius Caesar.

The earliest calendars were based upon the seasons and upon the synodic revolutions of the moon, which were found to occupy a fixed period of 29 1-2 days, but although it is probable that lunar divisions of time formed the first calendars, it was speedily found that there was a difficulty in making a fixed calendar which perpetually corresponded with the various seasonal equinoxes. Both the Egyptians and the Greeks were successful in getting a satisfactory calendar, but the Romans certainly came nearest to the right principle. The old Roman calendar consisted of ten months, totalling 304 days, and commenced in March, January and February not then being in existence. Romulus is supposed to have made this division, and the months—excepting January and February—had the same names as at present, with the exception of July, which was known as "Quintilis," and August, which was known as "Sextilis."

The Roman calendar however, was a complicated affair, dating backward from fixed epochs, the Kalends, the Nones and the Ides. In the reign of Numa, January and February were added to the year, one at the beginning, the other at the end, and intercalary months were inserted every second year, consisting of 22 and 23 days alternately, to make the year agree with the solar year.

In the time of Julius Caesar the calendar had, however, got three months out of date, which is to say that the winter months were carried back in autumn and the autumnal into summer, and the year was arranged by Julius to start on the 1st of January, 46 B.C., which was the 708th year from the foundation of Rome. The length of the 1st, 3rd, 5th, 7th, 9th and 11th months was made 31 days each, and the others thirty days, except February, which was given 29 days, save in every fourth year, which was made a 30-day month. This was a very easy system to remember, the alternate months being 31 and 30 days each with great regularity.

The difficulty of any fixed calendar is that the solar year consists exactly of 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 46 seconds, and some device had to be found for rectifying the annual difference between the fixed calendar year and the astronomical calendar. In the present calendar adopted by English-speaking countries, this is done by making the year consist of 365 days with an extra day to February every fourth year, and as this is not exactly right, giving a little too much time, in every 100th year, the extra day in February is dropped. This device was adopted by Pope Gregory in A.D. 325.

As already explained February originally had 29 days, but when the name of the Emperor Augustus was given to the month "Sextilis" the vanity of Augustus led to his objecting to his month being shorter than that of Julius Caesar, so he stole the odd day from February and added it to his own month, and in order not to allow three months of 31 days to follow on together, September and November were reduced to 30 days and 31 given to October and December.

The subject is too intricate to be discussed in an ordinary newspaper article, but this is sufficient to show the reasons for the present uneven months, which cause us so much trouble. The calendar was reformed in the time of Pope Gregory, when it had got ten days out of date, and the Gregorian calendar was adopted by the English-speaking race in 1752.

To provide a worthy memorial of the peace centennial, there is proposed that the present arbitrary system of twelve months of uneven length should be abandoned, and that while no attempt should be made to meddle with the Gregorian system of reconciling a fixed calendar with the solar year as present in force, that there should be substituted for the present twelve months, thirteen lunar months, twelve of them having 28 days each, and the thirteenth, or "PEACE" month, having 29 days to distinguish it. This would give a year of 365 days, and February would still have 29 in leap year, as under the present system. By this arrangement the new calendar would work out like this in any year not a leap year:

New Calendar No. days	Present Calendar Commencing	Ending
Jan...28	Jan. 1	Jan. 28
Feb...28	Jan. 29	Feb. 25
Mar...28	Feb. 26	March 25
Apr...28	Mar. 26	April 22
May..28	April 23	May 20
June..28	May 21	June 17
PEACE 29	June 18	July 16
July..28	July 17	Aug. 13
Aug. 28	Aug. 14	Sept. 10
Sept. 28	Sept. 11	Oct. 8
Oct. 28	Oct. 9	Nov. 5
Nov...28	Nov. 6	Dec. 3
Dec...28	Dec. 4	Dec. 31

With this arrangement from January 1st to "PEACE" 1st, each month would begin on the same day of the week and each date of each month would recur regularly on the same day. If, for instance, this calendar had been in use since January 1st, 1914, during the first seven months of the year, Thursday would have always been on the 1st, 8th, 15th and 22nd of the month, and Friday would always have been on the 2nd, 9th, 16th and 23rd, while Saturday would have always been on the 3rd, 10th, 17th and 24th, and each other day in the same way. Again for the last six months in the year the same rule would apply, only remembering that Friday would have always been the first day of each month, instead of Thursday.

The new month of "PEACE" would be full of historical anniversaries. The first day of it would start on what is now the 18th of June, and curiously enough this would be the day which is marked as the beginning of the war between Great Britain and the U.S.A. in 1812, the peaceful conclusion of which we are to celebrate. It is also the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, which brought peace to Europe after the 100 years 'war. The second "Peace" day would be an anniversary of importance to the English-speaking race all over the world, as it is the anniversary of the signing of the Magna Charta. It was also the date on which the Alabama was sunk by the Kearsage in 1864. The third of the new month would be notable as the date when Queen Victoria ascended to the throne. The fourth day would be that of her proclamation, and of her Jubilee of 1887. The fifth would be the date of the Diamond Jubilee, and the sixth (old June 23rd), the birthday of the present Prince of Wales. The seventh "Peace" would be midsummer day, as well as the anniversary of Bannockburn, a date of importance to Scots, the eighth of the anniversary of the repeal of the Corn laws, the eleventh that of the coronation of Queen Victoria. The fourteenth of the new month would be an important anniversary to Canada, as it would be Dominion day, being the first of July in our present calendar. The fifteenth is a peace anniversary celebrated in British history, namely, the Act of Union; the sixteenth would be an important anniversary to the United States, as it is that of the battle of Gettysburg; the seventh (old July 4) would be the anniversary of Independence day an anniversary dear to the hearts of 98 millions of the English-speaking race, and one which the rest of us have no ill-feeling about. The eighteenth of the new month of "Peace" would be the anniversary of the birthday of Cecil J. Rhodes, whose magnificent bequests of Oxford scholarships are shared in by Canada and the United States. The nineteenth is the anniversary of the marriage of our present King and the 21st the birthday of Joe Chamberlain, whilst the 23rd is known as the birthday of Captain Marryat. The twenty-fourth would mark the bombardment of Alexandria; the 25th the anniversary of the evacuation of the Crimea after peace had been arranged; the 26th the signing of the Treaty of Berlin, and the 27th that of the massacre at Cawnpore, whilst no doubt our American friends could supply many other interesting anniversaries which fall between the first and the twenty-ninth days of the proposed month of "PEACE," which, according to the present style, comprises the dates between the 18th June and 16th July, inclusive. It will thus be seen that twenty of the twenty-nine days of the new month of "PEACE" would be historical anniversaries. The actual signing of the peace treaty of Ghent, after the war of 1812 took place on December 24th, which would be December 20th under the new calendar, so it is not in the "PEACE" month, unfortunately.

Here is a novel and impressive way of celebrating the 100 years of peace between the two countries. To our American cousins the idea of regulating the calendar in this manner should prove very acceptable, as it would agree with their business-like ideas. There is really no reason why we should continue to use the twelve months with their uneven dates and the difficulty which they present of remembering without consulting an almanac exactly what date it is. We most of us remember the day of the week and under a reformed calendar we should have no difficulty in remembering the date, because it would be based on regular and logical rules.

It would be impossible to bring about such a reform unless it were taken up warmly in America as well as in the British Isles and in Canada. The idea of thirteen months to the year is not quite a new one, but, although something of the same sort in a different form has found its way into print at various times during the past few years, the Editor of the Times can claim absolute originality for the proposal, which he made in slightly different form in an interview with the London Daily Mail on May 10th, 1897, and all the various reprints have had the suggestion of 1897 as their base.

The chief advantage of so striking a memorial would be that it could be participated in by everybody. It would not need a cent of contributions. It would be a permanent and yet a continuous reminder of the benefits of "Peace."

Mere Drudgery Says Young Lady

BOSTON, April 30.—Miss Helen Cudahy, the millionaire's daughter, who came out of the West to learn nursing at the Massachusetts General Hospital, has decided not to stay. Her reason is summarized in this remark:

"I thought training in a hospital meant taking care of patients. I find it is three-fourths housework and drudgery."

Miss Cudahy is the daughter of Packer Patrick Cudahy. For five years Miss Cudahy has longed to study nursing. Her mother said it was "undignified." Her father—self-made man himself — said: "Good! Fine! Shows the right spirit!"

People guessed a romance might lie behind. They asked Miss Cudahy. Said she:

"No. I simply believe that every girl should be able to earn her own living. Though I may never work for pay, I propose to know how."

After five years, Miss Cudahy entered the Massachusetts General Hospital on April 1. Her announced plan was to spend three years winning her diploma from the hospital. But now she declares that at the end of her three months' probation she will leave.

It is the rule at the Massachusetts General Hospital that every second Thursday a general inspection of the hospital shall be made. Dr. Hollins usually makes the inspection. With his dust bag and dust cloth he goes through every ward, climbing up to rub his cloth along the tops of window sills, or stooping to examine the bed springs. Woe to the nurse responsible if he finds so much as a speck of dust.

The probationers—Miss Cudahy is one of them—dread this inspection, for upon them falls the work of making ready. Miss Cudahy, after two weeks of sweeping, carrying meals to patients, bed-making, dusting and similar tasks, found herself assigned to clean the linen closet

Heavy sheets and pillow cases high-piled, must be lifted out, sorted and replaced. Every shelf must be dustless. The drawers of the closet must be cleaned with the utmost care.

Miss Cudahy did it. "I don't intend to keep it up," she said. "Three years is too long. I think I may stay three months, but no longer.

"If I enter another hospital, it may be a private one, where there is not so much dusting and carrying trays and scouring them. I want to be more with the patients."

The other nurses in the big main hall were surprised. For Miss Cudahy had been a willing, cheerful worker. Her eagerness to be allowed to attend patients is common to probationers. But the hospital authorities allow no probationers to do anything but routine work; for the girls need training and testing before they can be trusted with dangerous cases.

Popular Young Farmer Speaks

Tells What Dodd's Kidney Pills Did for Him.

He's Back at Work Again, After Suffering from the Pains, Nervousness and Depression that Only Kidney Disease Can Bring.

Point Alexander, Ont., May 1. — (Special).—Mr. D. A. Froncare, a well-known and popular young farmer, living near here, who has been a sufferer from kidney disease for some time past, is back at work again, and he says without hesitation, that his cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was always tired and nervous," Mr. Froncare says, in speaking of his illness. "I suffered from backache and neuralgia, and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. My eyes were puffed and there were dark red circles around them.

"My muscles would cramp. I felt heavy and sleepy afterwards, and I was depressed and low-spirited, while shortness of breath and dizzy spells served to make life yet more miserable for me.

"I was always thirsty; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My symptoms led me to believe I had kidney disease, and I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have taken eight boxes in all, and I am very grateful for the benefit I have received from them."

If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH WOMENS' ASSOCIATION ENTERTAINED LAST NIGHT

The ladies of St. John's Church Women's Association entertained last evening a large party composed of the congregation of St. John's Anglican Church. The evening was passed in a guessing competition on the names of flowers hidden up in words such as "a beau — a wild animal"—Dandelion. "A lover's prayer"—Forget-me-not"; "a pretence—a piece of stone — Shamrock. Slips of paper had been handed round to a few of the favoured ones who were expected to do what was commanded thereon, such as singing a song, spinning a yarn, imitating a dog or some other animal, and so on.

There were various other games, the nature of which the "Examiner" representative failed to comprehend, probably owing to the thickness of his skull wherein is supposed to be located that small portion of grey matter necessary for comprehension.

"Musical chairs" and "Sir Roger de Coverly" followed, subsequent to which dainty refreshments were served round by some of the ladies.

The rector of St. John's, Canon Davidson, then in a short speech, thanked the ladies for the successful entertainment they had provided, and at ten o'clock the proceedings terminated by the singing of the National Anthem, "God Save the King."

Don't Measure Your Sleep.

Half an hour's nap every afternoon will do more to brighten the eyes than any amount of belladonna.

It is really impossible to sleep too much. The moment we cease to require it we get up—it becomes irksome to us to remain still.

Many people will not trust nature in this matter in the very least, and they insist on measuring sleep.

Nervous persons require more sleep than others, but are generally unable to sleep.

LUCKY WINDFALLS.

Some Large Rewards For Very Small Services.

Some little time ago the Quinlan G and Opera Company landed in Melbourne to commence a tour through the states of the Commonwealth. The horn-player was Mr. William Busby, formerly a soldier in the British army. It seems that ten years ago Mr. Busby rescued from drowning a child who had fallen over Chelsea Bridge. The father of the child handed him ten pounds, and said, "You will hear from me later." The Royal Humane Society also awarded Mr. Busby its medal for so gallant a rescue. When the company stepped ashore at Melbourne a cable message was awaiting Mr. Busby. It informed him that the father of the rescued child had died and left him $35,000. When the news was communicated to the other members of the company they gathered round the musician and gave him three hearty cheers.

A Nantwich shoemaker and clogger named George Robinson lately had a windfall as the sequel of an incident which occurred twelve years ago. He was then a journeyman shoemaker, and accidentally met outside Nantwich an invalid lady, accompanied by her nurse. He happened to be carrying a bunch of roses, and as the lady admired the flowers, he said: "Would you like some, madam?" The lady replied that she would be very grateful, adding that she wished to put some roses on her mother's grave. Recently a solicitor visited Mr. Robinso and told him that the invalid lady had died, and in her will had left a legacy of $600 to the donor of the bunch of roses.

The younger brother of Lord Soudes is Mr. Henry Miles-Lade, a name which he assumed in 1900 at the time of his accession to lands and money. He came by his riches in a romantic manner. He chanced to open a gate for an old lady, an entire stranger, and in gratitude for this courteous act she left him a fortune and a country place in Kent.

Workhouses and infirmaries have not infrequently received payment for past services. At a meeting of the committee in Greek street, Soho square, of the House of Charity for Distressed Persons in London, it was stated that a poorly-clad woman had called and handed to the warden a bag contining one hundred sovereigns. Fifty years ago, the woman said, she had received great kindness when an inmate of the institution, and had saved the money since that time in order to make the present.

Ray Rubber Cure.

For sleeping sickness, natives in Northern Nigeria use raw rubber as a "cure," says Sir F. D. Legard, Governor-General of Nigeria, in his annual report to the Colonial Office. The rubber is applied to an incision in the neck which exposes the gland and is removed when it has hardened.

COAL MINE EXPLOSIONS.

They May Have a Connection With Seismic Disturbances.

Not a few notable examples of danger periods in coal mines have occurred simultaneously with periods of seismic unrest. As examples of such coincidences in recent years may be cited the Mont Pelee period, 1902, marked by the loss of 550 lives in four mine explosions; the Formosa, Japan, 1906, costing several thousand lives and $45,000,000 property loss, marked by the terrible Courtieres explosion, in which 1,200 lives were sacrificed; the Takashima explosion, 307 lives, and a number of less fatal explosions in West Virginia and Colorado, which were almost immediately followed by the San Francisco disaster, that destroyed $300,000,000 worth of property and over 2,000 lives. The entire period covered less than two months and was followed four months later by the destructive Valparaiso earthquake, with a property loss of $250,000,000 and 7,000 lives, which was almost immediately followed by a remarkable series of mine explosions at Bluefield, W. Va., thirty lives; Raton, N. M., fifteen lives; Windgate, England, twenty-five lives; Pocahontas, Va., thirty-five lives, etc.

This was followed, again, by the Kingston, Jamaica, disaster, January, 1907, with a $10,000,000 property loss and 1,000 lives, which was coincident with the renewed activity of Mount Etna and earthquake in Sumatra, costing 1,500 lives. Simultaneous with this outbreak was the loss, in mine explosions, of twenty-four lives at Primero, Colo.; 250 at Essen, Germany; twelve at Lorents mine; eighty-four at Stuart, and twenty-five at Thomas, W. Va., and numerous others in other states. The remarkable concomitance of these periods of seismic unrest and danger in mines due to prevalence of gas point to the consideration of the globe as a unit, sensitive in a varying degree to the physical changes in its crust.—Coal Age.

Seeing It Himself.

An actor who recently was taken while on the stage by a cinematograph was greatly pleased with the result. Talking about it to a prominent dramatic critic, he said:

"It was the most extraordinary experience I ever went through—actually to see myself acting."

"Now," replied the critic, "you will understand what we have to put up with."—New York Globe.

Methuselah Practiced It.

Says Benjamin Franklin in his little essay "On the Art of Procuring Pleasant Dreams:"

"It is recorded that Methusalem, who being the longest liver, may be supposed to have best preserved his health that he slept always in the open air, for when he had lived 500 years an angel said to him, 'Arise, Methusalem, and build thee an house, for thou shalt live 500 years longer.' But Methusalem answered and said: 'If I am to live but 500 years longer, it is not worth while to build me an house. I will sleep in the air, as I have been used to do.'"

This dialogue is not reported in the fifth chapter of Genesis, to be sure, but it is reproduced here out of respect to Franklin as evidence that outdoor sleeping is no fad, but a wise return to the manners of our ancestors.—Harper's Weekly.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

THE NAME GOETHALS.

It Means "Stiff Necked" and Dates From the Crusaders.

The soldier and administrative military man have been bred in George Washington Goethals for three generations. He is claimed now by many cities and states, but he is a "Brooklyn boy," although his ancestry is Swiss and of the military Swiss at that. His grandfather was a surgeon in the French army and was with Napoleon at Austerlitz. His own father, John Goethals, was born in Switzerland and moved to Amsterdam in his early boyhood. In 1848 he came to this country, making his home in Brooklyn, where in 1858 Colonel Goethals was born.

The origin of the family name is interesting. In good Dutch it is the equivalent of the English "stiff necked" and was conferred on the first of the present line, who was one of the crusaders, by an early king of Flanders. This man was fighting side by side with his king when a foe struck him a mighty blow. The sword was turned aside by the armor, and the man kept on fighting. A second blow was struck, but still the man kept on fighting before the eyes of his king until the battle was won. After the conflict the king called the warrior to his side and commended him for his prowess.

"Sire," said the soldier, "I break before I bend."

"Henceforth," said the king, "thy name is Goethals, the stiff necked." The name "stuck," and for centuries the family motto has been, "We break before we bend."—New York Herald.

Passive Resisters Make Truce.

A mass meeting of Indians, addressed by Mr. Gandhi and other leaders, recently at Durban, endorsed the provisional agreement arranged between the Government and Mr. Gandhi under which the Indians agreed to suspend the passive resistance movement pending the findings of the Commission of Inquiry, while the Government undertook to release the Indians imprisoned in connection with the movement.

ROUND THE HOUSE

In a little while more we shall be donning our spring suits, and it is well to have the chest or wardrobe ready for the winter clothes and then, too, if you begin now and take things by degrees, getting all the little things done, you won't find yourself turning the house topsy-turvy when the actual cleaning time arrives.

All closet shelves and bureau drawers should be lined, or covered with paper of some sort. It not only makes them look neater, but helps to keep the dust out.

One of the best things for the chest or closet shelf where the winter clothes are to be stored is the ordinary newspaper. Moths abominate printers' ink, so it is really a preventive; although it is not wise to depend altogether on the newspaper to keep the moth out.

Suits and coats should be hung on hangers wherever it is possible.

If however, they must be laid away in chests or drawers, fld them inside out, with sleeves down at the sides, and lapels folded in. When folding a skirt, never leave a crease down the centre. All necessary creases should be made in the sides of the skirt, and where it is folded over at the top a roll of soft paper should be put in the crease. Fold men's coats and vests in the same manner.

While newspapers are just the thing for the chest or closet, they do not look so well in the bureau drawers, and many women dislike them for this purpose because they think the ink is apt to come off on their underwear, so the nicest paper for a bureau drawer is a manilla wrapping paper which comes wide enough to fit any size drawer. It is an excellent quality of paper with a smooth finish, good and strong.

For the buffet, sideboard or closet where china is kept, there is the white shelf paper, which every woman knows about. This always looks neat, and makes a dainty finish for the china shelf. The paper edging comes in strips.

For pantry shelves and kitchen dresser, there is nothing so neat nor so sanitary as the white shelf oilcloth. This can be washed and will last for years. Paper is not practical for these shelves. When cleaning out the dresser and pantry shelves it is well to sprinkle a little insect powder of some kind around in the corners, as a preventive against ants, roaches and so forth, for these little pests will come sometimes, even in the best regulated household.

It is not often that womankind is blessed with such an abundance of dainty neckwear at one time. The fichu, ruches and frills about the neck, wide flat lace collars, of lace or net, the new stiffened organdie and lawn collars that flare about the face, the outstanding Japanese collar—all these are shown on the best models. All of them, too, are graceful and attractive, and well calculated to tempt woman to indulge in them.

The idea of trimming the backs of our frocks is developed to the fullest to-day. There have been seasons when we felt more or less like paper dolls—as if we must keep our fronts turned to those on whom we wanted to make a good impression. Not so this season. Some of the new evening frocks show the outline of the decolletage in the back bordered with huge artificial roses. The bustle, of course, is distinctly a back trimming.

SNARE OF THE POPPY

OPIUM HOLDS THOUSANDS IN LONDON IN ITS GRASP.

Chinamen Are the Chief Users and Purveyors of the Drug Whose Clutch It Is Almost Impossible to Shake Off—How the Traffic Is Carried On In the World's Metropolis—Accessories Are Costly.

It was Slim Jim, tallest and most urbane of confidence men, who took me down to Ho Chang's little shop off the West India Dock road, says a writer in a London paper. Ho Chang is a venerable Chinaman who sells groceries and various Celestial edibles, keeps a boarding-house for Chinese sailors and retails opium. Of course, if his lodgers do indulge in fan-tan or lottery, well that is none of his business and none of mine. At one time he was unofficial envoy, magistrate, and general heavy father to the Chinese population of the East End.

He sells most of the opium which is consumed in London. His clients are practically all Americans, for the "habit" has spread enormously in the United States, especially among the criminal and undesirable classes. A few of the English "mob" and a number of French, who are not wanted in France, and who have learnt it in seaport towns also indulge, but opium-smoking is too lengthy a practice to appeal to the English, who have every opportunity to adopt it in India and the Straits Settlements, but hardly ever fall victims to it.

Now, Ho Chang does not keep a "hop joint," or opium den, such as you read of in sensational books, and which only exist to fascinate credulous tourists; but if he knows you are Mr. Right, he will allow you to smoke in a little room, and even send a China boy to cook for you. He was most courteous to me, but then Slim Jim and Slim Jim's allies were excellent customers.

The venerable Celestial insisted on our consuming some of his best "hop" a very expensive compound, valued at about 32s. for a tin the size of a one-pound cocoa tin. He sent us up an urbane China boy, who smiled like a lazy cat and refused to talk English.

The youth produced the paraphernalia, while Ho Chang clapped his hands for tea to be brought. Incidentally, he showed us some magnificent jade ornaments, some of his family heirlooms.

We then laid down on parallel couches, between which was a little table supporting the tray on which the outfit was placed. The boy, squatting on his haunches, dipped an instrument resembling a darning needle into a tin of brown treacly opium, turned the needle round and round, then held it over a curiously-ornamented little lamp while the opium hissed and spluttered. He then rounded the compound off into cone-shape by rolling it on the plate or bowl of the pipe, a long bamboo instrument that I will describe later on; then placing the end of the needle into the little pinhole in the centre of the bowl, handed the pipe to Jim, who quickly turned the cone of opium towards the lamp flame just as if he were lighting a cigarette, and inhaled the smoke.

When my turn came, I could not inhale much, and this is probably why the six "pills" (as the cones are dubbed) did not affect me very seriously. When we had finished the actual smoking we lay and talked in lazy sleeping tones to Ho Chang, who after twenty minutes, gave us Chinese tea. After the sleepy, languid period, which lasted about half-an-hour, I felt tremendously energetic, and also very nervous. These symptoms were more pronounced when, a few days later, I swallowed portions of cooked "pills" instead of smoking them. This gave me a violent craving for tea or chocolate, and sweet edibles.

I have seen at Ho Chang's several women smokers, three of whom are very well known to the police. One of the great fascinations of opium is to smoke it in a woman's company, and then talk, talk, talk, in a dull monotone. An opium smoker will tell all he knows when under the influence of the drug.

The outfit is very expensive. The pipe's value increases as it gets seasoned. An ordinary bamboo may be worth from $15 to $35, while the ivory, silver, and eaglewood instruments used by wealthy Chinamen are worth large sums. The pipe itself is a long tube, the mouthpiece at one end, but solid at the other. About two-thirds down the pipe from the mouthpiece is a small plate of polished wood with a V-shaped base fitted into the pipe.

In the centre of the plate is the pin-hole through which the smoke filters into the base and subsequently through to the smoker's mouth. As the pipe is used, so does the pipe's base get tempered and filled with an opium ash named "yen-chee," which is smoked by poverty-stricken habitues, just as a tobacco smoker will use up cigarette ends in times of financial distress.

The other items are (1) the "yen-hock" or darning needle used to scoop up the opium; (2) the tin of opium; (3) an ash tray; (4) a little bowl of water with a sponge, used to clean the pipe-plate; (5) a small oil-lamp.

The tray itself is often a perfect work of art as the different accessories are when they belong to wealthy Chinamen. Both in Liverpool and Cardiff, opium-smoking is more prevalent than in London, where these white people who indulge, usually do so in their own homes. A "yen-yen," or opium-hunger, will develop after four months' habitual smoking. The victim's eyes water, he has fearful pains in the stomach, and will make every effort to obtain the drug.

The most famous opium den there was in London was kept by a French half-caste named Lamar, just off the Ratcliffe Highway.

THE VOGUE OF WHITE

Frocks for the Riviera or for Florida are always a fascinating subject, for in a land of sunshine and flowers the attire can be far more beautiful and delicate in colouring than is the case when rain, fogs and generally inclement weather must be taken into consideration.

White is, of course, the favourite scheme, for indeed, nothing looks prettier, especially for morning, than the spotless white serge tailor-made, white shoes and stockings and the chic little hat, the latter carried out in black and white for preference, or in some one definite colour.

The new model coats and skirts now being shown for this purpose are exceedingly charming, very fine serge, flannel, cloth or a new material of silk and wool mixture that falls in excellent folds, all being used with great success.

The majority of the skirts are draped, while the coats are fairly short, reaching to half way down the hip, the latter being losely cut with revers and cuffs of silk or satin, piped or strapped with a contrasting colour.

While hats are to be much worn in the South this season, but where the dead white so near the face is bound to be unbecoming, a band of black velvet about an inch wide is added, that comes right around the hat next to the hair—a touch that in many cases is the greatest improvement.

CERTAIN CURE FOR A COLD.

Take three cents' worth of licorice, three of rock candy, three of gum-arabic, and put them in a quart of water; simmer until thoroughly dissolved, then add three cents' worth of paregoric and a like quantity of antimonial wine.

A PAGE OF THE BEST HUMOR OF THE WEEK

It Pays to Advertise.

An obscure truth is of no particular consequence unless by some personal touch, attention is called to it in an original way. The recent experience of a young man out of work in New York illustrates this. He tied a placard on his back, a la sandwich-man, and started to walk up Broadway. On the placard, in large letters, he had painted: "I want a job." He got it.

The teacher had guests at school one afternoon and naturally was anxious for her pupils to make a good impression.

"William," she asked of a rosy-faced lad, "can you tell me who George Washington was?"

"Yes, ma'am," was the quick reply. "He was an American gen'ral."

"Quite right," replied the teacher. "And can you tell us what George Washington was remarkable for?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the little boy. "He was remarkable because he was an American and told the truth."

Mr. Brown had just registered and was about to turn away when the clerk asked:

"Beg pardon, but what is your name?"

"Name!" echoed the indignant guest. "Don't you see my signature there on the register?"

"I do," returned the clerk calmly. "That is what aroused my curiosity."

AT THE HORSE SHOW

Minnie—Are you a good judge of horseflesh?

Tillie—I don't know, my dear; I never ate any.

A Big Difference.

A learned bishop was once taken to task by some of his denominational brethren on the charge of exhibiting conceit of himself at variance with the spirit of humanity.

"It is not conceit," replied the bishop, with that ponderous bearing that silenced opposition. "It is not conceit, brethren. It is the consciousness of superiority."

Identifying Himself.

One of the guests at a wedding, seeing a dismal-looking young man who appeared to be on terms of familiarity with the principals asked:

"Are you related to the bride or to the bridegroom-elect?"

"No," was the gloomy reply.

"Then," said the guest, "what interest have you in the ceremony?"

"Well," replied the young man, "I'm the defeated candidate."

The Trouble.

Willis.—Then you really think the Sunday papers give a child false ideas of life?

Gillis.—You bet. Look at the idea it gives him of the purchasing power of a nickel!

Revised.

I shot an aero into the air.
It fell to earth, I know just where—
For I was there!

In the course of one of his lecture trips, Mark Twain arrived at a small town. Before dinner he went to a barber's shop to be shaved.

"You're a stranger?" asked the barber.

"Yes," Mark Twain replied. "This is the first time I've been here."

"You chose a good time to come," the barber continued. "Mark Twain is going to read and lecture tonight. You'll go, I suppose?"

"Oh, I guess so."

"Have you bought your ticket?"

"Not yet."

"But everything is sold out. You'll have to stand."

"How very annoying!" Mark Twain said, with a sigh. "I never saw such luck. I always have to stand when that fellow lectures."

Injured Party (who has just been turned out of a public-house, explaining his little grievance): "Now, what d'you shay, constable? D'you think I'm intoxicated?"

Constable: "Yes, I should certainly say you were."

Injured Party: "Well, I'm quite willing to be analyzed."

An old Scotch lady was compelled to carry an ear-trumpet with her wherever she went. Upon visiting a small church in Scotland, not long ago, she was watched very suspiciously by the sexton until she reached her seat. Then, as if he could stand the suspicion no longer, he went over to her and, shaking a warning finger emphatically, he said:

"Madam—one toot, and you're oot."

"Now, boys," said the schoolmaster, "I want you to bear in mind that the word 'stan' at the end of a word means the place of—thus we have Afghanistan—the place of the Afghans; also Hindustan—the place of the Hindus. Can anyone give another example?"

Nobody appeared very anxious to do so, until little Johnny Snaggs, the joy of his mother and the terror of the cats, said proudly:

"Yes, sir, I can. Umbrellastan—the place for umbrellas."

The other morning Mrs. Jones went to see her neighbor, Mrs. Smith. It was obvious that she was greatly upset about something. "I'll have to get rid of Fido," she burst out. "He broke into the larder yesterday."

"Dear me!" said Mrs. Smith, sympathetically. "Did he eat much?"

Mrs. Jones tried hard to speak calmly, while her eyes blazed with righteous wrath and burning indignation, as she replied:

"Every single thing except the dog biscuits!"

A well known suffragette was recently talking to a reporter about the comparative deceitfulness of men and women.

"Women," said the reporter, "are the more deceitful."

"No," said the suffragette, "men are the worse. Look at the way they deceive their wives."

"Do you claim," the reporter asked, "that men should never deceive their wives?"

The would-be voter smiled. "Oh, no," she said.

"How could the average man ever get a wife if he didn't deceive her?"

An American who prided himself on a wonderful imagination that could conceive the biggest lies on record once made a wager that he could tell a greater falsehood than any man in the town where he resided. The stakes being deposited, he proclaimed that he once threw a tenpenny nail with such force that it pierced the moon.

"Aye, that is true," exclaimed another man. "I saw him do it, for I stood on the other side and caught the nail."

A barber, after scraping away industriously for a few moments, made the usual inquiry:

"Razor all right, sir?"

"My good man, if you hadn't mentioned it I should never have known there was a razor on my face."

The barber beamed.

"Thank you, sir," he said.

"No," added the customer, reflectively, "I should have thought you were using a file."

TWICE LENT.

Gladys—Does your husband give you an allowance?

Delores—Oh, yes; but he borrows it before I get a chance to spend any of it.

The dean of a certain cathedral was one day walking thru the precincts when he came upon a laborer at work on a small plastering job. The man looked up at him, and went on with his work without touching his cap.

This lack of due respect nettled the dean, who purposely passed the place shortly afterwards. Again the man failed to salute, and the dean said, reprovingly:

"My man, do you know who I am? I am the dean of this cathedral."

The laborer glanced from the short-tempered cleric to the lofty building, and replied:

"And a very good berth, too. Mind you keep it!"

What She Meant.

Amelia was all sweet, nice, and nervous, and she said to her sweetheart:

"You have been so old a friend, I want to tell you something. I am," and she blushed, "I am going to be married."

"Wait," he cried, hoarsely. "Before you go further, hear me. I must say it, tho I have no right now, but I will have less right later. I love you; I adore you; I have loved you since we were children together. I do not see how I can live and see you the wife of another. But at least you will know that I have loved you all these years, and when you hear the wind sigh over my distant grave—of course, that is nonsense—"

"Don't take on so, John Henry," she said, softly. "I'm going to marry—you!"

Then the strong man fainted, and, as she bent over him, a determined little line showed about her mouth, and she muttered: "I had to do something to bring him to it."

One of the newly-rich, John Johnson by name, to establish a sort of literary character, had bought a lot of books, among them a copy of a rare old dictionary. It was somewhat out of repair, and he took it to the binder's. When finished, he noticed that the words, "Johnson's Dictionary," has been stamped on the back. He fell into a furious passion, and demanded of the man:

"Why didn't you put the full name on—John Johnson's Dictionary?"

First Workman: "Got any baccy on yer, Bill?"
Second Ditto: "Yus; but I thought as 'ow you 'ad stopped smokin'?"
First Ditto: "Wal, I'm a-doin' of it gradual like—I don't smoke me own baccy no more."

Customer: "Waiter, confound it, this steak isn't tender enough!"

Waiter (who is under notice to leave): "Not tender enough? Well, what do you expect? Do you want it to jump up and hug and kiss you?"

"Your wife used to like to sing, and she played the piano a lot. Now we don't hear her at all. How's that?"

"She hasn't the time. We have two children."

"Well, well! After all, children are a blessing!"

Bald-headed Gentleman (in barber's shop): "You ought to cut my hair cheaper; there is nothing much to cut."

Hairdresser: "Oh, no: in your case we don't charge for cutting the hair, we charge for having to search for it."

Customer: "You say those watches cost five shillings to make? Why, that is the price you are selling them at!"

Jeweler: "That's quite right."

Customer: "Then how do you make any profit?"

Jeweler: "Repairing them."

Mrs. Upton: "My dear, one servant is not enough in the kitchen. We must have two."

Mr. Upton: "Good gracious! We have three daughters, and only yesterday I paid a bill for their tuition in a cookery school."

Mrs. Upton: "Yes, that's what is the matter. They are all assisting at the cooking, and Kate says she must have additional help to clear up the mess."

"Here, sir," said the antique dealer, displaying a huge sword to a clerical looking collector. "Ever see anything more interesting than that? That's Balaam's sword."

"But, my good man, that cannot be," said the deminie. "Balaam never had a sword. He only wished for one."

"Quite right, sir," said the dealer. "This is the one he wished for!"

Mr. John Burns always has a stock of good stories. One he tells concerning a visit he once paid to a London lunatic asylum. He was taken all over the establishment, and finally arrived at the gardens, where a number of the patients were working. Mr. Burns espied among these a man with whom he had some slight acquaintance, and was about to speak to him when the lunatic suddenly exclaimed:

"Well, I never! You, too! The very last person I thought to see here."

SURELY NOT.

Kindly Gent—Willie, aren't you afraid you're late for supper?

Willie—Naw! I got de meat.

Hot, Rather.

A party of commercial travelers seated round the coffee-room fire were drawing the long bow and spinning yarns of wonderful adventures on sea and land. A silent listener sat in the corner. Presently one of the company addressed him:

"Have you traveled much, sir?"

"A little. I've been round the world seven times."

"Then you must have had some striking experiences. Perhaps you would like to tell us one or two."

"Well," said the stranger, "perhaps the most remarkable was on my last voyage. At one time we found the heat so terrific that we used to take it in turns to go down into the stoke-hole to get cooler."

No more yarns were related that evening.

"I am like Balaam," said a dandy, on meeting a pretty girl in a narrow passage, "stopped by an angel."

"And I am like the angel," said she, "stopped by an ass."

Essentials.

Cub: "I suppose the three 'R's' are still the essential foundation for a good newspaper?"

Editor: "Not on your life. It's the three 'S's' nowadays."

Cub: "Three 'S's'?"

Editor: "Yep! We've got to have a snappy editorial writer, snoopy reporters, and a snippy society editress."

IMPOSSIBLE.

Wyler—Lend me a dollar, old chap! If I live until Wednesday I'll pay you.

Smyler—Couldn't do it! You couldn't live until Wednesday on a dollar.

How He Escaped.

Everyone in the smoking-room with one exception, had been telling forth on his own personal bravery and presence of mind. Everybody, with the same exception, had related at least one hair-raising episode in which he figured with remarkable of course.

At last the silent exception was asked if he had had an experience resembling which the boastful of liars had been recounting.

"Only once," answered, yawning. "I'd dropped into a circus to pass away a couple of hours. It was a cheery little show, and the performing elephants were particularly wonderful. Suddenly there was a shriek from the women. The biggest elephant had escaped from his keeper, and was making for the most crowded part of the tent—where I happened to be sitting, by the way. There was a stampede of frightened people. Hoarse yells rent and split the air from all corners and directions. Strong men fainted, and panic was all too manifest on every side."

The silent one's listeners regarded him with rolling eyes and lolling tongues.

"But I am proud to say," continued that gentleman, "that I kept my head, and, in consequence, escaped injury."

"What on earth did you do?" someone asked.

"I? Oh, I just kept on running behind the elephant!"

Explained.

Mandy: "Yessah; after de shot was fired, mah Rastus dun run seben blocks as de crow flies."

Judge: "As the crow flies?"

Mandy: "Yessah; all you could see was jes' one black streak."

New Suffrage Has Come.

Lawyer (in equal suffrage state): "Don't worry, the jury is sure to disagree."

Prisoner: "But are you certain?"

Lawyer: "It's inevitable; two of the jurors are man and wife!"

Oh! These Skirts!

Mrs. Mode: "John, leave my hobble skirt at the ladies tailor's to be pressed.

Mode: "Nonsense. I'll take it to my men's tailor, tell him it's the pant of a one-legged man, and get it pressed for half price.

Quite Proper.

Assistant: "What will we do for comments on this speech that Fitznoodle gave at the chamber of commerce last night? He sent us a copy, but we didn't have a man there."

Editor: "That's a cinch. Wherever he mentions our schools and churches put 'mild applause,' where he mentions our breweries put 'wild applause,' and if there is any reference to our ball team put 'pandemonium.'"

Fashion's Slave.

Crawford: "So your wife kept nagging at you for money because she hadn't any decent clothes?"

Crabshaw: "Yes, and as soon as she got it she invested in Dutch necks and skin-tight skirts!"

So Thoughtful.

Lillie: "I hear that your father is to replace your motor car with an aeroplane."

Tillie: "Yes, poor dear! He thinks we can't see the milliners' show windows from an aeroplane."

His Secret.

"There goes one of the most successful dentists in this town; and yet he knows little about dentistry."

"What's the secret of his success, then?"

"He keeps the magazine table in his waiting room strictly up to date."

A [illegible] Stick.

That grocer who sells thirty-eight and forty-six cents per pound out of the same tub is sometimes a great stickler for honesty.

Shading Down.

Nervous performer at country concert: "I haven't — never—sung to a pyanner bevore, but I dessay we'll get on all right if ye can just play the high notes a bit low, mum."

At the Movies.

He (his arm around her): "What a dainty wrist you have, honey!"

She: "That isn't my wrist, dearie! That's the ankle of the man beside me!"

Classified.

Uncle Ezra (on first visit to city, in front of door): "It's all marble in there, Eben; but I don't know what kind of a place it is."

Uncle Eben (ditto): "Don't show your ignorance, Ezra. If the people are wrapped up, it's a Turkish bath; if they ain't got much on, it's a fashionable restaurant."

Some men are so wise that it seems as tho they must have been born at a much earlier age than the rest of us.

Where one man throws his whole soul into his work another man is satisfied to put his foot in it.

Tell a woman she has a beautiful nose, and she will get cross-eyed from constantly looking at it.

"SAFETY FIRST."

He jests at scars who has never been at war with himself.

The people who are content are merely those who don't know any better.

The man who is on the winning side is most apt to preach the triumph of right.

The fellow who is always on the fence must be pretty well balanced to stay there.

Big Guys.

Jay: "I'm not in favor of these high baseball salaries."

Joe: "Why?"

Jay: "It's getting so nowadays that a player will soon call a taxi when he gets a pass to first."

The X-Ray Skirt Again.

Ed: "Why is Miss Bones like a bum pitcher?"

Ike: "You got me."

Ed: "She can't show any curves."

Force of Habit.

Willis (in the cemetery): "This can't be Hardupp's grave. The inscription reads 'Mrs. Hardupp.'"

Gillis: "Yes, but you see he had his tombstone, like his other things, put in his wife's name."

Pertinent.

Mrs. Henpeck: "It would be better for you men if the women had votes."

Henpeck: "Do you mean that if you were bossing things outside you would stop doing it at home?"

It Was Hard.

"Have you anything to say before sentence is pronounced against you?" asked the judge.

"The only thing I'm kicking about," answered the burglar, "is bein' identified by a man that kept his head under the bed clothes the whole time. That's wrong."

Overdid It.

Assistant: "What's the matter?"

Publisher: "Matter enough! This new publicity man has ruined us!"

Assistant: "I thought you said he was the best man we ever had?"

Publisher: "He was 'till he discovered that our edition of the Bible was our best selling book last year. Now he has spread broadcast pictures of the author, his wife, photographs of him shooting in the Rockies, jabbering with the neighbors, and feeding his pets, and has even arranged a tentative lecture tour for him."

Few Can.

Willis: "Wonderful memory Bump has."

Gillis: "Indeed?"

Willis: "Yes. You could go to him right now and he could tell you just where he put his lawn mower, flannel trousers, and screen doors."

Something Just as Good.

Don't talk too much is a good motto. A stiff lower jaw is sometimes as useful as a stiff upper lip.

It takes nerve to allow a dentist to kill one.

The weaker a man is the stronger his habits grow on him.

It is quite possible to eliminate the sting from a joke and still retain its point.

We would have to be gifted with second sight to see what some men and women ever see in each other.

BASHFUL.

H. E. Mark—Young Smith stands there like a piece of furniture.

Tux E. Doc—Yes; plain wall mate.

Never tell a fat girl that she is all wool and a yard wide.

It's a cinch that the man who is wedded to his art never marries her for money.

The spectacle of a man with a future marrying a woman with a past is ever present.

Lots of failures can be traced to the belief that other people are not quite as smart as we are.

To the man who is always waiting for something to turn up, success is always just around the corner of the next street.

A man is apt to think his latest good resolution is the best he ever broke.

Time may be money, but it hangs much more heavily on our hands.

Women wear so much false hair nowadays that it is extremely difficult to tell which is switch.

The man who feels that he has a message for the world generally sends it collect.

The egotist wouldn't be satisfied with himself unless he felt that everybody else was also satisfied with him.

His Way.

"I never return borrowed money," said Bentley. "You see, people are so close-fisted nowadays that when I borrowed a dollar they make me feel that I have earned it."

The Real Need.

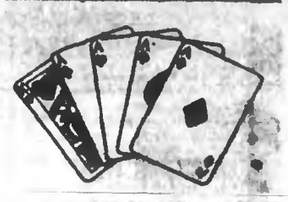
Willis: They have got automobiles within the reach of the average man's pocketbook now.

Gillis: Yes. Now I hope they'll get them within reach of the average man's understanding.

Ah, Yes!

Englishman (learning baseball): Tell me, old top, why did you just call that shortstop a "bird"?

American: Why, he was captured in the bushes!



A masterly hand, or a safety razor.

Did His Part.

A little boy of five was invited to a children's party. The next day he was giving an account of the fun, and said that each of the little visitors had contributed either a song, a recitation, or music for the pleasure of the rest.

"Oh, poor little Jack!" said his mother. "How very unfortunate you could do nothing!"

"Yes, I could, mother," replied the young hopeful. "I stood up and said my prayers!"

New Duty.

"Mabel, I'm drawn on the grand jury."

"So am I, Gertrude."

"Our responsibilities will be heavy."

"I realize that. What shall we wear?"

"What would you do when first employed to bring an action?" asked an examiner of a young candidate for the legal profession.

"Ask for a retaining fee," was the prompt reply. He passed.

Dancing Elsewhere.

Bo Heme—I suppose you found your visit to Russia very interesting. What did you notice specially?

Cosmopolite—The absence of Russian dancers.

Trying to Please One.

Angry diner—Waiter, you are not fit to serve a pig!

Waiter—I am doing my best, sir.

Right Impulse, But Wrong Foot.

George—Didn't you notice that I pressed your foot at dinner tonight?

Ethel—Why, it wasn't my foot you pressed. Oh, George, I wondered why mother was smiling so sweetly at the minister!

Dead Game.

Photographer—Full length or bust?

Uncle Si—Sure! An' if she busts I gues I kin stand it.

No.

"Was Eve a snake charmer?"

"No, frien'; those were the days when snakes did the charming."

Just the Girl.

She: "I hear you were disappointed in love."

He: "Oh, no; love is all right!"

Prohibited.

Frosh: "What did Jinks shave his moustache for?"

Soph: "Basketball."

Frosh: "Basketball?"

Soph: "Yep; unnecessary roughness is prohibited."

A Child's Query.

"Mamma, are you going to bed, that you are putting on your nightgown?"

"No, my child; I am going to dinner in the city."

Characteristic.

Pete: "The poker habit sure got Jones, didn't it?"

Skeet: "Yep; he even walks with a shuffle."

A Terrible Jolt.

He: "Miss Smith, do you like animals?"

She: "Are you fishing for compliments?"

Insulted.

Salesman: "I think you will find this cook book very suggestive."

Bride-elect: "Sir!"

Mistress: "Why have you put two hot-water bottles in my bed, Bridget?"

Bridget: "Sure, Mem, was of thim was looking, and I didn't know which, so I put both in to make sure."

STARCHING MUSLIN COLLARS

There is only one valid objection to the new muslin collars. They are fragile. Like maline, moisture reduces them to shapelessness. Wrinkles are as obvious on them as they are on linen shirtwaists.

Fortunately, laundering restores them to their original state of dainty loveliness if the laundering is of the right sort.

These collars depend for their shape on their stiffness. Sometimes they are stiff enough if they are ironed wet. But usually they need a little starch.

Here is a recipe for the right sort of starch to use for these collars of linen and organdie that are the earmark of the new fashions:

Add a piece of paraffin the size of an egg and a piece of white or castile soap the size of a hazelnut to a quart of boiling water. Mix the starch with cold water in a bowl, using whatever proportions of starch to a quart of water that the particular brand of starch calls for to make a thin starch. Add the cold mixture to the boiling mixture and let it boil up two or three times. Then add a little blueing in liquid form.

VEGETABLE RECIPES

Parsnip Tartare.

To make parsnips tartare you scrape six small parsnips and parcook them in two tablespoonfuls of oil and a gill of water; mix one ounce of flour smooth with a teaspoonful of water, adding to it the juice of a quarter of a demon and a flavouring of salt and cotelline pepper and a pinch of sugar. Lift out the parsnips and stir the flour into the oil till it comes to the boil, then put back the parsnips and cook till tender. Serve with a good white sauce or a gill of cream heated.

Parsnip Balls.

For parsnip balls wash, peel and oil some parsnips till tender (they will take from one-half to one hour and a half according to size), then drain and mash them smooth with a wooden spoon; now put two breakfast cupfuls of the puree into a pan with a teaspoonful of salt and a dust of pepper, two ounces of butter and two tablespoonfuls of cream; mix well and stir it over the fire till bubbling. Now mix in, off the fire, one egg and leave the mixture till cold, when you roll it into balls, egg and breadcrumb them and fry a golden brown in plenty of boiling fat, then drain and serve very hot.

Scalloped Parsnips.

For scalloped parsnips prepare two cupfuls of parsnip puree as above, pile in in a well buttered fireproof dish and sprinkle it thickly with breadcrumbs, dot tiny pieces of butter over the surface and bake till nicely coloured. It is most excellent if two or three spoonfuls of good shrimp sauce be placed in the bottom of the dish before putting in the parsnip, or failing this mix a little anchovy sauce with the puree.

Cabbage With Cheese.

Boil a cabbage in the usual way, drain boi la cabbage in the usual way, drain well, press out all the water and chop it up. Make a sauce with one ounce each of butter and flour and half a pint of milk, seasoning it with a saltspoonful of salt and a little cotelline pepper. Have ready a buttered fireproof dish, spread a layer of the cabbage at the bottom of the dish, cover it with some of the sauce, dust rather thickly with grated Parmesan cheese, and make a second layer in the same way; cover with grated breadcrumbs, dot tiny pieces of butter over the surface, and place in the oven till nicely coloured, then serve very hot.

Mashed Nettles.

Mashed nettles and eggs is made by gathering the young green tops of the ordinary stinging nettles, wash them well, then cook in plenty of boiling salted water till tender; now drain them quite dry, chop finely or sieve them, and stir over the fire with a good pat of butter (the amount of course depending on the quantity of nettles cooked), and pepper and salt to taste. When quite hot and well blended turn out in a pile on a hot dish and serve garnished with quartered hard boiled eggs. If preferred th nettle puree, which should be of the consistency of spinach puree, can be lifted out in spoonfuls, shaped into balls with a hot wet knife, hollowed at the top and a poached egg placed in each. This must be done quickly, as the vegetable should be served very hot, either plain or with any white sauce to taste, round it.

Stuffed Onions.

For stuffed onions take some Spanish ones, boil them in water, then remove the inner parts and chop them up with an equal weight of breadcrumbs previously soaked in fish stock and squeezed out, a few browned almonds cut into shreds, pepper and two or three pounded cloves, two hard boiled eggs, and two ounces of grated cheese; fill the onions again with the stuffing, flour them, dip in beaten eggs, and fry it, butter or oil; put them in a casserole with the sauce given below, cook for half an hour, and serve. For the sauce, put in a pan one ounce butter, or the equivalent of oil, and one ounce of finely chopped onion and let them fry over a quick fire till nicely coloured; then add half a pint of tomato puree and some minced parsley, and tarragon; cook it all together for an hour and a half, strain, and use.

IN THE NEW COSTUMES MUCH OF THE DRAPERY IS DRAWN TO THE BACK.

At a recent showing of imported fashions there were several long, all enveloping motoring coats that were practical as well as smart. They were of homespun or tweed, with now and then one of the new cottons; perhaps the most noticeable thing about these wraps was their lightness of weight. The day has passed for women to wrap themselves in heavy, cumbersome materials; although thick and warm, the new coating fabrics are not heavy.

No. 8322 is a full length coat developed in chartreuse homespun with buttons and stitchings of black. A feature of this coat is the wide armhole and the novel collar.

To make this garment in size 36, 6¾ yards of 42 inch material are required.

Among the new costumes one sees quite a few that are entirely plain in front, having all the drapery drawn to the back. It is perhaps a more pleasing idea than that of a season or two back when most of the draperies were in front. In this instance, No. 8341, is shown a cleverly designed frock showing the new fad for "hiking" the skirt up a trifle in back; if this is not fancied the pattern is arranged for an inset section at the bottom. On this skirt the drapery is arranged to suggest a half panel in the back. The bodice is cut kimono; there is a small round collar and a vest effect with the lower portion pleated. Dark blue gabardine was used here combined with black satin.

This design requires for size 36, 7 yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8322—sizes 32 to 44.

No. 8341—sizes 34 to 42.

Each pattern 15 cents.

THE TRIMMING OF HATS

The hats of the coming season are more dependent on outline than trimming. This is especially true of tailored hats. The most important thing is the selection of a becoming shape, and too much stress cannot be laid upon this fact.

The sailor shape is always becoming, since it may be found with a narrow or wide brim, high or low crown, either soft or stiff, round or oblong in shape, with the brim straight, drooping or rolling, and the trimming either up or down. The bandeau, which is on many of the smartest models, gives a decidedly new appearance to sailors. Invariably the left side of the bandeau is much higher, giving the hat a decided tilt over the right side.

These hats may be trimmed with a little wreath of old-fashioned garden flowers, such as forget-me-nots and silk moss roses, or in an endless variety of other ways to suit the taste. Another attractive trimming for such hats is a bunch of small flowers in charming colour combination, including all the new tango and orange shades, mustard, lime and olive greens, rose and tomato shades, and a variety of other colours equally pretty.

Clusters of roses are arranged so as to form huge pompons. Compact bands of small flowers are used across plaques, at the edge of brims and mid-way up crowns. Hat pins made of small flowers are placed, at some clever angle to transform a tailored hat into a dress hat.

For the earliest spring days a black straw sailor in one of the new shapes may be trimmed with one white and one black feather pompon posed as high up as possible at the left side front, and right side back of the crown. These pompons of a good grade of cut ostrich feathers may be bought in back, white or in colours, or any feather shop will make them up from bits of old plumes. Fruits and combinations of fruit and flower trimmings are used in conventional bunches as the sole trimming on sailor and other hats.

A cut feather pompon, a straight, fancy of cut flowers, or a new butterfly wing, all of which come in wide variety of flowers or in black and white, or even a single bow of ribbon, might trim many of the new hats very stylishly.

Since the success of the hat depends upon the angle at which the trimming is placed, many of the tailored hats get their distinction from the pose of the dashing, long-looped bows that trim them.

The hats that are trimmed with these bows are small. They look almost top heavy in the head, but once properly adjusted the effect is smart. The most pleasing thing about the spring millinery is an endless variety in shapes, straws and trimmings, so every type of woman may be well suited.

THE NEW COIFFURE

Although every woman asks how it is done, the new coiffure is easy. Much easier than the one we had to learn three years ago. Then false hair was required; now it is taboo.

There is no room for any artificial addition to-day, for one is not quite sure what to do with the hair that grows on the scalp. You see, the hats are so small already that they can just about get on the head, and the woman who is unsophisticated tries to pull the crown to hide her tresses, and, failing, wants to cry.

After she has spent two more dollars on the coiffure and discovers that her ears and the back of her neck and behind her ears are entirely exposed, she wonders if she is the victim of a hoax. She is not. She is in the fashion. Yes, the hair is pulled straight up from the forehead and the back of the neck. There are not many women who look their best in this style, so in some way they will benefit to modify.

Naturally, the lovely creatures who have that clear-cut profile that will allow such heroic treatment are glorying in the fact and making other women feel as badly as they can.

When this coiffure becomes quite established, we shall find it a simple matter to get dressed in the morning. We draw the locks toward the crown of the head, roll all of it into a French twist, pull down or pin in a few tendrils at the side near the we are ready for the day.

Such a coiffure would be excessively bad under a large hat, one that sunk down on the head, so the milliners have invented a hat that lifs itself so high, on heir hair one would think the old-fashioned bandeau had been revived. It has, not, so far, but its speedy use would not startle anyone now who has seriously watched the trend of millinery.

Over at Le Comte's, in the Rue Daunou, where the fashionables go to have their hair done, Camille can show anyone how to go about it, says a Paris correspondent. Here is the way he works on this new coiffure:

He draws the widely waved hair away from the forehead, leaving a point in the middle of it if possible. If the forehead is ungainly in its height he draws as much of the hair down on it as it will need, but his aim is to keep it entirely flat. There must not be any lifting until the hair passes the line of the brow.

As it nears the crown he begins to pull it slightly up until it goes on a slanting line to the end of the French twist, which he brings up from the back.

He skilfully covers the back hair with the front, the soft curled ends, tucking them into the twist. No knot shows, no bulge, no excrescence. There is a smooth surface except for the wonderful waving, but the whole structure lifts outward at the crown.

The woman who can stand it will omit the waving, for straight hair is quite fashionable. And if she wishes a smart touch she will add the accroches-coeur at the temples—the beau-râtcher of a quarter of a century ago.

THOUGHT IT WOULD KILL HIM

Terrible Torture From Chronic Indigestion, Short Treatment With "Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured The Whole Trouble.

C. T. HILL, Esq.

Chatham, Ont., April 3rd, 1913

"Some two years ago, I was a great sufferer from Indigestion. I treated with a prominent physician here for some time, but I did not get any better so I went in to see him one day and said "Doctor, what do I owe you? I am not getting any better and am going to quit you." I paid him his bill and he remarked to me, "Charlie, you have a case of chronic Indigestion that will be hard to cure."

I left his office and as I stepped out on the street my eye caught a bill board advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives"—that big "Fat Man and Thin Man" and I said to myself, "If Fruit-a-tives will build me up like that, it's good enough for me." I walked directly over to Park's Drug Store and I bought a box of "Fruit-a-tives." After taking these wonderful tablets for only three weeks, I found myself greatly improved. I continued taking them for a short time longer and cured myself entirely. My case was no light one either, for many times when I was on the street, I was compelled to go into some store or business place until the acute spasms wore away. Gas would often form in my stomach and I was in daily fear it would get around my heart and kill me. To-day, I have no such fears. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Stomach Troubles."

C. T. HILL.

Perhaps your case is exactly like Mr. Hill's. If so, do exactly as he did—take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure yourself. "Fruit-a-tives" will prevent the formation of gas in the stomach by making digestion complete. It will insure the food being promptly digested by providing an aboundance of gastric juice in the stomach. It keeps the stomach sweet and clean, not only by helping the digestion but also by regulating Kidneys and Bowels and toning up the system.

If you suffer with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Belching, Gas on the Stomach, Heart Pains after Eating, take "Fruit-a-tives." 50c. a box. 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. at all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

CROWN AND POLITICS.

Sidney Low Outlines the Powers of a Governor-General.

Sidney Low, the famous lecturer on constitutional and imperial law, speaking at King's College recently, said the ruling party in the colonies was supposed to bear the same relation to the Governor that it did in this country to the crown, but in fact, the relation was a good deal different. The Governor did not derive most of his power from the acts of the Imperial Parliament, but from the term of the commission given to him when he accepted office. It was on this that responsible government depended, and it usually required the Governor not to keep in office Ministers who had lost the confidence of the elected representatives.

The Governor had only that part of the royal prerogative that was conferred on him by his commission, and he was liable, like other subjects, for illegal acts if done outside the scope of his commission, which was usually very vague, conferring on him, for instance, the "powers necessary for the purposes of his office and belonging thereto." The Governor was authorised and enjoined in certain undefined cases not to accept the advice of his council, but to act in opposition.

Unlike the King, the Governor could do wrong, and was personally liable for illegal acts unless he was covered by his commission. He was in the unfortunate position of being bound to take advice and of yet being unable to shelter behind it. The Governor was an imperial officer as well as chief of the state, and he had the duty of safeguarding the interests of the Empire as well as those of the colony. He was therefore entitled to veto any bill that might interfere with matters of imperial policy. This tendency, however, was beginning to be felt, that the exercise of such a veto would be unconstitutional.

Political Windfalls.

Several bygone politicians have received even more substantial tributes from their admirers than the brothers Redmond and Mr. Keir Hardie, who, under the will of Miss Jane Kippen, divide $50,000 between them.

Cobden gave himself up so much to politics that his affairs were always in disorder, but no man ever had more generous friends. The best of these was John Pennington Thomasson, formerly M.P. for Bolton, who presented him with several large sums, amounting in one instance to $35,000.

The romantic story of Disraeli and Mrs. Brydges Williams is another case in point. There was a spice of mystery in this which appealed to Disraeli, says The Manchester Courier; the assignations pressed on him by the lady with increasing fervor till he went to meet her, the envelope containing a $5,000 note thrust into his hands, and the bequest at a critical time in his life of the whole of the lady's fortune—all this belongs to the realms of fiction rather than of workaday fact.

The elder Pitt enjoyed two political windfalls. Under the will of that old termegant, Sarah Duchess of Marlborough, he received $50,000 "for the noble defence he made for the support of the laws of England." At a later stage in his career Pitt was left an estate of some $15,000 by Sir William Pynsent, whom he had never met and with whom he had never corresponded.

Lord Gifford's Hats.

The late Lord Gifford, who first came into prominence in the west of Scotland at a period when a lectureship on natural theology would have been regarded as profane and "irreligious"—as counsel for the crown in the Sandyford murder trial, was, so The Glasgow Herald tells, possessed at the time of his death of forty-seven hats. This seems an extravagant reserve of hats even in so windy a place as Edinburgh. However, his taste as a collector did not take such an eccentric turn as that of the literary man of last century whose means and estate included about as many pairs of trousers as Lord Gifford had hats—and forty mustard pots.

Marathon of Two Regiments.

Two regiments of British infantry paraded in running "shorts" at Aldershot a few days ago. The men of the 52nd Light Infantry and the men of the Worcesters stood side by side on the parade ground. The colonel of the Worcesters dropped his cap, and the two regiments dashed forward on a five miles' contest of speed, in which the 52nd were victorious.

The race was to be awarded to the regiment with the first fifty men home, and it was a close shave, for the 52nd's half-hundred were not safe within the fold before the Worcesters had forty-six home.

Hogarth Forgot.

Hogarth, the famous artist, was very vain and very absent minded. When the sale of his prints had made him prosperous he set up a carriage and one day went in it to visit the lord mayor.

While he was in the Mansion House the weather became stormy, and Hogarth, who happened to go out at a different door, after vainly searching for a hackney coach, walked home through the rain and was soaked to the skin. He had entirely forgotten his carriage.

Every Person Welcomes The Approach of Spring

But every person does not care for that dull, tired, listless, all-down-and-out, don't-care-to-do-any-work feeling that overcomes one at this time of the year.

This feeling is caused by the eating of rich and heavy foods during the winter months, which, along, with the indoor life, causes an accumulation of undigested and refuse matter in the system.

What is really needed at this time of the year is Conductors' Punches Are Registered.

"The passenger on a railroad train when he has his ticket punched probably does not know that the punch mark used by the conductor is one of 17,000 different designs," remarked Frank E. Brown, an old time railroad man. "On the big railroads there are no two punches that have marks designed alike, and the interstate commerce commission by examining the punch mark can trace the ticket punched to the conductor, train and road upon which the ticket was given. To get a punch a conductor has to sign seven papers before it is delivered to him. There used to be an old couplet, Mark Twain wrote it, which ran:

Punch, punch, punch with care,
Punch in the presence of the passengaire.

"In the old days the railroads—that was before the days of the interstate commerce commission—didn't care what kind of punches their employees used, but today it is different. Every punch is registered, and every mark is different."—Washington Post.

Fire Beds.

In fall, winter and spring, when the nights are very cold on the desert, prospectors, adventurers and all others who have occasion to sleep in the open find the "fire bed" a feature of outdoor craft which will enable them to sleep in comfort on a cold night. To make a fire bed a trench is dug in the sand six or seven inches in depth, about three feet wide and six feet long. The sides of this pit are banked up with the sand taken from the trench. The pit is then ready for the fire, which is built extending the full length of the pit, so that it will warm both the banked sand at the sides and the bottom of the pit. When the sand has been sufficiently heated the large, blazing sticks are thrown out, leaving all of the live coals in the pit; these are covered with about four inches of sand. This bed will retain the heat all night, and all that is left to be done is for the sleep seeker to lie down and wrap himself in a blanket, if he has one, and go to sleep in comfort.—Independent.

The Wear In Furs.

The durability of furs varies enormously and has little relation to price. For example, ermine and chinchilla, both of which fall in the rare fur class, stand respectively at twenty-five and fifteen in a table where skunk is seventy and beaver ninety. In this table sea otter, with its water hairs, is taken at a hundred. Here is the list in full:

Sea otter	100	Mesquash	30
Beaver	90	Gray lamb	30
Seal	85	Muskrat	30
Mink	75	Ermine	25
Skunk	70	Lynx	25
Persian lamb	65	Squirrel	20
Baum marten	65	Chinchilla	15
Sable	60	Broadtail	15
Fox, black, silver	40	Caracul kid	10
Stone marten	37	Wombatia	7
Opossum	37	Kolinsky	5

The durability of furs is reduced by artificial coloring. The baum marten, which in a natural state stands at sixty-five in the table, is only forty-five after dyeing.—London Times.

Jerry Cooper faced an old and trite situation. In the past, reading of such situations, he had been intolerant. As if three people couldn't get along! That was before he met and would not permit two separate establishments, brought her to live with his mother. It seemed preposterous that two ordinarily even tempered women, both loving one man, must rasp and offend and—so he feared—almost hate each other. But they did, and Jerry felt as though he were being rolled between two bundles of barbed wire. And at times he thought longingly of running away.

The worst of it was that he could see the rights of both sides. It was hard on Alice, who had boarded since the death of her parents eight years before and longed for a home of her own ever since, not to have a home that was her own. And he felt for his mother, who, having ordered her own house for all the years of her married life, was fretted by a pair of strange hands that wanted to order it, too.

There was no open warfare. Both women were too ladylike for that. But Jerry, eating dinner in a constrained silence between two stiffly polite people, wished that they would have a good row and clear the air. At times he fairly shivered in fear that some day the stiff, constrained politeness would be shivered by a tremendous row.

He sometimes looked at them in wonder. His mother was a tired, sweet-faced old woman. His wife was a slim, sweet young girl, with soft blue eyes. Lately the softness seemed to be disappearing, but her voice was low and charming. Jerry lay awake at nights to find some way out of the tangle.

Several times bunglingly he tried to patch matters. The agent of the building had sent up a man to find out how the walls should be tinted. Alice wanted the parlour in pale green. Jerry himself was not troubled by any fickleness in color schemes. His mother said stiffly that the parlor should be decorated in gray. She liked that restful shade, Alice retorted. "Coffins are restful, too, but one doesn't admire ——" She stopped, crimson with regret. Jerry's mother grew as stonily cold as a glacier. Jerry, miserably, sympathised with both sides.

"I think the light green—"

"It doesn't matter to me," said Alice sweetly. Jerry wanted to shake her. Alice's sweetness of tone was like hot syrup—blistering.

"It matters to me," said his mother distantly. "I cannot bear light green." Her glance ignored Alice and reproached her son. Jerry afterward never could recall what he had intended to say about light green wall paper.

Afterward, when Alice had gone to her room, his mother said, dreamily: "I wish I were older. Then it wouldn't be so long for you to wait."

Jerry sprang up. "Mother," he said, reproachfully. And then Alice returned, his mother said good-night and went to her room, and the subject was not brought up again.

"I know it is hard for you, Jerry," Alice remarked once, "but it is also hard for me. And I don't want to be unjust. I try to remember that she is not only an old woman, but also your mother."

The parlour was tinted grey. The fruit was canned that summer by Jerry's mother. Jerry's wife offered to help, even rather humbly asked to help—but Jerry's mother impatiently explained that fruit canning was nervous work, and she liked to do it alone. Jerry's wife bought a new sideboard — a clumsy affair that crowded the small dining-room uncomfortably. Jerry had worried over the fruit canning tilt. He remembered guiltily that Alice before they were married had boasted to him of her skill in making jelly, and rejoiced because she would now have a chance to prove that cooking schools were worth-while founts of knowledge. Then Jerry worried over the sideboard. He didnt want to be uncharitable, but he remembered having heard his mother complain a week or so before that the china closet and the big buffet took up so much room. Had there been a wicked gleam in her eyes? Anyway, the sideboard came out three days later. His mother could not refuse to give it house room; but it was the most churlish, coldest house-room ever given to a young wife's belongings.

Alice's eyes continued to gleam wickedly. She stopped eating oatmeal and made herself a special breakfast food. She took to eating luncheon downtown and nibbling at dinner. Jerry's mother's face lost some of its sweetness and grew intolerant in expression. Jerry bolted his meals and tried to take refuge in newspapers and books at night. Alice rather ostentatiously formed the habit of retiring to her own room. Jerry wanted to follow her, but he hated to leave his mother alone all evening. Before he was married his mother had so enjoyed evenings with him. Under the intolerant expression he fancied he saw a gathering fear of loneliness. And then when the atmosphere was blackest, greyest, gloomiest, bluest, Jerry's mother, trying to sweep betwen the big sideboard and the big buffet, tripped and her head hit an outstanding mahogany edge.

Alice sobbed her remorse as they put her to bed. She sobbed more remorsefully when the doctor found a broken arm as well as a gashed head. Jerry got white with fear. Now home would be a terrible place. His mother sick; Alice hysterical. He shivered for two days. Alice had taken charge and worked hard. His mother lay in silent helplessness. Jerry decided that as soon as she got well he and Alice would work hard, and he would spend three evenings at home, the other four with Alice. This would be better than seven spent in discomfort with both.

And then he discovered that Alice and his mother were on the most friendly, confidential terms imaginable. He came home early the third evening and heard with unbounded surprise his mother say: "And when I slipped and knew my head was about to hit something hard, I says to myself it was a judgment—"

"We'll store the sideboard and the tabouret," said Alice, "until we get a house. I'm afraid I put too much sage into that dressing. I wish you were up, mother, so you could have shown me."

"Oh," comfortably, "it'll be all right. That broth you made at noon was just right. Dear, be sure and count the towels that go to the laundry. He's so careless with those, and some are real linen. And then you lie down. I've kept you waiting on me all day."

"Oh, I like to," said Alice sweetly. And Jerry, at the sweetness of her voice felt peace enfold him. The tangle was untangled.

"Don't you tell—Sis!"

"This'll be a good joke on mother!

She didn't think we could reach so high when she put Kellogg's on the top shelf, did she?

But we fooled her this time!

Course mother won't care, 'cause she lets us have Kellogg's ev ime we want it, don't she? Says it's good for us and makes us grow like everything."

FINGER NAILS DROPPED OFF

Skin Beneath Lifeless. Fingers Painful. Sleepless Nights. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Complaint Gone.

79 Agricola St., Halifax, N. S.—"Some time ago my finger nails began to drop off, the result it was believed of lead poisoning. The nails themselves were brittle and dry, with skin beneath being lifeless looking. My fingers were excessively painful causing sleepless nights. I was treated for about three months and the nails grew again but away from the seat of the fingers and then fell off again.

"Having heard a great deal of Cuticura Soap and Ointment I sent for a sample of both in the hope of their healing my fingers which were very painful. At night after washing my hands well with the Cuticura Soap I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment all around the finger ends and wore gloves to prevent the Ointment from being rubbed off, then again in the morning washed my hands with the Cuticura Soap. The Cuticura Soap and Ointment had a cooling effect and after using them for a short while I was surprised to find fingers much less sore and beginning to assume a more healthy appearance; the fungus which had grown under the old nails disappeared and then new strong nails formed. This trouble had lasted about eighteen months before using Cuticura Soap and Ointment yet after using same for three months my finger nails had grown strong and complaint had entirely gone." (Signed) Ernest Rockford, Oct. 12, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. A single set is often sufficient. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

TO CLEAN GLASS JARS AND BOTTLES.

Jars, bottles, and cruets often become discoloured. They may be cleansed thus: Drop into the stained article one teaspoonful of washing soda, a broken, uncooked egg shell, and a little warm water. Allow this to stand say 15 minutes, then shake it vigorously. If the stain has not disappeared let it stand a little longer, then shake vigorously again, and wash out the soda with hot soapsuds. This leaves the glass bright and shiny.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

SLANG.

Slang is a verbal vice. It is vile even unto villiany. It taints. It is often used by young people who regard it as an evidence of smartness, which, in fact it is in direct evidence to the reverse. It pollutes. A young girl's character is questioned by a stranger when he hears her use slang. It encourages familiarity. It leads by direct route to wrong doing, shame and remorse. A youth who uses slang is not trusted by men who give employment. The ability and repute of the young man are at once in question. No employer wants a slang boy or girl about his store or office. They are not the kind of people to have about the safe and till. In the great cities, where the characters of people are known by their deportment and use of language as a book is known by its cover and contents, the slangy youth or maiden is at once set down as from some frogpond district. It is not regarded as smart. It is about as much evidence of smartness as wearing one's pants in his boots and adopting a swagger. Such a person is a butt of ridicule. So is a slangy person.

THE OLD TIME NEIGHBOUR.

The Chicago Tribune is inquiring what has become of the "old time neighbour" and the St. Paul Pioneer-Press remarks that the old time neighbour has passed into tradition. This leads one of our valued exchanges to say—truthfully too:

"Not so, brothers.

"In a thousand country towns in the middle west, all sorrow with the unfortunate, rejoice with the favoured, mourn with them that mourn. One housewife runs over to the neighbours to borrow a cup of flour when the exigencies of baking have caught her with depleted flour bin. The sick have flowers and attention, and volunteers to 'set up' with them. Those who celebrate birthday or wedding anniversaries have 'surprise parties' come in on them, bringing refreshments and neighbourly cheer.

"And in the country — bless! If you think the old-time neighbour has 'passed' just have central connect you with a country line and listen to the neighbours talk.

"No thank the Lord, the 'neighbour' has not passed into the limbo of forgotten things—not yet. His cheery word is daily in our ears. Whether he knows it or not, he is practicing real christianity, the highest teaching of the Nazarene.

"It makes us glad we do not live in a city like Chicago, where the homely virtues are to a great extent crowded out and forgotten.

"The country town is a pretty good place to live after all."

HABIT FORMING.

"Habit forming" is the subject of an interesting page in a house organ of one of the large manufacturing institutions of the country. For instance, here are some rules set forth for those who would form new and better habits:

1. Make good resolutions intelligently and record them.
2. Accumulate all circumstances which will reinforce your resolutions.
3. Keep away from temptation.
4. Keep away from associates who discourage you.
5. Put yourself in conditions that encourages the new way.
6. Seize the first opportunity to act on resolutions you make.
7. Make engagements incompatible with the old way.
8. Never suffer an exception to occur until the new habit is securely rooted in your life.
9. Remember, until the new habit is fixed, each lapse makes it more difficult.

These rules are the result of the experiences of those who have been successful. They are designd to help others in the determination to do better. We can all be benefitted by them.

"It is a good thing,' says a Chinese proverb ,"for a man to get back of his own tea cup.' It is the only thing; the home is the centre and centre of the universe and the sum of all true pleasures .Is the home-coming. Never fear the man that is in a hurry, when his work is done, to get home; he will neither rob you nor murder you, nor do any seriously evil thing, this you may depend on. Such a man is no lounger, but is an intelligent, industrious citizen.

True riches do not consist altogether of money. A man may be rich and not have a dime in his pocket, or even a pocket in which to carry a dime if he had it. A happy disposition and a sound body is worth more than pure gold, and a clear head and good parentage more than any amount of money that can be named. The magnitude of one's bank account is an exceedingly poor means by which to determine the genuineness and value of one's possessions.

To Lose Your Years And Gain Dimples

(By Maggie Teyte.)

Cheer up! It's the best advice for the woman to follow if she is sincere in her effort to lose years and gain dimples. There may be a sad, sullen, sombre beauty, but it's not the kind worth working for nor the kind one wants to look at day in and day out, summer and winter, in sickness and in health, till the final parting.

The woman we love is the woman with the sunshiny heart. And she's the woman we think of when some one speaks of the various types of modern beauty. Perfect features, rose leaf complexions, may last for a time as the cover for a snarly nature. But when they vanish the unmasking is complete.

The free indulgence in emotions may be all very "temperamental." It may seem to be the hall-mark of genius. It may distinguish you from your companions and make them treat you a bit different, sort of catering to your whims, which is very flattering. But—it is the most complete and quickest way of destroying health, happiness and good looks that you can find.

One fit of anger means one year of age added to your life.

One hour of jealousy means one month of care and massage and cold creaming before the marks are entirely gone.

Envy, spite, uncharitableness, all leave their marks on the face as surely as though they were etched with a fine needle.

When you lose your temper and fly in a rage and "turn pale" and "see red," you are doing a lot more than you think you are.

The signs you really see are the faintest indication of the upset your system receives. Your heart is interrupted in its regular work. Sometimes the results are permanently serious. Sometimes one is strong enough to rise above the effects and gradually a normal condition returns.

Still, the "fit" has depleted your energy and your resistance. Also, by affecting the heart, it has upset the blood circulation. It has stopped digestion. It has turned your liver from its regular duties and set the bile flowing the wrong way.

It is small wonder that when it has passed you feel worn and "all in." You are, to more or less degree. And you have put some very ugly lines in your face. You have even seemed to change the colour and size of your eyes. I have always considered it a great pity that we are not able to see ourselves as we appear to others when we are in one of our towering rages.

Then, jealousy. It does about all that anger does against looks and health, and it is the most exquisite self-torture I know of. Also, it takes away the beauty of eyes, of expression, and of complexion.

The saying "green with envy" is not an idle phrase. The effect on the system of an envious nature is to throw an unmistakable greenish, yellowish light on the face which is perfectly discernible to those who have eyes to see. That, too, is the result of a topsy-turvied heart and liver. And, please tell me where has been the gain?

I grant there is a righteous indignation which we all have occasion to feel at times. It is the reason for most of the great humane movements of the world. It is what its name implies righteous. And it is no more allied to the ordinary temper fit than the poles of the earth are to be regarded as neighbours.

It is an emotion which comes from the head, and is the result of thought. It is not something one flies into.

Jealousy and envy are as wicked and unjust as they are injurious. They are the basic emotions of more unhappiness and more trouble — and sometimes crime—than any other feelings we can have.

If they have a place in your nature, sister of mine, root them out, and plant good will and charity in their place .You won't have to rub out half as many wrinkles nor pull out half as many grey hairs if you do.

Take the deepest breath you know how to when you feel your temper rising and put your whole mind into that breath. If one breath isn't enough keep on breathing deep till the clouds are gone and the sun shines.

Turn up the corners of your mouth and think cheer.

Think of everything pleasant that ever came into your life. Think of all the beautiful things you ever saw. Say all the beautiful words you know. To be beautiful, we must first drive away all that is ugly.

There is an old camp meeting song called "Sunshine in My Soul." How about it for a beauty slogan?

THE RIGHT WAY TO COOK RHUBARB

Thousands of cooks and housewives are in the dark as to the proper method of preparing and cooking that much beloved vegetable, rhubarb, which comes so near being a fruit.

Our mothers usually pulled the stalks and cut off the leaves and took a knife and stripped off the skin in long, narrow strips before the remaining portion of the stalk was cut into short pieces for cooking.

The proper way is to remove the leaves an inch or more of the stalk next to the leaf, and then thoroughly wash and remove all that slippery matter that is on the end next to the root.

If there are any rusty spots, or worn holes, those should be cut out, but all the rest of the skin should be left on the stalk, and the whole thing cut into short sections and cooked with the skin remaining.

The highly coloured skin gives the cooked product a much nicer appearance and better still there is a flavour derived from the skin that cannot be secured in any other way.

Physicians say that rhubarb cooked or baked in pies or puddings is much more healthful if the skin is left on and cooked with the centre of the stalks.

Another important fact not generally known about rhubarb is that it is not spoiled when it wilts or withers a bit in lying about the market or the kitchen.

The fact is when rhubarb is somewhat wilted and looks as if it were rather stale, it is nearer right for making pies than when it is just freshly pulled. Some experienced cooks will let rhubarb lie about for two or three days before they use it. The reason for this is the plant is to a great part water. When prepared for food it is very juicy, and when baked in pies the most of the pies burst and allow the surplus juice to run out in the pan in which they are baked, making an unpleasant muss, and causing the pie to be ruined, so far as appearance is concerned.

HERPICIDE

While shopping the most annoying thing is to have someone try to sell you something "just as good" when you ask for Newbro's Herpicide. To be sure, there are not many druggists who do this, but what few there are should know that such a policy will destroy the customers' confidence. When they try to put it on you, never wait for the story, simply hunt a store where they will sell you what you want.

It is absurd for anyone to say that a preparation is as good as Herpicide. They do not believe it themselves. Every druggist knows that there is but one "genuine, original dandruff germ destroyer," and that is Newbro's Herpicide.

It keeps the head free from dandruff, prevents the hair from coming out and stops itching of the scalp.

Herpicide is really a wonderful remedy which does just what you want and expect it to do.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded. Applications at good barber shops.

DERRY VOLUNTEERS CALLED OUT AND KEPT ON DUTY FOR TERM OF 2 HOURS

Only Explanation of Their Mobilization Was That It Was a Test--Ulsterites Are Shadowing Each Policeman

A NATIONALIST VIEW

LONDONDERRY, May 1.—The East Section of the Derry volunteers were called out for mobilization on Friday night, but after being kept on duty from eight until ten o'clock the men were allowed to go home. No explanation was given for this mobilization, except that it was a test. The latest move of the Ulsterites here is to shadow every policeman. Men are now detailed for all night duty for the purpose. The situation is somewhat complicated, however, as the Nationalists talk of sending Irish volunteers to shadow each Ulster volunteer who shadows each policeman. If the police only decide to shadow the Nationalist volunteers, an endless chain will be complete.

The volunteer organ of the Nationalist corps takes peculiar line regarding the Larne affair, saying: "The proclamation forbidding the importation of arms must regard itself in a very foolish light, when Ulstermen laugh at the smashing of every successive rule England lays down for their good behaviour. If there was ever season why the Government should have authorised the proclamation not a vestige remains. Anyhow it is only natural that Ulster should have the hankering after rifles and get them in by hook or by crook. The man who once handles a rifle and is not smitten with a desire to own it, is not an Irishman."

TALKED OVER WIRELESS FROM A MOVING TRAIN

NEW YORK, May 1.—While the eastbound Lackawanna Limited, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, was speeding on a non-stop run over the 53 miles between Scranton and Stroudsburg, Pa., this afternoon, C. V. Logwood, engineer of the DeForest Engineering Company, sat in a little compartment on the train and talked easily with telephone engineer Graf, of the Lackawanna Company, who was sitting in the wireless operators' room in the railroad station at Scranton.

This was the first successful trial of wireless telephoning between a moving train and a fixed station, and everything worked without a single hitch. The DeForest amplifier, an invention of Lee DeForest, was used and made possible amplification of speech fifty times above the normal. The wireless telephony is a development of wireless telegraphy between a moving train and a fixed station, which the Lackawanna perfected and put into practical use several months ago.

A Certificate Of Character From an Enemy

The Red Herring Trick Against Leader Rowell Blocks

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 1.—Only the consciousness of the indefensibility of the Government's position in the Snider matter and the necessity of diverting the attention form it, can explain the unwarranted attack made upon Mr. Rowell, the leader of the Opposition, in the Legislature on Tuesday evening, and no better evidence could be furnished of the increasing strength of the Liberal Opposition in the House and in the country, than the effort which apparently the Government felt necessary to make in the closing hours of the Legislature. It was quite obvious that the Government had planned to close the session by putting up Mr. Ferguson, of Grenville, and Mr. McGarry, of South Renfrew, the men who lead the Government forces in blocking investigations into the Government's transactions, to launch a scurrilous attack upon the Leader of the Opposition, in connection with Mr. Rowell's work as solicitor for the Province of Ontario in the re-organization of the Sault industries, and as solicitor for the Oka Indians in their contest with the seminary of St. Sulpice.

Mr. Rowell's answer was complete and effective, but so unjust was the attack that even an answer seemed scarcely necessary, as the following statement from Conservative sources will show. The Toronto News, in an editorial in regard to the completion of the re-organization of the Sault industries, makes the following reference to the services of Mr. Rowell:

"It would be hard to over-estimate the value of Mr. Rowell's services as representing the Government in untangling the extraordinary mass of confusion and embarrassment which had developed in connection with these enterprises. It is not understood by the public, and probably never will be understood, that his was the master mind which adjusted the relations between the province and the company, and solved the almost insuperable difficulties which were met at every step of the reorganization. Nor is it understood that although he performed these great services for the Province, he drew no money from the Provincial Treasury. While it was perhaps natural that the Whitney Government should have accepted his resignation as one of the Board of Directors, it is satisfactory to know that he is still a solicitor for the company, that in this connection no political considerations can enter, and that, therefore, the company and the province will continue to profit by his experience, ability and integrity."

PLUMBING INSPECTOR ONCE MORE

His Monthly Report Causes an Animated Discussion at Last Night's Meeting of Property Committee

CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS

Smoke test, water test, plumbing, and the plumbing inspector, were the chief topics for conversation at a meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council, held last evening, at which Alderman Langford, chairman, Aldermen Stratton, Saunders, Duncan, and Mayor Buller were present.

Garbage Bondsmen.

Mr. E. K. Grahame and Mr. E. Donoghue, undertook to guarantee that the garbage collectors would carry out the work allotted to them by the City Council, and were accepted, as satisfactory bondsmen.

Account Passed.

The chairman presented an account which he was anxious to be passed, amounting to $70.75, which is payment for wages, for work done by two men at the Isolation Hospital. New hardwood floors have been laid in certain sections of the building, and other minor improvements made.

Referred to Engineer.

The application of J. M. Roszel, to construct a nine-inch wall for a dwelling within the fire limits, was referred to City Engineer Parsons, who it is expected, will report on several applications at a meeting of the Council to be held on Monday night.

It was mentioned at the meeting that several breaches had been allowed. The by-law calls for a four-teen-inch wall, in territory which is within the fire limits.

Fuel for Incinerator.

It was decided to purchase two cords of wood from the Charity Board, for use in the incinerator. The man in charge stated that he was unable to infuse sufficient burning powers into the plant of destruction. Alderman Duncan said that he had received a complaint yesterday, about the offensive odours at nights.

Dumping Carts.

The Board asked the International Harvester Company for prices on a yard and an alf dumping waggon. Their answer was received last night. They stated that they would supply them for $160 each.

That in the opinion of several of the aldermen was too much. Sometime ago, the Property Committee were negotiating with the Peter Hamilton Company for a similar construction. Their price was something over $200, according to the recollections of the chairman. That, however, was for a two-yard waggon. City Engineer Parsons is of the belief that one can be obtained for about $120. The matter was therefore left in abeyance.

Can't Find One.

Sometime ago the Mayor and Alderman Saunders were appointed to look into the matter of securing a room for the use of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade, for the lectures in connection with that organization. Neither of them did so. Last night the matter was again brought up. Mayor Buller stated definitely, that there was no room available in the City buildings for the purposes mentioned. The chairman was appointed to investigate and report back.

LONG SESSION OF DIVISION COURT HELD

Case of McIlmoyle vs. Henderson Occupied Attention of Judge Huycke Until 8 O'clock Last Night

OTHER CASES HEARD

The sitting of the Division Court, held yesterday, was one of the longest that has been conducted for a long time. The case which occupied the attention of the court from the opening, at 10 o'clock, until eight was that of McIlmoyle vs. Henderson, in which the plaintiff claimed $106.70 from the defendants for alleged damages to his house at the corner of King and Rubidge Streets, which was vacated by the defendants in February last.

A considerable amount of evidence was heard both for the plaintiff and defendant, until, at 8 o'clock the case ended, and His Honour Judge Huycke reserved his judgment, in order to consider the facts of the case.

There then were left a number of smaler cases to be disposed of. Settlements were reached in some of these, and evidence was heard in others. The court adjourned at 11 o'clock, with several cases not heard which were left over to the next sitting of the court, in June.

The following were the judgments delivered yesterday:

O'Connell & Corkery vs. E. Sarasen for $11. Judgment for plaintiff for full amount, with costs.

Mrs. Bertha Pilling vs. James Hanrahan, for $58. Judgment for plaintiff for $20 and costs, but no witness fees.

Robert Conkey vs. Nathan McIlmoyle, for $30.95. Judgment for plaintiff for $5 and costs.

E. J. Ferguson vs. F. Sherwood, for $88.80. Adjourned to next court on payment of the costs of the day by defendant, who has leave for counterclaim, and to secure it within ten days.

George C. Mitchell and David Oliver vs. Samuel Whatley and John Allen, for $69.70. Judgment reserved.

FANS GOING TO OPENING GAME

Quite a party of Peterborough fans will journey to Erie, Pa., next week for the opening game in the Canadian League. Mr. E. G. Patterson, Vice-President of the Peterborough Club, is making the arrangements. The Peterborough party, which will number about thirty, will have a special Pullman car and will leave here on Wednesday afternoon, returning at noon on Friday.

FIFTY DOLLARS FOR THE BAND

Maple Leaf Band Must Give 13 Concerts at Direction of Ald. Langford

A SUGGESTION TO ALD. L.

The Finance Committee recommended a grant of $50 to the Maple Leab Band at a meeting yesterday afternoon, on the understanding that thirteen open air concerts will be given during the summer, when directed by Ald. Langford. The motion was put by Ald. Johnston and Ald. Duncan.

It might be suggested that with three bands in the City there should be numerous concerts during the coming season. There are many who feel that every concert should not be held in Victoria Park. The new King Edward Park was designed for the use of the citizens, particularly those in the south end, and there is no more enjoyable programme than a band concert.

REV. J. G. POTTER, M.A.
Of Montreal, former pastor of St. Andrew's, who will preach anniversary sermons to-morrow.

The Eighty-First Anniversary of the founding of Presbyterianism in Peterborough, will be fittingly observed in St. Andrew's Church tomorrow with services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., and special session of the Sunday School at 3 o'clock. The Rev. James G. Potter, M.A., of McVicar Memorial Church, Montreal, who spent fourteen fruitful years as minister of St. Andrew's Church, and made hosts of friends in the city, will be the anniversary preacher. The choir under the able leadership of Herbert C. Trenter, A.T.C.M., will contribute special music at both services.

The doors will be open at 6:30 o'clock for the evening service.

Farmers Are Already Dissatisfied With Weather Conditions

Already there is disaffection among the farmers. The weather is not up to big crop specifications and some state that fall wheat will be only half the regular crop and clover will not be much better. To begin with the weather is too cold for growth say the back forty dwellers. The land is in good condition to work and a great deal of the spring planting has been completed, but the chilly winds are none to the liking of the farmers. The water supply has been satisfactory, but recent frosts killed off about half the new crops. "There's been no June hay cut this year," said one man, "and there won't be much July hay, take it from me." Possibly a little warmer weather might work the present glum disposition out of the farmer's barometrical disposition.

BURNHAM BOLTS FROM THE GOVERNMENT AGAIN

Member for West Peterboro' Opposes Hon. Mr. Burrell's Butter Substitution Measure

"ON AGAIN, OFF AGAIN"

OTTAWA, May 1.—It is "on again, off again" with Mr. J. H. Burnham, of West Peterborough. No sooner had he been gathered into line after a brief and spasmodic sorties of his own on the Mackenzie, Mann, and Lash deal than he bolted off again. To-day he broke loose on Hon. Mr. Burrell's Government bill to prohibit the manufacture of butter substitutes.

The Government was not legislating for the public, declared the periodic insurrectionist.

"We cannot get unanimity of public opinion," commented the Minister of Agriculture in dismissing the Peterborough man's latest complaint.

The Minister's bill was directed against that portion of the public which was least able to buy food and maintain its rights, persisted Mr. Burnham. "The public should be allowed to buy cheap food," he declared. The bill was solely designed for the dairy interests, and if it was put through he certainly felt called upon to make his protest. Mr. Burnham saw no objection to oleomargerine as a butter substitute.

Mr. Andrew Broder said the purpose of the bill was to prohibit the passing of imitation butter as the real article. If the people wanted lard they could eat lard.

Mr. E. W. Nesbitt stated that he would not oppose the bill, but he thought "there was a good deal of sense in what the member for West Peterborough had said.

Hon. Mr. Burrell stated that if butter substitutes were allowed the department would be compelled to employ an army of inspectors to regulate the sale of imitations and prevent fraud.

ACCOSTED LOCAL GIRLS

Douro Youth Pays Fine of $5

Two young men, Albert and William Leahy of Douro, were charged before Magistrate Dumble with accosting two young ladies on Hunter Street last evening. They pleaded not guilty.

The young ladies were present in court to give evidence and their story was substantiated by Constable Reid. It transpired that the two young men were walking west along Hunter Str in the neighbourhood of the brid.e last night, and passed the young ladies. Being stricken, no doubt, with a fervent desire, they turned around and came back to meet the girls, and as evidence proved, Albert Leahy laid his hands on one of the young ladies.

In finding him guilty, His Worship said he hoped it would be a lesson to him, and everybody else. "Instead of offering an insult, you should have put on your best behaviour and shown chivalry and respect to the women." A fine of $5.00 and costs, amounting in all to $8.75, was imposed. William Leahy was discharged, evidence not proving him guilty, although as the Magistrate said, he must have been impelled with the same thoughts, or he would not have turned around with his brother.

NEW ATLAS OF CANADA; A NEED MET

Messrs. D. T. McAinsh & Co., of Toronto, are compiling for publication a new atlas of Canada including maps of the chief countries of the world. The Canadian atlas will include fifty pages of descriptive matter relating to all the interests of the Dominion. The county map feature is of special interest. This will show townships, concessions, railways, streams, schools, churches, and all highways, distinguishing between improved and unimproved highways.

The publication of the atlas is contingent upon a warrantable number of advance subscriptions, and it is hoped that the public will take advantage of the opportunity of obtaining a "decent" atlas of Canada, which is a great need. We have had too long to take an obscure place in United States atlases, and we should welcome a worthy one such as that of McAinsh and Co. promises to be. It is hoped the public will liberally respond to the opportunity to have a great need worthily supplied. The cost of the new atlas to subscribers will be $3.50, and, after publication, $500 to others than advance subscribers. Mr. L. H. Soule represents the publishing company, and Mr. J. H. Reid is in charge of the local interests of the publication.

SPENCE'S TONSORIAL ESTABLISHMENT

Four Chairs Manned by Four All Round Practical Artists

The four easy chairs in Spence's barber shop are now all manned by expert tonsorial artists, each one of them having made an enviable reputation for satisfying the most fastidious of customers. The names and order of the chairholders as you enter are: No. 1, Harry Kingdon; No. 2, W. Spence; No. 3, Thos. Snelgrove, and No. 4, Geo. Irwin. These make up a combination that admits of very short waits on the side benches and little choice for hanging back for favourites. Their forte covers all the leading points in the tonsorial curriculum—hair cutting, shaving, shampooing, massage, and several Parisian facial treatments as used in the most exclusive circles. Let any of these artists demonstrate what purely scientific methods can do towards restoring the customs of youth and improving the facial expression.

It's the Palace Barber Shop, with the plate glass mirrors, under the Town Clock, George Street.

MEXICAN SITUATION IS QUIET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 1.—The situation regarding Mexican affairs seems so tranquil this morning that resident Wilson hied himself off to the golf links in Virginia to spend the day. Despatches from Vera Cruz and from Mexico City early this morning indicate a more conceding feeling on the part of the Mexicans. It is confidently expected in diplomatic circles now, that an understanding will be effected through the Argentnie-Brazil-Chili mediators that will bring peace without further bloodshed between the United States and Mexico. President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan has asked for a general day of prayer in the churches of the United States of all denominations that peace may prevail.

Objections That Are Used

There will be a reception of new members at the George Street Methodist Church to-morrow morning and following the service there will be an observance of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. In the evening the pastor, Rev. Mr. Peever, will discuss in his sermon, objections that are generally used as arguments against membership in the Christian Church.

Sunday, May 10th will be observed as Mother's Day at the George Street Methodist Church.

Probabilities.

Light to moderate variable winds, fine and a little warmer to-day and on Sunday.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, MAY 2, 1914

THE SLOW WAY SAFER.

It is a relief in these days of venality to note that the audit of the finances of the collapsed Dale private bank, Madoc, revealed that the failure did not come from dishonesty or overt peculation. It was, however, due to breach of trust, and to optimistic judgment, as fatal sometimes, but fortunately not in this case, as far as consequences upon those who suffer go, as coarse stealing. The spirit of speculation in real estate, was at the bottom of it. The managers of the bank, it appears, made extensive investment—with other people's money—in western real estate; in Winnipeg, Edmonton and Port Mann properties. The failure to realize the expected returns—to find the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow—within the anticipated time made the day of reckoning a day of temporary disaster, though it is anticipated that the net loss to "investors" or depositors will be a good deal on the right side of total loss. The lesson remains, that small profits legitimate, if slower profits, are better than dabbling with "quick-rich" schemes of real estate exploitation. Gambling, whether in real estate, or "chips" has its disappointments as well as gains. An honest dollar, earned and saved, is a sounder foundation for a fortune than the "sand" that exploitors and promotors provide as a corner stone of riches.

EMPIRE DAY—A SUGGESTION.

This year, Victoria day, a loyal souvenir and synonym of "Queen's Birthday" falls on Saturday, and it is probable that the celebration of Victoria day will be on Monday following. Empire Day, the day preceeding "the 24th," will be observed in the schools on Friday. It is not probable that the 24th will be especially celebrated—merely observed as a general holiday. Would it not be a good idea to make Empire day this year a secondary "Good Friday," and on Friday evening, May 22, in Victoria Park, have a patriotic band concert to include all the organizations in the city. The 57th band, the Salvation Army band and the Maple Leaf band might be combined for the occasion, and the massed bands play a short programme of patriotic airs, such as "The Maple Leaf," "O Canada," "Rule Britannia," etc., and, of course, God Save the King. In compliment to our French Canadian compatriots, the Marseillaise might well be played. The programme might include a medley of English, Irish and Scotch airs. It may be impracticable, but the idea is suggested by recent triumphs that it would be something noble, something inspiring, to hear the Maccabaeus chorus sing to the accompaniment of the bands the stirring strains of O' Canada. But in any event it seems to be practicable and desirable to have the united bands give a short evening in Victoria Park with a programme something like that suggested. Such a night would be an auspicious opening of the concert season and would, besides, be a rational and loyal tribute to the memory of a good queen, whose name and memory will never die, and a tribute of our loyalty to the greatest empire of history, and a duty on the part of citizens of the best city in the dominion, and the best country under the canopy of heaven—Canada.

A TERRIBLE PACE.

The Ontario Legislature prorogued yesterday. It was a mighty good thing it did; it couldn't vote the spending of any more money. However, that won't stop the spending. The Whitney government with its rage for expenditure, will spend money—even that borrowed for specific purposes, on general purposes. Under the Whitney government, the money flies. The Whitney government has doubled the annual expenditure twice over in fewer than ten years. When the Whitney government took office, the total bill for running the province was four and a half millions. The estimated expenditure for the next fiscal year is twenty-two (22) million dollars. The revenue is at the most estimated at ten (10) million dollars, leaving a gap of 12 millions between outgo and income. It is true that a considerable part of the proposed expenditure is on capital account in respect of Hydro Electric service and the Temiscamagn and Northern Railway. In the case of the Hydro-Electric, the whole burden is to be borne by the municipalities concerned, whose cheap light and power rates must meet the back-wash of increased taxation on debenture account; and a considerable part of the expenditure on the railway will be met out of earnings. But in any event, it is evident that the income will fall far short of outgo, representing a large increase of the provincial debt. Our provincial debt is increasing rapidly, though some part of the public service is starved with extravagant expenditure in other directions. For instance last year the grants to public schools were some 98 per cent. short of the government grant earned. That is, educational interests were neglected; but the Whitney government could spend more than a million dollars in a palatial residence for the Lieutenant-Governor. Our sub-deputy vice-regal head, should be decently housed, but spending a million dollars for purely ornamental purposes and starving a vital service like the education, seems to be ruinous, catering to the spirit of new-rich snobbery. (Mr. Rowell, the Liberal leader, in speaking at Guelph of this expenditure, wasn't far wrong in describing it as a "wilful wanton waste." No wonder the government has to resort to the gerrymander, to give it an advantage in an appeal to the people that it could not expect, from its record of wasteful administration, and high-handed legislation.

Money is pitifully cheap when it is all a man has.

It's easier to keep a good name than to regain it.

PETERBORO' APRIL 30th, 1914

W. H. HILL, Esq.,
Agt. for Fidelity & Casualty Co.,
of New York' Peterborough.

Dear Sir—

Re Policy $420186

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of the cheque of the Fidelity & Casualty Company of New York for the sum of $5000.00, being the amount of my claim for double liability under my policy in this company, arising out of the accident which resulted in the loss of the sight of my left eye. I wish you would be kind enough to convey to the Company my thanks and warm appreciation for the prompt and entirely satisfactory manner in which my claim under my policy has been settled in full.

It may be of interest to you to know that when I first took this accident policy in your Company it was due solely to the very friendly and cordial relationship that has always existed between your agent, Mr. George E. Elliott, and myself, but when I received the Company's cheque this morning, through your office, I was deeply impressed with the fact that I, in common with the vast majority of people, never before realized how prudent and important it is to carry an Accident Policy in a Company that settles so promptly, Yours faithfully,

Plumbing Inspector Once More

Repairs Needed.

The market clerk reported to Alderman Duncan, that the platform, in front of the weigh scales, was in a bad state, and needed repairing, or the scales would be damaged. This matter will be remedied at once.

The evening began to brighten, when the March monthly report from the Plumbing Inspector, was brought up.

Mayor Buller wanted to know if the inspector's salary had been raised.

Alderman Langford said it had not.

Mayor Buller—I thought you were going to raise it.

The matter would have dropped there and then, with the usual acceptance, only Alderman Stratton was curious.

This is the first time, he said, I have ever seen one of these reports, and there is only one item marked O.K. by the plumbing inspector. I would like to know the reason. I think that as soon as a job is finished, he should O.K. it.

Alderman Duncan said he would like to get some independent plumber in, one who knew his business, and get him to make a test of the last 15 inspections that have been made, and give his opinion.

He also stated that he would like to get the local plumbers to meet with the Property Committee, and give their opinion on the present by-law, and if they had any suggestion to offer, good suggestions, it would be to the benefit of the Council to alter the present piece of legislature in that regard.

Alderman Stratton—I think we have enough gumption to make a satisfactory by-law ourselves, without asking others to help us.

Alderman Duncan—If they could prove to us that there was something wrong with the present one, and offer any really good suggestions, we would be only too glad to listen to them.

Alderman Stratton—Ask the chairman to request the inspector to come and give his views on these matters.

Alderman Duncan—He might come for the present chairman, he wouldn't for the last.

The Mayor said that if they had any confidence in the appointed plumbing inspector, he should be able to give all the information that is required. "If we have not that confidence," he said, "we should not have him."

Alderman Stratton said that they would get these certificates, which the inspector should give to each person, after having satisfied himself that the plumbing was O.K. and then if we lose confidence, he added, we can take action.

The certificates will therefore be obtained, and afterwards, if conditions are not proved to be satisfactory, some action will be taken. Alderman Langford made the suggestion that a fully qualified, and experienced plumber should be brought in from Toronto, and make a test of some of the work completed recently. Alderman Stratton, however, did not agree with that course being taken.

According to Alderman Duncan, the plumbing inspector has intimated that the by-law is not right.

So continued the pros and cons, until the motion for an adjournment.

PEACH CROP A FAILURE

Very Few Trees in Niagara District Will Yield This Year

ST. CATHARINES, May 2—The outook for the peach crop of 1914 is the most dismal in a quarter of a century. Many growers in some portions of Grantham and Clinton Townships will venture to say that the loss runs as high as 90 per cent. and in some instances is practically complete.

Mr. T. M. Gridlay, from the Agricultural Department, Ottawa, has been in the City this week gathering data for a report on the subject of frozen peach buds.

Mr. A. W. McCubbin, plant patholo gist, is satisfied that the only hope lies in the development of the retarded fruit buds. The greater part of the buds are dead, he is confident. He has removed the larger buds to see if the smaller ones will not develop. He found five or six live buds on a limb out of a hundred.

NEW ATLANTIC LINERS.

This season will see the Atlantic service of the Canadian Pacific augmented by the addition of two new steamers. These two vessels will be of the one class cabin type, which are becoming so popular. Barclay Curle & Company, of Glasgow, secured the contract for the building of the ships some three months ago, and the construction is well under way. They are being specially constructed for the Atlantic service and will contain every possible convenience for the comfort of passengers. They will be of the "one class" type, with passenger accommodation for 520 second, and 1,200 third class. These new vessels have been named the "Missanbi" and the "Metagama." Their length will be 520 feet, greatest breadth 64 feet, while the breadth of the passenger deck will be 41 feet.b Each vessel will have a dead weight capacity of 7,950 tons, with an approximate cargo capacity for 6,600 tons. The famous cruiser stern which is the feature of the new Empress recently placed on the Pacific coast, is being introduced and the new ships will also have six complete steel decks. In order to ensure safety the hulls are to be sub-divided by water-tight doors and bulkheads, so as to be capable of floating when three compartments are open. These water-tight bulkheads and doors will be automatically controlled from the bridge. The speed of each vessel will be 15 knots, with a draught of 27.5. As for the interior of the vessels, each second class state room will be fitted with a wardrobe and chest of drawers, folding lavatory with mirror, and other conveniences. The public rooms will be dining saloon, smoking-room, lounge and drawing room. The refrigerating plant will be capable of making 300 lbs. of ice per eight hours. The vessels will be heated and ventilated on the thermo-tank system, changing the air eight times each hour. There will also be a printing plant on board each vessel.

ANOTHER REGIMENT ON ITS WAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TRINIDAD, Col., May 1.—With the assurance that another full regiment of United States cavalry is on the way here to restore order at the strike mines, the military to-day made another effort to induce the miners to surrender their arms. The situation at present is very touchy, and the slightest excuse would set the whole district ablize with civil war again. There was some sniping during the night, but the troops generally had good control. To-morrow there will be big memorial services in the Polish churches for the striker victims and their families. The men say they are going to these services armed to the teeth in case of attack.

No S.O.S. Signals Were Sent Out

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 1.—The general offices of the Marconi wireless telegraph companies have ordered a rigid investigation to ascertain the origin of the wireless messages from the Pacific ocean yesterday, indicating that the steamer Siberia had foundered with all on board. The captain of the Siberia, which has landed safe in port, states that never at any time were any S.O.S. messages sent from his ship.

REPLY TO ENGLISHMEN

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Re "English boarders not wanted." Your readers would almost think that some awful crime was committed to the Englishmen here, by the letters they have inserted in your paper. All because a lady keeping a few boarders didn't want Englishmen for boarders and because she was honest enough to state the same in her advertisement. No doubt the woman didn't want to be bothered answering the door and to tell every old country Englishman that for reasons of her own she wouldn't take them. It is no uncommon thing to see at the bottom of the ads. in the big city dailies, "No English need apply." I don't see why the English should kick up such a fuss over nothing.

If the ad. stated no Irishman need apply, Pat would have said, "Begorra oime glad she tould me."

Old Cases Settled By British American Tribunal

Claim for Illegal Seizure of the Ship "Lord Nelson," a Canadian Craft in the War of 1812 Has Been Decided.

INTERESTING DECISIONS

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 1.—The proceedings of the British-American tribunal, including the handing down of a number of opinions, preceding adjournment of the tribunal, were delayed to-day by a call made on President Wilson by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, accompanied by the British Ambassador.

The first opinion read by President Henri Fromageot was a British claim in which the United States admitted a collision off Sillery Point, above Quebec, on October 29th, 1907, between the U.S. steamship Yantic and the British steamship Canadienne. The tribunal awarded $1,033.79 to the owners of the Canadienne, due principally for loss while undergoing repairs, and the cost of repairs. The claim was for a sum in excess of $9,000.

ANCHOR DID DAMAGE.

In the next case a British claim growing out of injuries sustained by the steamship Eastry, owned by British subjects, while delivering coal at Manila Bay to coal hulks owned by the United States, the tribunal awarded claimant the full amount, £849, with interest at four per cent. from June, 1901. The United States made but a perfunctory defence on trial. Justification for the accident was sought to be shown, however.

In the Great North-Western Telegraph Company of Canada against the United States, in which damages was asked for destruction of cables in the St. Lawrence River on July 17, 1904, it was asserted that the U. S. gunboat Essex dropped anchor in a prohibited space in the Quebec harbour, fouling the cables. Damages of $827.58 were allowed, but $210. incidentals and interest, was denied.

In the claim growing out of the accidental killing of Miss Elisabeth Cadenhead, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, by a regular army guard from Fort Brady, Mich., who was shooting at an escaped prisoner in July, 1907, the tribunal found for the United States. Damages of $25,000 were asked. The United States denied responsibility.

The only American claim adjusted, that of Frederick Gehring, Jr., a claim based on illegal arrest and retention of a fishing ship out of Gloucester, Mass., was decided in favour of the claimant. Judgment for $9,000 was rendered. The British Government had admitted liability in this sum.

"LORD NELSON" CLAIM.

The Lord Nelson was a ship owned by Canadians and alleged to have been illegally seized during the war of 1812. The claim has been the subject of repeated investigations for a period extending over seventy years. The United States admitted liability in the sum of $5,000, the value of the ship at time of seizure, and the principal arguments were as to the amount of interest.

The interest will amount approximately to $18,000, representing four per cent. from 1819 to 1912, and the total award will approximate $23,000.

BEEF LOAF, SPANISH.

This is an old Spanish California recipe: Hamburg steak, one and a half pounds, three small cloves of garlic, one onion, half a loaf of stale bread (soaked and pressed), two eggs, pepper and salt to taste. Chop the garlic and onion fine, add to the beef and bread, break in the eggs and mix all well, add pepper and salt. Put in a baking pan and fill the pan half full of water. Bake and when water is absorbed it is done. Time, about half an hour.

SMALL NUMBER OF FARMERS DISPLAYED NAMES ON GOODS

About one quarter of the farmers complied with the new market by-law which went into force yesterday. Among several conditions it requires that the names of those who sell goods show their names on their baskets, or in some manner indicate their identity.

Judging from the first Saturday, the new regulation was anything but a success. Incidentally it might be remarked that the attendance was smaller than usual. The why and wherefore of the latter condition may have nothing to do with the new by-law.

Downstairs none of the farmers' waggons showed a name. Upstairs some of the baskets had inscriptions on the handles, and others had small cardboard squares attached. There was no uniformity of design, and it was noticeable that none of the painted blocks exhibited by J. J. Turner and Sons were used. There's a reason. The Turner idea retails at 35c each. The by-law did not specify any particular design, and the farmers cannot be blamed if their own ideas of displaying names were not what might have been expected. At that, the baskets with the cardboard attached showed the names and addresses very plainly, and certainly could not have caused any inconvenience to the exhibitors. When it is said that one-fourth of the farmers complied with the by-law, that percentage is a liberal one.

Gun Club Annual.

The Gun Club annual meeting will be held Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock in Mr. Adam Hall's office, Simcoe and Bethune Streets. All members and prospective members are asked to attend.

Average Market This Morning

Butter sold on the market this morning at 26 and 27 cents; eggs at 23c, maple syrup at $1.40; seed potatoes at $1.25 a bag, old potatoes at $1.25 and $1.30; one turkey at $3.75 and a few chickens, probably more correctly, hens, at $1.15 each. The market was not as large as might be expected for weather as favourable as to-day's, and the only reason for the attendance being slightly below the usual mark may be that the farmers are too busy on the land to come into town.

FOSSAL BALM
Goes Right to the Spot

If you have a cold in the head—if your nasal passages are inflamed, stuffed up, smarting—or if you suffer from chronic nasal catarrh—you can get quick relief by using Fossal Balm.

This is an antiseptic, healing salve put up in a collapsible tube so formed as to make it remarkably easy to use. When the elongated cap is removed it uncovers the nozzle-shaped end of the tube, about half an inch long. This is inserted in the nose and the tube squeezed gently, depositing a little of the Balm well up in the nasal passages. A little rubbing of the nose, and the indrawn breath, distribute the Fossal Balm throughout the passages, where it comes directly into contact with the inflamed membranes and the germs of disease. The latter it kills—the former it soothes and heals. The smarting irritation disappears—the nostrils are cleared, making breathing easy—and the catarrhal conditions, if they exist, are corrected.

Get a 50c tube of Fossal Balm from your Druggist, or write for it direct to us. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 1

A SAW SHOT THROUGH THE AIR LIKE A FLASH

The men engaged at Mr. Beck's mill yard, on Monday, got a startler that made them shiver for a moment. The 30-inch saw of the portable saw mill was revolving at full speed, when one of the men noticed that the nut holding the saw on the shaft had come off, and the saw was on the wobble following suit. He reached to throw off the belt but was not in time, and the saw came off its shaft and shot forward like a flash, for over thirty feet, when it struck a skidway, and bounding into the air, went a few feet further and fell over. Four men were in line with the saw, but fortunately a step or two back. Such an occurrence had never before been heard of. A mechanical device has been drilled into the shaft that makes it impossible for the nut to come off.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

TWO SALVATIONS, BUT NO SECOND CHANCE

Lively Subject to Be Discussed by I. B. S. A. Bible Lecturer.

The public lecture course being held here under the auspices of the I.B.S.A. is arousing considerable interest in Bible study. Many who for various reasons do not usually attend the churches, have attended with interest these unsectarian lectures, and it is believed that much good has been done. The subject of the coming lecture is "Two Salvations, But No Second Chance." It will be delivered by F. G. Hammes, of Haliburton, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the Royal Theatre.

Much comment is heard concerning the "Second Chance" theory, some claiming that a man can be ever so wicked here and reap no evil consequences, since he will get another chance hereafter. Others believe that every one will reap according to what he sows, and that only one chance will be given to any one. No doubt many will be eager to hear this question discussed. It is said to be the most interesting lecture of the series.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT AND DANCE

The "C" Company of the 57th Peterboro' Rangers, Gave a Highly Successful Concert and Dance Last Evening

The band room of the Armouries looked very gay and bright last night, the occasion being a concert and dance given by the members of the C. Company of the 57th Peterborough Rangers. Among the guests in the ballroom which was gaily decorated with pennants and flags were Colonel Young of the Artillery, Captain Carruthers (and Mrs.) Carruthers) of C. Co., 57th Regiment, Lieut. Brooks of the Prince of Wales Dragoons and Lieut. Tomlin of the C. Co., 57th Regiment. There was also a good representation of the non-commissioned officers of the Artillery, the Dragoons and the 57th Regiment.

The proceedings commenced at 8 o'clock with a musical programme as follows:

Programme.

Selection—Piano and violin, Col. Serg. Howarth and Pte. H. Hartshorne
Song—Pte. M. Hartshorne.
Song.—Pte. Willmott.
Song—Mr. Harry Carter.
Song—Mr. F. Hartshorne.
Song—Pte. Carruthers.
Song—Pte. Custance.
Song—Pte. H. Hartshorne.
Song and Dance—Pte. Constance.

The whole of the musical numbers were well received and heartily applauded. All were encored, which, owing to other demands on time, could not be accorded.

The concert was followed by the serving of elegant refreshments under the able supervision of Sergeant Hartly and Privates Bartle and Barrie of C. Co.

The room was then cleared and at ten o'clock some fifty couples engaged in dancing. The coloured uniforms of the soldiers and the pretty gowns of their fair partners made a very bright and striking scene. Dancing was kept up with much spirit and enthusiasm until the witching hour of midnight; the music being provided by Col. Serg. Howarth and Pte. H. Hartshorne.

Col.-Sergeant Howarth acted very efficiently as accompanist, while Pte F. W. Wainwright, it is needless to say, was undefatigable in his dual duties of chairman of the concert and M. C. of the dance.

Altogether it was a very enjoyable evening and it is reckoned to be the most successful ever given by the C Company.

The proceedings were terminated by the singing of the National Anthem "God Save the King."

THE "MAPLE LEAF" BAND DISCOURSES SWEET MUSIC

There are many things—like the modest violet, "born to blush unseen"—or unheard. How few people appreciate the fact that twice, weekly an Alfresco Concert, of good quality, is given outside the Royal Theatre by the Maple Leaf Band, the members of which, under the able conductorship of Mr. A. Armitage, have been brought to a high pitch of musical attainment, and this is all free gratis and for nothing! It may not be generally known that this Band is open for engagements for picnics, moonlight excursions, garden parties, and entertainments of all kinds, by arranging with the Conductor at 196 King Street.

"NO ENGLISH NEED APPLY"

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I see that some very strong remarks are made about a Dalhousie street boarding housekeeper on account of her advertisement in your influential journal. Perhaps she has had some Englishmen or women who have eaten too much to make it pay her, according to her ideas, to help them; for there are some people who take boarders whose ideas of a good square meal differ from those who pay for them just as there are some who pretend to keep the furnace going without burning fuel.

Let us hear both sides of the question. Perhaps her experience of the English is that they want enough food and sufficient warmth to keep body and soul together, or perhaps that they want too much for their shillings and pence

Yours truly,
Fair Play.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—For cool, consummate impudence commend me to the person who signs herself "A Member of a Good Old English Family," under the heading of "Explanation will be given" in your issue of May 1.

Does she suppose that I, as the writer of the first letter on the question, intend to waste my time in going to call on her for her explanations of why she gratuitously insulted my fellow country men by means of an advertisement.

It seems to me to be a better plan on her part, since she used the advertisement office of your paper to promulgate her objections to Englishmen, that she should again advertise her explantion, instead of expecting people to call on her.

It is said that "dog doesn't eat dog," but the proverb is falsified by a self acknowledged English woman being renegade enough as to attack her own countrymen. It certainly is not the act of a member of a good old English family.

[illegible] rights, I wonder, since she says she did not consult her husband on the matter. I guess he got pretty well roasted by his English fellow workers.

I have travelled in a good many countries, but I had to come to Canada to be insulted—more especially as regards my nationality—for the first time.

Thanking you for your space, I am
Yours faithfully,
"AN ENGLISHMAN."

MEN ARE HIDING WEAPONS

Miners Fear More Trouble If Federal Troops Are Withdrawn—Witnesses at Trinidad Inquest Say Militia Leaders Deliberately Fired Tents In Which Women and Children Were

DENVER, Colo., May 2.—Interest in Colorado's coal strike tragedies was divided yesterday between two dramatic centres—the inquest at Trinidad before the coroner over the bodies of the women and children burned to death in the Ludlow tent colony, and the headquarters of the United States troops in charge of the coal fields.

Witness after witness told the coroner that the state militia deliberately fired the tents where it was known the women and children had taken refuge from the bullets of the machine guns.

Mrs. Pearl Jolly, leader of the women in the Ludlow colony, described dramatically the attack upon the colony and its terrible results. On the witness-stand she was calm, showing not the least trace of excitement. Her story was well connected throughout.

A former stenographer for the military commission which investigated the murders at the beginning of the strike seven months ago testified that he had heard one of the state army officers direct that the tents be burned.

Major Holbrook did not formally demand that the strikers surrender their arms yesterday. William Diamond, head of the Trinidad Union of the United Mine Works, however, informed the major that the arms would not be surrendered.

"The strikers will hide their arms and ammunition to defend themselves in case the Federal troops are taken from the district before the strike is settled," Diamond told the army officer.

WASHINGTON, May 2. — Orders to quadruple the force of Federal cavalrymen in the Colorado coal strike regions went from the War Department late last night. Colonel James Lockett of the 11th is to take supreme command of the situation.

ELECTION IN JUNE?

Rumor Fixes Last Week in Month as Polling Date.

WHITNEY AT PROROGATION

Prime Minister Springs a Surprise on Legislature by Entering Chamber and Taking His Seat—Report Has It That Monday, June 29th, Will Be Set For Contest — House Closes.

TORONTO, May 2. — With Sir James Whitney sitting once more in his accustomed place, the Ontario Legislature prorogued yesterday. Nothing took place beyond the usual ceremonies demanded by the occasion and the Premier, beyond shaking hands warmly with his old associates and friends who had come for the closing, took no official share in the proceedings. A touch of his old vigor was manifest in his bearing, but every care was taken that he should not unduly exert himself.

A rumor was current here yesterday afternoon and evening that the Government had settled upon the last week in June for a general election, but neither confirmation nor denial could be secured. One statement was made that Monday, June 29th would be the polling day. It was also suggested that Sir James Whitney would appear at least once upon the platform during the campaign.

Cannon roared forth as usual in the park as the Lieutenant-Governor entered the chamber and mounted the dais of the Speaker. Hon. W. J. Hanna, in his capacity of Provincial Secretary, presented the scroll, and after the vice-regal assent had been given to the bills passed during the session he pronounced the prorogation.

The assemblage was somewhat smaller than usual, the Government members being confined to a baker's dozen or so, who had stayed over the intervening day. The Opposition was represented by Mr. Rowell, who sat in his seat with a red rose in his lapel. Shortly to his left Allan Studholme, the Labor member, who has never neglected such an occasion, sat amid empty chairs.

A small galaxy of fashion added to the color of the sober hued chamber. Lady Gibson and the Misses Gibson sat to the immediate right of the dais, and Sir James was accompanied by Miss Norah Whitney. The Cabinet Ministers, with the exception of Hon. I. B. Lucas, grouped themselves about the Premier.

During the session there have been 140 bills passed, of which 50 were assented to some time ago. There have been 28 night sittings, three of which have been all night, and 46 day sessions.

LOBBYISTS ACTIVE

C.N.R. Agents Want Liberals to Put Up a "Sham fight."

WANT BENNETT SILENCED

Guarantees to Mackenzie-Mann Railroad Are the Sole Topic of Discussion In Corridors of Parliament —Sir Wilfrid Laurier Points Out Difference In Resolutions—Seeks Information.

OTTAWA, May 2.—Parliamentary interest is still concentrated upon Mackenzie, Mann and Lash and their Big Deal. The corridors continue to throb with discussion and debate. There is no longer any doubt that the proposal to mulct the country's credit for another forty-five millions will meet with determined and bitter opposition. There will be a real fight. Many of the lobbyists are "back again." This time they are concentrating on the Liberals. They want a shamfight—if fight there is to be. And they want Mr. R. B. Bennett silenced, or his threatened speech censored before its delivery.

The general concern regarding developments was manifested by the crowded galleries which, following a rumor that "the deal" would be before the House this afternoon, greeted the assembling of Parliament. When the resolutions were read, however, Premier Borden allowed them to stand over.

The Canadian Northern legislation was twice mentioned in the House yesterday afternoon. First, Mr. Claude Macdonnell (South Toronto) rose to a question of privilege. He said his name had been mentioned with other Conservative members as being opposed to the Canadian Northern deal. The charge, he said, was entirely without foundation, and he desired to say that he would heartily support the proposals of the Government.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier complained that the resolution as now upon the order paper did not correspond with the resolutions printed in the votes and proceedings. In the latter it was represented that certain railway lines, together with their rolling stock and equipment, were pledged to the Government, but these were not included in the list printed in the order paper.

Mr. Borden said in reply that the resolutions first printed were not entirely accurate and he had directed the Solicitor-General to amend the same. He intended, of course, that the formal notice amending the motion should be given, and that course would now be followed.

Sir Wilfrid then asked that certain information be supplied the House before there was any debate on the resolution. He desired to have copies of certain trust agreements mentioned in the contract between the Government and the Canadian Northern and also copies of standing agreements between the railway company and its contractors.

Mr. Borden said that all the possible information would be furnished without delay.

No date was agreed upon as to when the debate should begin, but it is a fair surmise from what occurred in the House yesterday afternoon that the resolutions will not be taken up for several days. Indeed the amended resolutions will have to again appear in the votes and proceedings before they can be transferred to the order paper.

At the opening of the House yesterday afternoon Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, said that the newspapers had misinterpreted his announcement respecting the future readjustment of the iron and steel duties. He had not intended to foreshadow any tariff revision but merely to say that when the duties upon structural iron and steel were increased by order-in-council a year or two hence some consequential changes in other tariff items would necessarily follow.

He further stated that the tariff resolutions reported from the ways and means committee Thursday night embodied all the tariff changes to be made at this session. A bill to amend the Customs Tariff Act of 1907 founded upon those resolutions was then introduced and read a first time.

The House entered into committee of supply on the I. C. R. estimates, and a number of items were passed. Judge Mackenzie (Lib., N. Cape Breton and Victoria) complained of the great congestion of freight at the Strait of Canso. He said that Sir John Macdonald had built a monument to himself in Cape Breton by bridging the Grand Narrows, and he hoped that Dr. Reid, as acting Minister of Railways, would create a similar monument to himself by the construction of a bridge at Canso.

Patient Drowns Herself.

GUELPH, May 2. — Agnes Powvis of Hamilton, a patient at the Homewood Sanitarium, drowned herself in the river below the sanitarium at 6.15 yesterday morning. She was seen by a nurse at six and escaped shortly afterwards. Drivers who were getting their teams out across the river saw the unfortunate woman in the water, but were powerless to go to her rescue. The body was recovered.

Chatham House Robbed.

CHATHAM, May 2.—While Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Von Gunten were attending an entertainment Thursday evening their home was entered and a thousand dollars' worth of jewelry stolen. Most of the jewelry was taken from Mrs. Von Gunten's rooms and consisted of diamond rings and necklaces. Some valuable old-fashioned spoons were also taken.

Saturnia In Drydock.

MONTREAL, May 2.—The Donaldson liner Saturnia, which struck a rock in the St. Lawrence on her trip from Glasgow, has been put into drydock for repairs, several of her plates are badly torn. The Saturnia was to have sailed for Glasgow today, but will be delayed for several days.

PARALYSIS AND LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA

The most dreaded results of neglected nervous diseases—Study this chart and the symptoms stated here to learn if you are in danger—DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will cure you.

To understand paralysis and locomotor ataxia, which is paralysis of the limbs, and their causes, it is well to remember that every movement of the body or its members is due to the contraction of muscle, which can only take place under the influence of nerve force. As this all-important nerve force is created in the nerve centres of the brain and spinal cord, and conducted along wire-like nerve fibres to the various parts of the body, any derangement of the brain, spinal cord or nerve fibres may result in paralysis or loss of the power of movement.

A.—The Cerebrum is the centre of intelligence and thought.

B.—The Cerebellum controls the action of the voluntary muscles.

C.—The Medulla Oblongata.

D.—The Spinal Cord carries nerve force from the brain to the nerve fibres.

E.—Cauda Equina.

F.—Sciatic Nerve, the derangement of which is known as sciatica and sciatic rheumatism.

Paralysis, then, is the natural result of all neglected nervous diseases.

If you find yourself nervous and irritable, oversensitive to light, sound and motion, addicted to continual movement or tapping of the fingers, twitching of the muscles, sudden startings and jerkings of the limbs during sleep; if you have nervous headaches or dyspepsia, are unable to sleep or rest, feel downhearted and discouraged, and unfit to fight the battles of life; if your nerves are weak and exhausted, your blood thin and watery, you have every reason to fear paralysis of at least some part of the body, and consequent suffering and helplessness.

Paralysis can always be prevented, and partial paralysis actually cured, by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The time to begin treatment is when any of the above-mentioned symptoms become apparent. These are indications of a degeneration of the nerve cells, and when nerve force becomes exhausted, paralysis is bound to follow.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

acts on the system in an entirely different way to ordinary medicines. It is neither a stimulant to whip tired nerves to renewed activity, nor a narcotic, or opiate, to deaden the nerves. On the contrary, it is a food cure, which forms new, red corpuscles in the blood and creates new nerve cells. Every day it is bringing back health, strength and vitality to scores and hundreds who have become discouraged through the failure of doctors and other treatments to cure them. Why not get started on the way to health at once by using this great food cure? Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., LIMITED, Toronto. IDEAL JEWELLERY ESTABLISHMENT

Accomplishment of Warne Bros' Ambition for Co-operative Establishments

Warne Bros., the progressive jewellers, 340 George Street, announce the completion of their important enlargements and improvements to their new "Diamond Hall," which have been in progress for some weeks past. The store, as completed, embraces the premises formerly occupied by the Singer Sewing Machine Co., as well as the compactly equipped "Diamond Hall next to the Warne Drug Co. The result of these changes means a doubling of their former capacity, and the securing of one of the finest jewellery establishments between Toronto and Montreal.

The stock and interior as it is now presented in its entirety, will take precedence for effective display. The specially designed furnishings, show cases and silent salesmen of such an elaborate character as enhances the beauty and artistic effect of their attractive premises. A visit to this store will reveal to the critical taste a wealth of fascinating jewellery goods and dainty novelties of an extensively varied character.

The two show windows are admirably arranged for display demonstration—the north window for presentation gifts and wedding presents, and the north window for fine jewellery. The newest show cases have been installed, making two circular end counters. Four handsome, wall cases are used for sterling silver and cut glass, etc.

The store is fitted with prism lights which produces excellent light, and a fine new metallic ceiling lends additional beauty. The floors are to be covered with a special design of linoleums. All the work has been executed by skilled artisans. Fitzgerald & Padget had the contract for the carpenter work; Grant & Thorpe for the electric wiring operations; and Mr. Howell the painting and graining.

"Some people never make a mistake because they never make a move — other people never make a dollar for the same reason. Warne Bros. have had such a sense of security and confidence in their business that they have never hesitated to make the moves essential to their growing business. And in the accomplishment of this their laudable ideals, their ambition, will doubtless receive full compensation.

Aeronauts Sent to Prison.

BERLIN, May 2.—Hans Berliner, the German aeronaut who was made a prisoner at Kirgischansk, Russia, last February, when he came to earth at the end of a balloon trip from Bitterfield, Germany, and the two passengers who accompanied him, have been sentenced by the Russian authorities to six months' solitary confinement.

This news was received in a despatch from Perm, Russia, yesterday. Kirgischansk is in the Ural mountains. The aeronauts landed there after a balloon voyage of 47 hours, in which they made a distance record of 1,863 miles. The Russian authorities took the travelers into custody on suspicion of espionage.

Scotch Settler's Windfall.

EDMONTON, May 2.—Jack Hamber, who until recently was acting as a cook for 350 miners at a coal camp in the Pocahontas district west of Edmonton, at a salary of $70 a month, has been notified by a firm of lawyers that he is heir to a fortune amounting to over $500,000, left him by a long forgotten relative, who died recently in Glasgow. Hamber came out from Scotland a few years ago.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Warm Weather Wanted To Put Finishing Touches On Training

Cold and Unseasonable at Youngstown But Petes Had Two Good Workouts Yesterday--First Base Candidate Flanagan Was Released Yesterday.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 1.—The weather was still cold and unseasonable to-day, but in spite of the disagreeable conditions, the Blountmen put in two strenuous practices at Wright Park. The morning was devoted to a general batting practice with Shaney, the former St. Paul's player, on the rubber, and Ryberg doing the receiving. The morning's doings wound up with a lightning fast infield practice, with Kelly working at the plate. The Erie boy has a great whip, and he lined the ball to the bases this morning in grand style. It is a toss-up between Kelly and Ryberg for the position of second string catcher, and Manager Blount has not tipped off his hand yeet. The fact that both were let into the signals shows that he is still in doubt as to this pair.

The Regulars and Yannigans battled each other to a 4-4 tie in the afternoon. Going into the ninth the Regulars had a lead of 4 to 1, but the Yans came through with a brilliant rally in the ninth, scoring three runs and sewing up the game. Belting and Martin did the twirling for the Regulars, with Ryberg behind the bat, while Sterling and Cresswell were on the mound for the Yans, their offerings being handled by Miller. Schrage did good work at second for the Yans, while Manager Blount played centre field for the second squad. The hitting was fairly well divided, Byrne, Kelly and King leading with the stick.

First-baseman Gorman signed his contract to-day and will be found on the first corner when the Blountmen open at Erie next week. Eddie Flanagan, first-base candidate, was released to-day. He had the size and looked like a good hitter, but fell down badly in fielding.

The Petes are praying for a couple of days of real warm weather now to put the finishing touches on the training operations. Exhibition games will be played on Saturday and Sunday.

EDDIE FLANAGAN
First Base Candidate Released by Manager Blount Yesterday.

Sketches of The Blountmen

CHESTER KING, Infielder.

Was born at Parkersburg, W. Va., in the year 1885. Height 5 feet 10 inches, weight 175 lbs. Played semi-professional ball around his home town before starting his professional career, with the Fairmont Club of the Pennsylvania and West Virginia League in the year 1910. Fielder .978, hit .317.

In 1911 he started with Wheeling in the Central League, but took sick about the middle of the season and rested the balance of the year.

In 1912, with Canton in the same League, he hit .278. In 1913, with Canton again in the Interstate League until the League disbanded on the 15th of July. Signed to play with Peterborough this spring.

"Chess" has played all the positions in the short geld, and his past hitting and fielding records are good. He has shown good form this spring, and should easily land a position in the infield. King is an experienced man, reliable, handles the ball very fast, and will be among the leading infielders in the League.

Harry Brant Going Strong

Harry Brant, the great little shortstop of last year's Peterborough team, is playing fine ball for Fort Wayne in the Central League. Besides fielding sensationally, he is hitting the ball hard, getting a brace of hits is nearly every game played. Dave Hilliard is playing pretty regularly with the Cleveland American Association team and has started to hit the ball.

LOOKING FOR CLUB ROOMS

The Peterborough Athletic Club is on the still hunt for suitable quarters for the summer. Some weeks ago it was decided not to go into the clubroom proposition on a large scale until next fall, owing to the fact that the rooms would not be well patronized during the summer months. At that meeting a committee was appointed to look up a room to serve as a meeting place during the summer, and so far the committee has been unable to secure a suitable place.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

HAMILTON, MAY 1.—The Hamilton Canadian League team went down to defeat today at the hands of the Toronto Strollers of the Don valley League by a score of 10 to 9. The poor pitching of Doherty and Dwyer contributed most to the local mens defeat, though the fact that they have had little practice together was a contributing cause. A large number of fans were out to see the struggle and get a line on the team, and the opinion seemed to be that both in pitching and batting the team needs to be considerably strengthened. Pagett and Fisher caught for Hamilton, and the Strollers' battery was Brown and Jackson. Their work, as well as that of their team was clean and fast.

TORONTO, May 2.—The slugging of the Beavers plus the good pitching of Schaefer in combination with the loose fielding of the Niagara University team enabled the Toronto Canadian Leaguers to beat the collegians at the Island Stadium yesterday by 19 to 4. The University team was away off its game, and Manager Barrett, former leader of the London Canadian Leaguers, left Sheridan, a left-hander, in the box throughout the game in spite of the walloping he received.

The collective hitting of the Beavers in the fourth and fifth rounds accounted for sixteen runs, six in the fourth and ten in the fifth. Niagara University could not make any headway against the twirling of Schaefer, who had perfect control, and who prevented Niagara from bunching their hits. He was succeeded in the seventh by Hitchcock, who was wild and unsteady, giving three bases on balls, and hitting two batters in three innings.

"Knotty" Lee has a lot of speed on his team, and they can hit that old apple. Schultz with a triple and three singles, again led the batters. Trout had a triple and a double. Loud, the new outfielder from Bethlehem, Pa., reported yesterday and cut into the game with three singles. He showed a lot of speed on the bases. Burrill helped himself to three singles. Niagara and the Beavers will meet again this afternoon.

LONDON, April 30.—The early start of the South Michigan League, which killed off the four exhibition dates for the London Baseball club this week, is the main reason why Manager Reisling has been forced to put out the "S.O.S." to the club yesterday. The crowd at Washington, C.H., has been small and to-day's game was declared off with the hope of getting a better crowd this afternoon for the final game.

With fine weather, however, for Saturday and Sunday Manager Reisling expects to make up for early losses at Windsor and Detroit.

While the directors of the club are highly pleased with the condition of the players and their strength they do not feel the momentary loss as much as "Doc" Reisling, who had hopes of making the spring training trip a profitable one for both owners and players.

When the team leaves this evening they will go to Columbus, Ohio, to remain over night and proceed to Detroit on Friday morning. While in Windsor they will stay at the King George hotel, in fact they will put up on the Canadian side during their two days' stay at the border.

Pitcher Albert Houseman will be released this evening and will not be brought on any further, leaving the pitching staff composed of two left-handers in Heck and Steiger, and three right-handers in Reisling, Hammond and Beebe. This quintette of moundsmen will undoubtedly form the best hurling department in the League, and backed up by excellent physical condition should win many early season games.

The two games at the border are exciting much interest and the contests will be witnessed by many London fans at Windsor and Detroit.

The local club directors have arranged for a special car to convey the team and officials on Sunday night, after the game in Detroit, to London. The London fans who do not see the border games will be afforded their first opportunity to see the team here on Monday and Tuesday against the strong Stratford W.O.B.L. champions.

TROUT FISHING SEASON OPEN

The trout fishing season opened yesterday and a local party composed of Messrs. G. L. Hay, W. Taylor, L. Hall and Ed. Huff journeyed to Havelock, where they spent the afternoon They had only fair luck, the combination of cold weather and deep water interfering with the success of the expedition. On the other hand the Toronto club, who own the trout stream at Manvers, had a good day's fishing

A GLANCE OVER THE PROSPECTS AROUND THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

Food for the Fans in Regard to the Peterboro' Club and Other Organizations of the Canadian League--Ottawa and London Look Like the Teams to Beat.

With the opening of the Canadian League season only a few days away and with the training operations practically completed, a short study of the different teams in the League, beginning with our own Petes, should be of interest.

In the first place let us look at the Peterborough team. Fans are asking the question: How do the Blountmen compare with last year's team? Since last year there have been heavy inroads into the ranks of the Petes. They have lost Trout, their leading hitter, and one of the speediest catchers in the League, they have lost Hilliard, one of the leading sluggers of the circuit and a reliable fielder. They have lost Rowan, a .300 hitter and a good first base man. They have lost Brant, a grand shortstop and one of the best run-getters in the League. In other words the team has been shorn of three .300 hitters and its leading runvetter, a host of offensive strength that will be hard to replace.

To offset these losses the Petes this year have gained Curly Blount, a .300 hitter, a fast baserunner and a leader who will get everything possible out of the team and keep them hustling all the way. They have gained Louie Schettler, a grand pitchor with a splendid record; they have gained Miller, an experienced catcher, and two fine young catching prospects in Ryberg and Kelly. They have added Chater King, a seasoned second-base man, an infielder who will be more reliable and effective than Thompson as well as a better hitter, and Jimmy Gorman, a first baseman who has successfully stood the Class B test for several seasons. In Price they have a fast fielding shortstop. Defensively, with a fast fielding infield, a superb pitching corps and a fine staff of backstops, the Blount men look stronger than last season. If the team has the punch on the attack they will give the rest of the League teams a merry battle. Seventy-five per cent. of their offensive strength passed with the departure of Trout, Hilliard, Rowan and Brant. Last year's team played slipshod baseball on the attack. Manager Blount has been coaching his squad on inside stuff and the difference may offset the loss of the wrecking crew. With that staff of hurlers and the manner in which the infield has been performing it should not take many runs per game to give the Petes a win.

Shag's Brigade.

Shaughnessy's squad look formidable. The Champs present more of their 1913 front than any other club in the League, along with some very promising looking new-comers. Although Reuler, his leading pitcher, is gone, Shag has Rogers, who was close behind the big boy, and Kane and Kubat of last year's staff. To these he has added Hall, leading pitcher of the Appalachian League, last season, and Shocker and Peterson, two promising pitchers secured from Fort Wayne. He still has the hard-hitting, reliable Artie Lage behind the bat, with Wager, a Fort Wayne cast off, to assist him. In the infield, the last slowing up Crowder is gone from sort stop, and is succeeded by Spicer, who is not only a good fielder, but a hard hitter. The clouting Dolan will be at first, the fast fielding but poor hitting Smykal will be at third, and the veteran Nills, a former big leaguer, at second. Fried, a fast recruit, and Dusty Bullock will fight for the utility berth. In the outfield are Shag himself, Rogers, and Petie Powers. There are six .300 hitters in the bunch, and with Shag driving them, as he always does, the Senators will have to be counted on.

Erie Look Strong.

The Erie Yankees look strong. They have some fence-busters in the batting order, a good pitching staff, and a cracking good Manager in George Smith, who has had big league and International league experience. The pitching staff includes Lefty Dorbeck, who was a consistent winner with Guelph last year, Lee Osborne, who was with Peterborough year before last, and than whom there have been many worse pitchers in the Canuck circuit, and Dummy Taylor, the old New York, Buffalo and Montreal pitcher, who has still many games of ball left in him. Daniels, a brilliant catcher, whose sore arm has regained its old strength and Butler, an ex-Jersey City backstop, will do the receiving. Gygli, who was a crack first sacker with Erie, in the Inter State, will look after the first corner, and Manager Smith, a splendid infielder, will cover second. At short will be the sparkling, if somewhat erratic, Pete Behan, the boy with the rifle arm, and a record of four home runs in a day, and third will be in charge of Hooks Wiltse, a youngster who was developing all the time last year, and who should be a star during the coming campaign. In the outfield is John Schaeffer, leading hitter of the League last season.

London in Shape.

The London team will probably be in the best shape for the opening of any of the clubs, having been training for a month and had a bunch of games. Dr. Reisling, former big league pitcher, has them in charge, and he promises the Tecumsehs a fighting team. Behind the bat he has Snyder, an experienced catcher from the Michigan league. For pitchers he has two crack southpaws in Bobby Heck, the League leader last year, and Heinie Steiger, while he has three good right handers in Hammond, Beebee and himself. First baseman Locie Bierbauer, and second baseman Eddie Linneborn are back with the team, and the left side of the infield is bolstered up with a crack shortstop in Whitcraft and a hard-hitting third baseman in Mulled. The outfield, which includes the veteran Cy. Reidy, does not look exceptionally strong.

St. Thomas Good.

The St. Thomas team is another club with a strong pitching staff. Their heavers, Clements, Baker, Howick, Wilkinson and Riley all look good and will take some beating. The Saints have a particularly strong outfield with Kopp the leading baserunner of the League, Kustus, a steady, reliable hitter, and Craven, a brilliant fielder, a good base runner and a hard man to pitch to. The infield looks like the Saints' weak spot, but Manager Craven will likely have a good inner guard.

Brantford's Prospects.

Rube Deneau is working heroically to give Brantford a winning team, and the 1914 Brants look a good deal better than the 1913 Red Sox. Deneau has, apparently, picked up a cracking good shortstop in Honeck, who is burning up things in practice, and a fine outfielder in Sandusky, who is hitting the ball hard.

Deneau may play first base, himself and send the hard-hitting Gabby Ivers to the outfield. Then, too, he has Taylor, an all-round man who can play the initial sack or pitch, if necessary. His line-up is more or less problematical at the present time judging fr omthe reports from Dykeville. He has added a good catcher in Lacroix, from the Michigan League, and with Matty Lamond the Rube has no reason to worry over his catching staff.

The Beavers.

The Toronto Canadian League does not assay very highly at present. Their training operations have not been very extensive and they will start the season in poor shape as compared with the other Canadian League teams. At present they are running along without a Manager. Knotty Lee, the ex-most popular man in Hamilton, being in charge of affairs. Peterborough fans need not be told anything about Catcher Trout. If Bradshaw reports the Beavers will have a fair pitching staff with Bradshaw and Auld, formerly of Berlin, Girlay and Schaeffer, formerly of Guelph, and Hubbard, a Baltimore boy picked up by Joe Kelly. Joe Schneider, the New York first baseman, who performed in a stellar manner on the training trip of the Torontos, would be a tower of strength, but has so far failed to report and the initial corner is being looked after by Schulz, a brother of the former Toronto player. The infield is only fair, with Weidman, the little Rochester player who tried out with Peterborough at second. Ort, the former Saints' Manager, at short, and Isaac at third. Little is known about the outfield except that O'Hara who has been playing in the exhibition games, is the Toronto youngster who trained with Ottawa and Peterborough last season. If Eddie Holly, Bradshaw and Schneider come into the fold, the Beavers would look pretty good. At present they are only fair.

Hamilton's Hopes.

The Hamilton team has shaken its old Manager and old name, and now it is the Athletics with Dr. Bob Yates, protege of Connie Mack, at the helm. Yates has a good pitching staff with Donahue, Dougherty and Dolan as the nucleus. Behind the bat he has the lofty Red Fisher and Darlington, a college player. Dudley a former Western Canada Leagner, should be an improvement on first base, and Gillooly, the ex-Niagara University, London player, is a speedy second baseman. Three or four candidates are fighting for the other side of the diamond. The outfield promises to be strong, particularly of Corns comes along as Yates has purchased a good fielder in Sheckard and the ability of Jack White, formerly of Peterborough and Berlin, is well known. Dr. Yates is not yet satisfied and is pulling the wires for more players.

HERE'S WELCOME NEWS!

FAIR'S Annual Under-Price Spring Sale of House-Furnishings. 10 Days, commencing Monday, May 4th

Editor Sent To Jail.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 2.—For the first time in 20 years it became necessary yesterday morning for the Legislature of Nova Scotia to assert its power for contempt in defiance of its authority, when by a straight party vote W. R. McCurdy, news editor of The Halifax Herald, was committed to the common jail for 48 hours.

The prisoner's offence was in refusing to tell who delivered to him an anonymous letter signed Ian McLean, which was published in The Evening Mail, which made grave insinuations of corruption against members of the House of Assembly.

Incubator Plant Burned.

HAMILTON, May 2.—The incubator plant of the Negrella Manufacturing Co., at the corner of Emerald and Shaw streets, was totally destroyed about two o'clock yesterday morning by a fire of undetermined origin. The loss will amount to nearly $20,000.

TROUBLE IN TASMANIA.

Governor Refused To Allow Parliament To Be Dissolved.

LONDON, May 2. — Recent questions on the notice-paper of the House of Commons indicate the existence of a constitutional crisis in Tasmania.

According to Mr. MacVeagh and Mr. Lynch, the governor, Sir W. Ellison-Macartney, refused to allow the Conservative Government to dissolve Parliament after a vote of censure against them. He later authorized Mr. Earle, the Labor leader, to form a government subject to an immediate dissolution. He therefore refused a dissolution to a Premier without a majority. The governor, it is further suggested, asked Mr. Earle for assurances as to the filling of the law officerships.

Mr. Earle refused to give the assurance asked for. Parliament passed a vote of censure on the Government with only one dissentient and adjourned until June 30, pending an appeal to the King.

CAILLAUX WILL FIGHT A DUEL

Examiner Special:

PARIS, France, May 2.—Another chapter in the embittered political situation of France was added to-day when Joseph Caillaux, former Minister of Finance, whose wife is awaiting trial on a charge of murder, challenged his political opponent, M. Failleres to a duel on account of a platform statements. It is fully expected the duel will be to a finish to-morrow.

LORD LANSDOWNE NEXT LEADER

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Eng., May 2.—It is conceded in Unionist circles, following Sir Edward Carson's statement last night ,that Lord Lansdowne, Unionist leader in the Lords, will be the next Unionist leader in the Commons. His attitude towards Home Rule is the permanent exclusionof Ulster.

DEFICIT IS $132,000.

Dale Bank In Madoc Holds Real Estate of Uncertain Value.

MADOC, May 2. — A notice was posted on the doors of the Dale private bank yesterday saying that the bank has assets which may realize $268,930, less cost of collection and bad debts, indicating a shortage of $132,000. The bank holds property valued at $476,144.57 and real estate of problematical value in the west. On if further interest and principal have to be paid. Its price is $75,070. The shareholders are said to number four, J. C. Dale, sr., president of the bank; Duncan Mackenzie, James A. Caskey, and Duncan MacBeth, who are residents of Madoc and its vicinity. The resources of the individual partners are said to be $50,000.

Tango Forbidden at Capital.

OTTAWA, May 2.—There must be no more "tangoing" in Ottawa hotel cafes, according to the dictum of the Board of License Commissioners, which yesterday served notice on the Russell House that its license is renewed for only three months, and further renewal will depend upon stricter observance of the law and elimination of the tango.

Although the tavern and shop license reduction bylaw have been quashed by the courts the commissioners did some reducing on their own account, four hotels having been ordered to close up by August 1.

To Send Bodies Home.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Admiral Badger reported to the Navy Department yesterday that within two or three days he would send the battleship Montana to New York with the bodies of sailors and marines killed at Vera Cruz. The vessel would sail, he said, as soon as it became certain that her services were no longer needed for refugee work. The bodies will be shipped from New York to the homes of relatives.

Seized American Brig.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—An American brig was seized by Mexican Federal officials at Manzanillo, who thought that war had been declared, but was immediately released with apologies on the demand of the Raleigh, according to a report received at the Navy Department yesterday from Admiral Howard in command of the American fleet on the west coast of Mexico.

Candidates In Grimsby.

LONDON, May 2.—In the Grimsby bye-election, caused by the death of Sir George Doughty, Alfred Bannister, smack owner, will be the Liberal candidate, and George Pickler, jam manufacturer, Unionist candidate. Both are local men. Nothing has been decided regarding northeast Derbyshire.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disturbing eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children. If you are out of sorts give this medicine a trial, and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Stock Markets

A. E. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, May 1.—The Stock market advanced about three points more all around showing a gain of about seven points in all the active issues.

As predicted last night the market advanced further to-day, and I look for still higher prices to-morrow, in which case profits on half your holdings should be taken, especially on the active issues, which have advanced the most, such as UP, SP, LV, CA, RG, ACP, Steel, NH, etc. I expect the Market to have several quick spurts to-morrow, which should be utilised to get out of long stocks and I look for a lower opeing on Monday with sagging prices during the morning, formed by another bulge in the afternoon, where short sales may be made in a small way. Will let you know next week when to cover and take the long side. Would sell RG, 165, CA, 196; CAN, 37 1-2; UB, 61; MOP, 91; ST, 100; BO, near 92; CO above 54; MNP, near 60.

Keep long of specialties such as SR, ICE, as they won't react much.

Caillaux Would Fight.

PARIS, May 4.—Joseph Caillaux, who was re-elected to the Chamber of Deputies in the general election, held last week, has challenged Fernand D'Aillieres, the Liberal candidate to the chamber against him in the Mamers district, to fight a duel.

M. Caillaux was involved in the Gaston Calmette affair, and he resigned the Ministry of Finance after the killing of Calmette, editor of Le Figaro, by his wife last March. The challenge was sent, it is explained here, because M. D'Aillieres insulted the Mamers voters by posting bills saying clean electors would refuse to become "accomplices in crime."

"Mourners" Still Marching.

NEW YORK, May 4. — Although John D. Rockefeller, jr., was miles away from his father's estate at Pocantico Hills, "mourners" continued their marching Saturday in front of the Standard Oil Building in Lower Broadway, as a protest against the strike in Colorado coal fields, in which the Rockfellers are interested. Upton Sinclair was among the marchers. He was released from prison only Saturday after having paid a fine imposed for disorderly conduct.

ARGYLL SUCCUMBS

Duke's Attack of Pneumonia Has Fatal Termination

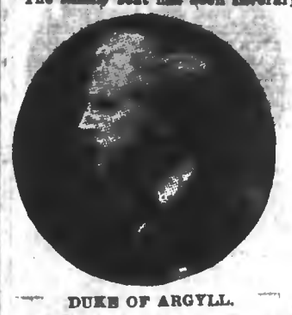
WAS MARQUIS OF LORNE

COWES, Isle of Wight, May 4.—The Duke of Argyll, son-in-law of the late Queen Victoria, and former Governor-General of Canada, died Saturday night at East Cowes, aged 69. He had been critically ill for the past week with pneumonia.

James Douglas Sutherland Campbell, ninth Duke of Argyll, was descended from one of the oldest of Scottish families. One of his titles, Baron Campbell, came into the family in 1445, and another, Baron of Lorne, was created in 1457. He was also twenty-ninth Baron Lochow.

As head of the Clan Campbell, the Duke of Argyll was the descendant of a long line of chieftains, one of whom, Colin Campbell, Mac Calleanmhor, was knighted as far back as 1286, and whose descendants have since borne a prominent part in the history of Scotland and also of the British Empire.

The family seat has been Inverary



DUKE OF ARGYLL.

Castle for seven centuries. The ninth duke was born in 1845 and was therefore 69.

Educated at St. Andrew's and Cambridge Universities, the duke combined in his mental make-up the traditional academic standing of the nobility of England and Scotland. In 1868 he became Marquis of Lorne and entered Parliament. He was then twenty-three. He sat in the Commons for ten years, during four of which he was private secretary to his father, then Secretary of State for India in the first administration of Gladstone.

Many Canadians still remember the duke when, as Marquis of Lorne, he came to Canada in 1878 to be Governor-General of Canada. His consort was Princess Louise, Queen Victoria's daughter, and many people still have hung upon the walls of their homes pictures of the vice-regal pair. Coming after so popular a Governor-General as Lord Dufferin, it was all the more to the credit of the Marquis of Lorne that he was not in any wise overshadowed by his predecessor, but, on the contrary, distinguished himself in office and was of profit to this country.

Princess Louise, by her tact and gracious presence, made herself popular throughout the Dominion.

On returning to England the duke joined the ranks of the Unionists, and was elected to Parliament for one of the Manchester seats. He continued in Parliament till 1900, when the death of his father called him to the dukedom and the House of Lords.

The duke achieved considerable fame as an author, but this distinction was somewhat obscured by his prominent position as a Parliamentarian and as a public and aristocrat. His chief works are: The United States After the War, written in 1885; Imperial Federation, same year; Memories of Canada and Scotland, 1884; Canadian Pictures, 1885; Life of Palmerston; Tales and Poems; the Psalms in English Verse; Windsor Castle; librette for an opera; Diarmid, 1897; Life and Times of Queen Victoria; A Gift Book for the Home, 1891; Passages From the Past, 1907.

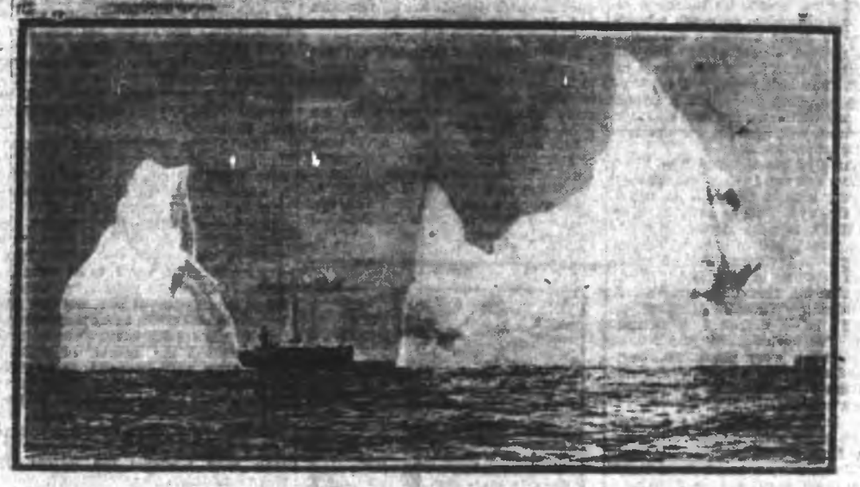
He is succeeded in the title by Lord Archibald Campbell, a brother.

Mourning at Rideau Hall.

OTTAWA, May 4.—The vice-regal party will go into mourning owing to the death of the Duke of Argyll. His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught will carry out the western Ontario trip as planned, however. Special permission has been secured from the King for this.

His Royal Highness will not attend the ball of the York Club in Toronto, but he will go in state to the Woodbine for three days of the races.

The vice-regal party will make the visit to Quebec as previously planned, but the engagements on this trip have not been settled. The trip to western Canada will also be carried out.



"SENECA" AMONG ICEBERGS—Following the Titanic disaster, the United States put in commission several vessels to patrol parts of the Atlantic to safeguard vessels. The picture shows the "Seneca" between two icebergs towering hundreds of feet above the ocean, and right in the track of passenger vessels. The report was sent by wireless to all surrounding vessels, thus removing the likelihood of another disaster.

BRITISH BUDGET TO-DAY.

Lloyd George's Estimates Will Be the Largest on Record.

LONDON, May 4.—David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will introduce his sixth budget in the House of Commons to-day. The estimates of the national expenditure are expected to amount to about £210,000,000 or £5,000,000 more than was spent by the country during the most expensive year of the Boer war. Just twenty years ago the annual national expenditure was £100,000,000 sterling. Increased taxation is a necessity for the Chancellor cannot count on such an increase in revenue as the trade boom brought last year. How Lloyd George plans to meet the heavy expenditure is yet an official secret, but it is generally believed that a feature of the next taxation will be a substantial increase in the super-tax on large incomes.

At present the super-tax of six pence on the pound is paid on incomes of £5,000 and upwards, but the first £3,000 is not charged.

The new budget is described in advance by Ministerial speakers as a "popular" budget, being so held together that it is not likely that the taxes will contain any proposal tending to raise the cost of living for the wage-earners. A repeal of the remaining sugar duty in fact is predicted in some quarters, but in the best informed Liberal circles this is declared impossible under the present circumstances.

BAD FIRE IN TARA.

Loss of $20,000 Is Caused by Flames —One Woman Is Dead.

LONDON, Ont., May 4.—Practically all the business section of Tara, a small town a short distance from here, was wiped out by fire, which not only resulted in a loss of $20,000, but indirectly the death of Mrs. A. Miller. She had been ill for some time and the removal from a building near the scene of the fire caused her to take a sudden relapse.

At 3 a.m. smoke was seen coming out of Monkman's livery stable. Within a few minutes the fire had gained great progress and spread to several neighboring buildings.

The night operator at the Bell Telephone Co. had to be taken out through an office window.

Assistance was asked from Chesley and Owen Sound, but the fire was under control before brigades arrived.

EVERY MINER PERISHED.

Explosion In Eccles, Working Was Terrific Says Gov. Hatfield.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 4.—Firm in the belief that all of the 172 men entombed in mine No. 5 at Eccles are dead as the result of Tuesday's explosion, Governor Hatfield returned from the stricken town Friday night. The governor, who, as a physician in the mining district of the state, has seen many explosions, said the explosion in No. 5 mine was the worst he had ever known. He believes that most of the miners were caught unawares and blown to pieces. "The force of the explosion," said the governor, "was so great that the surface coal was burned literaly to coke. You could scrape it off with your hands. In my opinion the men were killed by the force of the explosion."

Boy Drowned at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, May 4.—Basil Sabourin, 14-year-old son of Basil Sabourin, of 76 St. Henri street, Hull, was drowned in the Chaudiere Falls about eight o'clock yesterday morning. His body has not been recovered. The boy was employed in the J. R. Booth sawmills, located alongside the falls. With another boy he was running alongside a narrow ledge or rock that flanks the mills right above the surging water, when he slipped and toppled over, the body being instantly whirled away.

Sailing Vessels Collide at Sea.

ST. PIERRE, Miquelon, May 4.—Twenty-six men, the crew of the French fishing schooner Jeanne D'Arc of St. Malo, were saved from drowning when the craft was sunk in a collision with the brigantine Galantry thirty miles off Sydney, C.B., Wednesday night. The survivors were brought here on the Galantry Saturday.

The men were rescued with great difficulty, as the Jeanne D'Arc sank almost immediately after the collision.

Tong War Threatens.

ST. LOUIS, May 4.—The local Chinese quarter, extending over an area of five blocks in the downtown business section, was excited Saturday as a result of the murder of Haw Lin Shuck, a Chinese immigration officer of the United States, Friday night, and the subsequent prediction by Lee Bing, "Mayor of the Alley," that the shots which killed Shuck would inaugurate a Tong war in St. Louis, Chicago and New York. More than two score denizens of the alley, including the "Mayor," were taken by the police. The authorities are seeking an undersized Chinaman, said by leaders to have been sent here from Chicago or New York to put Shuck out of the way.

CROSSING POINT DE LA CONCORDE

ARRIVAL OF ROYAL YACHT AT CALAIS.
KING AND QUEEN AS GUESTS OF FRENCH REPUBLIC.

HIS DEATH WAS SUDDEN

Rev. Silvester Horne, M. P., Dies While on Niagara Boat

PLANNED CANADIAN TOUR

TORONTO, May 4.—On his way to conduct brotherhood rallies in Canada, Rev. C. Silvester Horne, M.A., M.P., president of the National Brotherhood Council of England, died suddenly of heart trouble at 8.30 Saturday evening on board the Corona, just after the vessel had entered Toronto bay.

Mr. Horne left England, accompanied by his wife, some weeks ago to give a series of lectures at Yale University, and afterwards intended to proceed to Canada to address several meetings in the interests of the brotherhood federation, in which he was so greatly interested.

The suddenness of her husband's death was a great shock to Mrs. Horne, who was formerly Catharine Cozens-Hardy, daughter of the Right Hon. Cozens-Hardy, Master of the Rolls in England, but she is bearing up wonderfully well under the terrible strain.

The body was conveyed from the wharf by A. W. Miles' private ambulance to the residence of N. W. Rowell,

REV. SILVESTER HORNE, M.P.

M.P., whose guest Mr. Horne was to have been during his stay in Toronto.

The ministers of Toronto held a short and impressive funeral service at Mr. Rowell's house at nine o'clock last night, after which it was announced that the body would be conveyed to Montreal to-day and taken to his home in England.

Born in Cuckfield, Sussex, England, on April 15, 1865, Rev. Charles Silvester Horne received his early education at Newport Grammar School. He subsequently studied theology at Mansfield College, Oxford, and gained his M. A. at Glasgow University.

He first entered the service of the church when he was elected minister of Kensington Chapel in 1889, but he resigned this position in 1902 to take up the duties as Congregational minister at Whitfield's Tabernacle, Tottenham Court road.

Mr. Horne entered the British Parliament in 1910, when he was successful as a radical at Ipswich in 1910.

In 1892 he married Catherine, the eldest daughter of Rt. Hon. Cozens-Hardy, the Master of the Rolls. He is also survived by four sons and three daughters.

The first meeting which was to have been addressed by the late minister was at the Western Congregational Church, Spadina avenue, yesterday morning.

A large congregation was present in the expectation of hearing a man who was so beloved among their fellow members in England, and immediately the Rev. James W. Pedley came forward it could be seen that something unexpected had happened.

The shock of the announcement of Rev. Mr. Horne's death was terrific. For some minutes the congregation appeared stunned, but when the people at last fully realized the sadness of the situation there was hardly a person in the whole church who was not moved to tears. Men and women alike gave vent to their feeling, and it was some minutes before Mr. Pedley could proceed with his address.

WANDERED TWO DAYS.

Nova Scotia Woman Had Harrowing Experience In Woods.

HALIFAX, May 4.—Alone in the woods for two days and nights and nearly driven insane by fear were the experiences suffered by Mrs. Owen, aged 60, when she tried to walk from Windsor Junction, N.S., to the home of some friends near Sackville, N.S. Mrs. Owen belongs to Maple Grove, Hantsport, N.S.

After walking five or six miles, from the railway station at Windsor Junction, on Thursday, Mrs. Owen strayed off the track and during the night got lost in the forest. Without sleep wandered around, falling into a pond and getting out with difficulty. Her boots were torn from her feet, while her clothes were in ribbons. Saturday morning Mrs. Owen, hysterical with fright and exhaustion, reached a road near Fairview, where Rupert Purcell, employed by the I. C. R., discovered her and sent her to Halifax.

SOLDIERS TO BE TRIED.

Eighty-Eight Colorado Militiamen Accused of Ludlow Outrage.

DENVER, Col., May 4—Prominent among the day's developments in Colorado's strike war are the preparations for the court-martialling and the arrest and trial in civil court of the eighty-six members of Company "B," Colorado National Guards, who, with two officers of the state militia, were held responsible by the jury for the death of two women and eleven children in the burning tents of Ludlow, and the gathering of representatives for the special session of the Legislature, which open to-day.

That a resolution to impeach Governer Ammons will be introduced is virtually certain. Whether the House will adopt such a measure is still a question.

The report submitted Saturday night by the Military Commission, a board created by Governer Ammons himself, finding that the soldiers deliberately set fire to and looted the tents at Ludlow, where the women and children were cremated, will be urged as the strongest evidence of Ammons' alleged inability to govern the state.

When the Legislature assembles a body of 500 women will demand an audience. They are members of the Colorado Women's Peace Association, who sent a committee to Ludlow to investigate the situation. The committee has returned with the report that not one-half of the horrors have been told.

To Run For Legislature.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 4.—William Spankie, Wolfe Island, stated Saturday that if there was a general election in June in the Ontario Legislature he would be a candidate. Spankie is a former school inspector for Frontenac County and is very desirous of getting a place in the Legislature to advocate his educational policy. He says that the present policy is far from satisfactory. Anthony Rankin, the present member, has not stated as to whether he would be a candidate again, but it is almost certain he will. Spankie is engaged in canvassing. He is ex-warden of Frontenac County.

PRODUCING RADIUM.

Extraction of Precious Metal Is Very Tedious Process.

Were the production of radium dependent entirely upon the supplies of pitchblende available the outlook for the future would be poor indeed.

Pitchblende sometimes contains as much as 60 per cent. of uranium, and radium always occurs with uranium in the proportion of about one part in three million. The richest pitchblende has been mined at St. Joachimstal, in Bohemia, but further supplies are being conserved by the Austrian Government.

One result of the shortage of such uranium minerals has been the development of the use of mesothorium, which may be regarded as a by-product of the incandescent gas mantle industry.

But whereas the average life of radium is 2,500 years, that of mesothorium is only about eight years, and thus while money spent on radium may be taken as being unaffected by depreciation a store of mesothorium would need replenishment in a few years.

There are, however, large supplies of minerals containing some 1 or 2 per cent. or uranium. Among such "low grade" minerals autunite and carnotite perhaps come next to pitchblende and the uraninites in respect of uranium content. Orangite and other minerals also contain uranium, and the supply of radia-active material would be fairly wide if all these minerals could be included from the point of view of radium production.

The usual processes of radium extraction are, however, tedious and protracted, and the difficulties of economically treating the poorer minerals by their aid are very great. The operations, which are described in The London Times, begin with the removal of the uranium or of the uranium and vanadium in the case of carnotite.

The residues contain a great deal of silica, and a large number of metals that are ordinarily present have to be got rid of. The radium is obtained usually in the form of a mixture of radium and barium chloride at the end of the first or "opening up" process, and the final operation consists in separating the pure radium chloride from the barium salt, a process which may take several months.

The first operation is generally effected by boiling the residues with sodium carbonate solution, when the radium and barium form insoluble carbonates. These are dissolved in hydrochloric acid, certain chlorides of other metals also remaining in the solution.

The radium-barium is next precipitated as sulphate, which is once more converted into carbonate, and this again into chloride. Finally the material is submitted to a long series of fractional crystallizations, by which radium chloride is gradually separated out in a more or less pure state.

One of the most important advances in the technique of radium extraction that has so far been made is perhaps a concentrating process which has been invented by two English chemists—Kent Smith and H. B. Rolfe—whereby the radium containing residues can be reduced in bulk so that about 95 per cent. of the material is discarded.

Von Hutten's Misery.

Very sad was the fate of Ulrich von Hutten, one of the greatest writers Germany has ever produced. Unable to earn a living, he was reduced to tramping through the country, begging food and shelter from the peasants. One bitter winter's night both were refused, and next morning he was found frozen stiff and cold in the drifting snow outside the village. "The only thing he died possessed of besides the rags he wore," says his biographer, Zwingli, "was a pen."

Was Confined To His Bed For Four Months With Rheumatism.

Mr. W. H. Riley, Ruddell, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure that I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with rheumatism. I was so bad with this terrible disease, I was unable to get up from my bed for four months, and nothing seemed to relieve me until a friend recommended Doan's Pills. I had my doubts about them, but was so desperate I would try anything suggested to me. After taking half a box I was able to get up, and after taking two boxes could get around quite well. After taking six boxes I was completely cured, and able to work for the first time in five months, and have not had a touch of rheumatism since. Anyone who saw me then would not know me now, as I am strong and active since taking your valuable medicine."

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poison and impurities which have collected, and thus clean out the kidneys, and dispel the rheumatism from the system.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

THE HISTORICAL BUTCHER.

Mathews' Story of the Secrates of the Shambles.

The eminent actor, Mr. Mathews, father of Sir Charles Mathews, in one of his "At Homes," related a story of a butcher he dealt with, and who came to be known throughout the town as "the historical butcher."

This man was very ostentatious of his affected knowledge of the "History of England," a book he was constantly reading from morning to night, and which he so much admired that he never served a customer but he related a part of the subject he had been reading in the course of the day. You will suppose a customer to be standing there, and a friend seated with him behind the counter here, which will account for the following curious jumble:—

"What d'ye buy? What d'ye buy? Well, how are you? How do you do? I am very glad to see you. How are all the family? This is very kind to call in this here way. I've been reading, as usual, all this here blessed morning that favorite book of mine, 'Hume's History in England.' What a book that is! How hinstructive and hentertaining 'Hume's History in England' is — tenpence a pound, ma'am. I've been reading the fourth volum—it's a very thick 'un, very thick indeed; make nice soup, ma'am. Queen Mary—make nice Scotch collops, ma'am.

"Sir Isaac Newton was a great man; he knew all about the Pole-axe of the fixet stars, and how long it would take a man to go in a taxed cart to the moon. Queen Elizabeth went to St. Paul's on a pillion—that saddle of mutton's just your weight, ma'am. I've been reading—dear me! —I've been reading 'King Charles'; you've heard of him, hain't you? Hid himself in St. James' Park ever since. No, it warn't St. James' Park, war it? However, I know it was in some park. But the wicked rascals caught him and cut off his head—make a capital hash with parsley garnish, ma'am. Cardinal Wulsey's father was a butcher; so am I. There's a curious coincidence, ain't it?

"And Henry VIII. married Queen Elizabeth. No, he didn't though, for she war his mother. No, that couldn't be; she warn't his mother, but she war some relation. King Henry the Eighth—that's a nice fat bit, ma'am; take it wi' yen?"

That was the learned oration that issued almost daily from this Socrates of the shambles, and drew a pretty numerous lot of customers to his shop.

Fat In the Fire Brigade.

Some time ago fat firemen in the London fire brigade was told that they must reduce their weight or resign. The chief theory was that firemen should not be fat, because that means loss of the agility necessary for their business. The firemen pointed out that there were not fires enough to keep them in strict training, and that most of their time was spent waiting on alarms and that their enforced idleness to men of their perfect health meant corpulence. The London County Council, however, recognising that fatness was not the men's fault but their misfortune, has now decided to provide a gymnasium at every fire station, so that the men when waiting for fires can take exercise that will prevent them from larding the lean earth as they run.

But even for a fireman dismissed for fatness there is a world elsewhere. From another source comes the news that a firm of London publishers are dismissing their thin travelers as unsuitable for commercial traveling. An exchange might be effected here, and thus another proof would be furnished of the fluidity of labor.

Origin of Trial By Jury.

A trial by jury is an occurrence of which we read every day, but how many of our readers know the origin of such a trial?

The origin of trial by jury is very obscure. All that is known for certain is that from the earliest times the Anglo-Saxons and other Germanic tribes showed a decided preference for the number twelve when forming a committee to determine upon the guilt or innocence of a person.

The legal existence of jurors was first recorded under the Plantagenets. During the reign of Queen Elizabeth a jury which could not agree was sent to prison, and also at the same period a banquet was generally given to the jury by the successful litigant. This latter fact naturally made the jurymen anxious to prove the innocence of their victim, especially when he happened to be wealthy.

Restoring Crape.

To restore a crape veil place a folded sheet on a table and to it pin the veil carefully and straight; do not stretch it a particle. Dissolve one teaspoonful of granulated sugar in one pint of boiling water; wet a clean cloth with this and lay it lightly on the crape. Have an iron very hot; go over the wet cloth as though ironing it, but do not let the iron touch it; continue until the cloth is nearly dry. Then wet the cloth again and continue the same process until the entire veil has been gone over. The crape will be full of deep crinkles and as crisp as new, no matter how old and flat it was when you began. Small pieces of crape for trimming can be renewed in the same way. The crape should be shaken and brushed to remove all traces of dust before starting the restoring process.—New York Sun.

Not Time In a Mile.

A Washington horseman tells of an overanxious owner and a particularly conscientious rider at a recent meet at Pimlico. The owner had issued full orders as to the way a horse was to be ridden in a certain race. The jockey was a diminutive darky. The original orders were supplemented by provisions for all manner of emergencies, all of which somewhat bewildered the jockey.

"See heah, boss," he finally said, "dis heah race is only one mile. I can't do all dem things you tells in just one mile."—Exchange.

FOUR WINTERS OF RHEUMATISM

Cured of Sciatica And Muscular Rheumatism By "Fruit-a-tives"

RIDGETOWN, ONT., May 21st, 1913.

"Fruit-a-tives" cured me of Rheumatism. It was the only medicine that made any impression on me. I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism. I was laid up for four winters with Sciatica and Muscular Rheumatism, and was completely crippled.

Some neighbor of mine told me that "Fruit-a-tives" helped him, and I started in to take them. I used "Fruit-a-tives" faithfully for two years, taking them every day as I saw they were doing me good, and the results were marvellous.

For over two years, I have been completely free from any Rheumatic Pains whatever, and I give "Fruit-a-tives" the credit." W. H. EACHER.

A New British Dominion.

Among the more important by-products of the Panama canal we are likely to see the development of another self-governing dominion or commonwealth within the British Empire. This will consist of the West India Islands, and perhaps also the continental possessions of the British crown in Central and South America.

These various colonies are collectively much larger in population, commerce and wealth than is Newfoundland or even New Zealand. Yet they have no voice in Imperial affairs and have little influence because of their lack of unity.

For a score of years the question of federation has been intermittently considered. Now the impending opening of the Panama canal and the prospect of profound changes in commercial relationships have given to the movement a new impetus and have made its realization seem all but essential.

Poetical In His Misery.

Much amusement was caused at a recent Navan, County Wath, district council meeting by a letter from a tenant of one of their cottages, who complained that though he had applied to have the cottage painted, whitewashed, and disinfected, this had not been done. Declaring that his wedding was approaching, but that the prospective bride had refused to marry him until the cottage was put in repair, he broke into verse as follows:—

Inside its walls she won't enter,
She told me that once and for all.
Till its paintings are all put in order,
And the microbes removed from the wall.

The rent collector explained that the tenant owed him $5, and the council ordered the poet be brought before the magistrates.

Club For Costers.

In Tavistock Mews, Notting Hill, England, there has just been added another to the long list of London clubs. It is a club for West London costers. It has already nearly a hundred members and, as another sign of the times, it contains a library and reading-room. The social room is decorated with portraits of famous costers, past and present, and some of their equally famous donkeys. Closed during the day, when the street traders are busy, after eight every evening the costers begin to drop in, and this club is the very place for the curious to test, in one particular, just how far London life has changed since Dickens was writing confidently about it.

PATENT CRANKS.

They Give the Clerks a Merry Time With Their Devices.

Surely there is no more extraordinary array of "freaks" to be found anywhere in the country than may be met with by anyone who searches through the Patent Office in London! Such a man will be perfectly astounded at the immense number of cranks there must be in the land; men and women—chiefly the former, of course—who spend time, trouble, and money in putting forward so-called inventions which are really nothing more than absolute freaks; ideals and models of no good to anybody whatever for any practical purpose in life! Indeed, the Patent Office might well be termed "The Asylum for Idiotic Ideas and Models!"

As showing how long and how similarly the most extravagant notions have obsessed certain kinds of folk in connection with this patent business, we may just mention that the office had not been in vogue, in the reign of King James I., more than a week or two, when one agricultural gentleman sent word to it that he wished to have "a patent for making crops grow without plowing the soil by horses and plow, as he had learned how to plow fields otherwise; and also possessed the secret of making crops grow with tremendous fertility without trouble!" When called on to explain this very valuable process, however, the men could really tell nothing at all! He was a crank, pure and simple — the first of thousands who have pestered the Patent Office since that time.

Another amusing thing for which a patent was sought was as follows. Some naturalist had noticed that bees are often robbed of their honey at night by the bee-moth, while they themselves are dormant. To provide against this he put in a specification and plans showing how the hives should have a small shutter before the hole for ingress and egress; how this shutter might be connected by cords with the perches of hens roosting some shed near; how the hens would retire to their perches when the bees went inside the hives for the night; how the hens, by this, would depress the perches, which would move the cord, and thus close the shutters! When morning came, and the hens flew down, of course the shutters were opened again, and the bees began operations once more! Think of the glorious stratagem!

You never know what will come into the Patent Office any day. To be a clerk there must be as good as being at a pantomime, and often infinitely more amusing. One man traveling on a northern railway had pulled the communication-cord in vain, so far as making the driver feel it was concerned. So he forthwith set his brains to work and evolved a "patent" device which should compel the driver to take notice of such a thing. His plans, as sent to the office, showed an enormous catapult fixed on the top of the guards' van, which when the cord was pulled by a passenger, should throw stones at the driver on the engine till he stopped the train! I need hardly say that no railway company has, as yet, taken up that patent and carried its plans into effect. Nice for the driver, eh?

When one portion of England was, two or three decades ago, troubled with a slight earthquake, there came along the man with the hour — as usual! This worthy inventor was greatly perturbed lest his own house should fall in such a catastrophe as an English earthquake. And to prevent the danger he put in for a patent for a device he had, whereby all houses, etc., for the future should be build on small rollers or wheels, so that when any seismatic disturbance occurred they would simply roll or move about freely and unhurt, instead of having their foundations upset and endangered!

A young man who is striving for political honors and who therefore feels called upon to do considerable public talking was recently waited upon by a delegation of men residing in one of the poorer regions of his district.

He was greatly pleased when their spokesman requested a speech from him at an early date.

"What kind of a speech?" he asked.

"An after dinner speech," replied a wag in a shabby coat.

Profane Dancing.

Harriet Beecher Stowe records that in her girlhood she and her friends used to dance a jig entitled "Go to the Devil and Shake Yourself." This dance must have enjoyed a long spell of popularity. The first Duke of Buckingham and Chandos was indignant when, designing to attend an assembly ball at Aireaford, his request for a dance, addressed to a local rector's wife, met with the reply, "Go to the Devil and Shake Yourself!" He complained to the rector, and it then transpired that the lady, who was somewhat deaf, thought his grace had asked her what dance was then being played. This incident occurred in 1705, and twenty years later Crabbe, in his "Tales," animadverts on a bookseller for stocking the music of a dance with such a profane title.—Manchester Courier.

CREATION DRAMA'S AUTHOR AT TEMPLE

Discourse on Special Call of Christ's Church.

ANOINTED TO BE KINGS

Jesus the Head—The Church the Body—Special Training For Office—Who May Qualify For Election—Terms and Conditions to Be Met—Patient Continuance In Well-doing — Character-likeness to Christ the Necessary Qualification—Suffering With Christ—Three Classes That Enter Race For Prize—Only One Will Be Successful.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

New York City, May 3.—Pastor Russell was at home to-day, and in the forenoon occupied the rostrum of his Temple Theatre on West Sixty-Third street, just off Broadway.

The Temple is the headquarters of Pastor Russell's increasingly famous Photo-Drama of Creation. It was here that this charmingly instructive Story of the Bible in Moving Pictures was launched last January, and it is still being exhibited to large audiences, every afternoon and evening, Sundays included.

When the Pastor is absent from the city on Sundays, The Temple pulpit is occupied in the forenoon by one of his able assistants.

Readers of Pastor Russell's world-wide, syndicated sermons are familiar with the rapid increase of productions of the Story of the Bible in films, panoramas, etc., as exhibited in his Creation Drama, it being produced now in the principal cities of the country.

Pastor Russell's theme this forenoon was based upon the text; "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me."—Matthew 16:24.

God purposed from before the foundation of the world, said the Pastor, to establish a Kingdom for the blessing of all mankind. In His infinite Wisdom the Almighty had foreseen the entrance of sin and its penalty of death. He also knew His own great Plan whereby He would set aside this curse of death and bring in a blessing to the whole human family.

This Kingdom, the Pastor explained, is to be different from any other in that its Monarch will be not only a King, but also a Priest. For this reason, he declared, Christ is said to be a Priest after the Order of Melchizedek, who was a priest upon his throne. Christ is to be both King and Priest at the same time. His anointing with the Holy Spirit at Jordan was to represent His induction into the place of favor where in due time He would be the authorized King and Priest, recognized as such by the Almighty.

The Pastor then showed that the condition upon which God would appoint any one to the office of King and Priest was this: The one accounted worthy of this high honor must first demonstrate his obedience to the Father even unto death—an obedience that would respond to any requirement that the Father might please. When Jesus made a consecration of Himself at Jordan, He offered Himself to meet the conditions. As He said of Himself later, "I come not to do Mine own will, but the will of My Father."

The work to be done was first to prove Himself worthy to be the great King, the great Priest; and thus He would be given authority to bless the world. Secondly, this very sacrifice of Himself, by which He would demonstrate His worthiness to be the great Priest upon the Throne would be a sin-offering or behalf of humanity, to pay the Ransom-price for the world, and thus to set aside legally and justly the penalty which God had pronounced against Adam and which affected all his posterity.

The Pastor next pointed out Jesus' steps in fulfilment of God's Plan. At the age of thirty years our Lord consecrated Himself to do the Father's will, saying, as foretold by the Psalmist, "Lo, I come; in the volume of the Book it is written of Me, I delight to do Thy will, O My God!" (Psalm 40:7, 8.) Then for three and a half years the Master was thoroughly tested to demonstrate that He had really meant all that He said when He made that consecration Vow unto God. When on Calvary He cried, "It is finished," He referred to His demonstration of loyalty and obedience to the Father's will. His fulness of laying down His life in the Father's service, His work as Purchaser of the world, was finished.

Continuing his argument, the Pastor declared that God raised Jesus from the dead on the third day in order that He might be a Prince and a Saviour. (Acts 5:30, 31.) But although more than eighteen centuries have passed since then, the world is still unsaved. The speaker then showed that during this time God has been calling a class out of the world for a special purpose. This special call of the Gospel Age is to the effect that as many as hear this Message are privileged to become, upon certain conditions, members of this special class which God is selecting —this "Body of Christ, which is the Church."

The Pastor then stated the terms and conditions upon which any one is eligible to membership in the Body of Christ: The Father gives the invitation while the High Calling of this Age is open. He nominates those who accept the call, but each must elect himself by compliance with the terms and conditions. The speaker explained that the call is a drawing toward God—a desire to come near to Him. Some have it from birth, others get it at their mother's knee, others through a hymn, a book, through hearing the Scriptures, etc. Whatever thus points to Christ as the Way to God constitutes a call, an invitation.

Those who have heard the call, continued the Pastor, must learn that the first step is to turn away from sin. Next they must learn that God has made provision through the death of His Son whereby sins may be forgiven. To those who take these two steps the Saviour says, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." The speaker explained that to deny one's self is to give over one's self-sufficiency, one's desire to do his own will, and to accept instead the Divine will. It is just as if the person had died; he is no longer his own. He has died to all earthly ambitions, hopes, aims and desires, and receives in their stead new ambitions, hopes, aims and desires.

The Pastor next showed what it is to take up the cross. One just starting in the narrow way to life will not know what his cross is to be. But gradually he will perceive that it is the crossing of self-will with the Divine will. This will be manifest in various ways, which may not be fully understood at first; but if the consecration was genuine, every trial will sooner or later prove to be a blessing, and the child of God will learn to rejoice in what once seemed to be tribulation.

Then the Pastor explained what is meant by following Christ. This signifies patient continuance in bearing the cross. The one walking in the narrow way must demonstrate to Divine satisfaction that the character is fixed for truth, loyalty to God, to His Word, to the principles of righteousness.

This does not mean that the flesh is to be perfected, the Pastor claimed, but the New Creature—the new will. God well knows that in fallen human nature there dwells no perfection. Whatever is done in spite of one's endeavors to do right results from fleshly weakness, and is not counted as sin. But whatever wrong is done willingly is sin. The weaknesses of the flesh, of the fallen nature, are covered with the robe of Christ's righteousness. Therefore it is the New Creature's privilege to go on from grace to grace, thus becoming more and more a copy of God's dear Son, our Lord and Saviour.

According to the Pastor, all who have taken these steps have come into the Body of Christ, the Church, which is composed of all begotten of the Holy Spirit. These were begotten of the Spirit at the moment when they presented their bodies living sacrifices in Jesus' name. Then they were immediately accepted of God and became members in the Body of Christ, all of whom have the same anointing as that of the Head of the Church.

In the case of the Apostles there was a particular manifestation on the day of Pentecost. The Holy Spirit, which had first come upon Jesus the Head, on that day flowed down upon the shoulders, so to speak, the Apostles being the first members of the Body. Since then, all who come into the Body come under the same anointing, as members in particular of the Body of Christ, related to Jesus as New Creatures in Christ, to whom old things have passed away and all things become new. We are not to speak nor to think lightly of any one whom God accepts into this Body and who has, through consecration, received the begetting of the Holy Spirit.

The Spirit-begotten Body of Christ, the Pastor thinks, will not be altogether the Body of Christ in glory. He believes that some who are now on probation will prove to be unworthy to be members in that glorious Body. Only those who, after having been begotten of the Holy Spirit, shall press faithfully on to the end of their course, will become the real kings and priests of the future. He then explained why some will fail to make their calling and election sure to permanent membership in the Body of Christ. These, he declared, will be of two classes. One class who fail to make their calling and election sure to membership in the glorified Body of Christ are those who turn away from the holy commandment, who return to wallowing in the mire of sin. For this class, St. Peter says, there remains only the blackness of darkness—the Second Death. (2 Peter 2:17, 21, 22.) These have had all their share of the blessings and have misused them; and so there is nothing further for them in God's Plan.

The other class who also fail to reach the goal of membership in the glorified Body of Christ are those who have neither denied the Lord that bought them nor returned to wallowing in the mire of sin, but who have lacked zeal. These have failed to persevere so faithfully in the narrow way that the Father could count them copies of His Son Jesus and receive them to the Heavenly Throne and glory. These are variously pictured in the Bible. In one of our Lord's parables they are designated "foolish virgins."

The Pastor then explained briefly the import of this parable. The word virgin means pure one. The entire Church of Christ is pure. The wise virgins are those of the Church who will use present opportunities and blessings so wisely that they will make their calling and election sure. They will be wise enough to lay aside every weight and besetting sin, and run with patience the race set before them. The foolish virgins are those who, after having given up the world and having accepted Christ, will nevertheless try to hold on to the world, while walking slowly toward the Lord. If this class keep on in the narrow way at all, they will eventually be conquerors, yet they will not be those "more than conquerors" to whom abundant entrance into the Kingdom will be granted.

These foolish virgins have been all their lifetime subject to bondage because of their fear of death of the flesh—the old nature. They are not courageous enough to follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth, although they are loyal, faithful. These, the Pastor believes, will get the secondary prize. Instead of being on the Throne with our Lord, they will be before the Throne; instead of wearing the crown, they will have only a palm branch.

When the foolish virgins shall have passed through the great tribulation mentioned in Revelation 7, they will be a grand class. But they might be in the highest class if they were more zealous. It remains with themselves to make their calling and election sure. God nominated them, but they fail of election because they fail to have sufficient zeal, love and earnestness to gain the great prize of joint-heirship with Christ in the Messianic Kingdom.

These different classes, the Pastor declared, are all one Body at the present time; for all are called in the one hope of their calling, and there is no decision yet as to the two classes. All who receive the Holy Spirit are one company now. But at the end of this Age the great Master will make the division between the two classes of virgins—between the wise and the foolish, between the Great Company and the Little Flock. At the present time, however, all who are begotten of the Holy Spirit belong to the probationary Body of Christ. But after the division shall have been made, only the Little Flock will be of the permanent Body of Christ—the Church in glory, clothed with glory, honor, and immortality.

Next the Pastor discussed various texts which declare that all the followers of Christ must suffer in the flesh, even as Jesus suffered. He pointed out the nature of our Lord's sufferings, who was misunderstood, slandered, misrepresented, etc. While the followers of Jesus cannot possibly expect to suffer in all the ways that the Master suffered, nevertheless they have similar experiences to His. It is a mistaken idea, the speaker maintained, to believe that suffering is a sign of Divine displeasure. No Christian thinks that the Father was displeased with our Redeemer; on the contrary, as the Scriptures say, Jesus was holy, harmless and separate from sinners. And yet our Lord suffered much—it pleased God to bruise Him; to put Him to grief, to put Him to shame.

The thought is not that the Father took pleasure in the sufferings of His Son, but that in the great Divine Plan it seemed wisest and best that He should subject the Son to severe tests in order that both angels and men, looking back at Jesus' experiences from Jordan to Calvary, could see that He was faithful unto death; and in order that the rewards of Jesus' obedience might be manifest—that all might see the condition upon which God gives His choicest blessings. To all eternity this will be an incentive to any who may have the opportunity of serving God; such will know that whoever renders service to Him and endures sufferings for righteousness' sake will have the spirit of glory rest upon him and will be amply rewarded.

The Pastor then dwelt at length upon the privilege of suffering with Christ. He quoted Scripture to demonstrate that only those who suffer with Christ shall reign with Him. Those who are dead with Christ shall live with Him on the spiritual plane, partakers of His Divine nature, sharers of His glory. All these blessings are conditional upon their demonstrating that they are worthy to be members of His Body, and are actuated by His spirit. Some are privileged to suffer more than do others. In presenting this thought, the Pastor used the diamond as an illustration. A large diamond requires much more polishing than does a small diamond; yet a large diamond is worthy of much polishing. Our Lord and St. Paul were large diamonds. Therefore they were subjected to much affliction, much difficulty, in order that they might show forth more fully the praises of Him who called them to His marvelous glory.

The Pastor concluded his discourse by calling attention to the wonderful blessings and privileges that are coming to the world to-day and to the increased knowledge and light upon all subjects, but especially upon the Word of God. He declared that God's people see as never before the lengths, breadths, heights and depths of God's character and Plan; and that even the world are coming to see something of His goodness and His wonderful arrangements. The eyes of the world are opening more and more widely, and the delusions that have been upon the world are rapidly disappearing. This is the dawning of a New Day.

But with the increase of light comes increased responsibility. When God gives us a certain amount of the light of Truth, it is for us to demonstrate whether or not we appreciate it, and whether or not we have been loyal to what we have received. If we take the steps of appreciation and obedience, we thus evidence our readiness for more light. And so we may go from grace to grace, from knowledge to knowledge, from creeping like a child to walking like a man—until we all come to the full stature of a man in Christ Jesus.

HAD INDIGESTION.

Almost Despaired of Ever Getting Well.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The exertions of the gastric juice have been confined entirely to removing the unmasticated, undigested portions of food, which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, therefore only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. No wonder then that Indigestion and Dyspepsia attack the stomach. No medicine can surpass Burdock Blood Bitters as a cure for this particular disease. It regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health to the debilitated system.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with Indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several Doctor's medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor, is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings. I can strongly recommend B.B.B. to anyone suffering from Indigestion."

DARWIN'S METHODS.

Thoroughness of Great Naturalist Shown in Tests With Bees.

Henry Fabre, the naturalist, tells in The Fortnightly Review a characteristic story about Charles Darwin and himself. Darwin wanted to explain the "homing" instinct of bees, and induced Fabre to begin a series of experiments with that purpose in view. A regular plan of campaign was drawn up.

Marked bees were placed in a dark box and carried away from the hive in the opposite direction from that in which they were finally liberated. The box was repeatedly turned about, so that the inmates would lose all sense of direction. Every possible means was taken to render useless any known or conceivable method of obtaining one's bearings. The bees were even placed within an induction coil in the effort to confuse them.

The result of a long and elaborate series of tests was nil so far as any explanation of the homing power was concerned. In every case from thirty to forty per cent. of the bees found their way home without apparent trouble, no matter how confusing the trip away from home had been made.

The story is characteristic, because it illustrates the thorough way in which the author of the "Origin of Species" attacked all his problems. He was not one to merely "opine prettily and probably," and let it go at that. He put everything to the test of experiment, and when the answer came out wrong, or did not come out at all, he "scrapped" the hypothesis as a matter of course instead of trying to explain away its failure.

A Bucket Line.

A seventy-five mile ride in a bucket high in the air will soon be possible in the Himalayas. An aerial cableway of that length—the longest in the world—is to be constructed on the plans of a Canadian engineer from the Punjab to the famous vale of Kashmir. The ruggedness of the country and the danger of rock slides and landslips makes a railroad track out of the question. Towers will be built nearly half a mile apart, and a cable will carry steel cars loaded with 300 or 400 pounds. The cable will be in five mile sections, but an arrangement has been adopted to automatically pass a car or bucket from one cable section to the next. Plenty of water power is conveniently at hand to develop electricity for hauling the buckets.—Exchange.

New Gold Brick.

The following advertisement appeared in the Swiss-German papers of Zurich, Switzerland: "An alchemist wishes to borrow from a noble gentleman or lady the sum of $500 at 100 per cent interest to install a laboratory destined to manufacture Lapis philosopherum (the elixir of long life and remedy against all diseases). Twenty-five years' study of this science permits me to begin its practice. Who will aid me?"

West Indian Crabs.

The crabs of the West Indies live in the mountains and once a year they assemble in a vast army, sometimes 40 yards in width and more than a mile long, and march to the sea where the females deposit their eggs in the sand. After the laying season they return to the mountains.

A Novel Experiment.

To Mr. Harold Brighouse, the English playwright, belongs the distinction of being the first dramatist to write a play round the professional footballer, and the experiment has earned cordial praise from the critics. Moreover, the professional footballer is represented as a very decent fellow possessed of a sense of honor, which is highly refreshing in these days when sedentary pedants are prone to malign him as a wolf in sheep's clothing.

Mr. Brighouse belongs to the Manchester school of playwrights who have been brought to the front by the repertory movement. Still on the right side of thirty he has something like eight plays to his name, all of which have attracted attention. His one-act play, "The Price of Coal," was received with enthusiasm when presented in London. It deals with a pit disaster and represents the quiet heroism of the miner's wife. His best known play, however, is "Dealing in Futures," which is a somewhat biting attack on certain phases of industrialism. All Mr. Brighouse's plays are concerned with the vital issues round him, and Manchester has reason to be proud of this native product.

You May Speak First Now.

King George and Queen Mary have made an innovation in court etiquette. Breaking down the traditions under which nobody must address the monarch unless he is first spoken to, Their Majesties have intimated that at private dinner parties at least guests must not hesitate either to open the conversation or to broach a new subject of conversation. As the King and Queen are going to dine out regularly during the coming season the innovation is causing a great stir. It is hailed as an admirable move.

Queen Alexandra still adheres to the old custom, possible on account of the fact that her deafness makes it difficult for her to follow general conversation. The late King Edward, though he unbent occasionally on special occasions, was on the whole a strict observer of the rule which "hedged his divinity" against the risk of being pressed on a subject for which he was not prepared, while Queen Victoria's strictness in the matter has been chronicled by many who met her.

Hippopotamus Ivory Less Used.

Trade in hippopotamus ivory is carried on in Africa on a much smaller scale of late years than formerly. The teeth of the "hippo" are much harder than those of the elephant, and for a long time were used in the manufacture of false teeth, which were skillfully carved from that material. Old Le Vaillant remarks, in his "African Travels," now more than a hundred years old:

"It is surprising that Europeans, especially Frenchmen, should make an article of commerce out of the teeth of the hippopotamus, for with the help of science they are made to replace our own, and we may see them flashing delightfully in the mouth of a pretty woman."

The Meanest Type of Criminal

Vicious and Cruel Methods Employed by New York's Italian "Con" Men and Coin Matchers

A NEWSBOY breathlessly darted from a side street into West street, and, plunging toward the first man he saw, gasped:—

"A bunch of Dagos has got three guys pinned up against the wall around the corner and they are murdering them. Where kin I git a cop?"

As it happened the man addressed was a "cop," he being Detective Muggi, of Police Headquarters, who, perhaps, knows more about Italian confidence men and coin matchers than any man in the department. Furthermore he knew that the three men pinned against the wall were victims of their own game and that they had been turned on by an infuriated mob which they had sought to fleece.

Muggi sped around the corner and arrived in time to see three pairs of fleeing heels, while a roughly dressed group of immigrants, wildly gesticulating and almost shrieking their imprecations, sheathed their knives and picking up their multitude of bundles and luggage prepared to resume their journey.

It was a game with which Muggi had long been familiar and one he says is worked by a band of sharpers smarter by far than the Black Hand, and just as desperate and cruel in their methods of dealing with their victims. A human life counts for nothing with them and, if necessary, they would sacrifice a whole ship load of them if they stood between them and the money they seek.

On days when one or more steamships are scheduled to leave the port of New York hundreds of Italians can be seen making their way from the railroad stations to the steamship piers. Very frequently these aliens arrive in New York early on the morning of embarkation. Sometimes they are met by agents of the steamship line they are ticketed for and conducted to hotels or boarding houses where they are kept until an hour or two before the leaving hour. But those Italians who have made previous voyages invariably try to get along without the services of these guides, or runners, thereby saving the fees they are compelled to pay them, and then, too, all runners are not as honest as they might be, as these immigrants have learned to their sorrow.

At such times a group of three or four men may be seen lurking in doorways along West street, keeping a sharp lookout for approaching prey. When they see a knot of unattended fellow countrymen approaching they saunter forth to meet them. At a glance they can tell from the shipping tags the prospective voyagers are dangling from the lapels of their coats what line they are to embark on and what steamship as well.

They halt the plodding and travel fatigued foreigners and greeting them in native tongue tell them that they too are bound for the same steamship, and as it is several hours to steaming time suggest that they go to a nearby eating place for a bite of lunch and there rest. The self-constituted guides then tell their intended victims of the presence of thieves and highwaymen in New York and how careful all strangers should be with their money.

Congratulating themselves into the confidence of their prey they draw forth their own little hoards, the sum total often mounting into hundreds of dollars. This money is always tied in a peculiar way in a handkerchief. It is folded in such fashion that the bills lay flat and open, and then, by folding and refolding, the package becomes neat and compact, reposing in a pocket without showing from the outside.

If the wine the immigrants have partaken of begins to show its effect the "agent," or talking member of the trio, suggests that it might be safer if they all pooled their savings, invariably suggesting that one of the immigrants be appointed custodian of the hoard. This ruse seldom fails to work, and as each draws forth his savings, counting his individual share, the sum total is neatly folded in the handkerchief and turned over to the one designated as its holder.

There are two ways of working this swindle. Sometimes, after the money has been tied up in the handkerchief, one of the swindlers by a slight of hand trick substitutes another handkerchief of the same shape and size, containing counterfeit money. The original package he either slips into his own pocket or else transfers to the keeping of one of his accomplices. Then it is an easy matter for the holder of the genuine money to become separated from the group and make good his escape. When his absence is discovered the other two sharpers start out to find him, explaining that as he is a stranger in New York, and as all his money is in the keeping of his new found friends, he would be in desperate straits should the steamship depart without him. Of course they fail to find him, and they, too, lose themselves, after which the poor immigrants discover that they have been swindled.

The more common method, however, is to get the immigrant holding the genuine money apart from his friends and then knock him over the head, seize the bundle of money and decamp. Sometimes several thousand dollars are obtained from a single group of Italians homeward bound, for it is well known that these sons of Italy come here for eight or ten months each year, save nearly every penny they earn, and then return home until cold weather is over and it is time to take up their out of door life in railroad camps here again.

Marino Buti, a hard working Italian, was victimized not long ago by one of the cleverest bands of swindlers operating along the water front. He had arrived in New York the day prior to the departure of the steamship for which he had purchased steerage passage. He was stopping in a hotel at Thompson and Bleecker streets. He was approached by Carlo Bottuesco and Luigi Martino, two suave and plausible strangers, who told him they were leaving for the old country on the same steamship.

Buti found his new friends so agreeable and so well versed in the methods with which unprincipled strangers seek to swindle unwary travellers that he was glad to cast his lot with them and sally forth to a safer retreat where they would be unmolested.

A neighboring wine cellar was suggested and to this haven the three wended their way. Buti had about $300 in his pockets and he told his new friends that this represented the last installment he would have to pay on the little place in Italy, where he had left his wife and little ones. Just what trick was worked on him Buti has never been able to tell, but in any event he was fleeced of his savings in less than an hour after he entered the wine cellar and the steamship steamed away without him, for he had even been stripped of his ticket and surplus clothing.

Muggi learned of the case an hour or two after it occurred and that same afternoon he had the two culprits under arrest and their identity established beyond question of doubt. They were convicted and received a five-year term each in Sing Sing.

"Nearly all of these cases are alike," said the detective. "These poor unsuspecting aliens are stripped of every penny they possess every time they permit themselves to be taken in tow by these swindlers. There are no less than a dozen notorious bands of these confidence men who operate along the water-front and first and last I have arrested and convicted every one of them. Some of them are still in Sing Sing. Others have served their time and are at work here again. It's only a question of time before I will get them again, for they simply cannot exist unless they are 'slugging' or robbing some unsuspecting victim.

"Not long ago I arrested Augustino Cicone for fleecing Nicholas Salopek, a Pole, of $500. The victim had slaved for years on a farm in South Jersey and this $500 represented his life's savings. He was on his way home, where he intended to buy a little place and settle down. He never left this country, however, although I got Cicone and sent him away for a good long stretch."

Others who have fallen into the net that Muggi, Toner, Gaynor and McKenna stretched for them were George Wagner, John Martino and Peter Araldo. They were all shrewd confidence men and the particular job which resulted in their undoing was the swindle they worked on Charles Widmer, whom they found in a hotel at Varick and West streets. They lured him to St. Gabriel's Park, at Thirty-sixth street and Second avenue, where they got his year's earnings and there left him stranded.

Pietro Barberio and Louis Montagnore are doing long terms in prison for swindling John Baffora out of $51. Muggi, Gaynor and Toner received an this pair of "con. men" and succeeded in recovering a portion of the stolen money.

Alexander Devoe, alias Aleck Kelly, was one of a "mob" that had been particularly successful in working various confidence men and the "strong arm squad" after getting him "right," had him sent to Sing Sing for a good, long term. Not long after his incarceration word was received at Police Headquarters that Devoe had escaped from prison and, finding a boat waiting for him, had gotten across the river and set forth, presumably for New York.

Every haunt this criminal had been in the habit of frequenting was closely watched, but without success. After a lapse of several weeks, in which a score of his associates had been shadowed in the hope that they would lead the detectives to Devoe's lair, a woman he had once been fond of was seen walking in the street. The detectives followed her to her flat in Fifty-second street, near Third avenue, and then awaited developments. In a little while she sallied forth accompanied by Frank Maratori and boarded a street car. The detectives followed them and as they placed Maratori under arrest a desperate battle ensued, in which it was necessary to wrest the prisoner's pistol from his grasp and beat him into submission.

Returning to the flat the detectives found Devoe in the act of entering the house and arrested him. In the flat several revolvers and a complete opium smoking outfit were found. Devoe went back to prison to finish his uncompleted term with several years added. This little band of detectives have specialized on two other types of criminals—pocketbook droppers and coin matchers. They have rounded up many of the ringleaders of these bands, and in almost every instance succeeded in sending them away for long terms. John Cerutti, Augustino Ciccone, Joseph Susse, Pug Collins, Frank Lutz, Hogan the Grudger, Daily, Farrell, Farley and Crawford are a few of those recently locked up.

up an acquaintance with some unsophisticated stranger in the city, preferably an immigrant homeward bound, they start out for a walk. As they stroll along the pocketbook droppers suddenly stoop to pick up a pocketbook which a confederate is taking a few paces ahead has dropped. He scans the wallet and stuffing it quickly in his pocket as though in fear some one might see him in the act, he literally drags his companion with him into a side street. There, and with great caution, he draws forth the wallet and opens it to find it fairly bulging with bank notes.

There is more money in that wallet than the poor immigrant ever dreamed of seeing at one time. The man who finds the pocketbook generously offers to divide the contents of the wallet with his new friend, provided, of course, the stranger maintains a strict silence on the finding of the purse. He turns the pocketbook over to the immigrant intact, suggesting that he be its custodian. He quickly adds that since there is so much money in the pocketbook, which fact the prospective victim has had an opportunity to verify, that it might be well for the immigrant to turn over to the finder whatever ready money he might have about him, thus protecting the finder in the event of his becoming separated from the man with the wallet.

This scheme seemingly never fails to work. The unsuspecting victim hands over his neatly tied handkerchief, containing his savings. Of course the swindler manages to lose the victim, and when the wallet is more closely examined, it is found to contain many hundreds of dollars, unfortunately in counterfeit notes.

There is a lively traffic in money of this character along the water front, and "stage money" plays an important part in the swindles that are daily worked there. There are many instances on record where the sharpers have openly approached their victims and agreed to sell them the counterfeit money outright, making no claim as to its genuineness. They tell a plausible story of how they succeeded in getting possession of bank note plates with a flaw in them, which none but an expert could detect.

Then they sell them several thousand dollars' worth of the spurious notes for a few hundred. In many cases the purchasers have openly attempted to pass off these notes before their steamships embarked, and in every instance they were caught, and then learned for the first time that the notes they had purchased were not even good counterfeits, but stage money, or an advertisement.

A few weeks ago a trio of confidence men were seen lurking in the vicinity of a West street hotel, where many immigrants congregate. The detectives at once surmised that a scheme was in the process of hatching, so they secreted themselves and awaited developments. Two immigrants, apparently prosperous and well dressed, came along and the trio engaged them in conversation. The entire party strolled off and walked down to the Battery. Seating themselves on a bench the confidence men engaged in a game of coin matching. The strangers held aloof for a while, content to watch the progress of the play. As the stakes became higher with each flip of the coin, the innocent bystanders became more and more interested in the game and finally asked to be permitted to join in the play. Consent was reluctantly given and the game continued.
